Britain Shuns Handling Soviet Peace

Say Terms Would Leave Finns Helpless And Defenceless

LONDON, March 11 (CP)—Great Britain was disclosed today to have refused to convey to Finland Soviet Russian "peace terms of an onerous nature" and thereafter Sweden become the go-between.

Russian ambassador Ivan Maisky, it was said, approached R. A. Butler, foreign under-secretary, with the terms on Feb. 22.

Foreign office circles said they would have left Finland "helpless and defenceless" and the British government informed Finland later it had refused to act as intermediary.

The terms were said to have included "cession of territory covering Lake Ladoga. Viipuri, the whole of the Karelian Isthmus, Islands in the Gulf of Finland now occupied by Soviet troops, the western half of the Rybachi Peninsula and a long lease of Hanko as a Russian naval base."

Authoritative sources said similar terms were submitted to Sweden about the same time, and she conveyed them to Finland.

A source close to the British government asserted Sweden apparently had "not the same scruples as ourselves" about agreeing to mediate on such terms.

The Russian demands, London sources said, did not include cession by Finland of the Petsamo region in the far north where the Canadian-operated nickel mines are located.

Ribbentrop Sees Duce 2nd Time; Pays Pope Visit

Before calling at Il Duce's Palazzo Venezia office, Von Ribbentrop talked for half an hour with foreign minister Galeazzo Ciano during a day of intense diplomatic activity.

The German diplomat arrived at the Vatican city at 10.50 a.m. (4.45 a.m. EST) and a few minutes later he was ushered into the presence of the Pontiff for a private audience

Hepburn Aide Steps Out Over Policy

Provincial Secretary Resents Mainly Raps At War Effort

TORONTO, March 11 — (CP). — Harry Nixon, Provincial Secretary and right-hand-man of Premier Hepburn, resigned today from the Ontario Cabinet in protest against the Premier's recent attitude toward the conduct of Canada's war effort.

In his letter of resignation to the Government leader, Mr. Nixon said he was relinquishing his positions as Provincial Secretary, Registrar-General and Minister of Game and Fisheries. He will continue to represent Brant constituency in the Legislature as a Liberal-Progressive.

In a statement given to the press along with a copy of the letter of resignation, Mr. Nixon listed four actions by the Premier with which he was in disagreement. They were:

1. The motion of censure against the Dominion Government's conduct of the war effort passed at the recent session of the Legislature and for which Mr. Nixon voted. He charged Mr. Hepburn was unfair in "forcing" the resolution upon his supporters.

2. Subsequent attacks by the Premier on the Federal Government in its conduct of the war effort.

3. Banning last week of the March of Time film, "Canada at War."

4. The Premier's charges that a violent disturbance occurred at the Royal Canadian Air Force training school at St. Thomas.

Forty-eight years old and a member of the government since Mr. Hepburn formed his first cabinet in 1934, Mr. Nixon frequently served as Acting Premier during Mr. Hepburn's absences from Toronto. In many quarters he was regarded as the likely choice for Premier in the event of Mr. Hepburn's retirement.

Nixon's Letter

Following is the text of Mr. Nixon's letter of resignation:

Dear Mr. Hepburn:

It is with great regret I advise you I find myself so completely at variance with your recent policy statements and hope that I am convinced it would not be fair or honest to you as head of the government, to the people of Ontario who have honored me so greatly with their confidence during my 21 years in the Legislature, or to myself, to continue longer in my position in your government.

In asking you therefore to accept my resignation as Provincial Secretary, Registrar General and Minister in charge of Game and Fisheries may I express the sincere hope that this step, the serious consequences of which I fully appreciate, might not end the warm friendship which has existed between us personally and between our families for so many years. Needless to say I will give your government all possible support in the legislature.

Please believe me to be, with kindest personal regards, sincerely yours,

(Signed) H. C. NIXON.

Mr. Nixon gave the following statement to the press:

The Premier alliance with Col. Drew (Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader) which has been so obvious for many months and which seems to exist for the sole purpose of concentrating every possible attack and embarrassment upon the Federal Government, has been particularly repugnant to me and when this culminated in the motion of censure in the Legislature I realized the time had come

Russia Unable To Supply Nazi With Oil, Railways Are In Terrible Condition, Country Has No Means Of Storage

Declaring that Russia as a source of oil supply for Germany was only a bogey, Rotarian George Garner of the Oshawa Rotary Club and brother of H. L. Garner of Peterborough, in an address before the Peterborough Rotary Club today on the subject "The War Over Oil," stated that Germany was already facing a very serious shortage of gasoline for her mechanized army and of high grade aviation fuel for her air fleet. The difficulties in the way of meeting this shortage were outlined by the speaker, who wound his informative talk by quoting Beranger's message to Clemenceau after the last Great War: "Who has oil has Empire."

To illustrate the great need for oil in the present war the speaker pointed out that in the last world conflict an army division needed for its transport and mechanized equipment only 4,000 horse-power, while to-day in this mechanized war, a division required 187,000 horse-power.

The World's Supply

Rotarian Garner then reviewed the world's oil supply of which he said United States had 62 to 65 per cent or 1,500,000,000 barrels a year. Next came Russia with 219,700,000 barrels, Roumania with 47,000,000 barrels, Persia with 77,000,000 and Iraq with 29,500,000 barrels. The supply in the latter two countries, he said, was under British and Dutch control.

Germany in peace time required 45,000,000 barrels a year for military purposes and in the rate at which the war was moving at present required 90,000,000 barrels a year. If a great push came the German need would be stepped up to 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 barrels a year.

In peace time Germany looked for her oil supply to any country that would accept goods in return but in war she had to look elsewhere. Sixty-four per cent of the Roumanian oil was under British and French control. Germany had contracted for 20,000,000 barrels from Roumania, while the remaining 47,000,000 had been bought by Britain and France.

A Doubtful Source.

As for Russia, the speaker said, that, even if that country could

HELSINKI, Mar. 11 — (AP). — With Finland in anxious suspense regarding peace negotiations in Moscow, the Finnish high command announced to-day that the invading Red army continued attacks on the shore of Viipuri Bay "and met with success in a few places."

The communique, covering yesterday's military activities, indicated plainly that hostilities were continuing while Finnish Premier Risto Ryti and three aides were in Russia discussing a possible cessation of hostilities.

Between the city of Viipuri, theratened from the rear by shore attacks, and the Vuoksi River near the centre of the Mannerheim Line the Finns repulsed many local attacks, the communique said. Six Red tanks were reported destroyed.

The pendulum swung back and forth between peace prospects and indications of a continuing war.

First, official disclosure of peace talks in Moscow suggested that her defence of independence was almost over. Then, within a few hours, bitter words from the Moscow radio hinted it might be far from ended.

Perplexed Finns gathered that the Moscow negotiations might have hit a snag.

On one side was the surprising news of the Finnish peace delegation, on the other, reports that the Finnish forces still were battling a Russian army hammering with undiminished fury at Viipuri.

On one side, the Finns were told that Soviet Russia had named her price; on the other, they learned that Red army bombers again had bombed civilian populations.

Terms of the Russian proposals were not disclosed and the Finnish announcement made clear that "no decision has been taken up to the present."

The government merely the ruling republic yesterday that a four-man Finnish delegation was in Moscow at Russia's invitation and had begun direct negotiations "to find out whether possibilities exist for a cessation of hostilities and a restoration of peace."

Call For Revolt.

But early today, after a two-day silence regarded as significant, the Moscow radio turned oral guns on Premier Risto Ryti, head of the Finnish negotiators, and renewed appeals to Finnish soldiers to revolt.

(Attacks on the Finnish government continued also in the Russian press yesterday. Although the invitation to discuss peace implied recognition of the Helsinki government, an article in the Moscow trade union organ, Trud, again hailed the Communist Terijoki regime which Russia had called Finland's only legal government.

(In Stockholm, informed sources said Russia had offered Finland a new Karelian Isthmus frontier, leaving Viipuri to the Finns but taking a large part of the Mannerheim Line.

(These sources said the proposed new lines would run from Taipale, on Lake Ladoga, to Sumna, Russia, they said, wanted islands in the Bay of Finland, but would leave the Finns Hanko, southwestern port they regard at vital to their independence, and the Petsamo district, their ice-free outlet to the Arctic).

Hopes For Peace

Stockholm, March 11 (AP)

SCANDINAVIA held high hopes today that a peace agreement will be reached between Finland and Russia.

Newspapers were unanimous in expressing belief that peace is near, but there were no confirmation a decision actually has been reached.

The Finnish delegation which went to Moscow last week was reported this morning to have left for home with the peace conditions by way of Stockholm, but the men failed to arrive and Swedes concluded they still were conferring in the Kremlin.

Premier Is Silent On Question Will Army Be Sent?

LONDON, Mar. 11 — (CP). — Prime Minister Chamberlain announced to-day that Great Britain and France are prepared to help Finland "with all the available resources at our disposal" but declined to say whether it was proposed that regular troops should be sent.

Making a statement in the House of Commons, the Prime Minister said, in reply to a question as to whether further Anglo-French help would be tantamount to going to war against Russia, that "we have not arrived at that yet."

Mr. Chamberlain said the Allies "are prepared, in response to an appeal from them (the Finnish Government) for further aid, to proceed immediately and jointly to the help of Finland, using all the available resources at their disposal."

The statement issued later at 10 Downing Street clarified the Prime Minister's words.

"As there appears to be misunderstanding about the reply given by the Prime Minister," it said, "the Prime Minister desires to make it clear that no appeal for further aid has yet been received from the Finnish Government."

Much Aid Already Gone

Asked by Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition, for a statement on the negotiations now in progress between Finland and Russia, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"The House will be aware that both the French and British governments have sent, and are continuing to send, material assistance to Finland. This has been of considerable value to the Finnish forces.

New Nazi Regime Key To Peace Welles Is Told

LONDON, March 11—(AP).—In a friendly but skeptical atmosphere Sumner Welles today explored Great Britain's official attitude on war and peace aims in talks with national leaders.

A private audience with King George at Buckingham Palace was the first item on the itinerary of the second day President Roosevelt's investigator spent in the British capital. Formal talks with Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax were to follow.

Discussing the possible results of the conference, the London press was polite but frank. Their comment was summed up by the Daily Mail:

"The visibility was decidedly poor and glimpses even of the immediate future are apt to be misleading."

RCAF 'Walkout' No Myth 12 Witnesses Say

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Mar. 11 — (CP). — Witnesses told a police inquiry to-day that they had seen airmen walking through the streets of St. Thomas and that authorities were attempting to return the men to barracks on February 10, the day Premier Hepburn claims there was a "walkout" at the R.C.A.F. training centre near here.

Two theatre managers said military police had come to their picture houses and had attempted to round-up airmen who were reported to have left the barracks without permission.

Another witness, Dalton Riggs, shop owner, told the Commissioner, William H. Stringer, head of the Provincial Police, that "the walkout was the chief topic of conversation around town for days." He added that "residents of St. Thomas to my

Nazis Out To Appease Norse Propose To Spare Her Unconvoyed Ships

OSLO, March 11—(AP). — The newspaper Aftenposten said today it had learned on the highest authority that Germany had agreed to a policy which will lessen the war danger to Scandinavian shipping.

The first step in this was the reported agreement by Germany not to attack Norwegian ships which do not sail in convoys (presumably to British ports) or which journey between neutral ports.

(The Scandinavian nations generally and Norway in particular have suffered heavy shipping losses through the war at sea).

It was regarded probable here that the same treatment would be accorded Swedish, Danish and possibly all neutral shipping.

Under the new agreement, the Aftenposten said, ships bringing coal to Norway are in no case to be attacked, and the cargoes of all ships not moving under convoy, if they "comply with international law," will be checked before any action is taken against them.

The newspaper said orders to this effect already have been sent to all German submarine commanders.

The German promise was said to have been given to T. Halvorsen, one of Norway's leading shipping men and former president of the Norwegian Shipowners' Association, when he visited Berlin recently to negotiate on behalf of the association.

The opinion here is that Germany's move was prompted by strained relations with Norway over recent numerous sinkings of Norwegian ships.

Germany previously had warned neutrals that she regarded as fair prey all ships touching at British ports, even though merely diverted by contraband control authorities. Neutrals also had been warned that all ships travelling in convoy, and all vessels moving without lights or otherwise seeking to hide their movements, would be subject to attack.

NAZIS HANDLE LESS COAL

Fuel dealers of Germany are handling less than 10 tons of coal a month instead of the usual 200 tons before the present shortage.

True Nazi Aim Is To Destroy Britain, France

LONDON, March 11.—(CP).—The true Nazi war aim is to destroy the British and French empires, and any "patched-up" peace would give Germany a breathing spell before renewing the war, the Times said to-day in commenting on the European visit of Sumner Welles, United States Under-Secretary of State.

The Times also interpreted Reich Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop's visit to Rome as an effort to reconcile German, Italian and Soviet interests in the Balkans in order "to promote German ascendancy in Europe."

"Welles has come to Europe," the Times said, "not to make any peace proposals on President Roosevelt's behalf, but to learn the view of the British, French, German and Italian governments as to the possibilities of peace and report them to his government.

Cordova Output Figures In Gold Record

TORONTO, March 11.—(CP)—Value of Ontario mineral production reached an all-time high of $231,945,539 in 1939, it was said today in a preliminary report released by Mines Minister Paul Leduc. Production value in 1938 was $219,950,476, the increase in 1939 being 5.4 per cent.

Production of metallics increased 5.5 per cent, non-metallics 13.5 per cent and structural materials 1.57 per cent. There was a 2.6 per cent drop in clay products output.

The gold industry surpassed all former records. Fifteen new mills were in operation. Southeastern Ontario re-entered the list when the Cordova property resumed work. Value of production was aided by the 10 per cent increase in the value of gold in Canadian funds.

Another boost was given the total value of production by the resumption of iron ore mining at Michi-

Australia Expects 220,000 Of Army At Home Or Abroad By June, 1941

SYDNEY, Australia, March 11.—(CP Cable).—Australia expects to have a total of 222,000 men under arms in all fighting services either at home or overseas by June, 1941.

Prime Minister R. G. Menzies last week revealed the scope of the Australian war effort for the first time and announced that it was planned to dispatch army corps overseas.

It was learned today that Australia's objective so far as overseas troops is concerned, is the maintenance on the war fronts of three modern "slimmed" divisions, of 16,000 men each, to be continually reinforced. This compares with five divisions of 20,000 men each in the first Great War.

In addition, it is proposed to raise a force of 1,200 technical troops such as railway trops to serve overseas, while an air squadron will also be maintained at the front and a flying boat squadron will be maintained in England.

These army plans are all in addition to Australia's responsibilities under naval arrangements and the Empire air training scheme. The naval task of the Australian Commonwealth now is much greater than in the first Great War.

The total of 222,000 men under arms will be composed of 90,000 in the Australian infantry force, 78,000 in the home defence force, 34,000 men for the local and Empire air training scheme, 9,000 in the permanent militia and 11,600 in the naval personnel.

630 Million For 2 Years.

This effort is estimated to cost $630,000,000 in the first two years of the war, compared with an expenditure of about $300,000,000 in the first two years of the last war.

The magnitude of Australia's war effort may have lost some of its impressiveness overseas because up to now no picture has been gained

Britain Frees 13 Italian Colliers; Duce Agrees To Shun Nazi Coal

LONDON, March 11 — (CP). — Prime Minister Chamberlain, reporting to the House of Commons on the week-end settlement of the coal dispute with Italy, declared today "it may be hoped that the way now has been reponed for resumption of trade talks to the mutual advantage of the two countries."

Mr. Chamberlain said he was "sure there would be genuine satisfaction in this country in the solution of what might have been a troublesome dispute by application of common sense and good will."

Asked whether Britain had been able to arrange to supply more coal to Italy now, the Prime Minister said "That no doubt will be the subject of further discussions."

To a Labor member's suggestion that the "common sense to which the Prime Minister referred should be applied to the general situation all over the world," Mr. Chamberlain replied amid laughter that "it takes more people than one to apply common sense."

Britain had embargoed exports of German coal to Italy. The Rome government lodged a strong protest, declaring Italy is dependent almost wholly upon foreign coal for her home industries.

Situation Solved.

Then on Saturday night came an announcement of settlement of the dispute, with Britain releasing 13 Italian ships loaded with German coal which she had seized and held at a contraband control point off southeast England, and Italy agreeing not to send any more ships to Rotterdam for German coal.

Leaders Jockey For Position In Stretch Drive

(By Canadian Press.)

Political leaders watched the official nominations closely today and jockeyed for position in the stretch drive of the Dominion election campaign, following a heavy week-end of campaigning.

Six Federal cabinet ministers gave election speeches Saturday and last night revenue minister Ilsley at Kentville, N.S., announced a new trade agreement between Canada and the Dominican republic.

Mr. Ilsley said the new trade agreement, signed March 8, provided for an exchange of goods on a most-favored nation basis and for removal of Dominican internal revenue taxes on certain kinds of Canadian fish and Canadian seed potatoes.

The Conservative weekend campaign was led by three prominent party men and Dr. J. A. Robb, national organizer, charged in Ottawa blocks was the question of Italian coal imports.

In 1939 Italy imported 11,000,000 tons of coal, of which 60 per cent. came from Germany. It is estimated that not more than 3,000,000 tons of this can be handled by rail across the German-Italian border.

Britain in demanding that shipment of German coal to Italy by sea must cease proposed that Italy buy British coal available for export, but was understood to have demanded heavy industrial goods in payment. Italy was reported to have insisted upon paying for any such coal mostly with agricultural products. There the talks ended and the diplomatic impasse followed.

Mr. Chamberlain said today that Italy's instructions for the sailing of coal ships from the Netherlands after March 1—the embargo deadline—despite the British announcement they would be stopped "was based on a misunderstanding."

"Recognizing this misunderstanding, His Majesty's government have agreed to release the ships which have been detained with their cargoes," said Mr. Chamberlain.

"On the other hand the Italian government that undertaken on their side that the remainder of Italian coal ships now in port will leave in ballast and no further Italian cargo steamers will be sent to these ports to load coal."

The Times predicted in an editorial that the peaceful adjustment of the dispute over coal cargoes may lead Great Britain and Italy to "a reciprocally advantageous adjustment of trade exchanges."

of the effort in its entirety, and official announcements have been restricted to small parts of the whole. The government's announcements were purposely made in piece-meal form because of the earlier fears of possible hostile action by Japan.

It is only since it has been recognized that the Japanese navy is unlikely to help the Germans that Australia's military effort overseas could be fully stated. Even so, large forces are being maintained locally against the remote possibility of an attack on Australia, in which regard the situation here is totally different from that of Canada.

Australia began her army effort before the war started, expanding the regular militia from 30,000 to 78,000. The stipulation of a minimum of six months' training means a compulsory training system with the calling up of men between 20 and 22, but it is confidently expected that a partially-trained militia will supply volunteers for overseas service.

One old-time division of 20,000 men has already enlisted for overseas service. Part of this force is now in Palestine and the remainder is almost ready to join them.

Now it is proposed to enlist another 70,000 men by June, 1941. Whether this will end the army's task in Australia depends on the course of the length of the war.

15 Vessel Navy

So far as naval responsibility is concerned Australia's fleet now consists of 15 vessels, including five modern cruisers, and there are also crews ready to man an additional cruiser and several smaller ships, besides several armed merchantmen.

Australia's munitions effort has also been enormously increased over that of the last war. The commonwealth is already turning out a larger quantity of munitions than Canada, according to official sources here. Britain has ordered $10,500,000 worth of munitions from Australia and other shipments are going to New Zealand, India and South Africa.

Planes are already arriving from the United States and about 1,200 more are coming from Britain for the commonwealth's share in the empire air training plan. Enlistment and training of air recruits has begun but progress has been somewhat slow to date since the majority of airfields needed are not yet ready.

Australia's total obligation under the empire air plan is estimated at 26,500 airmen plus about 50,000 ground staff. The proportion of the ground staffs that will be sent overseas is still unknown, but two-ninths—or slightly under a quarter—of the airmen will receive advanced training in Canada and the first batch will soon be in the sister dominion for this final training.

The biggest difference between Australia's war effort in the present conflict and in the First Great War is the increased industrialization that has taken place. This has enabled Australia to take over much munition and aircraft construction work that was formerly concentrated in Britain.

The maintenance in camp of large drafts of militia for the increased permanent forces however reduces the available labor for production of foodstuffs that are sent to Britain yearly during the war.

knowledge have accepted this walkout as a fact."

The 12 witnesses appearing before the commission, ordered by Premier Hepburn to investigate his own charges that trouble had occurred at the centre, spoke either from personal knowledge or from information obtained from members of the Air Force. Only one airman in uniform, J. A. Telfer, appeared at the hearing. He said he appeared voluntarily to tell of what he knew of the incident.

Flier Denies Part.

Telfer said he had taken no part in what he described as a "walkout," but said he knew about it. He also told the commission, sitting ostensibly to investigate policing of Elgin County where is situated the big air force training school, the property and buildings of which are owned by the Ontario Government.

Premier Hepburn, who came here on Friday to arrange the hearing, was not present to-day. Neither the Air Force nor the Defence Departments were represented.

The witnesses included Angus Johnson, former Mayor of St. Thomas and now an inspector for the Ontario Public Works Department; two theatre owners, two shop owners who said they saw the airmen walking down the streets, a Provincial Police constable, and the night editor of a Toronto paper, whose statement was read to the commission because the editor was unable to appear.

The First Witness.

First witness was Angus Johnson, inspector for the Ontario Public Works Department at the former hospital now housing the R.C.A.F. centre. Johnson, a former mayor of St Thomas, said he left the school Saturday, Feb. 10 to drive to St. Thomas. He gave a lift to two air men who said they had no passes.

These men told him there was dissatisfaction at the school, that a number of airmen had walked out and that they would be seen on the road, Johnson said. He then passed a small party of airmen walking toward the city. Further on he passed about 150 airmen marching in an orderly manner without non-commissioned officers or officers, but with airmen acting as non-commissioned officers." The men were singing and some carried kit bags.

Later on, said Mr. Johnson, airmen told him the guard at the school gate had permitted the men to pass out. He also learned the military police had been ordered to go to St. Thomas that afternoon to notify all airmen to return for muster parade but that night a number were still in town late that night.

Heard Leaves Cancelled

James Arthur Ship, a war veteran, now in business on the main street of St. Thomas, said he saw a body of airmen pass his shop on Feb 10. He thought it was a route march until he saw the rear section break up in an "unmilitary manner." Later he heard the men marched out "because their leaves were cancelled."

J. A. Telfer, an airman in uniform, said he appeared voluntarily, was not subpoenaed and gave evidence on his own responsibility. Mr. Snyder, speaking as a representative of the Crown, said he was not responsible for the airman's appearance or testimony.

Telfer said he was having lunch when the walkout took place and had no part in it. On the afternoon of Feb. 10 there was a muster parade and the men were given to understand that for the afternoon they could come and go as they pleased. About 150 men walked out, came to St. Thomas and then went on to London, Toronto and other places. He did not know if any discipline was imposed as a result.

Mr. Snyder said he was interested only in the walkout, but Telfer might tell the commissioner anything he wished. Witness proceeded.

"I have been here for two months and haven't done anything in the line of training yet. I was never unemployed before I enlisted and I expected to train as an aero engine mechanic. I have done nothing but small jobs, such as mopping floors."

Talk of the City.

Dalton Higgs, manager of a tire shop, said he saw 125 to 150 airmen pass his shop Feb. 10. He learned later there was a walkout. Later he inquired of an airman whom he knew. "Did you round up all your culprits" The airman appeared to resent the question but said that all but 40 or 50 were back at the school.

"The walkout was the chief topic of conversation around town for days," said Mr. Higgs. "Residents of St. Thomas to my knowledge have accepted this walkout as a fact."

Harold Preston, manager of a St. Thomas theatre, said that on the afternoon of Feb. 10 two men in uniform asked him to flash a slide on the screen to tell all airmen to go back to the station. He did so. None of the airmen, of whom there were about 16 in the theatre, responded.

Production records were shattered by the nickel-copper industry, but the value of nickel produced showed a drop. Platinum metals had a higher value despite decreased yield. Silver, selenium, cobalt and lead were up in both quantity and value.

Barite In Demand

Barite shipments were reported from two properties. Demand for this was reported pressing as the blockade of Germany has prevented her from continuing barite exports to the United States. Increased production of fluorspar was reported as resulting from the Spanish civil war. Bulk of Canadian Fluorspar consumption was formerly obtained from Spain.

A program to be carried out under the direction of the provincial geologist recently was announced by the mines minister, in an attempt to aid prospectors and shed new light on known deposits of strategic minerals.

The program will include examination by all leaders of government geological parties of any occurrence of strategic war miners in or near the areas under survey, and inspection of deposits of molybdenum, beryl, chromium, barite, manganese, magnesium and other war minerals.

Other measures include the assigning of one member of the staff of the provincial geologist to the Cobalt area with a view of maintaining or increasing the production of fluorspar, feldspar and other non-metallic minerals in Eastern Ontario, and encouragement of prospectors to enquire on various types of non-metallic minerals.

"As His Majesty's government and the French government have already informed the Finnish government, they are prepared, in response to an appeal from them for further aid, to proceed immediately and jointly to the help of Finland, using all available resources at their disposal."

Asked if he could say, anything regarding the question of a settlement of the Russo-Finnish conflict, Mr. Chamberlain said "I am afraid I have no information which is sufficiently reliable to give the House at the present moment."

Mr. Atlee asked if any aid sent Finland would be in "fulfilment of our obligation under the covenant of the League of Nations and in cooperation with other states similarly bound."

The Prime Minister replied: "It will certainly be in accordance with our obligations under the covenant. As to cooperation with other States, I have already mentioned that France is in association with ourselves. Of course I cannot say what other states might feel bound to do."

"Does this not mean that it is tantamount to us going to war with Russia?" asked David Kirkwood, Labor.

"We have not arrived at that yet," Mr. Chamberlain replied.

The Prime Minister refused to answer a question whether Britain is "proposing to send troops to Finland" and "if so, are they preparing to violate the neutrality of Norway and Sweden in doing so."

No Apologies on Vote

I have no apologies to offer anyone for my vote on that occasion. The resolution was precipitated upon the house without a moment's warning, the premier stating if it did not carry he would at once resign, which meant that the province would be imersed in the throes of a bitter provincial election on the issue of Canada's conduct in the war.

In addition, all the instincts of loyalty to my leader and friend and party — loyalty which has been instilled in me by a score of years in public life—prompted me to support him rather than to speak and vote against the resolution in the house, which I believe would have meant the defeat of the government.

But there is another loyalty in party government besides that which a member owes his leader, and that is the loyalty a leader owes to his supporters, and the premier was not fair to his supporters in forcing this resolution upon them, knowing as he did that everyone was opposed to the introduction of such a motion and intended to support the Liberal Government of Mr. King in the approaching Federal election.

Backing the Candidate

I immediately afterward wired my Liberal executive at Brant assuring them I would support the election of the candidate they selected in convention.

Since the House has prorogued, matters have rapidly gone from bad to worse; continuous attacks have been directed against the Federal Government and the conduct of the war by the Premier and Col. Drew. It does seem to me that if Col. Drew desires to dominate and dictate in Canada's war he should either be in the army, for which service he undoubtedly has great qualifications, training and experience, or he should be a candidate in this election for the House of Commons, which has the responsibility and jurisdiction for carrying on the war, not the legislature of Ontario.

In properly looking after the affairs of this great province, which has one-third the population of Canada and one-half its wealth and industries, there is a work important enough for any government, its supporters and opposition.

I for one am content to leave the conduct of the war in the capable hands of the Federal government, and all matters pertaining to the military, whether it be disturbances by soldiers, "A.W.O.L's", or what not, to military authorities and army discipline.

Favored Film's Release.

In the matter of the banning of the March of Time film, "Canada at War," as acting premier I saw this screened two weeks ago and would not have hesitated one moment in ordering its release had the premier not sent word to the Board that it was to be held for his inspection.

I was astounded to read in the papers that it had been banned and still I believe it to be a splendid picture and one which citizens of Ontario should be permitted to see now while it is being shown everywhere else in America.

But it is the present situation at St. Thomas, the premier's charges of violent disturbances at the school of the R.C.A.F., that has convinced me the break must come now and I must dissociate myself from his actions, the gravely serious consequences of which I need not now discuss as they are apparent to everyone, but I must protest emphatically against involving the commissioner of the provincial police service as has been done.

Hits Service Foundations.

It seems to me that this action strikes at the very foundations of the impartial effectiveness of that great branch of the public service and of the fair administration of justice in this province. Indeed no member of the Legislature who either supported or opposed the passing of the Constables Act two years ago ever dreamed it would be prostituted to such a purpose, namely, to prove who is correct, the Premier who said there were violent disturbances, or Mr. Rogers who said there weren't.

This inquiry will seriously discount the future usefulness of two valuable public services and nothing but harm can come of it.

For myself, while I am not resigning my seat in the Legislature, I intend to return to my farm in Brant and devote my energies literally to make two blades grow where one grew last year and ten hogs where one is growing now.

I honestly believe I made my greatest possible contribution in the last war by carrying on my farm when I was of military age. Probably I can make as great a contribution there in this war as if I sat at a desk in Queen's Park.

Good Farmer Again.

Admittedly the old farm, which has been in my family for nearly a hundred years, my son now being the fourth generation to farm, has suffered because of my many years of absence, but I like to think I can again be a good farmer. I aspire to no greater distinction.

I intend to vote for the return of the government of Mr. Mackenzie King, so also will my wife, my aged father now nearly ninety years who lives with us, and my son and daughter who are over twenty-one. My only regret is that the other two are not old enough to vote likewise. If anyone does not like this I will be in the happy position to tell them there what they can do about it.

nothing to hide from him, for they have not taken up arms lightly. He may be sure of all the help and evidence that the British government can give him. Meanwhile, his own government have furnished the four powers concerned with a statement of their views on economic settlement which would follow the conclusion of peace. Its value, however, will depend entirely on whether that peace will be durable.

The Nazi Strategy.

"What is clear is that the Germans are using the visit of Sumner Welles, now in London, in an attempt to weaken the Allied resolution by talk of a patched-up peace. In almost every country they are saying privately that the are willing to establish, in vaguely defined and diminished territories, a puppet Poland or Czecho-Slovakia, they say, to satisfy the British and French Governments.

"The Allied Governments are pledged, as Sumner Welles will be told, to end the recurring menace of German aggression and to restore full freedom and full security to the Poles and Czechs. Those are minimum aims dictated alike by honor and security.

"Unfortunately for their own ends the German leaders spoil their own propaganda for their patched-up peace by revealing to their own followers exactly how they would regard such a false peace—simply as a breathing space. They say: A pause to gather fresh forces for their work of destroying the British and French Empires. There are no illusions about such a peace in responsible quarters here.

"To fit the new policy of Nazi Germany to the old conception of the anti-Comintern axis is therefore one of the main and most difficult tasks which the German Foreign Minister faces in Rome.

"Another delicate application of the same process of reconciling aims which are fundamentally opposite or competitive, may well carry the Ribbentrop talks into the region of the Balkans, where the threat of Russian influence is steadily and unequivocally opposed by the Italian Government.

Hard to Fit Together

"Neither Russian and Italian, nor German and Italian, nor Russian and German aims can be altogether easy to fit in with one another in South-Eastern Europe. No doubt, in the time at his disposal, Ribbentrop's inventive and versatile mind will suggest plausible proposals to his hosts in the Palazzo Chigi.

"The visit Ribbentrop is paying the Pope will also presumably have as its purpose to excuse as best he may the outrageous treatment of the Roman Catholic church in conquered Poland, and perhaps to hold out compensating plans for the future.

"He will certainly need more than persuasive eloquence if he is to make the slightest impression upon Pius XII.

"It is not hard in any case to sum up the main objective of his descent on Rome. It is, as always and everywhere, the consolidation of ill-gotten gains in Central Europe and the promotion of German ascendancy in Europe.

"The same objective is unconcealed in the falsehoods, larger and more positive than ever, to which Hitler yesterday gave an unpleasantly sanctimonious setting. More and more he protests the defensive character of his war, and by consequence his sole right to dispose of weaker nations with whom, rightly to apply the words he misapplied yesterday, he refused agreement upon equal terms.

"His aim, in short, is to hold without war what he has gained by aggression."

Hepburn Accepts

ST. THOMAS, Ont., March 11.—(CP)—Informed by newspapermen of the resignation of Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon, Premier Mitchell Hepburn said today the resignation would be accepted.

"I regret that my colleague didn't wait until he had all the facts before him," said Mr. Hepburn.

Referring to Mr. Nixon's dissent from the banning of the March of Time film, "Canada At War," Mr. Hepburn said the picture had been advertised in Vancouver as a political film. In Montreal it had been advertised as filmed under the auspices of the Dominion Government.

Mr. Hepburn said the showing of the film was advanced one month "in order to accommodate Mr. King (Prime Minister Mackenzie King)." It was number eight in a series yet was being released ahead of number seven.

His charges regarding trouble at the St. Thomas Royal Canadian Air Force training school were proved at the morning session of the inquiry and there was still more evidence to come, said Mr. Hepburn.

"I want to make my point clear," he said. "I believe there was lack of preparedness before the outbreak of the conflict and I do not believe that the Dominion Government has exerted every effort in order to prepare for the fury which lies ahead.

"I would rather have my political record in this regard known than to falsely bolster up Mr. King for political reasons."

spare oil which was doubtful, it would be extremely difficult for Germany to secure much from that source. The Russian railways were in terrible condition and, in addition they were broad guage so that every tank car of oil would have to be transhipped at the border. In addition Germany had to face the problem of storage and he had been informed that she had only facilities for some 3,500,000 barrels.

Germany's present shortage was estimated at 47,000,000 to 50,000,000 barrels of oil. She could not overcome it by the manufacture by synthetic baseline because it would require 20 plants similar to the large one now under construction to turn out a supply that would have much effect upon the situation.

What Germany could do to meet the crisis, the speaker did not know. If she started a push into Rumania she would find the oil wells destroyed as they had been in the last great war and a drive down into Persia and Iraq would be an almost impossible venture.

MORE ABOUT—

Only strong indication as a result of Von Ribbentrop's first meeting with Premier Mussolini yesterday was that the Fascist government intends to remain non-belligerent, at least until there is some upset in Europe's military stalemate.

Liberal credence was given in foreign circles to rumors that Hitler seeks revision of the German concordat with the Vatican.

(The Concordat was ratified Sept. 10, 1933, before the German expansion, and prescribed the separate fields of the church and government in Germany. Church-State friction has led to belief on several occasions that relations between Germany and the Vatican might be severed.

Touchy Subject

(Newly-acquired German territory, furthermore, is in an uncertain status. The concordat between the Vatican and Independent Austria, for instance, became void after Germany's annexation of Austria in March, 1938, and the German-Vatican concordat was never extended there.)

Aside from serving as a friendly gesture which might impress Germany's 30,000,000 Catholics, Von Ribbentrop's visit to the Pope was expected to settle the question whether a papal investigator would be allowed to look into church conditions in German-occupied Poland, where mistreatment of Catholics has been reported.

Since nothing was known of the nature of Von Ribbentrops talk with Mussolini, foreign reports that they concerned themselves with a guarantee of Finland's frontiers if Helsinki accepted Russian peace terms lacked confirmation.

But authoritative Fascists said that if a proposal for the joint guarantee were made, it was out of the question for Italy to become a guarantor because of geographical difficulties.

Tories Placed On Boards Conant States

BROOKLIN, March 11 (Special) —Charges that the King Government is running a partisan war administration won't stand up because more than twenty important posts on its wartime boards are filled by prominent Conservatives, Hon. G. D Conant told a Liberal meeting Saturday.

Referring to preparedness and war expenditures, Mr. Conant declared: "I am satisfied the Federal Government went as far as it could go until the threat of war became a reality."

Speaking on behalf of W. H Moore, Liberal candidate in South Ontario, Mr. Conant said the lack of patronage was in contrast to that which prevailed in the Union Government of Sir Robert Borden.

Mr. Conant contended that the Province of Ontario had taken more concrete measures to aid the Dominion's war effort since the outbreak of hostilities than any other province.

"The large institution at St Thomas was turned over to the Federal Government, the Provincial Department of Lands and Forests turned over much of its equipment and facilities, the Health Department turned over its laboratories to the Department of National Defence, tuberculosis clinics were established to aid in m dical tests, and the Provincial Government undertook to guard hydro and other strategic points throughout Ontario," he asserted.

Great For Flies

Rochester, Ind., March 11 (AP) A THREE-DAY OLD calf on Wallace Morris' farm has double protection against flies. The calf, a purebred Durham, was born with two tails, the extra one on his left hip. He weighs 50 pounds, is otherwise normal and in good health—and can use both tails.

HASTINGS, March —(ENS)—A Canadian Girls-in-Training class was organized on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. E. Glover and meetings will be held the first and third Wednesdays of each month. The following were elected as officers:

Leaders, Mrs. Margery Scriver and Mrs. J. E. Glover; president, Miss Luella Richardson; vice-president, Miss Doreen Fleming; secretary, Miss Elleda Buck; treasurer, Miss Muriel Oliver; pianist, Miss Margery Scriver.

Omemee Council Purchases Stove For Jail

OMEMEE, Mar. 11—(ENS).—Purchase of new chairs, covering of the table, and painting of both furniture in the Council Chamber was approved at the March meeting of the Omemee Village Council.

The Council also authorized Constable Pitts to purchase a stove and set it up in the jail. One more applicant for the old-age pension was approved. Arthur Williamson addressed the Council seeking permission to place used cars on a lot without paying a deposit. Permission was granted.

Payment of the following accounts was authorized:

Street lights, $83.44; Hydro, Coronation Hall, $6.11; Hydro, Fire Hall, $1.50; J. White, coal for Fire Hall, $13.09; H. Lamb, manual of accounting, postage and express, $4.50; Department of Health, insulin, $1.46; M. D. Earl, meal tickets, $3.15; M .D. Earl, police equipment, $38.80; M. D. Earl, axe wedge, 70c; H Thorne, wood relief, $7.50; F. C. H Bent, relief, $2.08; McKenzie, relief, $16.00; A. J. Pitts, salary for February, $58.34.

W.M.S. Meets.

W.M.S. of Trinity United Church met at the home of Mrs. S. H. Moyer for their monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Moyer, leader for Group 1, and opened by singing two verses of the 23rd Psalm, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Mrs. Connell, the president, took the chair for the business period. The remainder of the meeting was spent in sewing, after which a dainty lunch was served by ladies of Group 1.

Political Meeting.

A public meeting was held in the Coronation Hall on Thursday evening, March 7, at 8 p.m., in the interests of Col. C. D. T. MacAlpine, National Government candidate.

A short musical program was enjoyed, with Mrs. A. J. Pitts presiding at the piano. The Boys' Band also gave a number of selections.

F. Parsons, chairman for the evening, introduced the following speakers: S. Pitts of Barrie, Mr. Winterbottom, Mariposa, Sam Hughes, Leslie Frost, M.P., of Lindsay, and the candidate.

Social and Personal.

The Boys' Band entertained their parents on Thursday at a concert in the U.F.O. Hall.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. F. Johnson, who celebrated their fifty-first wedding anniversary on Thursday, March 8.

Miss Mary Faulkner and Mrs. Arthur Williamson attended the Madrigal concert at the Collegiate Auditorium at Peterborough on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Fowler and daughter Doris of Smith, accompanied by Leroy Fowler of Camrose, Alta., were guests recently of Mr. Fowler's sister, Mrs. James Preston.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lamb entertained the choir of Trinity United Church at their home on Thursday evening, March 7, after a number of games, dainty refreshments were served.

Central "Y" Wins Volleyball Title

Toronto Central Y won the provincial intermediate volleyball championship on Saturday in Toronto with five strong clubs competing. Western Meds were the victors a year ago. Teams entered in the Saturday round-robin playoff tourney were Central Y, University of Western Ontario Meds, Peterborough Y, Hamilton Y.M.C.A., and Kitchener Y.

Competition was quite keen throughout with the Central Y nosing out the Meds to win the title. Peterborough was unlucky enough to be drawn right away against the eventual champions, but put up a fine showing. The Petes took two games, one from Hamilton — the only club to beat Toronto — and another from Kitchener. Members of the Peterborough team were: Jim Gillespie, Bill Young, Jack Wolstenholme, Cliff Cadd, Bill Ferguson, Albert Dryland, and Don. Crawford.

Major H. O. D. Segrave, famous British racing driver, set a new world speed record at Daytona Beach, Fla., 11 years ago to-day. The major drove his 12-cylinder Golden Arrow over the sands at 231.36 miles an hour. That mark was eclipsed by Sir Malcolmn Campbell and later by Captain George Eyston, who set a mark of 309 miles an hour at Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, lst summer.

OBITUARY

MISS BRIDGET CASSIDY.

The death of Miss Bridget Cassidy of Burleigh Falls occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital early on Monday morning after an illness that lasted for seven months. She was in her 83rd year.

Miss Cassidy had spent practically all her life in Burleigh Falls where she lived with her brother, John Cassidy, who is her only survivor. Born in Douro Township, she came to Burleigh Falls when quite young. She was a member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, Young's Point.

The remains will rest at the home of her brother until Wednesday morning, when the funeral will proceed to St. Mary's Church, Young's Point, for Requiem Mass at 9 a.m. Interment will be at St. Mary's Cemetery.

HENRY AUGUSTUS SIMS.

MILLBROOK, Mar. 11 (ENS). — The community generally was shocked to learn of the sudden death death of Henry A. Sims, retired manager of the Bank of Toronto, Barrie, on Thursday, March 7, following a heart attack shortly after he had entered his own home after attending a mid-week Lenten service at Trinity Anglican Church.

Some years ago Mr. Sims was manager of the local branch of the Bank of Toronto, and by his efficiency and personality had won for himself a wide circle of friends.

He was born at Philadelphia, on February 9, 1875, and was in his 66th year. In his early years, the family removed to Prescott, Ontario, and after his Public School days he entered Upper Canada College, Toronto, and eventually the head office of the Bank of Toronto in 1894.

As manager of branches he served at Lynden, Burford, Aurora, and Millbrook before going to Barrie in July, 1911, his retirement coming twenty-eight years later, on June 1, 1939.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Mary (Mollie) G. Kells, younger daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kells, prominent citizens of Millbrook, and by two sons, Henry, who is in his final year as a medical student at the University of Toronto, and Paul, attending Trinity College School, Port Hope.

The funeral took place on Saturday, a private service at his late residence, 121 Owen Street, being followed by the public service at Trinity Anglican Church, then to Barrie Union Cemetery.

"My firm belief in the value of the local daily newspaper as an advertising medium has been thoroughly substantiated by the excellent results obtained through the Timmins Daily Press.

As you are of course aware, the Workers' Co-operative of New Ontario Limited, has been purchasing a considerable amount of advertising space in the Timmins Daily Press. And with regard to this, I am pleased to state that a careful check-up on the part of our advertising department has shown that the returns therefrom thoroughly justify the continued use of the Timmins Daily Press as an effective and profitable advertising medium.

When nationally branded goods that we sell are advertised in the local daily, they benefit from the same excellent results and we benefit from the increased sales of these products."

And LOVED ONES ARE PROTECTED MOST WHILE THEY NEED IT MOST

GIVE YOUR FAMILY $10,000 OF PROTECTION BY MEANS OF A DOMINION DOUBLE PROTECTION POLICY

A SAVING OF LESS THAN $3.10 WEEKLY, AT AGE 35, WILL CREATE AN ESTATE OF $10,000— TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS!

THE great problem of a family man is how to provide ADEQUATE security for his dependents—within the measure of his income. The younger his dependents are, the greater the amount of protection they need.

What to do about it?

It was to meet just this specific situation that the Dominion Life's Double Protection Plan was devised—a Policy that assures a man's family a double sum, if he dies before 61, and reduces the total amount of protection when the need is less.

If you are in first class physical condition, it will pay you to get details of this Dominion Life Double Protection Plan. This plan is issued only to men in good health, between the ages of 20 and 55, and provides $10,000 of immediate protection, for little more than the price of an ordinary $5,000 policy.

DOUBLE PROTECTION

provides:

. . . $10,000.00 of Protection for a saving of less than $3.10 per week at age 35.

. . . An estate of ten thousand dollars until age 61, when it gradually reduces to $5,000 at age 65.

Then

. . . you have a whole life policy for $5,000. The premium you then pay is the same as that for a $5,000 policy on the whole life plan at age 35.

Here is the protection you need, during your years of greatest need.

In a Few Words

Wisdom from the East appeared in news from Halifax. Sound wisdom too. The Legislature of Nova Scotia adopted a resolution in accord with the times in which we are living. What's more the adoption was unanimous.

The resolution was introduced by Premier Angus Macdonald, and called the House to "record anew its loyalty to the Crown and its devotion to the ideals and principles which are being maintained and defended in this war by the British Commonwealth of Nations and its Allies."

Admittedly there is nothing controversial about that, and nothing in it which would cause political feelings to burn brightly or go with the dimmers on. The Conservative Leader Fred Blois seconded the resolution, and in doing so said:

"Let there be criticism of course where it is needed, but let it be carefully judged and let it be made in such a way as will do the most good here and will furnish the least comfort to the enemies."

And in making that comment Mr. Blois drew in very close to the exact centre of the whole question. He actually epitomized the whole business. All the rules and regulations which censors ever made could come within the scope of those few last words dealing with comment and criticism regarding our war efforts:

"In such a way as will do the most good here and will furnish the least comfort to the enemies."

If Radio Fee Is Dropped

Hon. Dr. Manion in his campaign addresses has expressed the conviction that the radio license fees should be eliminated, and possibly there are a good many people who will agree that is a good idea. It will save $2.50 a year and do away with the chance of being taken into court and fined if one has not secured the necessary license in time.

The St. Thomas Times-Journal wants to know something more about it and argues the case reasonably and well; desires to know what Mr. Manion means by "pay-as-you-go."

There are two sources of revenue for the radio, and they are (1) fees paid for time used for advertising purposes, and (2) licenses paid by those who own radio sets. It costs good money to provide a radio program of the kind which will interest people, and its costs money for operation and salaries of management. If the revenue from license fees were eliminated it would mean one of several things:

The programs would have to be curtailed or cheapened—

There would have to be greater revenue from advertising—

Or there would be a deficit in operations and the Government would be called upon to include that in its annual budget.

Neither of these three courses is desirable. The St. Thomas paper suggests, and wisely we think, that Dr. Manion should give some details as to what he intends to do if the revenue from radio fees is eliminated. The mere announcement that the radio license will be abandoned is not sufficient.

U.S. And Its Gold

United States has $18,187,875,598.61 in gold. One could afford to leave the 61 cents out and consider only the rest. That is indeed a tremendous accumulation of this precious metal, an all-time high for nations since the system of making known gold reserves has been in operation.

One might think that such a gathering together of gold all in the possession of one nation would make it the wealthiest nation in the world, and in some ways that conclusion is correct.

But the greater that stock of gold becomes the greater is the problem faced by United States, and some of the best thinkers in that country realize it.

That gold means that United States is financially strong while other nations are financially weaker. Right now the United States dollar is worth ten cents more than the Canadian unit. That gives to the United States buyer an advantage when he wishes to get something we have for sale, and it places our buyers at a disadvantage in the United States market.

Then what? Canadians are not going to spend any more money in United States than they find necessary, and plainly that is not good for business across the line.

That great amount of gold means that United States would have immense buying power. Could buy to advantage and take in all the discounts. But the life of the nation depends on buying and selling; it's a two-way street. In order to sustain business there must be good customers, and the customers must have credit; they must be wealthy.

That is where United States is going to meet trouble. She is rich, but if the nations with which she deals—and she must deal—are poor, then how is trade going to be carried on? And how is United States going to remain rich unless she is able to find buyers for the immense amount of goods she is able to manufacture for export? It is something like the storekeeper being rich but having a lot of poor customers.

He Is Saying Nothing

We believe it is well to have it understood that all the reports which have been published regarding the various interviews which Sumner Welles is having are not based on information given out by that gentleman. He is in Europe on behalf of President Roosevelt, and he is meeting people who are difficult to meet at any time and more so in war years.

As a rule he would turn his reports over to the State Department through United States consular offices in the various European capitals he is visiting, and the material would be forwarded to Washington in confidential and supposedly secret code. It would then be the duty of some trained and trusted official at Washington to decode these messages and make them readable for the President.

Truth is that no nation trusts the secrecy of its cabling codes in war time, and for that reason Washington is receiving only perfunctory reports, giving outlines only of where Mr. Welles has been and where he intends to go next. President Roosevelt will have to wait until his ambassador has crossed the ocean and presented his report.

In a general way it is known what the leaders of Europe have said to Mr. Welles. It is known for instance that when in Berlin Hitler actually expanded his war aims. But none of the information being published has been forwarded directly by Mr. Welles. It is not at all likely he has found anything which will give him opportunity to hope for early peace negotiations. He was commissioned to keep his ears open and it probably was not necessary to tell him to keep his tongue in his cheek, but so far that is what he has done and made rather a good job of it.

As It Was On The Tenth

We noticed a report in a weekly paper from Western Ontario that a political meeting was going to be held in the school house near the cheese factory. And that's on the Tenth Concession, just a mile and a-quarter from there to the church on the corner of the Tenth and the Broken Front Road.

It is announced that "the candidate is expected to arrive at 9.30 as he has another previous engagement." We learn too that other speakers "well versed on the questions of the day" will be on hand. Apparently they will be there to hold the fort until the big noise arrives.

Always was there a complaint along the Tenth during election times about the size and calibre of the speakers. When there was a meeting at the school house they'd send out some men from the nearby village and every person knew them. One would be the lawyer; every one knew he was a Tory and they knew he would spend his time defending the name of Sir John A. Macdonald against the charges at the time of the Pacific scandal. Sir John had been out of the picture for some time, but the lawyer was still living in the good old days. When it was a Grit meeting they'd send out the shoemaker. He had a crooked forefinger on one hand and with that he did his reasoning and his gesticulating. He was always attacking the tariff although most folk along the Tenth said the tariff never affected his business to the extent of a five cent piece in a year.

The men along the Tenth always had that complaint when it came on to election times. The speakers who came out to the school house near the cheese factory weren't good enough. Politics was a serious topic and the people on the Tenth longed for something bigger and deeper and wider and taller. When it was explained to them that it was impossible to get any of the big shots from the outside world the Tenth took it hard. If they wanted to get within range of the heavier artillery it meant driving eight miles to the village and eight miles home again, and like as not there wouldn't be any place to leave the horse. The drive sheds at the Methodist and Presbyterian churches used to get filled up first because it didn't cost anything there, but if you were a bit late and had to go to the hotel stable they'd charge 15 cents for putting up the horse and after the meeting was over you'd have to go looking around in the dark to find your own buggy.

We doubt if there was ever a vote turned over at the meetings in the school house near the cheese factory. Grandfather was a Tory and McGregor next farm down was a Grit. When there was a Tory gathering grandfather went and sat on the platform; when the Grits had their meeting McGregor brushed out his whiskers, went to the school and he too sat on the platform. Grandfather never went to a Grit meeting and McGregor never attended a Tory session. To do such a thing would be in the eyes of both as evidence of weakening. In between times they sat by the kitchen range and discussed politics, and when that became a trifle heated one or the other would tactfully switch toward something about being able to see soon how the fall wheat had come through the winter or whether it was worth while tapping the trees and boiling down when so many of the friends and distant relatives from the village always drove out and brought along a couple of sealers with them.

But that question of securing speakers was always a sore touch along the Tenth. They considered their intellect stood fairly high and they were not stirred neither were they pleased when it was announced that the Tory lawyer or the Grit shoemaker from the village were coming to the school house to give them speeches they had all heard before.

NOTE AND COMMENT

St. Catharines seems to have it about right when it refers to Premier Hepburn as being in the news but not in the campaign.

The United Kingdom is after export trade, and if we regard our own best interests we will see to it that they get it. In other words, we'll buy British every time there is a chance to do so.

There is a degree of unity in Canada, as we notice that all city councils consider the estimates coming from the Board of Education as being too high.

We read where a young farmer of 21 had been arrested for stealing three bags of grain from his father. And right there we'd say is a place where father and son should sit down and talk things over before rushing into court.

One Toronto paper it is said is going to send six reporters to St. Thomas for the inquiry into affairs at the air school. We wonder if after all there is much to be disclosed that has not already been accounted for.

We read that "politicians are expected to open up in the last two weeks of the campaign." Are we to believe that so far they have been sort of driving around town and observing all the stop signs?

Dr. Manion says that Mr. King is "an idealist and a progressive man when out of power, and a politician and reactionary when in power." Now we see it: Dr. Manion wants to put Mr. King out for his own good.

The Queen Elizabeth and the Queen Mary are in harbor at New York for the duration of the war, and that is considered a safe place. And wasn't it just up coast a piece from where Americans in 1776 boarded a British vessel and dumped considerable tea into the harbor?

There is a suit going on at Pittsburgh for $25,000 because part of a girl's finger was snapped off by a timber wolf at the zoo. And Jim Curran in his Sault Star has always been telling us that a wolf would not eat any person. Well that wolf in the zoo at least made a start on the young lady.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra works away, and camps upon his job each day, and then he starts anew; elections are my cousin's dish, for nothing better he could wish, he'll stick to it like glue.

¶ He winds off supper with a swish, and never stops to wipe a dish, he can't get out too soon; so many things that must be done, he bolts down street at half a run, toward the committee room.

¶ And there once more he'll check his list, to see that not a name is missed, an error gets his goat; then Ezra starts right out to find, just what is on the person's mind, and how he's going to vote.

¶ That's where the trouble seems to start, for Ezra takes their views apart, and then he talks so loud; you'd think he was upon a stump, and had to jump about and thump, addressing some big crowd.

¶ Of course the workers here of that, and they call Ezra on the mat, then Ezra roars some more; he is no pussy-footing chump believes in heavy words and thump that's what a fight is for.

¶ When all this electioneering's done, and Ezra puts away his gun, there'll be dull days ahead; he'll wipe the supper dishes then, tend fires like all the normal men—be early off to bed.

Trying To See What Voters May Be Doing

LET US TRY, suggests A. R. Ford in the London Free Press, and get a picture of the whole Dominion situation. In 1935 the Liberals made the greatest sweep since Confederation. Of the 245 seats in the Dominion House the Liberals carried no less than 180. The Conservatives, thanks largely to the split in the party and the emergence of the Reconstruction party, under the leadership of Hon. H. H. Stevens, won only 39 seats. They were at the lowest ebb since Sir John A. Macdonald first organized the Liberal-Conservative party in 1854. The C.C.F., likewise, were reduced in numbers and carried only eight seats, all of them in the West. Last election a new party appeared on the scene—the Social Credit party. On the strength of Premier Aberhart's victory the Social Credit party carried 17 seats. They made almost a clean sweep of Alberta, winning 15 seats. The Conservatives carried one seat and the Liberals one.

In the last election the Liberals carried every seat in the Maritimes, except one New Brunswick riding, won by the Conservatives. It is inconceivable that the Conservatives will not make gains in the Maritimes, and particularly in New Brunswick, where, in the recent provincial elections the Conservatives gave the Dysart Government a bad scare. If it had not been for the French Canadian vote the Conservatives would have won. New Brunswick is today over a third French and the recent Quebec Provincial Liberal victory undoubtedly influenced the New Brunswick French voters. Every seat with a substantial French vote went Liberal. The Conservatives have good grounds for believing they will make substantial gains.

EVER SINCE 1917, except in 1930, the Liberals have carried nearly a solid Quebec. In 1917 the Liberals won 62 out of 65 seats. In the Liberal landslide of 1921 they had a solid Quebec. In 1925 they carried 60 out of the 65 and again in 1926. In the Conservative triumph of 1930 the Conservatives won 20 seats in Quebec. But last election again slipped to only five. What will happen this election? Hon. Dr. Manion is talking of carrying 20 seats. If he did he would have a chance of carrying the Dominion. Dr. Manion has the advantage that he is able to speak French and his wife is a French Canadian. The French Canadians like a leader who can speak their language. Neither Mackenzie King nor Bennett have ever been personally popular owing to their inability to speak the language of the majority of Quebec. This was one reason why Their Majesties made such a hit in the province. Whether, in view of this advantage, Dr. Manion can make headway, remains to be seen. The Liberals feel confident that they will retain their present 60 seats and talk of winning the whole 65 seats. The Duplessis defeat has heartened the Liberals.

The big question mark is Ontario. In the last election the Conservatives reached their lowest ebb since Confederation. Of the 82 Ontario seats they carried only 25, and the Liberals 56, with One Independent, Miss Agnes Macphail. Even in 1921 the Conservatives dropped to only 37 seats; in 1911 the Conservatives carried no less than 72 seats and in 1917, 74. There are sound grounds for the Conservative expectation that they will make gains in Ontario. In the last election the Reconstruction party divided the party, while the whole weight of the Hepburn Government, then at the height of its power, was thrown behind the Liberal candidates. Mr. Hepburn and his Cabinet ministers went up and down the country campaigning. This election Mr. Hepburn, while he is not stumping the country against Mr. King, is throwing pop bottles at the Federal Liberals. How much harm he has done Mr. King, if any—some people think by his tactics he has helped the Ottawa Liberals—no one can say until the votes are counted.

The West is the biggest enigma of all. There are 71 seats in the four Western provinces and of these today the Liberals have 38, the Conservatives seven, Social Credit 17, C.C.F. seven and Independents two. No province in Canada has swung back and forth more than Manitoba. At present it has 17 seats. In the last election the Liberals carried 14, the C.C.F. two and the Conservatives one. Since then the Conservatives have actually lost their one seat, Brandon, in a by-election, so that the Liberals hold 15 seats. In 1935, on the other hand, the Conservatives carried 10 seats in the province. Premier Bracken, who has not seen eye to eye with the present Government on its wheat policy in the West, is taking no part in this election which may have some influence. It is doubtful if the C.C.F. will do better than hold their two present seats held by James S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, and A. A. Heaps, veteran Labor member. The Conservatives are naturally hopeful of gains.

THE ARCTIC PATROL

(New York Times)

Russia could have no complaint in international law if the British searched Russian ships outside territorial waters in the Arctic or if they seized German ships carrying war material to Germany. The Allied blockade has already driven the German merchant fleet from the high seas; its presence in the Arctic is a sign that no corner of the sea highways will be safe for German vessels or for ships trying to bring the sinews of war to the blockaded Reich.

NO MORE FRENCH

"That's the last bit of French I try for the duration. I simply asked her 'where is the gardener's basket?' and 'where is the pen of my aunt?' But it can't mean that the way I say it."

• Result In Finland All Important

THE Scandinavian peoples are being told that Norway and Sweden could not grant permission to the Allies to take an expeditionary force across their territories because, if they did, Germany would instantly attack and turn their countries into battlefields. They are also being told that if an Allied force attempts to cross without permission Norway and Sweden will have to resist it by force of arms for the same reason, to prevent a German attack.

Although the existence of such a force, ready and waiting to sail at a moment's notice, has not been definitely admitted by the Allies, they have left no doubt that only the unwillingness of Norway and Sweden to co-operate prevents them from going to Finland's aid with effective force. Unless Scandinavian co-operation can be secured, there are three courses which they might attempt to follow. One, suggests Kingston Whig-Standard, is to fight their way if necessary across Norway and Sweden. This course is obviously impossible for humanitarian reasons unless they can be sure that the Norwegians and Swedes would welcome them so heartily as to revolt against the official policies of their own Governments. Another is to attempt a landing at Petsamo, the Arctic port now held by Russia. Very strong defences are said to have been completed there by the Russians since their capture of it from the Finns, and after taking the port an expeditionary force would have to fight its way through nearly a thousand miles of Arctic wilderness. The third course is to attack Russia from the Near East. Neither of the latter courses would have more than a ghost of a chance of being effective quickly enough.

If the Finns accept a negotiated peace which will make Russia and Germany completely dominant in Northern Europe (and there is now no doubt that Russia and Germany are working hand in glove in the matter) the effect on the Allied prospects in the war with Germany will be extremely serious. The relatively optimistic but still realistic view is that the northern countries under Russo-German dominance would delay an Allied victory several years. A pessimistic view is that the additional advantage to the German side would result in a German victory unless the United States entered the war.

Not only Germany, Sweden and Norway are exerting pressure on Finland to accept the Russian proposals, but Italy as well is said to be using all her diplomatic resources to bring about the negotiated peace. If they succeed the damage to Allied prestige will be very great and the effect will be promptly felt in the Balkans. Allied diplomacy there may be disastrously crippled. There is, however, one good reason for hope. The Finnish army, although it must be desperately tired, is apparently fighting with the same unconquerable spirit that it has shown throughout the war. If it thinks it can continue for a while longer, on the chance that the Allies will find a way, the Finnish army will not agree to the surrender of strategic territory. And the Finnish army will likely have the final decision as to whether to accept the Russo-German peace.

• Sent A Quarter To Help Finns

WASHINGTON, D.C.—The Finnish minister in Washington received a letter the other day written by three Negroes in a southern jail. It began, "Your majesty," and voiced the willingness of the three to serve in the army of Finland, if they could get out of jail.

To help the cause in the meantime, they inclosed a quarter, and ended with, "You can write to us in care of the sheriff, and we'll be here."

Mail trucks bring letters like this by the sackful every day to the Finnish legation. Some are addressed to "the Finnish government in Washington," and one read, "Finnish government, care of Uncle Sam, Washington." It contained a dollar bill.

SAMPLES. — The mail is so heavy that the legation staff has been increased to one of the largest diplomatic staffs in Washington. A year ago it consisted of three persons; now there are more than 30. Expansion has required renting an additional building to serve as chancery to the legation.

Sample of a recent day's contributions: Decorah, Chamber of Commerce, Decorah, Ia., $500; Moving Picture Operators Union, Ft. Worth, Tex., $10; resident of San Mateo, Calif., 25 cents; Finland defence committee, Doylestown, Pa., $1,000; the Washington Paint Salesman's club, $25.

These contributions are distinct from the funds being raised by ex-President Hoover's Finnish Relief Fund Inc., and General O'Ryan's Fighting Funds for Finland. Latest figures indicate these two organizations have raised two million dollars and $500,000 respectively. The Hoover fund, as contrasted to the O'Ryan fund, is for the purchase of civilian supplies, but it has lately expressed willingness to transmit contributions for munitions.

A Bit of Nonsense

Not Her Idea

The lady customer wished to buy a pair of slippers for her husband. On learning that his foot-size was eight, the salesman told her that men generally bought a size larger for comfort when buying house-slippers. "Shall I give you size nines?" he inquired.

"Oh, no," answered the lady firmly, "if that's the case I'll take sevens.... You see, I like to be taken out sometimes in the evening."

Laugh That Off!

Willie: "Grandma, when are you going to start to play football?"

Grandma: "Why, darling, I can't play football."

Willie: "But daddy says he's going to buy a new car as soon as you kick off."

And the Others?

"How many clerks work in your office?" inquired an inquisitive man of his neighbor.

"Well, about two-thirds of those I employ, I suppose!" was the quiet reply.

Not Apparent

Young Man (entering barber shop): "I should like to have my moustache dyed."

Polite Barber: "Certainly. Did you bring it with you?"

Ahem!

"I've had no luck with that girl. I've passed her every day for the last week—and she hasn't smiled once!"

"Some women have no sense of humor."

AS RECRUITS WAIT

THERE is something not a little strange in news stories from the east about recruiting campaigns being undertaken down there for young men to join the Canadian Air Force. In western Canada large lists are available of hundreds of Canadians who seek to find places in the air force, even pilots. Many of the best lads are anxious to be in uniform, not necessarily city men, for the Manitoba cities which claim to have enlisted units have got them from the country districts around them. Brandon's contribution to the local battery unit was not one a city of is population needs to boast about. At the same time every vacancy in any force in the west finds more recruits than needed and there are listed now many waiting to be called to the air force or other ranks. The east does not seem to be in touch on these matters.—Brandon Sun.

FRANCE LIFTS A VEIL

FRIENDS of France all over the world will be thankful for Premier Daladier's announcement that freedom of political discussion has been restored to the French press. The blackout of information has been severe. The French people have chafed under it, the Allied cause has suffered needlessly. Now that one of the obstructing curtains has been lifted, the French case and French achievements may get the hearing abroad which they abundantly deserve.—New York Times.

TUGS AT HEARTSTRINGS

SIX HUNDRED motion picture critics in a nation-wide poll have just voted "Mr. Chips" the best picture of 1939. Six hundred hardened newspaper writers have pledged their hearts and their hands to a story of unashamed sentiment, to a picture which in theme and treatment belongs with the James M. Barrie civilization of forty years ago. Only it happens that in the face of all the rules Mr. Chips tugs at people's heartstrings today.—New York Times.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

O Lord, our Lord, how excellent is thy name in all the earth! who hast set thy glory above the heavens.... When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon, and the stars, which thou has ordained; what is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?....

Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou hast put all things under his feet.—Ps. viii, 1, 3, 4, 6.

THE WIT TO WIN

ON READING that the Germans were short of bread, butter, meat, milk, eggs and most other essential foods, a Cockney Tommy dryly remarked: "Looks as if little old 'Itler won't be able to give 'em a second 'eliping of nuffin' but var." Not very brilliant, perhaps, but significant of confidence. London newspapers report countless similar examples of the revival of the cheerful and invincible spirit of 1914-18.

During the last war British troops went into action with the next best thing to bullet-proof armor—an unquenchable determination to see the humorous side of what to countless thousands was a "really Big Adventure," and, while the enemy spurred his flagging spirits with a daily repetition of the Hymn of Hate, the Allied forces exchanged jokes, comic drawings and pleasant ribaldries with the same enthusiasm as they took trenches and prisoners. A lot may be said for the will to win. But the wit to win is almost as important.—Johannesburg Times.

WHISKERS

PETER THE GREAT of Russia got rid of beards, or a lot of them, in Russia by imposing a tax on them. He decreed that beards were a luxury and everybody above the lowest class had to pay 100 rubles for the privilege. Clerks were stationed at the gates of every town to collect the beard tax. Ancient Turks thought so much of their beards that slaves had to shave in order to show their degradation.

Charles XII had in his army a heavy bearded soldier with whiskers a yard and a half long (so history says). It was not until the battle of Pultowa in 1724 that it was discovered the soldier was a bearded woman. She was taken prisoner and was presented to the czar. — Detroit Free Press.

DETROIT, Mar. 11 (AP)—A tall, raven-haired Michigan beauty who deserted her husband and child seven years ago for Ne York's bright lights, marked the words "exit smiling" on the wall of her hotel room before dawn today and leaped seventeen stories to death.

In her room, strewn with expensive clothing, police found a large amount of emotional poetry and a note professing love for William S. Paley of New York, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Relatives here identified her as Geraldine Kenyon Bourque, wife of an automobile worker at near-by Pontiac, Mich. She had registered at a downtown hotel as "J Stoddard, 404 East 55th Street, New York."

At New York Paley said he had met a "Johanna Stoddard" about a year ago; that she sought his aid, but had no talent that would justify putting her on the air. "Mrs. Paley and I both talked to her several times, trying to straighten her out," Paley said, adding that finally she wrote him she had "developed an emotional attachment" for him. A few days ago, he said, he was informed she was going to Michigan and then to Arizona.

Neither Dan Bourque, who lives at Pontiac with their daughter, now 8 years old, nor an aunt, Mrs. Jane Osborn of Detroit, could fill in the story of the years since Mrs. Bourque disappeared from her home at Pontiac until she registered at the hotel here March 4.

Once A Model?

In her room were pictures of beautiful and exotic women, clipped from fashion magazines, some of them so closely resembling Mrs. Bourque that police believed she may have been a model. There were receipts for hotel accounts in New York, $250 in cashier's cheques and $469 in cash.

In Detroit stores, Wednesday and Thursday, she purchased two silver fox wraps, one valued at $398 and one at $409, paying for them with traveller's cheques. One she wore in her death plunge.

An artist's easel with paint and brushes stood in a corner of the room. Mrs. Bourque apparently used one of these brushes to print the "exit smiling" in large letters on the wall.

Her letter to Paley, addressed "Dearest Bill," said that "I just wanted to thank you for your kindness." It added that "I still love you, but I guess you were right. I only fought so hard because my heart hurt so. You've been very white about everything." The note ended, "I am very tired. Good-bye, darling."

Hotel records indicated she had received a telephone call from New York City at 10:45 p.m. Wednesday.

Ward L. Kenyon, Battle Creek, Mich., railroad engineer, started for Detroit today to claim his daughter's body.

Playing cards were scattered on the bed from which Mrs. Bourque leaped. Face up, prominent in the centre of the layout, was the ace of spades, sometimes known as "Death's card."

For Air Folks

Johnstown, Pa., March 11 (AP) PASSERSBY thought something had gone haywire when they saw an advertisement on a big outdoor billboard upside down. The advertising company, receiving telephone calls about it, explained it was deliberate. A client ordered it that way "so persons in airplanes could read it."

States May Sell Fast Warplanes

WASHINGTON, March 11—(AP)—The United States War Department is considering the release of its latest model 400-mile-an-hour fighting planes for sale to France and Great Britain, it was reported authoritatively today.

Aircraft trade circles heard that the plane is the Curtis P-40, which France especially has sought since an earlier and slower model of the same type demonstrated its worth in actual combat.

Orderel ess than a year ago, the first P-40 fighters are only now being completed for the Army Air Corps, which must approve foreign sales.

Under War Department official policy willingness to permit foreign Governments to buy would mean an even more promising craft is ready for production.

Persons familiar with the negotiations said efforts by Britain and France to obtain release of two new highspeed fighters other than the P-40 had been refused.

These were said to be the Lockheed P-38 two-motor interceptor pursuit, which attained a 420-mile-an-hour speed in a trial transcontinental flight, and a Bell P-39 which is armed with a small cannon.

Alnwick Farmer Lost His Home

ROSENEATH, March 11.—(ENS).—Fire, thought to have originated from an overheated chimney, destroyed the farm home on Sunday afternoon of John Elder, farmer, living in the west end of Alnwick township. The fire had gained considerable headway before discovered and scarcity of water prevented fire fighting. Most of the contents of the downstair rooms were saved.

Statesmen's Snapshots

HON. J. L. RALSTON

He was recommended for the Victoria Cross—but received a reprimand instead.

One of the most likeable and popular of men, he has time after time been defeated at the polls, both in his Nova Scotian native county and his adopted city of Halifax.

A most civilian-minded individual, he became the foremost soldier from Nova Scotia during the war, then head of the defence forces of all the Dominion and is now finance minister in Canada's wartime cabinet.

This walking paradox is Col. the Hon. James Layton Ralston, M.P., K.C., C.M.G., D.S.O., LL.D.

He has worked toward the law heights, but instead of reaching the goal of the supreme court bench he has been pressed into service as a cabinet minister.

Although he was called to the bar at 22, after cramming for six months at the Dalhousie university law school, the college degrees he holds are all honorary.

He is a peaceful-looking man, a prominent Rotarian and an old-fashioned Baptist to boot, but he has been a fighter all his life. He fought for an education, fought for the prominent place in the bar he now holds, fought for his country at the front and is now again fighting for Canada, this time on the home economic front.

Both his mother and father were United Empire Loyalists and he is a Bluenose of the Bluenoses. His father was postmaster at Amherst, N.S., where James Layton was born in 1881. His parents were far from wealthy, and after gobbling up all the public schools could teach him he went to work at hard labor for small wages to earn enough to go through Dalhousie University.

As a lawyer he hung out his shingle in Amherst. Soon the politicians spotted him as a coming "great" and prevailed upon him to run as a Liberal against the formidable E. N. Rhodes in the 1908 federal election. He was defeated. In 1911 he contested a seat in the provincial legislature. This time he won. A year later he left his home town of Amherst and began to practice law in Halifax.

He was well on his way to success when the world war broke out. In October, 1916, he sailed for France as a major in the 85th Canadian Infantry. He saw a great deal of fighting. He was in the engagements of the Somme, Vimy Ridge, Hill 70, Passchendaele and Amiens. Twice he was mentioned in dispatches. In 1918 he was gazetted lieutenant-colonel and remained in command until the demobilization of the 85th in 1919, by which time he had won the D.S.O. for gallantry at Lens plus a bar for gallantry at Cambrai and a C.M.G. for bravery at Arras, and carried the marks of war wounds.

Back in Nova Scotia, he stood as a Liberal candidate in the provincial elections of 1920 and 1925 and each time was defeated. Then he was appointed minister of defence by Prime Minister King and won a federal seat by acclamation in a by-election. In 1930 he was re-elected but his party was defeated. For the next five years he served as the Liberal party's financial critic. In 1935 he retired from public life. When war again broke out last September he gave up one of the most lucrative law practices in Canada in order to again serve his country.

There is probably no politician in Canada in whom the public has more trust than James Layton Ralston.

Leslie Burgin, British Minister of Supply, is shown bowing his head over a dish of camphor balls at the Supply Ministry's exhibit of coal by-products. Britain has an ample supply of coal and from it gets much of the sinews of war through carbonization. Among these by-products are toluene, ammonia and sulphur, ingredients for high explosives.

Ice Breaking Up In Inland Waterways

DETROIT, Mar. 11 — (AP).—Ice is breaking in channels of the Great Lakes, and men are busy on the docks in major ports. For spring is nigh, and so is another shipping season for the great inland waterways over which billions of dollars in cargo pass each year.

Lake ports meanwhile are stirring. Shipyards are preparing. Fresh paint appears on vessels, and seamen are getting ready for another six or seven months' service.

War and European demands are expected to have a major effect on Great Lakes business. Shippers see a likely big boost as a consequence, but the conflicts overseas also may prove harmful.

For since 1930 there has been a steady growth of shipping direct to Great Lakes ports from Europe, particularly on vessels from Scandinavia and the Netherlands. What will happen to this is a question.

For 1940 a new major port on the Great Lakes will be opened—a $1,500,000 development at Monroe, Mich., hard by the River Raisin where it empties into Lake Erie. With it, Monroe hopes to become one of the most important of Great Lakes ports.

New Guns Are Ready For Artillery

KINGSTON, March 11.—In future, artillery units in training in this city will be given instructions on the new 25-pounder gun, similar to that in use by the British Field Artillery now on active service in France. Until the present time all instruction has been given with the use of modernized 18-pounders, somewhat similar to that used in the last Great War. Two of the new guns have reached the city and are now quartered at the artillery park drill shed.

"I Had a Great Dad"

"I WAS only a youngster when Dad died quite suddenly.

"It was a big shock to me, for Dad and I had always been real pals. He often told me that he wanted me to have a university education to give me a better start in life. It looked then as though I would never go to college.

"Imagine my surprise when I learned that Dad had taken out life insurance which guarantees the money needed for my education. This pays me $500 each year while I am at university.

"I'll never forget what a great Dad I had. He made sure that I would receive a university education, and he taught me the value of life insurance in providing for the future."

ONCE MORE THE BUGLES!

ONCE again the bugles call and the Salvation Army goes to the front on active service with the troops—not to kill and destroy but to comfort and save . . . to help men to keep a grip on themselves and their own souls. Will you help to make the soldiers say what they said in the last war, "God Bless the Salvation Army."

THE RED SHIELD PROGRAMME

The complete Red Shield Programme of the Salvation Army is already operating in the principal training camps of Canada and with the First Division overseas. It will accompany our soldiers to France and follow as close up to the front line as the military authorities permit.

IN THE NAME OF THE PRINCE OF PEACE

For the sake of Canada's soldiers fighting our battles overseas . . . for the sake of their loved ones at home . . . for the sake of the Salvation Army's work for the poor and oppressed we ask you to help in word and deed.

The Red Shield Programme includes:

- Chaplain Service
- Hospital Visitation
- Recreation Centres ("Huts")
- "Dry" Canteens
- Hostels (Beds and Meals in London and elsewhere)
- Libraries and Reading Rooms
- Writing Rooms
- Socks and Knitted Wear
- Darning, Mending, Clothes Pressing
- Clothes and Shelter for Discharged Men
- Contact with Soldiers' Families
- Educational and Recreational Departments

And many other services, including friendly counsel and advice when asked or needed.

We owe a responsibility also to the mothers, wives and children the enlisted men have left behind. And always there is the regular work of the Salvation Army, which will be heavier because of the war. Will you help?

Volunteer workers will call upon you. Receive them kindly and give as your heart dictates.

North Toronto Eliminates Cobourg

TORONTO, March 11.—Showing a complete reversal of form in the second half, North Toronto intermediates came from behind to eliminate Cobourg Grads at North Toronto C.I. Saturday night, winning the game 44-32, and the round 70-50.

For the first ten minutes it looked as though Cobourg would overcome their 8-point deficit of the first game and go on to win not only the game but the round as well. However, North Toronto, led by George Goodrow, with 20 points, buckled down to their task and finally edged out a 12-point decision.

For the winners, besides Goodrow, Bob Thompson, Wally Floody and Jack Wedley led the way to the hoop and Fred Hemsworth turned in his best game of the year. John Lucas was practically the losers one-man show, scoring 15 points and setting up many plays for the others.

North Toronto—Floodoy 6, Harris 2, Thompson 6, Goodrow 20, Wedley, Hemsworth 5, Prowse 3, Levantis 2, Marmon. Total 44.

Cobourg—R. Lucas 3, Campbell 3, J. Lucas 15, Holmes 5, Guy, Wilson, Parkinson, Payne 4, Blaker 2. Total 32.

Douro Cops Series Over Warsaw Team

WARSAW, March 11.—(ENS)—On Thursday night a good crowd saw Douro hand the fast-fading Oaks their worst trimming of the season to take the odd game in a two out of three consolation series. The Douro lads found the soft ice to their liking and while they could not get any combination working, outskated and outshot their venerable foemen in all but the middle period.

For the winners Walsh and J. Moher looked good ,the former netting half his team's total. The younger Parcels brother in the Irish nets also contributed to the Oaks downfall with a sterling performance. After the game the Douro boys were presented with neck-ties by the three local storekeepers, the Rev. J. Wilkinson, making a short presentation address.

This game ends the local hockey season, one of the most successful in recent years, both financially and from the fans' viewpoint.

The teams:

Douro—Goal, W. Parcels; defence Walsh and Joe Hayes; centre, J. Leahy; wings, W. Moher and J. Moher; subs., John Hayes, R. Moher, J. Healy, B. Delaney.

Oaks—Goal, H. Parcels; defence, Drain and Thompson; centre, Munro; wings, Hamblin and Davis; Subs. Darling, Selkirk, Eliot.

Pete King Prexy Lacrossers For '40 Season

Pete King was elected president of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club in Duffus' Saturday at the annual re-organization meeting. Two dozen lacrosse enthusiasts attended the enthusiastic session. In the absence of Ken Kingston, club president—who was ill—Vice-President Doug Miller was in the chair. After some general discussion, and the decision to hold an executive meeting to plan for the coming campaign at eight p.m. next Wednesday in Duffus', the election was held.

Active officers named were: President, Pete King; vice-president, Lionel Brown; secretary, Bill Saunders; treasurer, Verte Reynolds; executive, Wally Davidson, Hubert Legros, Alex Fitzgerald and Harry Tudhope. Doug Miller was appointed manager, and Hubert Legros the trainer. Honorary officers are: Mayor Hamilton, Father Kelly, Harry Beattie, Ott Cranfield, Dr. Clark and Frank Buckland .

Snyders Capture Two Titles; Champions Out

WINNIPEG, March 11.—Three Canadian badminton championships are in unfamiliar hands today, the men's singles and doubles titles resting with the Snyder brothers of Toronto who provided most of the fireworks in the national tournament concluded here Saturday.

Jimmy Snyder, 20-year-old University of Toronto student, scored the major upset of the four-day meet by dethroning the men's singles champion, Dick Birch of Montreal, 15-12, 10-15, 15-5. He paired with brother Paul to knock out Rod Phelan and Jack Sibbald of Toronto from the men's doubles pedestal. Scores were 15-7, 15-12.

Third title to go to new hands was the women's doubles. Mrs. Dorothy Walton and Evelyn Effnert of Toronto defeated Mrs. Guy Perodeau and Betty Snell of Ottawa 15-10, 11-15, 15-10.

Mrs. Walton, women's champion in 1936 and '38 and holder of the all-England title, regained the singles crown by beating Miss Effnert 11-9, 11-0 in the final Saturday. She replaced Marjorie Delaney of Quebec City who won last year.

Birch and Miss Vess O'Shea of Vancouver, were the only champions to regain a title. They defended the mixed doubles crown by defeating the Vancouver pair of Eric Leney and Jean Eckhardt, 15-11, 15-18, 15-4.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

Well, it will be either first place for the Petes here tonight in their round-robin playoff standing, or plump down to the third spot! Their tilt this eve with Owen Sound Trappers is quite important as the hectic round-robin serial really starts to whirl. The locals have three O.H.A. frays this week—tonight here with the Trappers, Wednesday back in Owen Sound, and Friday here with Collingwood. And they go to Port Colborne a week from tomorrow. Secretary Hewitt sent word o'er the week-end that this series has to be hurried along, so every game is gonna mean plenty for the tiring puckists from now on. Mike Rodden has been assigned to referee the Trappers-Petes' playoff at the Brock this e'en.

* * * * * *

After resting up over the week-end, the Buckland bunch should be in okay shape tonight, though Jack Jopling had his knee banged by a hard check in Kitchener. And Bun Kingdon had a cut lip, the K's defence getting away with some rough work with a lenient referee. The speedy Petes think they can take the Greenshirts any future game, as they argue that one of the two Kitchener goals last Friday was off-side by plenty and the other caromed in off a Petes' shoulder—a horse-shoe counter. However, we think the locals will find plenty of stiff opposition every contest now, including tonight, but we believe they'll battle their way right through to the O.H.A. title. Yes we do.

* * * * * *

Two Classy Squads

Trappers will have their regular goalie, Dahmer, back in the cord citadel this p.m., with Blair and Small on blue-line duty. Up front, Onions Smith will be at centre between Red Creighton and Nicholl—and this is a high-scoring trio. Alternates include Hutchinson, Sutton, Shears, McMeekin, McConnachie and Campbell. The Petes will be at full strength, with Art Heal likely back on duty and Jack Jopling maybe on deck if his knee is oke. With these teams, it ought to be a speedy, tight and swell struggle before a sardine-packed crowd of roaring rooters.

* * * * * *

When ya see a championship club—a provincial winner—in the making, you can't help getting excited. Running something of a fever. Folks have to speak to you twice to get an answer. Or so it seems to us. These roaring raiders of the ice lanes here are pointing toward a pennant, and their chances are pretty fair. Barring a letdown or injuries, the fast-stepping and bumping Petes should just about clean up on the present classy opposition. They've been a long time building up for this and some of the present Petes may have moved away ere another season. Tonight and Friday may be the last chances to see this smart squad in action in Peterborough—as the ice won't last much longer — so puck followers should flock out for both tilts. Both games will be lovely scraps.

The Clark Brothers

A clipping from Potsdam, N'Yawk, states that Clarkson Tech has finished its hockey schedule for the season, but may stage a post-season game with a western collitch. In the final 7-2 win for the Tech team o'er Clinton senior puckists, Grant (Gee) Clark scored two goals and brother Al—both of whom played junior O.H.A. here just a couple of seasons ago — got one. In the season's scoring summary, Grant led the pack with 18 goals and 23 assists for 41 points. A fine showing. And Al topped the defencemen with 17 and seven for 24 points. Scoring 17 goals while on defence is a swell mark. The Engineers expect a big year in 1940-41 in hockey, losing only a few of their regulars. The Clark boys will be with Clarkson again.

C.G.E. Shop Hockey League concluded its playoffs Saturday aft in the Brock with two championships declared. Switchgears won the senior tilt with a 9-1 win over Wire Dept., taking the round 18 to 5. Tool Room captured the junior championship over Machine Shop Bees 4-1, the round score being 7-2. Both lively games with the victors earning the titles. It was a fine season for the puckists of the city's biggest shop, with lots of keen competition, neat hockey shown and no bad injuries. Our congrats to the loop as a whole and the champs in particular.

Puck Playoff Tuesday

Industrial Puck Loop two-in-three final series starts at eight Tuesday night in the Rue Brock. Quakers clash with Canada Packers in a regular playoff game of three 20-minute periods—there being more time for these tilts now with the rest of the circuit eliminated. Two bits admish and fans can bank on a scrumptious battle. The Porridge Punchers have looked somewhat like the class of the league all season but those scrappy Packers, led by Jimmy White, crowded into the picture at the last like relatives at a millionaire's 86th birthday! Yep, it'll be a real scrap tomorrow eve and rates a crowd.

At Duffus' on Saturday aft, the local Lacrosse Club got itself re-organized at a well-attended meeting. Officers elected were: Honorary—Mayor Hamilton, Father Kelly, Harry Beattie, Ott Cranfield, Dr. Clark and Frank Buckland; active—president, Pete King; vice-prexy, Lionel Brown; secretary, Bill Saunders; treasurer, Vert Reynolds; executive, Wally Davidson, Hubert Legros, Alex Fitzgerald, Harry Tuphope and a players' representative. Doug Miller is manager-coach with Hubert Legros trainer. The new prexy is down in Florida but will take the job on his return. Executive meets Wednesday at eight p.m. in Duffus' to draw up plans for the coming campaign. A good set of ossifers picked.

Defeat Wiremen On Round And Machinists

Switchgears and Tool Room won the championships of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League on Saturday afternoon at the Brock Street Rink. Defeating Wire Dept. 9-1, the Switchgear crew took the senior title by an 18-5 score on the round; and Tool Room won junior honors with a 4-1 verdict over Machine Shop B to make it 7-2 on the round.

Some nifty hockey was shown in both games, with the junior final being the liveliest. A fair-sized crowd saw the new champions crowned to wind up a successful season, one marked by good sport, keen competition, and no serious injuries.

It was 1-0 for Tool Room in the first frame and tied 1-1 to end the second. Superior marksmanship gave the Toolmen the edge in the third, but it was close all the way and clean, only two penalties being drawn, King and Young getting the gate in the third for roughing it. McDougall scored one for the victors, with King tallying twice and Williams having a goal and an assist. Collins counted for the losers. Shaughnessy, King, and Williams stood out for Tool Room throughout the tilt; while Mason, Murduff and Collins went best for the Bees. The teams:

Tool Room — Goal, Shaughnessy; defence, King, Self; centre, MacDougall; wings, Williams, Conroy; subs., Croakam, Smith, Stinson, Benson.

Referee—Tom Miller.

Even At First.

Play was clean and fast in the senior joust with Wire Dept. having an even break on territorial play the first two periods. They ganged up in the third and Switchgears cashed in on six breakaways which gave the goalie no chance. Mowry opened the scoring on a nice play and Hawkes got it back the same period. Leggitt and Mowry scored for the victors in the second with Archibald and Leggitt having an assist each. In the wide-open third Jobe scored three, Archibald two, and Mowry one, with Mowry having two assists, and Archibald, MacDonald and Mackey one apiece. The whole Switchgear crew shone, while Pryde, McGregor and Harding stood out for the losers. The teams:

Switchgears — Goal, Agnew; defence, MacDonald, Mowry; centre, Archibald; wings, Jobe, Leggitt; sub., Mackey.

Referee—Tom Miller.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

It was on Wednesday, March 22, that curling came to an end for the 1938-39 season; and looking over our weather records, this March is lining up just about the same as the March of 1939. And it will take till March 22 to finish up all the schedules.

To-night begins the vice-skips' bonspiel and we are asking that all rinks be out on time.

Also to-night we will have the second game in Group C play off. This will be between N. Hamley and Ray Best.

And there is the first game for the club championship. Fred Batten, winner of A Group will be pitted against Fred Green, winner of B Group. This game will be followed on Tuesday night with the winner playing Group C winner. But this year there is just a little more to these games than playing a round-robin series and declaring a winner. There will be no individual prizes given with the club championship, but instead the winning rink will be presented with a beautiful trophy that was recently donated to the club by Harry F. Foote, the popular and hard-working secretary of the club. The trophy will be for annual competition.

This generous gesture on the part of Mr. Foote will be greatly appreciated by the curlers, as heretofore there was no cup for the final series. While these extra series always did create a lot of interest, yet when the boys see the handsome trophy, now on exhibition on No. 8, it will put just a little more pep to the competition.

Training Camp Briefs

(By The Associated Press)

SARASOTA, Fla.—Officials of the Boston Red Sox were relieved today to find that an injury suffered by Rookie Dominic DiMaggio in yesterday's exhibition with the Cincinnati Reds was nothing worse than a sprain. At first it had been feared a small bone in his ankle might have been broken sliding into home plate.

PASADENA, Calif.—Defying the recollection of some observers of last year's campaign, Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox is enthused about the outfield play of Taft Wright. He declares Wright is a better fielder, thrower and hitter than Gerald Walker, who went to the Washington Senators in exchange.

FORT MYERS, Fla. — Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians is keeping his fingers crossed on Johnny Humphries, a promising pitcher who was too wild for the Tribe last year. In three innings of regular-Yannigan game yesterday, Humphries didn't give a single base on balls. Catcher Rollie Hemsley bruised his leg in a baseline collision and may be out of action for a couple of days.

LAKELAND, Fua.—The way Barney McCosky is rapping the ball indicates the sophomore jinx of the major leagues isn't going to stop the Detroit Tigers' outfield star. He had a big hand in helping crush the Brooklyn Dodgers 11-2 yesterday.

AVLON, Calif.—All of the Chicago Cubs will be watching anxiously to-day as Pitcher Clay Bryant gives his arm a test in an intra-squad game. The ailing pitcher, who sat on the bench most of last season, will be making his first appearance in a practice this spring.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—Morrie Arnovich, one of the National League's leading hitters last season, is starting off fast again this spring. He socked a homer, double and single and drove in three runs in an intra-camp struggle.

BLACK HAWKS AND MAPLE LEAFS SPLIT WEEKEND DOUBLE BILL

Apps And Drillon Back In Form As Two Torrid Games Played Between 1938 Finalists

By JACK CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

All the hot fending that arose in the Stanley Cup finals of 1938 seems about to come to another head when Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks tangle in the first round of this year's cup series.

The Hawks won that war of '38 after four of the scrappiest, wordiest engagements in the history of hockey's world series.

The feud broke out with renewed fury during the weekend, when the Maple Leafs defeated the Hawks 5-2 at Toronto Saturday and Paul Thompson's aggressive youngsters beat the Leafs 2-1 at Chicago Sunday. Teddy Graham, the former tough Detroit defenceman, refereed both battles and handed out 116 minutes in penalties, including two at Toronto and eight in the windy city.

Sylvanus Apps and Gordon Drillon, whose scoring partnership has suffered all season through injuries, looked like the old reliable firm in the Toronto game. Apps scored twice and assisted Drillon in a goal, while Drillon aided in three scores as well.

Tangles With Cooper

Apps, who missed two months of the schedule through injuries, showed he isn't anxious to be pushed around again by turning on Joe Cooper of the Hawks in the third period as the defenceman gave him a combing. Apps swung back and they dropped their sticks to bare fists. In the melee, big Bingo Kampman of Toronto threw Cully Dahlstrom of Chicago into the laps of front-row customers.

Doug. Bentley gave the Hawks a lead 10 minutes after game opened but Apps tied the score less than a minute lated. Chicago was a man short through one of the string of penalties when captain Red Horner put Toronto up 2-1.

George Allen tied the score in the second but the Leafs turned on heat in the heetic third. Drillon, Apps and Nick Metz scored in that order. The last goal coming while Cooper was serving one of three penalties he drew during the period.

Bentley opened the scoring again in the first period at Chicago, and Dahlstrom got a goal for the Black Hawks and Red Heron one for the Leafs in the third. Between the first and second goals, however, the fiercest fight of the weekend took place.

Murph Chamberlain of Toronto and Cooper were serving major sentences for one scrap when the big one broke out. Dahlstrom and Bill Mackenzie of Chicago and Wally Stanowski and Pep Kelly of Toronto drew majors for piling in. Allen and Bob Davidson of the Leafs got the same for another display of fisticuffs in the third.

Amerks Drub Bruins

New York Americans played a big part in letting their fellow-townsmen the Rangers, regain first place in the standings. The Americans drubbed the Bruins 4-2 at Boston Saturday. Then the Rangers stepped over the Americans 4-2 at New York last night, to take a one-point lead over Boston.

Lorne Carr scored two and Murray Armstrong and Johnny Sorrell one each to lead the Americans in their Saturday triumph, which assured them of a playoff position. Bobby Bauer and Bill Cowley got the Bruin goals.

But it may have been more than just a defeat for Boston. Captain Dit Clapper emerged with a broken cheek-bone from a melee in a desperate last-minute attack.

The Ranger success was scored despite the best efforts of Charlie Conacher, who got both the Americans' goals. Neil Colville grabbed two for the blueshirts and Kilby MacDonald and Muzz Patrick one each.

The Americans' victory Saturday elimnated the Canadiens from a chance at the sixth and last playoff place, although the Habitants defeated Detroit 3-0 at Montreal the same night. The Canadiens made a gallant stand in the hope that the Americans would lose and leave them in the running.

Toe Blake figured in every Canadien goal, scoring once and assisting Cliff Goupille and Ray Getliffe in the others. Meanwhile goalie Claude Bourque played brilliantly in the Frenchmen's nets.

The starch was out of the Canadiens last night and the Red Wings whipped them 5-2 at Detroit, wh... Blake again scored and assisted Sands in his team's other goal. Mud Bruneteau, Ken Kilrea, Syd Howe, Ebbie Goodfellow and Jack Stewart scored for Detroit.

MARMORA

Hastings Edges Marmora Club

MARMORA, Mar. 11 (ENS).—On Wednesday evening the return game with Hastings Badminton Club was played by the Marmora club. Honors went to the Hastings club, who won by a score of 11-7. The Marmora ladies lost most of their games while the men came out even, and the Hastings club was victorious in the mixed doubles.

Lunch was served by members of the Hastings club after the play.

R. Scott, president of Marmora club, moved a vote of thanks for the enjoyable evening, and the Hastings president, Mrs. C. Baker, replied. Dancing was then enjoyed, piano music being furnished by Earl Darling.

Following are the games:

Ladies' Doubles.

Miss D. Kerr and Miss M. Collins won from Mrs. R. Neal and Mrs. K. Armstrong.

Mrs. Clapper and Miss M. Phillips won from Miss L. Turner and Mrs. G. Davis.

Mrs. C. Baker and Mrs. A. Thompson won from Mrs. W. Hickey and Miss G. Lumsden.

Mrs. Hahn and Miss F. McKee lost to Mrs. J. Reynolds and Miss W. Sabine.

Mrs. C. Baker and Mrs. F. Crate won from Mrs. F. Linton and Miss L. Turner.

Men's Doubles.

P. Bailey and C. Baker lost to F. R. Wells and K. Armstrong.

A. Thompson and George Bonds lost to R. Regan and R. Neal.

F. Crate and R. Jones won from C. Brady and B. Scott.

J. Walsh and W. Whitred won from G. Davis and H. Auger.

Mixed Doubles.

Miss M. Phillips and F. Crate lost to Miss L. Turner and R. Regan.

Mrs. Clapper and A. Thompson won from Mrs. K. Armstrong and B. Scott.

Miss D. Kerr and R. Jones won from Mrs. J. Reynolds and C. Brady.

Miss M. Collins and George Bonds won from Mrs. W. Hickey and K. Armstrong.

Mrs. C. Baker and J. Walsh lost to Mr. and Mrs. G. Davis.

Mrs. A. Thompson and P. Bailey won from Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Wells.

Mrs. Hahn and W. Whitred lost to Miss W. Sabine and H. Auger.

Miss K. McFee and R. Jones won from Miss G. Lumsden and D. Prentice.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Crate lost to Mrs. J. Reynolds and A. M. Jones.

Petes Playoff Tonight With Trappers

Round-robin standing:

Team.	P.	W.	L.
Petes	3	2	1
Kitchener	3	2	1
Owen Sound	1	1	0
Collingwood	1	0	1
Port Colborne	2	0	2

Owen Sound Trappers play the Petes here to-night and it should be a grand O.H.A. playdown struggle before a packed arena. At full strength this time, the Trappers —led by Red Creighton — will be plenty tough and the speedy Petes will have to hustle every minute. A local loss will shove the Buckland bunch down in third place behind Owen Sound and Kitchener, but a home win would give the Petes a firm grip on the top rung. It ought to be a nifty fray all through.

Bruins Beaten By Amerks; Clapper Hurt

BOSTON, Mar. 11 — (AP). — Veteran Earl Robertson turned in one of the greatest goal-tending exhibitions of the season when his New York American forces dented the Boston Bruins' National Hockey League championship hopes by subjecting them to a 4-2 defeat at the Boston Garden on Saturday night.

The Bruins, who lead the hard-pressing Rangers by only a point, were in dire need of a thirteenth consecutive victory over the Amerks, but Robertson cheated them in such spectacular fashion that the crowd of 11,172 roared a mighty ovation.

The loss was doubly costly for the Bruins because, during their desperate and futile last-minute attack Captain Dit Clapper suffered a fractured cheek bone when high-sticked in a milling mob about the New York net.

While the Americans were gaining their first win over the Bruins since December, 1938, Robertson kicked out a dozen earned goals as he stopped the amazingly high total of fifty shots during the sixty minutes of furious play.

He blocked twenty-three shots before little Bobby Bauer drove the first goal through him in the second period. The second Boston tally created a disturbance that resulted in the banishment of Manager Red Dutton from the Amerks' bench.

The Americans, thanks to the sharp-shooting of Murray Armstrong, Johnny Sorrell and Lorne Carr, had a 3-1 lead in the seventh minute of the third period, when Flash Hollett hopped off toward the Amerk goal. Before the Bruin could launch his shot Wilf Field tripped him and the puck slid between Robertson's pads. Referee Bill Stewart sounded his whistle, but Bill Cowley swooped in and jabbed the puck into Robertson's cage.

Dutton put up such a strenuous argument when Stewart awarded the goal that the official ordered him from the bench. When Dutton refused, Stewart ordered police to eject him. That was done after a long delay.

During the final minute Goalie Frank Brimsek, who had missed three of the eleven shots that the Amerks were able to aim at his cage, was withdrawn and six Bruins tried to force the tying goal. Carr, however, foiled them by intercepting the puck in front of his net and sailed a 160-foot shot into the empty Boston cage for the Amerks' fourth tally.

THE SPORTS ROUND-UP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP)—Jack Doyle, Broadway betting commissioner, will send the Reds out favorites over the Cards. Bad News: Jack Miley wired his paper (The New York Post) the Giants are the worst-looking bunch of ball players he has seen in Florida... Johnny Paychek has decided on Pompton Lakes as his training camp for the Louis bout...

Today's guest star:

Nixson C. Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star: "Arturo Godoy's style must be catching...A lad by the name of Crouch fought in Los Angeles the other night."

Connie Mack is predicting a first-division finnish for the A's and isn't just talking for the news reels... Coach Dean Cromwell teaches his Southern California track stars to run pigeon-toed, theory being a runner gets more drive out of all five toes than just the big one...Sonja Henie's 10-week skating tour netted $250,000 as her end...

So the Tigers are using dead balls in training...We had an idea they'd be eight balls.

Few Chickens Are Offered; Eggs Plentiful

Scarcity of chickens was a feature of the farm produce market Saturday.

"Perhaps we got tired bringing them in and giving them away," one woman said, but others explained that the time was getting near the end of winter, and the chicken crop was running low. Prices were 22 and 23 cents. Several turkeys and geese were labelled at 20 cents a pound, and some of the chickens dropped to that mark about noon.

Butter was 27 to 30 cents and eggs were plentiful at 22 to 23 cents.

Harry Gill quoted pork at 13 to 15 cents, beef 12 to 14 cents and veal 16 to 18 cents; and George Mullen's price was 13 to 15 cents for pork.

Potatoes were unchanged in price. E. Moore of Cavan had White Stars at $1.15; W. H. Lindsay of Campbellcroft sold Katahdins at $1; Earl Graham of Smith sold Green Mountains at $1.15 to $1.25; Kinsman and Son of Campbellcroft's Cobblers were $1 and White Stars $1.15 to $1.25. Erle Tully tagged his commercial stock at $1.25 a bag.

Apples were rather plentiful. Norman Moncrief quoted Spies at 45 cents a peck; Russets and Talmans at 35 cents; James Johnston of Bailieboro sold Delicious at 35 cents a peck and Baldwins at 35 cents; and Pleasant View Gardens of Bowmanville quoted all their cookers at 35 cents a peck and Spies at 45 cents.

that the government was attempting to discourage soldiers from voting. Both J. S. Woodsworth, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader, and M. J. Coldwell, national chairman, addressed meetings.

Hinted Neutrality

Concluding his Maritime tour in Halifax, Conservative leader Manion stuck to his claims that the present government turned down two years ago a British effort to establish British air training schools in Canada at Britain's exepense.

The prime minister gave British aircraft purchasing agents the impression in 1938, Dr. Manion continued, that "Canada might be neutral if there was a war and, if it was neutral, their orders might not be filled if a war actually took place."

At Ottawa Transport Minister Howe said that Conservative Leader Manion's promise to abolish radio licence fees "can be nothing more than an attempt to bribe Canadian people with their own money."

In a 30-minute address over an Ontario network, Mr. Howe, who has jurisdiction over radio broadcasting, said victory at the polls for Dr. Manion would mean that "national radio as we now have it is likely to disappear."

Abolition of the licence fee of $2.50 a year for each receiving set would withdraw nearly $3,000,000 of the $3,500,000 it costs annually to carry on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the minister said.

If the licence fee was dropped this money would have to come from advertisers and would be lost to newspapers and magazines, or it would have to be raised by taxation. If radio were turned over to commercial interests the 50,000 watt stations on the prairies and in the maritime provinces would be abandoned, since they would not be profitable.

Charging the government's political opponents with waging a campaign of "villification and abuse," Mr. Howe specifically named Premier Hepburn of Ontario, Lt.-Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative Leader, Dr. Manion and "a former Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario."

Denies Censorship

Mr. Howe denied there was any censorship of political broadcasts beyond the necessary restrictions laid down in the Defence of Canada Regulations. "I want to make it clear that criticism of the government is not an offence under the regulations," he added.

The minister described the ban against showing in Ontario of the March of Time film "Canada At War" as "censorship in a new form exercised by the Premier of Ontario."

Those responsible for keeping this film off Ontario screens until after the election were "provincial leaders whose charge of lack of war effort precipitated the election," the minister said.

Dr. J. M. Robb, National Conservative organizer, in a statement issued at Ottawa criticized the new regulation relating to soldiers on leave voting in the general election and charged that "the government wants to discourage the soldiers from voting, because they know too much about its restricted and bungled war efforts."

Still Hard To Vote

The new regulation announced last Friday by the chief electoral officer, Jules Castonguay, that soldiers on leave during the Active Service vote may cast their ballots at polling stations of local units where they happen to be "still leaves it difficult for soldiers to vote," Dr. Robb said.

It was indicated when the new regulation was announced that it was made necessary by granting of leaves for two weeks to those who had served with the forces for more than six months. Dr. Robb termed the leaves "the government's special election-time furlough order."

"No doubt the soldier's have been looking forward to this furlough with pay for some time and it is most unfortunate that this furlough should coincide with the period of voting. (Members of the Active Service Force in Canada may vote from March 16 to March 23, exclusive of Sunday and Good Friday).

"The government must have known when the furlough was granted that it would make it difficult for the soldiers to vote. There is no escape from the conclusion that the government wants to discourage the soldiers from voting, because they know too much about its restricted and bungled war efforts and because they know too much about lack of uniforms and lack of army equipment and other conditions of incompetency and inefficiency and half heartedness in the government's prosecution of the war."

Fostering National Unity

The Quebec "Liberal bloc" has been one of the important factors in fostering national unity in Canada, Works Minister Cardin said at Montreal.

Mr. Cardin said the "solid" Liberal representation of Quebec province in the House of Commons is "the pride of the people of Quebec" and the instrument by which the province "extends a friendly hand to the rest of Canada."

Mr. Cardin said the Liberal party had been attacked by Conservative Leader Manion for seeking to maintain the "bloc." The Conservative leader had accused the Liberal party of trying to "isolate" Quebec.

"Quebec province never was less isolated than at present," the minister contended. "Quebec never was better understood than at present.

"The Liberal bloc has never dishonored you. Mr. Manion thinks the block is wrong. It seems to show that all the people of the province are of the same mind."

War might have been prevented if the Canadian government had declared it would support Britain at the time of the Munich crisis, Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, said at New Westminster.

Advising Canadians not to be too "modest" about the strength of the Dominion, Col. Drew said Australia and New Zealand told Prime Minister Chamberlain at that time they would stand by Britain.

"If this country were properly organized, we would have far greater strength in peace of war, because of our natural resources, than any other 11,000,000 people in the world," he added.

He criticized Canada's preparedness for war and the relationship between the present Dominion government and Great Britain. He contended that Canada is not equipped to defend itself "against any country in the world."

The War Contracts

The Dominion Government has resorted to "low cunning" in issuing war contracts, R. L. Maitland, K.C., British Columbia Conservative Leader, charged at North Bay.

"The low cunning" of the Dominion Government was illustrated further when a bribe was offered to Premier Mitchell Hepburn to "shut him up," Mr. Maitland said.

"Nothing has ever been invented to shut up Mitch. But Mackenzie King thought perhaps that if he gave Mr. Hepburn the right to name Senators and Judges from Ontario the fire from Queen's Park might not be so warm. Mr. King didn't understand Mr. Hepburn any better than he understands anything else."

Answering the criticism by Conservative Leader Manion that he was "dumb" when Parliament was dissolved on January 25, Labor Minister McLarty said at Sault Ste. Marie that "If I was dumb on that occasion when Parliament was in session but three hours, when there were but three speakers, then so also were the 145 members present at that session.

"If I were dumb it was because Doctor Manion spoke so much as to preclude anyone else talking at that time. If I was dumb on January 25 I was not more dumb than Dr. Manion on October 25, when Duplessis was suggesting that Canada limit its participation in the war."

Nazis Heard Story.

Charges by Premier Hepburn of Ontario that a "violent disturbance" had occurred on February 10 at the Royal Canadian Air Force training centre near St. Thomas, Ont., were broadcast by the Germans a few hours later, Mines Minister Crerar said at Dauphin, Man.

Mr. Crerar said that the Nazis broadcast Mr. Hepburn's charges as a sign that the Canadian people are not behind the Government.

If Prime Minister Mackenzie King's administration was defeated at the polls, the enemy would herald the Government's downfall as indicating that the people of Canada are not behind the war effort made to date.

and letters are censored to delete information likely to be of value to the enemy.

One prisoner writing to his wife in Canada said: "we are also very well taken care of here, our teeth are looked after without cost, also we get apple and cake. So many here have better eats than at home."

Another wrote his wife: "And my time passes quickly and when we are off work there is plenty of entertainment with so many men together."

A third said in a letter to a friend in Latvia: "I have nice company. We are getting real good food, are doing some work and are feeling bodily very good. We are having some entertainment also in our hall on Sundays and Wednesdays."

Reporters Like The Food.

The reporters ate a luncheon from the prisoners' kitchen and it was obvious why the men had gained an average of 10 pounds in weight since being received at the camp. Some gained 25 to 35 pounds.

Every reporter had at least two large bowls of soup. Some took three. Then they dug into an entree of boiled beef and Spanish sauce with potatoes. Also on the menu were rye bread, butter, cheese, tea, canned cream, sugar, salt and pepper and apples.

Adjacent store rooms and the root house contained eggs, bacon, carrots, jams, marmalade, honey, syrup, canned corn and tomatoes and rolled oats. The German cook said he received fresh fish once a week and fresh bread every third day from Calgary.

Until early in March the prisoners wore their own clothes, supplemented with a wide variety of articles from military stores. Then a uniform of blue and red was introduced. Made of warm denim, the uniform is blue except for a circle of red about 10 inches in diameter in the back of the jacket, a four-inch red stripe down the side of one leg and a red and blue peak cap with ear lugs.

Every Wednesday evening the prisoners see a program of movies in the recreation hall. They make the selections themselves from a University of Alberta extension department catalogue and the selections are approved by the camp commandant.

Lutheran Church services are held every second Sunday in the hall which contains a library of 400 books, 250 of which are in English and 150 in German.

Tonight Viscount Halifax will entertain Mr. Welles. Tomorrow, he will lunch with Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and dine with Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty. Wednesday, Mr. Chamberlain will entertain Welles at dinner.

Each occasion will be restricted to a small group of representative Britons to avoid any confusion in making clear the British position on war and peace.

Mr. Chamberlain was expected merely to re-emphasize what Lord Halifax already told Mr. Welles yesterday, shortly after his arrival from Paris. "The security for which Britain went to war," Lord Halifax was authoritatively reported to have said, is still the keystone of her war aims and to achieve that, there would have to be a German government which would be "trusted to keep its word."

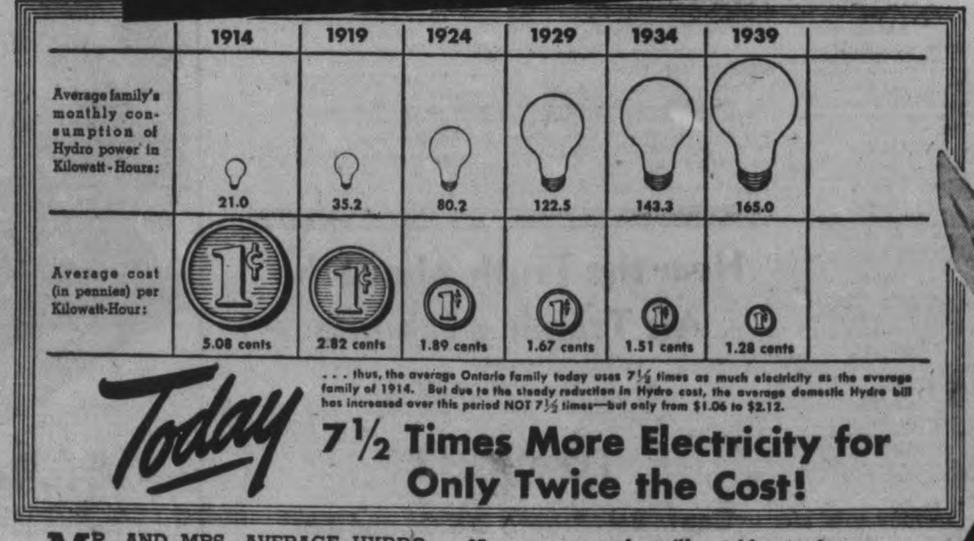
Mr. & Mrs. Hydro User...
see how the cost of Electrical Living has gone DOWN these 25 Years



Today . . . thus, the average Ontario family today uses 7½ times as much electricity as the average family of 1914. But due to the steady reduction in Hydro cost, the average domestic Hydro bill has increased over this period NOT 7½ times—but only from $1.06 to $2.12.

Today 7½ Times More Electricity for Only Twice the Cost!

MR. AND MRS. AVERAGE HYDRO USER: Through the past quarter-century, your cost for Hydro service has become lower and lower.* While the cost of almost everything else has gone up, the cost of Hydro power has come DOWN. Today, Hydro service is your BIGGEST BARGAIN!

The chart above tells you the story. Just a glance will show you that as the use of Hydro power has increased, the cost has steadily decreased. Compare what your money buys today with what it bought 25 years ago—and you'll quickly see that today's family enjoys more than 7½ times as much electrical service for only twice the 1914 cost.

So, today, due to the efforts of The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario—and your own Municipal Hydro System—it costs you less money to live better. Remember, Hydro is your public utility service . . . a service that costs only pennies a day to use and enjoy to the full!

Hydro BRINGS YOU BETTER LIVING —and lowers Living Costs!

Marmora Couple Are Wed 59 Years Saturday

MARMORA, Mar. 11 (ENS). — Mr. and Mrs. George Wellman, both of a sturdy Rawdon stock, who have been residents of Marmora since 1909, quietly observed the 59th anniversary of their wedding on Saturday, March 9. They were married at the Methodist parsonage, Marmora, by the Rev. Mr. Macaulay, who was the resident minister at that time.

Mr. Wellman, who was 80 on September 13, 1939, is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Wellman of Rawdon Township. His father died when he was only three years of age, but his mother lived to be an octogenarian.

Mr. Wellman has lived a varied life. He has been a farmer and cattle buyer, and after eleven years of proprietorship of the Bell View Hotel at what is now known as Bonarlaw, was proprietor of the Saint James Hotel, Marmora, for seven years. Mr. Wellman has always been a public-spirited man, and is one of the widest-known citizens of the village. He has been an active member of the Marmora Agricultural Society for many years, and he is also a past president of the Marmora Liberal-Conservative Association. He is still very active for a man of his years.

The name of Mrs. Wellman is also well known in domestic circles. Not only at the two hotels managed by the Wellmans, but she is one of four children of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reid of Rawdon, who took up cheesemaking in their youth, there being eight other children in the family. Mr. Reid was a police officer in Ireland before coming to this country about two years after his marriage.

Mrs. Wellman made cheese at the Maple Leaf Factory on the 12th Line of Rawdon, assisting her brother John, when she was only fifteen years of age. She also assisted her brother as he took over the Wiley Cheese Factory, later known as the Marmora Cheese Factory. She attained her seventy-seventh birthday on February 28, and is still very active.

Visitor at the ski grounds at Bethany Sunday was George Jobe, instructor of the University of Toronto Ski Club, who gave a demonstration of admirable skiing control on the ice-coated hills. A large crowd of Peterborough and Toronto skiiers was on hand.

RUTS ARE BAD

Another complaint about the condition of Downie street these days is Lawrie Mitchell who says his busses are "still managing to plough through the ruts, but with difficulty." The city, he said today, asked him to put on a northern route and the Downie street run is the result. Now his drivers are expected to plough through ruts twelve to sixteen inches deep. "No aldermen live on Downie street," one dweller there explained.

BUS IN ACCIDENT

A city bus, southbound on Park street, and driven by Wm. McDougall, 577 Harvey street, collided with a car doubleparked between Wolfe and Towsend street and driven by Norman Buckley, 515 King street. Another northbound automobile forced McDougall to swerve his bus and the parked car was hit, sustaining damage to the left front and rear fenders, door and body. The right front corner of the body of the bus was damaged.

HAVE ENLISTED

When the names of two young men who had been arrested on a vagrancy charge last week and who had told the court that they had been about to catch a freight train to go to Picton to enlist were called this morning in police court Chief Constable Newhall informed Magistrate Langley that the two had gone to Picton and it was presumed that they had joined the Canadian Active Service Force. The cases were adjourned to allow the police to get definite information on the point.

TO AID FINLAND

Mrs. Rahua Rahkonen, 565 Gilmour street, has started the movement in Peterborough to assist the soldiers and citizens of her native Finland in their struggle against Russia. Mrs. Rahkonen informed the Examiner there are few of her people living in Peterborough, probably not more than four or five. It is fifteen years since she left Finland, but her father and mother and two brothers are there, in the middle country. She has had no word from them since the war began. Mrs. Rahkonen is the accredited representative of the central organization for the collection of funds, a work which she is attending herself.

The Rambling REPORTERS

WANTED GAS MASKS

The Danes may be neutral in Europe, but dwellers at the Y.M.-C.A. here are certain that some of their exports are far from enjoying that happy state.

The other night some Danish blue cheese made its appearance on the premises and boarders came near to leaving. It wasn't so bad, they say, as long as the cheese remained in its wrapping, but afterwards there weer complaints that the Canadian government hasn't supplied gas masks as in England. In some unaccountable way portions of the cheese found their way into bedding in several rooms and gave practical demonstration of the meaning of the word "asphixiation.'

Trial Before Japs

TOKYO, March 11.—(AP).—After a brief preliminary examination during which Judge Sanehiro Hotta said, "This case is liable to impair peace and order," James Young, American newspaperman, went on trial to-day in the Tokyo district court on charges of spreading false rumors. Three Japanese attorneys defended the International News Service correspondent.

Board Of Education Will Be Asked To Permit Minister To Give Religious Instruction

At a special meeting of the Peterborough Ministerial Association held this morning it was decided to approach the next meeting of the Board of Education to ask for the opportunity to make use of the facilities provided by the Government of Ontario to give religious instruction in public schools of the city.

Between 180 and 200 communities in Ontario have availed themselves of the opportunity afforded by the government and are holding classes in religious education each week. Peterborough has never done so.

By the government's ruling the Ministerial Association may ask for a half hour period in each school week for religious instruction. Classes are usually held from 9 to 9.30 in the morning or from 3.30 to 4 in the afternoon.

Father And Son Service Is Held In George Street United Church

Fathers and sons worshipped together at an impressive service in George Street United Church Sunnight night when laymen conducted the entire worship period in the absence through illness of Rev. M. C. Parr. Mr. Parr officiated at the morning service but was ordered to bed immediately afterwards by his physician. He has been ill for several weeks.

Youths and their elders were on the rostrum to the number of six, presiding over the service; a male choir of sons and fathers sang; the centre pews were filled with fathers accompanied by their sons.

Appropriately enough, the Scripture lesson from which Al B. Clark, physical director at the Y.M.C.A. here, took his sermon, was the best known of father and son parables in the Bible—the parable of the Prodigal Son. He placed a new interpretation on the old story, reaching back behind it into the reasons, left unexplained in the Bible, for the son leaving home in the first place. And from the parable he drew the theme that a father's greatness was in his understanding love for his children, in the love that disciplines, yet relaxes occasionally, and that forgives wayward errors.

He brought the parable to modern living and urged the extreme importance of fathers understanding the problems of their sons, and sons understanding the aims of their fathers. Little is so pitiable, he maintained, as a father and son who love one another yet are unable to communicate with each other because of the gulf that separates them in years and difference of interest.

C. S. Thompson, superintendent of the Sunday School, presided over the service. L. M. Richardson conducted prayers and Lloyd Parnell announced hymns. Stuart Saunders, member of Boys' Parliament for Peterborough, and Earl Armstrong, read the Scripture lesson. Charles Renaud, who trained and conducted the male voice choir of fathers and sons, also took part in a duet with Mr. Edwards. The Sunday School orchestra played during the service.

The annual father and son program will continue tonight when a banquet will be held at the church at 6.30 o'clock. Rev. R. H. Howden, chaplain of Grove School, Lakefield, is slated as guest speaker.

Salesman Enters Plea Of Guilty

Gordon Phillips, 18, Toronto magazine salesman, changed his plea to guilty in police court this morning when he was charged with the theft of $4 from a local woman.

Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., told the court that Phillips had called at a house selling magazines and that when the man who answered the door had gone upstairs to see whether any members of the household wanted any of the publications, Phillips had entered the house and taken money from a purse.

Unfortunately for him another members of the household was sitting in a darkened room and saw the theft with the result that Phillips was seized and forced to hand over the money and the police were notified.

Phillips told the magistrate that all he got was quantity of silver, less than a dollar.

"You have pleaded guilty to stealing $4", Magistrate Langley pointed out.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that the accused had no record and that under the circumstances suspended sentence might be justifiable.

Magistrate Langley was agreeable to that course but a difficulty arose as to the signing of the bond.

"Can you get your parents down from Toronto to go on the bond?" asked the magistrate.

Phillips said that he did not think so. "My father is a minister", he said in answer to a question from the court.

He was remanded until tomorrow to allow him a chance to get into touch with his parents.

Careless Driver Is Fined $10

Changing his plea to guilty this morning, Lawrence McConnell, Ida, was fined $10 and costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., on a charge of carless driving.

McConnell was arrested after his car had run on to the sidewalk on Simcoe street and run along the sidewalk for some distance.

In court this morning he said that his car was parked betwen two trucks and that he had to take to the sidewalk to get out.

"He's not telling the whole story," said Chief Newhall, poining out that someone might have been hurt when the car travelled along the sidewalk.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hall Passes Away In City

A woman widely known in Peterborough for her charitable nature and for her activity in the work of George Street United Church, died on Saturday. She was Mrs. Elizabeth Hall, 677 Water street, widow of John Warren Hall, Peterborough business man who died in 1934. Mrs. Hall was in her 69th year.

Mrs. Hall had been ailing for the past year and had been seriously ill for a month past, but her death came as a great shock to her wide circle of friends in this city. In her passing Peterborough has lost a valued citizen, and George Street Church has lost one of its most able and willing workers. It was this year that she was made a life member of the Women's Missionary Society in recognition of the valued service she had given over a long number of years. She was also active in the Co-Workers' Bible Class and was a member of the Bowling Club of the church.

Born in Norwood, Elizabeth Wildman was a daughter of the late John Wildman and Mary Anne Scott, and she came to Peterborough 35 years ago from Douro, as the wife of John Warren Hall, who operated a cement factory in this city until his death in 1934. In the 35 years of her life here she gathered around her a wide circle of devoted friends and earned the esteem of the entire community.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Frank Smith, Miss Bernice Hall, and Miss Margaret Hall; and one son, Howard Hall. All reside in Peterborough. Also surviving are five brothers, Edward Wildman of Trent River, Samuel and Harry Wildman, both of Norwood, William Wildman of Toronto, and Scott Wildman of Peterborough.

The funeral will be on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late residence, Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United Church officiating, assisted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

War Bulletins

OSLO. — (CP-Havas) — Swedish volunteer fliers yesterday shot down a four-motored Soviet bombing plane over Northern Finland, the Norwegian radio announced today. Other Soviet planes accompanying the bombers fled, the announcer said.

ISTANBUL— (CP-Havas)— Turkeys close watch on international developments was shown today by the successive recall of her European ambassadors for first hand reports.

Ankara's ambassador to Rome and Minister to Bulgaria returned to their posts after a week's consultation. The ambassador to Bucharest is scheduled to arrive tomorrow and will be followed later by the envoy to Russia.

STOCKHOLM.—(CP-Havas)—Dr. Willey Michael, physician for the German legation, was one of five suspects held for trial today on espionage charges. Dr. Michael came to Sweden before the first great war and built up a lucrative practice in the Swedish capital.

Oscar Stranberg, a leader of the Swedish Nazi movement was condemned at Goteborg today to a year at hard labor after being convicted on espionage charges.

CANBERRA—(CP Reuters)—The United Country party will hold an assembly tomorrow, it was announced today, to receive from its leader, A. G. Cameron, proposals for its participation in a coalition government with the United Australia party headed by Prime Minister R. G. Menzies. Acceptance of the proposals is considered certain.

46 Prisoners For Africa

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — (CP Reuters)—Landing of 46 German prisoners from scuttled ships for internment in South Africa was announced today.

LONDON—(CP)—Sir Victor Warrender, financial secretary to the War Office, told a questioner in the House of Commons today that the number of combatant prisoners of war held by Britain on March 8 was 257 and the number of merchant seamen 1,271.

LONDON—(CP)—The Admiralty issued today a casualty list adding the names of 30 seamen and 12 officers killed by the "hazards of service" to those previously reported lost. The last unofficial total on naval casualties since the start of the war showed 2,271 killed and 604 missing.

An Arab Expert

LONDON—(CP)—Appointment of William H. Ingrams as Chief Secretary of Aden, Arabia, was announced last night by the Colonial Office. Said to know more about the Arabs than any Briton since the late Col. T. E. Lawrence, ("Lawrence of Arabia") Mr. Ingrams since 1937 has been resident adviser to the Sultan of Makalla, in the Hadramaut, Southern Arabia.

TOKYO—(AP)—Domei (Japanese news agency dispatches) today reported two Russian planes had flown over the Japanese half of Sakhalin island north of Japan proper. The Domei report did not mention whether they were military planes.

LONDON—(CP)—Richard Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, told the House of Commons today, in answer to a question, it still is British policy that the independence of China should be preserved.

BOMBAY —(AP)— Three Labor leaders, prominently associated with the Girni Kamgar (Red Flag) union's textile strike in Bombay area, were arrested today under the Wartime Defence of India Act. They were charged with conducting anti-war propaganda. The strikers demand a 15 per cent war bonus.

HONG KONG —(AP)—Japanese forces north of the Kwangtung province city of Swatow, on the South China coast, reported today they had killed more than 3,500 Chinese, and captured 30 machine-guns and other material. But the Chinese version of the fighting said heavily reinforced Japanese troops were repulsed in an attempt to recapture Tenghai, 12 miles northeast of the port city.

Accidental Death

ALDERSHOT, Eng.—(C.P. Cable) —A verdict of accidental death was returned today at the inquest into the death of Lieut. H. R. Corey of the Carleton and York Regiment, Canadian Active Service Force, who was struck in the stomach last week b ya ricocheting bullet on the rifle ranges. Evidence showed that the cartridge was fired accidentally when it jammed in the breach of the rifle. Corey was from Woodstock, N.B.

SYDNEY, Australia —(CP)— Experiments here show that a special kind of Australian wood offers twice as much resistance to incendiary bombs as steel plates of the same thickness. The fire-resisting qualities of the wood are to be utilized in production of war material, it is announced.

LONDON—(CP)—A ray of sunshine in the blackout, the Council of the Malden Suburb of London estimates it will save £6,000 ($26,700) a year on street lighting costs for the duration. The same holds true for every part of the United Kingdom, no doubt, and the money saved will go a long way toward paying costs of air raid precautions services.

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE (CP) —Weirdly-colored animals' heads, leering from a totem pole, startle visitors to a Royal Air Force station in France. The totem pole stands in a wood near headquarters. Heads of bears, wolves, dogs and chickens are depicted on it. A Canadian officer carved the pole in his spare time.

OBITUARIES

JOHN DWYER

Death came to John Dwyer, 267 Simcoe street, at St. Joseph's Hospital early Monday morning after a short illness. He was in his 86th year.

A farmer until he retired ten years ago, Mr. Dwyer was widely known throughout this district. He was born in Douro, son of the late Richard Dwyer and Ellen O'Connor. He was a member of St. Joseph's Church, Douro, and of its Holy Name Society.

Surviving are one sister, Mrs. Joseph Moher of Peterborough, and one brother, Dennis Dwyer of Vancouver, B.C.

The remains are resting at the Duffus Funeral Home until 8.30 a.m. on Wednesday. Requiem Mass will be sung at St. Joseph's Church, Douro, at 9 a.m. Interment will be at St. Joseph's Cemetery.

THOMAS BRENNAN

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11 (CP)—Thomas Brennan, 70, for many years assistant superintendent at the Campbellford Waterworks pumping station, died at his home here yesterday. He was a native of Frankford. Besides his widow he is survived by three sons, Dennis of Rochester, N.Y., Vincent of Glenross and Donald of London, Ont., and five daughters, Mrs. Harry Cassidy and Mrs. Raymond Dunk of Toronto, Mrs. William Cane of Norwood, Mrs. Daniel O'Connell of Petrolia, and Mrs. John Duff, Jr., of Percy township.

MRS. EMILY COON

The funeral service of Mrs. Emily Coon, widow of Rev. Charles Henry Coon of Peterborough and mother of the late Marian Grace Coon, missionary to China, was widely attended at George Street United Church on Saturday afternoon.

One of George Street Church's most active workers, Mrs. Coon and her family had given a life-term of service and devotion to their faith, and the presence of a great many of the congregation of the church at her funeral Saturday was evidence of the appreciation felt there for her labors.

Rev. M. C. Parr, pastor of George Street Church, officiated at a private service at 11 o'clock in the morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Frise, 172 Wolsley street, and preached the sermon at the public service at the church in the afternoon. Assisting him were Rev. H. C. Wolfraim of the Lindsay United Church, where Rev. Mr. Coon had been pastor once, and Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church. Rev. Mr. Wolfraim also conducted the graveside service.

In his address, Rev. Mr. Parr told of the great service Mrs. Coon had rendered her church during her life. Her work in the Women's Missionary Society, of which she was president for a great many years, and her leadership in many other branches of the church's work, was an example to the rest of the community, he said. The centre of the church was filled with members of the Women's Missionary Society who came in a body to pay tribute to their late leader.

Pall bearers were M. G. Dobbin of Toronto, L. M. Anderson of Ottawa, W. H. Frise of Peterborough, C. H. Elliott of Peterborough, Frank Greatrix of Peterborough, and R. Vickery of Lindsay.

Interment was at Riverside Cemetery, Lindsay.

Straight Fights Rule The Day Central Ontario

The federal election campaign reached a pivotal point today with the official nomination of candidates throughout the Dominion.

In the local riding of Peterborough West, Vincent Eastwood went through the formality of presiding at the Canadian Legion Hall to receive nominations from the electors, but the two hours from noon until two o'clock produced no other names than those of the two candidates whose papers bearing the names of their proponents were filed with him last week.

In the alphabetical order in which the names will appear on the ballots the two Peterborough candidates are: Gordon K. Fraser and Roland M. Glover. The official detail of presenting to the electoral officer the names of candidates and list of citizens nominating them was devoid of special interest in this riding where custom has avoided the feature of a joint meeting of parties which has usually injected the spice of clashing debate in some constituencies.

Reports from Northumberland indicated that the usual feature of post-nomination addresses by the candidates and their designated supporters would be lacking, but over in Hastings-Peterborough the Town Hall at Marmora will be packed to the doors to hear Rork Ferguson, Liberal, the member of Parliament during the last five years, and his opponent, George White, Conservative, of Madoc. T. J. Carley, K.C., of this city is speaking in behalf of Mr. Ferguson.

In Northumberland, the candidates are W. A. Fraser, Liberal, and Jamieson Bone, National Government; and in Durham, W. F. Rickard, Liberal, and Ross Strike, National Government.

Proceedings Quiet

The only caller to greet Mr. Eastwood and his election clerk, John W. Mayneord, between twelve and one o'clock was an Examiner reporter, and the prospects for the second hour were just as quiet. At three o'clock Mr. Eastwood had to wire the names of the two candidates to the chief electoral officer at Ottawa with their addresses and occupations. This nformation will be cabled to Great Britain in connection with the voting of the men of the Canadian forces overseas, beginning on March 14. The two names in full are Gordon Knapman Fraser and Roland Maxwell Glover.

In the meantime two revision courts were sitting in the city for the purpose of receiving any emendations of the voters list. Sheriff John A. Harstone was sitting in Judge Smoke's chambers and City Solicitor W. F. Huycke in the city council chamber. Their duties are to receive applications for names to be added to the voters list.

Lt.-Col. Hon. J. J. Duffus and Mrs. Duffus have announced the engagement of their elder daughter, Jean G., to Edward M. Quinlan, only son of Mrs. Quinlan and the late Michael J. Quinlan of Port Hope. The marriage is to take place Saturday, April 20.

Belts Hold Limelight

Slim-waisted frocks started the belt fashion, and now this important accessory note is often quite dazzling.

For waists are in—and the direct result is that you'll give particular attention to your belts this spring—probably have two or three for the one frock.

The wide ones especially will give the fashionable waist-line look to your figure, without any tight lacing.

If you have one of those elaborate filigree clasps studded with colored stones tucked away in a drawer, bring it out and ally it with a piece of corded ribbon, and you'll have one of the newest belts.

Others fitting snugly are from four to six inches deep, in finely gauged silk, to give a swathed line which is smoothed away at the ends.

Belts are extremely lively and gay. Make a Leap Year belt with two hearts cut out in felt as a clasp.

Others in colored felts are embroidered with brightly colored little people, trees and small landscape scenes. They have that new look that does wonders for last year's frock.

Correct Size Is Important

Your stocking casualties should be fewer if you buy the correct size (for both leg and foot and leg length), the right thread for the sort of wear for which they are intended, and reinforcements where the most wear occurs. Launder them carefully each time they are worn. Use a bland soap well dissolved in warm water, rinse thoroughly and dry over a line or smooth rack. Don't twist when wringing out hose; squeeze dry. And keep a small bottle of a stop-run preparation in your purse for emergency repairs.

Mothers Are Guests At Gala Irish Party

A gala St. Patrick's Day party, to which members of Knox Junior Volunteer Bible Class brought their mothers as special guests, was held at the home of Miss Betty Allen, Reid street. Gay green and white aprons and novel hats were worn by the guests, and added to the festive Irish air.

Irish songs were led by Mrs. Lewis with Miss Eleanor Taylor at the piano. A solo, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," was rendered by Miss Wilma Lockie. Mrs. V. E. R. Zufelt was in charge of a program of games and contests. Prizes for the Pat-contest were awarded Miss Patricia Watson and Mrs. Lancashire; for the mothers' automobile contest, Mrs. Zufelt; shirt-waist contest for daughters, Miss Connie Lewis; Irish pig contest, Mrs. Zufelt; the prize for best Irish joke, judged by Mrs. Laing, was awarded Mrs. Lockie; the Cities of Canada contest was won by Miss Eleanor Taylor; door prize, Mrs. Watson.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Allen. The thanks of the class wa expressed to the hostess by Miss Betty Jory, president; and pleasure on behalf of the mothers was expressed by Mrs. Milburn. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and an appropriate poem by Mrs. Lewis concluded the entertainment.

W.F.B.C. Forms Social Club

A social club, which will meet each week at members' homes, was formed by the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Anglican Church at the March meeting in the Parish Hall. Plans were made for a St. Patrick's Day tea, to be held at the home of Mrs. H. Vollans, 468 Bolivar street, on the afternoon of Friday, March 15.

The treasurer's report indicated a successful month for the class, with $50 paid toward the new sidewalk rail at the back of the Parish Hall. Members are making a quilt, and plan a chain at a later date to assist with the work. The usual donations have been given to Home Missions.

Salt Has Many Uses

Apart from the value of salt in seasoning almost everything we eat, it has many other domestic uses.

Here are a few:

Salt and water gargle is excellent for the throat, and if the teeth are brushed with salt it helps to make them white, and it also keeps the gums healthy.

If burnt saucepans are sprinkled with salt and left to stand until the next day, a little water added and brought to the boil, the burn will quickly disappear.

If a little salt is sprinkled in the frying pan before frying is commenced it will prevent the grease splashing.

Scrubbing with salt and water rush mats and wicker work become bright and clear. The salt also stiffens the cane.

Damp salt will remove discoloration from teacups and pie-dishes.

It cleans decanters, tall glass vases and a little added to the starch will prevent the iron sticking.

Bible Class Plans St. Patrick Supper

Plans for a St. Patrick's Day supper on March 18 were discussed at the March meeting of the Ever-Awake Bible Class, with Miss Vivian McCullough of 191 Perry street as hostess to the members. The devotional period included two hymns, the Easter lesson read by Miss Edna Johnston, and prayer by Mrs. Beavis. Appropriate readings were also given by Miss Helen Howarth and Miss Ruth Hutchinson.

Refreshments were served by the hostess after a program of games.

Earliest Mention Of Wheels

The earliest mention of wheels in the Bible is in Exodus xiv. 25, when the chariot-wheels of the Egyptians were "taken off by the Lord," although chariots are mentioned in Genesis xii. 43. But there were older nations that the Egyptians. The Chaldeans used chariots, and the Greeks are said to have had chariots at the siege of Troy, 1500 B.C. Probably in reality the the wheels is about as early a piece of machinery as any now existing. The bicycle wheel of today is a direct descendant of the section of a log of wood used by the agricultural peoples thousands of years ago.

Select Curtains With Care

Your curtains are a definite gauge of your taste, and of how much attention you pay to the principles of decorating. Many windows are likely to be overdressed, and so it is important to study your home very carefully before you select new fabrics for any of them.

Simple, informal rooms suit most persons best. Heavy draperies are out of place in them, and have the added serious disadvantage of being expensive. Use interesting but unpretentious fabrics if draperies are called for. Or do not hesitate to eliminate them. In many cases windows can be fully as attractive with just glass curtains of fine net, sheer ninon, beautiful marquisette, voile, organdy or casement cloth.

Furniture Polish Cleans Woodwork

Furniture polish is a good cleanser and polisher for woodwork. Put a few drops of polish on three or four soft cloths the day before you will use them, roll them tightly that the polish may distribute itself evenly throughout the cloths. One cloth might be used for the first dusting and another for polishing.

If the woodwork is much soiled, it may be necessary to wash it first in lukewarm water with a mild soap. A little ammonia in the water will help to loosen the dirt. Rinse off the soap and let the place dry, then polish it with furniture polish.

FASHIONS

You'll feel fresh and attractive in this charming new morning frock. It's the ideal dress in which to greet your family at breakfast; a frock in which you'll be proud to greet those unexpected callers — and you owe it to yourself as well as your family to be becomingly dressed all day long. Crisp ruffles outline the flattering heart-shaped neckline and underline the big pockets. The waistline treatment is something new and different—very complimentary to the figure. The design makes up equally well as a smart street dress, and the pattern itself is extremely easy to make.

Style No. 3197 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material, 2 yards ruffling.

Errors in Etiquette Betray You Socially

Don't Risk a Poor Impression

Staying in his car and blowing the horn for his date to join him!

Easy to see this careless couple doesn't belong to the same set as the sophisticated pair passing by. They find such antics crude, inexcusable.

To be accepted by well-mannered people, know your etiquette. When a man calls for a girl, correct for him to get out of his car and ring the doorbell. Then, after helping the girl with her wraps, he escorts her to his car.

On dinner-dancing dates, no awkward moments when you know just what to do. The man checks his coat and hat before entering the dining room, tips the attendant from 10 to 25 cents when he leaves. If he doesn't suggest dancing, quite proper for the girl to do so.

And at movies she won't stand in line while he buys the tickets, but will wait nearby. Going down the aisle, she follows the usher, the man goes last.

Easy to do the right thing, with etiquette rules to guide you. Our 32-page booklet tells what is correct at dances, movies, house parties, when travelling, motoring, dating. Gives tips on introductions, telephone, office etiquette. Has advice on the petting question.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of ETIQUETTE FOR YOUNG MODERNS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Plainville WMS Packs A Bale

PLAINVILLE, Mar. 11 (ENS). — On Thursday afternoon the W.M.S. held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. Hilliard Doidge. The president, Mrs. L. Carruthers, was in charge of the business. The roll-call was answered with a missionary thought.

Mrs. Earl Joice was in charge of the program. Mrs. M. F. Ames led in a devotional exercise with the help of Mrs. Linton, Mrs. G. Lander, Mrs. Louis Buttar, and Mrs. William Gordon. Miss Bernice Linton gave a reading. Mrs. Clifford Manley read "The Untouchables of India" from the study book "Moving Millions. Mrs. Joice led in prayer with Mrs. L. Carruthers assisting. Mrs. Ewart King dedicated the offering.

After the meeting a bale was packed. A lovely print quilt and a white hospital quilt were among the new articles, also other hospital supplies.

A social hour, with the service of lunch, was enjoyed at the close. Twenty ladies were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Herriott and some of their family were in Campbellford attending the funeral of Mr. Herriott's brother on Monday.

Mrs. M. F. Ames has returned home from a visit in Noranda, Quebec, with her daughter, Mrs. Hartley Halstead, and son Lyall Ames, and their families.

Malcolm Carruthers spent a few days last week visiting in Campbellford with Constable and Mrs. Donald Carruthers.

"It Was a Lovely Trip"

Captain J. C. Townley, skipper of the Queen Elizabeth on her dramatic maiden voyage across the Atlantic, "tells all" to reporters upon the arrival of the British luxury liner in New York. In answer to all questions Captain Townley replied "It was a lovely trip."

Problem-Parents as Great a Menace As Problem Children. Fathers and Mothers Set an Example That Is Later Followed by Their Offspring.

We hear a great deal about problem-children, but no one mentions problem-parents. Yet the fathers and mothers who have physical, mental, or spiritual abnormalities are just as common as youngsters who are "queer," and are even harder nuts to crack. The parents who have children who are not quite "right," as we euphoniously put it, in body or mind can call in doctors, psychiatrists and child specialists to help them solve their problems. But the children of parents who have warped and diseased mentalities and who are congenital morons are helpless before their problem. There is no one to whom they can turn for assistance.

Leaving out of consideration the great tragic problems of the drunken and immoral father and mother who drag their helpless offspring down into the gutter and who are a shame and disgrace to them, consider some of the problem-parents with whom thousands of children have to deal.

Most common, perhaps are the quarreling parents. The husbands and wives who apparently still live together for the sole purpose of fighting with each other and who make of their home a perpetual battleground. Neither the father nor the mother can make the simplest statement without precipitating a bitter argument in which all sorts of extraneous matters are dragged in, and in which recrimination, and insult after insult, is hurled back and forth until you think murder will be done.

The father and mother are both good, worthy people. They love their children and would die defending them from any bodily harm, yet with their ceaseless, senseless indulgence of their tempers, they shatter their children's nervous systems and plant the seeds of diseases that they will suffer from as long as they live. They warp their natures and deprive them of a peaceful and happy home, which is the only garden in which a child's soul can come to full flower.

Then there is the problem of the divorced parents with which helpless little children have to wrestle. They had nothing to do with their father and mother losing their taste for each other, or imagining they had found their affinities in some platinum blonde or slick-haired gigolo, or with their just growing restless under the responsibilities of domesticity and wanting to be free. They loved both father and mother. They loved their home and wanted to stay in it.

But, suddenly, without their knowing why, the roof is pulled down over their heads. Mother drags them away from the father they adore. After a bit they have a new father and a new mother and two new homes, and they are sent off to school because they don't fit into either home and nobody wants them and with four parents they have none at all. They grow bitter and cynical and worldly-wise before their time because they can't help feeling that their parents have given them a rotten deal.

Then there are the problem parents who do everything they can to unfit their children for life. They never teach their children any self-control, or obedience, or respect for law and order. They never teach them to work, or to shoulder any responsibility. They indulge them in extravagances they can't afford and cultivate in them tastes that they will have no means of gratifying. They make them utterly selfish, useless loafers and idlers.

Then when the time comes when they have to go out and make their own livings, they find that their parents have foredoomed them to failure by the way they have reared them. They don't know how to do anything well enough for any one to pay for it. Nobody will put up with their arrogance and lack of manners. They are so soft they give up every job when the sledding gets hard and they drift down into the ranks of the chronically unemployed. And when they marry and find out that no husband or wife will pamper them as Mother did, they simply throw up their hands and quit.

And there are the problem parents who think they can keep their children unspotted from the world by depriving them of all personal liberty and trying to keep them segregated from all other young people. They won't let Mamie have a dress that doesn't look like it came out of the hair trunk in the attic. They won't let her use cosmetics or nail polish or have a new hair-do.

They won't let Sally, who is 17, have a boy friend, or a date, or go to a school dance, or do anything human and natural and young. And what is poor Sally to do, who loves her parents and would like to obey them, but who sees the doors of the Spinsters Retreat yawning in her face, unless she lies to them and deceives them and takes her pleasure on the sly?

Terrible thing, these problem parents. Pity the poor, unfortunate children who have them.

Case of Familyitis

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man desperately in love with a girl who is suffering from a bad case of familyitis. She is the youngest of seven children and all of her life she has been told what to do, what to say, what to wear, and treated as if she had no mind of her own. She is not allowed to go anywhere except to the office where she works unless accompanied by one or more members of the family. Yet when she is at home she is expected to wait on all the balance, do the odd jobs, run errands, etc. When I go to see her the family never seem to think that I came to see little sister, and on the rare occasions when I have been permitted to take her for a drive some one else always comes along too. I know she loves me, but she is afraid to show it because she thinks one of her sisters, who already has more boy friends than she can handle, wants me. I can see that the girl is on the verge of a nervous breakdown, and unless she gets away from her family the consequences will be disastrous. How can I stop them from ruining her life and mine? N. O. W.

ANSWER:

Easiest thing in the world. Marry her. And my earnest advice is to use caveman stuff in your wooing. Just grab her by the hair of her head when you are out alone with her and drag her to the parson.

If you wait to argue it out with every member of the family, they will say she is too young, or they can't bear to part with her, and make so many objections that the poor, downtrodden soul who has never been allowed to choose a pocket handkerchief for herself, much less a husband, will never have spunk enough to fight her way to the altar.

Nursing Sisters Are Eager To Answer The Overseas Call

With thoughts of the last war, when blue clad nursing sisters brought skill and cheer to hospital wards and casualty clearing stations, many women today are eagerly turning to the same services.

Throughout Canada now there are members of the Nursing Service, R.C.A.M.C., C.A.S.F., on duty in military hospitals, ready to answer the call abroad when the word is said.

Every military district in Canada has a long list of applicants, all graduates of recognized training schools. A great number have fine qualifications, and valuable experience in specialized branches of nursing, a matron said. They include experts in administration, surgical nursing, X-ray and anaesthetics.

To join the Nursing Service, a nurse, armed with her training school diploma, and with "Registered Nurse" after her name, must be under 45 when applying. She must be in fine physical condition, and should be cheerful, quick and adaptable, the authorities believe.

Full dress uniform has been ruled out for the duration of the war. The service uniform was designed when Canada's first military service was organized. With this blue uniform is worn the becoming white organdie veil, and the skirt has been lengthened or shortened with the years. A white gored apron is worn in the wards, and the debonair cape has a bright scarlet lining.

A welcome addition to what the well-dressed nurse may wear with impunity is the navy blue recreation suit with a small R.C.A.M.C. badge on each revere, mid-blue shirtwaist and tie. The navy blue uniform hat goes with this, and either the cape, or a blue great coat.

The rank badges of the nursing service are: Matron-in-chief, one crown; matron, three stars; nursing sister, two stars.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, March 12

A DIFFICULT day is presaged from the strongly adverse planetary aspects. There are likely to be tenacious obstacles which will take much tact and diplomacy to remove. The stubborn opposition seems to have its source in deep roots, probably in connection with groups or organized bodies, with whom much discrimination should be exercised.

Those whose birthday it is may have to draw on a reserve fund of patience, fortitude and prudence during the year in order to sidestep or vanquish obstinate and difficult situations. Many obstacles and frustrating circumstances arise, probably from old organizations or new and ambitious groups.

A child born on this day may be fairly clever, with deep, subtle and shrewd traits of character, which should enable it to transcend frustrating circumstances by prudence, clear thinking and strategic tactics.

Women Urged To Use Canadian Fruit

At the annual meeting of the Hamilton Local Council of Women held on Monday, March 4th, the question of the large surplus of Canadian apples was discussed, and the co-operation of the Ontario Councils of Women requested. The form of the request is as follows:

"That the members of the Ontario Provincial Council of Women be asked to use Canadian apples in some form at least four times a week for the next ten weeks." Some of the forms suggested were apple juice, apple sauce, baked apples and apple pudding. This was unanimously approved.

This request was also put to the annual meeting of the Municipal Chapter I.O.D.E. of Hamilton on Friday, March 1st, and endorsed by a standing vote of those present. The result of the vote was most gratifying, every lady present standing and agreeing to comply with the request to serve Canadian apples four times a week in her home.

By using Canadian products Canadian farms will be helped; the exchange situation will also be helped, and at the same time Canadian women will be serving their families a healthful Canadian fruit.

March of Time Picture
"CANADA AT WAR"

THE Board of Censors, acting under the authority of The Theatres and Cinematographs Act, Chapter 319 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario 1937, has prohibited the exhibition of the film "Canada at War." In the opinion of the Board the picture is capable of being used—and is, in fact, presently being used in Canada—not for purposes of entertainment or education but for political propaganda. In proof of this, a copy of an advertisement published in Vancouver, B.C., papers under the sponsorship of the Vancouver Liberal Association is shown hereunder.

Moreover, the film "Canada at War", No. 8 in March of Time features, was released for exhibition in advance of No. 7—which is a picture with an American appeal. The release date of "Canada at War" was said to have been advanced three weeks apparently to permit of the display of the film during the Dominion election campaign.

The action of the Board of Censors in prohibiting the exhibition in Ontario of the March of Time picture "Canada at War" follows the precedent adopted in the Ontario provincial election of 1937, during which time the Liberal Government of Ontario refused to permit the exhibition of films and pictures which gave vivid accounts and displays of C.I.O. activities and scenes of violence in American industrial centers. The showing of the pictures would have been to the undoubted advantage of the Liberal Government which was opposing C.I.O. activities in Ontario. Yet the Ontario Liberal Government banned the exhibition of the films and pictures.

The Board of Censors of the Province of Ontario would be false to its duty if it interfered in the wartime elections campaign by placing its stamp of approval on a film such as "Canada at War," which in this time of grave national peril is being used and exploited for purposes of political propaganda.

M. F. HEPBURN,
Treasurer of Ontario.

THIS SHOULD BE A PROFITABLE year to raise Early Hatched Broilers. We have big, growthy, easy-to-raise New Hampshire day-old Cockerels, each week at 6 cents each as ordered. Mrs. Mackey, Port Hope Highway, has this to say of her last year's purchase: "I could sell the Cockerels the year round if I had them. My milk-fed Cockerels paid for the Pullets. The same people bought them week after week. They are of good size for the average customer (5 to 7 lbs.) and sold at 23c per lb. for nearly all, which is a good price for here." Orders booked as received. Better write us to-day—G. A. Brethen, Hill-Crest Farm. Telephone 250, Norwood.

ONE FALSE STEP

BY KATHRN BEMIS

CHAPTER XVI

JANIS felt that Dr. Black was so kind, so undestanding, his very presence would give her a security that she needed to experience just now. To go out to dinner with him was exactly what she wanted to do. But she managed to stifle such foolish impulse.

"Good morning, Miss Sheldon." Janis had given her name to the nurse.

"Good morning, Doctor. I promised to call you." Now that he was on the wire, she didn't know what to say to him.

"Yes—about our dinner engagement. I hope you can manage it."

"You suggested Wednesday," she wavered. "I'm sorry—I won't be able to—but some other time, perhaps."

"Would Thursday suit you better? Other nights this week I'll be tied up at the hospital."

She Cannot Tell Him

Again she had that consuming desire to blurt out all her problems to him, get his advice. Then she curbed such impossible madness. What would he think of her? What would he think of any girl who had been stupid enough to get herself into such a mess? But perhaps she was only borrowing trouble. Perhaps Rock loved her, Lucinda was her loyal friend——

"I'm disappointed," Dr. Black said sincerely. "May I try again, soon?"

"Yes—please do," she told him, a trifle breathlessly. Then wondered how to go on refusing to date a man without losing his friendship. But why, she asked herself for the millionth time, did she clamor for Dr. Black's friendship, what traitorous imp prompted her to think she needed it?

"You'll hear from me then," he ventured hesitantly.

"That will be nice,' she told him, knowing full well it couldn't be.

Rock did not reply to her call all morning. By afternoon she had worried herself into a furor; her head ached and she suddenly wanted to rush away from all familiar surroundings, from all the haunting memories they conjured up. Then, too, there was the matter of the screen test. So much hinged upon its outcome that she couldn't have any peace of find until it was settled.

Just Wandering

In a black suit with flesh-colored blouse and accessories, she was subdued contrast to her startling white coupe; her dark sun glasses, her adorable mouth drooping in troubled wistfulness, made her arrestingly different from other women, young or old, abroad this ideal morning. Persons in cars, pedestrians, no matter how embittered by calamity or thrilled by generous fate, threw Janis an involuntary second glance and speculated eagerly upon her being their latest screen favorite.

But Janis was conscious of none of this. She spun the car beyond the city limits, over roads bordered each side by walnut groves, on past orange groves with their smudge-pots ready and waiting for Winter chill. Her mind, brooding bitterly, grew numb with the suspense she was enduring. Only the sense of swift motion seemed to satisfy some peculiar craving within her.

On and on went the car wildly dashing over the smooth pavement. Speed, and yet more speed. She made turns without caring or thinking where they might lead. She finally ran out of gas and was forced to stop at a filling station. She gave the attendant her order, and got out of the car to stretch her cramped legs. She glanced listlessly up at a nearby tree from which hung big golden fruit.

The attendant set the gas hose in the car's tank. "Help yourself," he offered, with a good-natured grin, "an orange to every customer — that's our motto."

"Oh—may I?" she asked, remembering her frequently expressed desire to pick an orange. She went to a low-hanging branch and twisted a fragrant golden ball from its tough stem. But the thrill she had anticipated so long didn't come. She sighed, wondered if she ever would be highly excited over anything again.

She paid for the gas, got back in the car, and started away again. She dashed on a few miles; then abruptly, her yearning for swift movement left her. She felt ill, physically as well as mentally, and wished she were home.

She pulled the car up before a low, picket fence and shut off the ignition. She propped an elbow on the ledge of the open window, held her aching head in her hand, dully realizing that she was close to fainting.

A Friend Indeed

She was feeling slightly better when she heard hoofbeats, and saw a woman rider coming along the bridle path by the road. The graceful manner in which the woman sat her handsome sorrel mount, intrigued Janis. She wondered if she could learn to ride a horse, then reminded herself that she couldn't afford one at the moment, and sighed uneasily.

When the rider reigned in beside her, Janis was surprised to find herself locking straight into Mary Black's lovely animated face.

"Why, Miss Sheldon — how delighted I am! You've come to see me?"

"No—that is—do you live near here?" stammered Janis, trying to gather her wits.

"My dear — what's the matter? You're pale as a ghost. Do get out and come into the house. You're at my gate, you know."

Bewilderedly, Janis turned her head and read "Bridgecliffe" on the sign by the gatepost, saw the thick shrubbery which nearly concealed something behind it big and rambling and white that looked like a house. "Why—I'm in Coldwater Canyon—I'd no idea——"

Mary Black jumped off her horse, turned him over to a groom who had just come up. She opened the car door, said coaxingly: "Come you poor child," and helped Janis to the ground.

She wound an arm around her, and led her slowly past bending old sycamores and clustered pines and cedars, across a wide, white-pillared porch into the house.

Martin, the butler, assisted in removing Janis' jacket; then Mary took her to the gunroom off the hall. At last she lay full length on a softly cushioned couch with soft satin pillows beneath her tangled curls, a prayer of thanksgiving on her lips. There was such blessed peace here. It was strange that both Mary and her brother seemed to fill any place they were with that quality. Perhaps it was because there was nothing hectic about them, because they expelled an essence of cultured reserve lacking in so many people.

A maid came in immediately with tea, and its fragrant fumes made Janis realize that she had skipped her lunch. She sat up, looked about the pine-paneled room fascinating with its decorations of guns and animal pelts.

Mary Is Kind to Her

Mary, pouring tea, asked: "Feeling better?"

Janis pushed the hair from her damp forehead, smiled wanly. "Yes, thank you—much better. I don't know what I'd have done if you hadn't come along when you did."

"It's certainly fortunate for me. You see, I've wanted to know you better—I've been interested in you from the very first, my dear. A girl who comes to Hollywood to make the grade often finds a hard road. But mercy—I mustn't discourage you."

She got up and brought Janis tea in a thin china cup, dropped beside her on the couch.

"I don't know how to thank you," said Janis, tears in her eyes.

She began sipping the hot liquid. Color slowly returned to her cheeks, she felt a glow of new courage. This serene, hospitable home, the sweet, gentle woman beside her, were brushing aside some of her perplexities, making them petty by contrast.

She said, her voice clear and certain: "I had my test yesterday—out ot Rosemount Studio."

"Really?" Mary's brown eyes registered lively interest. "I'm so glad. How did it come out?"

"I don't know—I only wish I did." Mary turned thoughtful, passed Janis some attractive-looking open-faced sandwiches. "You should have been called before this. I could probably find out what happened—I know them out at Rosemount."

"That would be wonderful. I'm so anxious to hear—it means so much to me." She bit into a circle of rye bread covered with delicious caviar.

"Of course—I've been through it. I know."

What About The Test

Mary's riding boots went noiselessly over the Oriental rug, out into the powder room beyond. Janis could see her image reflected in a mirror as she sat, holding a telephone receiver to her ear. The murmur of Mary's pleasantly modulated voice floated back indistinctly.

Janis gulped down the tea, ate macaroons and a piece of chocolate cake while waiting for Mary to return with the verdict. Now that she was so close to knowing what the studio thought of her, her nervousness had fled. She was so positive of her success that Mary found her bathed in smiles when she re-entered the room.

Mary settled herself in a chair. Her brow knitted. She brushed an imaginary speck from her coat sleeve. She was strangely silent.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOW YOUR DISTRIBUTION

THIS inaugurates a brief course on the most important fundamentals of bidding and play as practiced by the overwhelming majority of contract bridge masters. It is in these basic things that the average good player makes the most costly mistakes. Each Monday a general subject will be covered. It will pay the ambitious student to paste these in a notebook for repeated reference. We begin with a set of examples to show how an expert, with a fairly strong hand, indicates his exact suit length to his partner.

1— ♠ A K J 2 ♥ K Q J 2 ♦ 3 2 ♣ Q 3 2
2— ♠ A K J 3 2 ♥ K Q J 3 2 ♦ 2 ♣ Q 2
3— ♠ A K J 2 ♥ K Q J 3 2 ♦ 3 2 ♣ Q 2
4— ♠ A K J 3 2 ♥ K Q J 2 ♦ 3 2 ♣ Q 2
5— ♠ A K J 4 3 2 ♥ K Q J 2 ♦ 2 ♣ Q 2
6— ♠ A K J 2 ♥ K Q J 4 3 2 ♦ 2 ♣ Q 2

Presume that in each case the partner responds first with diamonds, then with clubs. On the first hand the bidding would be: 1-Spade, 2-Diamonds; 2-Hearts, 3-Clubs; 3-No Trumps. On No. 2, it would be: 1-Spade, 2-Diamonds; 2-Hearts, 3-Clubs; 3-Hearts. In the first case, no suit could stand a rebid, none being over four cards. In the second, the rebid of the lower-ranking suit indicates that both are rebiddable, at least five cards long, so that three little cards would be ample support for a raise by the partner.

No. 3 should be bid thus: 1-Heart, 2-Diamonds; 2-Spades, 3-Clubs; 3-No Trumps. When the higher suit is bid after the lower, especially with suits of adjoining rank, it indicates one more card in the lower.

No. 4 calls for this bidding: 1-Spade, 2-Diamonds; 2-Hearts; 3-Clubs; 3-Spades. Rebidding the higher indicates it is rebiddable, but the lower is not, else it would have been rebid.

No. 5 should be bid thus: 1-Spade, 2-Diamonds; 2-Spades, 3-Clubs; 3-Hearts. When one suit is bid twice and another later, the first is at least two cards longer; hence two cards of it are better support from partner than three in the shorter suit. So No. 6 would be bid: 1-Heart, 2-Diamonds; 2-Hearts, 3-Clubs; 3-Spades. Then partner chooses.

Tomorrow's Problem

North: ♠ A J 10 8 ♥ K 8 ♦ K 9 8 5 4 ♣ K 2
West: ♠ Q 7 4 2 ♥ 9 7 6 5 3 ♦ Q ♣ 8 7 4
East: ♠ K 9 3 ♥ 2 ♦ A 3 2 ♣ A J 9 6 5 3
South: ♠ 6 5 ♥ A Q J 10 4 ♦ J 10 7 6 ♣ Q 10

If South takes the second club trick, drops two trumps, leads a diamond to East's ace, and the latter returns a third club, how should South then play for 4-Hearts?

Otonabee School Area Trustees In Charge Of 170 Pupils First To Instal Craft Courses

The management of "the little red school" assumes a higher level of responsibility when it becomes linked with others under a board of trustees who are charged with the administration of all the schools in the organized group.

This is one of the intangible advantages already discerned in the first year's operation of the board of trustees of Otonabee School Area No. 1, and this shift of attitude is confidently expected to reach out to all the ratepayers of the area, developing among them a higher estimate of the position of the public school in the life of the countryside, especially in the broadening of its usefulness to the children of the farms.

There is something of a biblical text in this expanding experience. The text that is called to mind is: "he that loseth his life will save it," and it may be considered in paraphrase as applying to the individual schools whose ratepayers decide that in educational matters there is bound to be strength in unity. The school that seems to lose its identiy in the group really emerges on a higher plane than that which it had occupied in its own little neighborhood.

The importance gained by the property pooling, pupil attendance and other aspects of an amalgamation of rural schools, raises them collectively to a new status in their combined area, and the position they thereby acquire reacts in favor of each one separately, placing it, particularly in this important detail of administration, on the same elevation as that of the whole organization.

Realize Greater Duty

From conversations with some of the ratepayers of the Otonabee School Area No. 1, comprising five schools, it is manifest that the new board of five trustees has a realization of the importance of its duties to a much greater degree than the corresponding attitude and sensibilities of the members of the five boards that formerly looked after the schools separately.

And, actually they have a bigger job. It might even be considered five times greater an obligation than that which was entrusted to the individual school boards. In that awareness the trustess are bound to give more attention to the newer needs of each school.

It signifies a parting with the past, a severance with the old ties which had held so long, individualism in rural educational administration that continued to demand the unit school with its board of three trustees. Its inherent weakness was in the school board itself. This assertion is not intended as a reflection on those trustees who gave long and valuable service to their communities, men who had a true sense of their responsibilities and who fulfilled them in that spirit. It recalls, rather, the boards which had comparatively light duties, spreading them across the year, who held few meetings, and some times over a fence rail, and who often left most of the work to one of the members.

The Otonabee Group

One of the first decisions of the Otonabee board of five trustees was to hold regular monthly meetings. They followed that course all last year, and it has now become established practice.

The five schools in the Otonabee Area Number 1 are: S.S. No. 4, Keene, two buildings; two teachers, Miss Rosetta Frankish in charge of the lower grades from 1 to 4, and Miss Isabel Faux doing the senior work with the grades from 5 to 8 inclusive. The latest enrollment shows there are 34 pupils in the junior department and 29 in the senior.

Total number of pupils, 170.

Presumably, Leo Copp as Public School Inspector, now temporarily on the staff of the Normal School, sowed the seed of this combined area, perhaps by pointing out various advantages which appealed to ratepayers who decided the plan was worth adopting, at least as an experiment. They in turn extended the missionary work, and at length the ratepayers of the five schools joined forces, elected their board of five trustees replacing the former fifteen; and the new administration came into effect on the first of January 1939.

Making Their Own Way

The trustees of the five schools in this area are: Roland R. Dixon, chairman; Frank Graystock, Ambrose Doris, Fred Nelson and Roy Porter, with Douglas Brown engaged as secretary. They immediately found themselves in the position of local trail-blazers, for the reason that the school area plan is comparatively new, at least in its acceptance. Forty-nine new school areas were formed in 1939, and began to function this year. The number of communities on an economic par with the Otonabee area was comparatively small, and so within the School Act the new board began to make their own rules as they went along meeting problems that had to be dealt with. They had no precedents for their guidance, and in a spirit of caution, and making sure of one step before pacing off the next, the trustees came through their first year with valuable experience, increasing confidence, and are now getting on into their second year.

Meetings of Teachers

Not only have the ratepayers of the five school sections pooled their interests under one administrative board, but the six teachers have found a common ground of interest which brings them together in regular meetings for the purpose of discussing their problems and also of ways and means of promoting the educational welfare of all the schools in the group. They also attend meetings of the trustees, and this co-operation has been found to be so helpful that the board has assigned part of their time for hearing any representations from the teachers and generally talking over with them suggestions and ideas for the benefit of the school children, the schools and this new system that is now progressing with promise of broader activities if the condition of the time and other factors permit.

This consultation of trustees and teachers is regarded as an exceedingly healthy sign of a new understanding and joining of effort that has found its inspiration and encouragement in the school area plan. Gradually, it is believed, this spirit of oneness will extend throughout the entire community, stimulating a keener interest in local educational matters among the ratepayers generally.

Other Advantages

School libraries in the area have been improved during the year, and the teachers have a circulating plan that enables all the schools to interchange books.

Economies have been effected in the purchase of supplies of all kinds, including the materials for providing hot lunches for children, books and other school equipment. And, getting ahead of the story, the ordinary repairs to school property is done by the boys who have become handy with saws and hammers and other tools.

Practical Work

To the credit of the new school area system is the addition of craft work for boys, and some of it for girls who are also given additional training in home economics.

George E. Munro of Peterborough was engaged as the teacher of what may be called this manual training. When it was introduced, the trustees found that they were breaking new ground, that they were the first group of rural schools to undertake this subsidiary work in Ontario. The board authorized the expenditure of less than $300 for necessary equipment and $50 for supplies. Lumber was bought, and Mr. Munro provided his own tools when he began the rounds of the schools in February of 1939. He devotes one hour and a half a week to each of the five schools in the circuit.

The boys of grade V, approximately the old junior III class, began making benches that were needed. The ordinary school room accommodation was slightly changed in some places to accommodate the benches which are pushed up against the walls when not in use.

Eventually the hammers, saws, chisels, brace and bit sets and other tools, that had been ordered, were received, and the work began to broaden out. Not only were wooden benches constructed, but also five manual training benches of steel construction. These were made at a saving of $10 each to the board.

The smaller boys were making bird houses, match boxes and other small articles of wood, and so the midsummer term arrived. With the new term in September last year a course was laid out including eight weeks in rope work, mostly splicing, belt lacing and so on, continuing to Christmas. Then leather work was started in January, making purses and key rings, and so on up to sewing harness.

This is just an outline of the venture in craftsmanship in these rural schools. Mr. Munro, in consultation with M. H. Park, present Public School Inspector, has laid out a course of practical training for four years. Girls join with the boys in the crafts that are suitable to them, reed, leather and raffia or grass work, and when the boys are doing wood and metal work, the girls are taught home economics.

Incidentally, Mr. Munro is in charge of similar classes at Confederation and May's schools in North Monaghan and at the Hiawatha school down by Rice Lake. He told the Examiner today that the Hiawatha boys are surprisingly adept in most of the work. He mentioned one boy whose sewing of leather was perhaps equal to anything he could turn out.

Boys Show Interest.

The boys have gradually improved their accommodation. They now have manual training benches equipped with vices and all the essential tools. One of the trustees informed the Examiner that his boy was keenly interested in Mr. Munro's training, that he cried one day when he was sick and had to be kept home, missing the manual work for that day.

Some of the boys have been able to show their fathers how they could splice ropes, and they already are doing things with tools at home which they have learned in the area schools.

The little boys of eight to 12 years are delighted with the work, and most of them display a natural aptitude for this kind of work that requires only instruction and encouragement to develop into skill in a comparatively short time. Mr. Munro said he was frequently surprised by the work the boys and also the girls were doing.

City pupils have been getting a preparatory training in the public schools with which they advance to the vocational school. Country boys have been missing that preliminary work, and were handicapped when they took up vocational work in the city. The present boys of the Otonabee school area are going to be much better equipped for advanced work if any of them continue it after their public school course.

Set Back By War

Progressive farmers have realized for a long time that country children should be given the opportunity to learn these practical crafts. It remained for the ratepayers of the five Otonabee schools to do something about. So far, according to the various reports of progress, the experiment has thoroughly justified itself.

Meanwhile, the war has laid a hand on the finances of the province, and the expansion of this enterprise for the benefit of rural children may be set back. Other sections of this district are bound to be interested in the Otonabee experiment, and can readily find out the promise that underlies this program of manual training and home economics. From all accounts the Otonabee school area board intends to carry on with this work.

Forty-nine new school areas were organized in 1939, an indication of the growing interest this work is receiving from rural ratepayers and trustees.

Britain's Marine Losses Balance Germany's In Past Week; Nazi Airforce Unusually Active

LONDON, March 11—(CP).—British and German marine losses were fairly equally balanced in the week ending March 8.

While mines and submarines were in continued use against allied and neutral vessels, the German air force was unusually active in bombing forays, but few ships were sunk.

One vessel badly damaged, the 10,516-ton British tanker Charles F. Meyer, made port, while another, the 5,335-ton Italian ship Amelia Lard, attacked by German aircraft, was still afloat although badly burned.

The German losses were the 6,530-ton Heidleberg, captured by the Royal Navy after leaving the Netherlands West Indies, and the 5,846-ton Uruguay, scuttled when intercepted in the North Atlantic.

The week's losses, as compiled by the Canadian Press:

Nationality	No. of Ships	Tonnage
British	5	13,827
German	2	12,376
Netherlands	3	3,082
Swedish	1	2,818
Norwegian	1	1,383

All Ministers With Me Says Hepburn

Calls Council Session For Understanding 'Making No Demands'

TORONTO, March 12 — (CP). — Ontario Cabinet members were summoned to the Provincial capital today to meet with Premier Mitchell Hepburn for a declaration of "clear understanding" prompted by the resignation of Provincial Secretary Harry C. Nixon, who once was offered the Government leadership.

"I have received assurances, directly and indirectly, from all the Ministers, that they are with me," Mr. Hepburn said last night as he prepared to leave his St. Thomas district home for the conference.

"The Cabinet Council is for the purpose of obtaining a clear understanding of just where we stand. I am not going to make any demands on my colleagues."

The Premier stressed, however, that he would not ask for the resignation of any Minister who, like Mr. Nixon, differed with his leader on the question of the Dominion Government's war effort. The principle of Cabinet solidarity, he said, "should not apply outside the Provincial field."

Mr. Hepburn said he probably would take over Mr. Nixon's portfolio until the Cabinet can be reshuffled, a matter which may require several months.

"The irony of the matter is that if Harry Nixon has any idea of leading the Liberal party in Ontario he would have had the job some time ago," Mr. Hepburn said. "When I was seriously ill [illegible] I was ready to give up the Premiership, I called him in and asked if he would go to the Lieutenant-Governor and be sworn in as Premier. He refused.

50,000-Man Expeditionary Force, Transport Fleet Ready To Go To Finland Since Feb. 26 Daladier Announces Explaining Snag Is Swede, Norse Enmity To Allied Troops

Finnish Parliament Still Debates On Russian Terms

HELSINKI, Mar. 12 — (8.40 p.m.) —(AP). — A Finnish official said to-night that Parliament, which must pass on any terms of peace with Soviet Russia, had not taken any action up to early this evening. It was indicated that a secret session of Parliament will be held later to-night or to-morrow.

Treaty Wednesday?

LONDON, Mar. 12 — (CP).—The Exchange Telegraph News Agency reported to-day in a Stockholm despatch that the Finnish delegation in Moscow had been authorized to sign a peace treaty.

The despatch quoted well informed sources as saying a treaty will be signed in Moscow on Wednesday, that the terms will be published and at the same time hostilities will cease.

An official of the Soviet Embassy here said that the Moscow negotiations "are going along well but we have nothing definite.."

Radio listeners in London meanwhile reported hearing a Finnish announcer say in a Russian-language broadcast that the Finnish army "will defend the independence of Finland to the end."

The Copenhagen radio reported that the Helsinki authorities were considering compulsory removal of all children still in the city.

Some Red Concessions.

HELSINKI, Mar. 12 — (CP-Havas). — Reliable sources said to-night Russia [illegible] concessions to Finland regarding the Soviet-occupied Finnish district of Petsamo in the Arctic.

The latest development gives a 60-40 chance of successful conclusion of peace talks now going on in Moscow, they said.

Allies Warn Finland No Appeal Now Dooms Aid After War

PARIS, March 12—(CP-Havas) —Premier Daladier announced in the Chamber of Deputies to-day that an allied expeditionary force of 50,000 men had been ready for dispatch to Finland since Feb. 26.

A transport fleet has been standing by since that date ready to carry the troops to Finland following request for such aid by the Helsinki government, the Premier said. He emphasized, however, that Great Britain and France could not go to Finland's assistance unless asked. He had warned Harri Holma, Finnish minister to France, that the allies could assume no responsibility for Finland's post-war territorial status unless Helsinki appealed for aid.

Daladier said the Finnish foreign Minister, V. A. Tanner, had promised that a definite answer would be dispatched to-day following the session of the Finnish parliament.

The French government has received no reply from Helsinki to its offer of help, Daladier said.

"As early as Feb. 26," he said, "a considerable number of vessels were assembled—notably by England—to transport an expeditionary corps to Finland."

Blocked by Swedes, Norse

"France and England are still awaiting an appeal from Finland," Daladier added. "Why is this appeal from Finland necessary? Because the Swedish and Norwegian governments with all their strength oppose the passage of Allied troops through their territory."

"To overcome this opposition it is necessary that we should have with us the complete support of a major part of the Swedish and Norwegian populations.

"I desire that my country should not, even amidst war, trample on international law."

The premier said that last Thursday he wrote to the Finnish minister here, Harri Holma, saying that for several days France had awaited an appeal from Finland, reiterating that France was ready to give immediate aid to Finland, and warning that if no request for Allied intervention came the Allies could not assume responsibility for the territorial status of Finland after the war.

After the premier's statement the chamber, by a show of hands, agreed to postpone debate on aid to Finland until next Tuesday. The government proposal for such action was supported by Leon Blum, Socialist leader, and Camille Fernand-Laurent, Rightist.

Sent Last Word In Planes

Recalling in his statement to the chamber that Finnish civil and military leaders have warmly thanked France for help so far given, Daladier said:—

"France leads the powers which have furnished war material to Finland. Figures on this material aid have been published. In addition, at the request of the Finnish government, we have just supplied ultra-modern bombing planes."

He said the decision to offer men to Finland was made by the supreme Allied war council at its meeting here Feb. 5 and that the French troops were waiting with transports ready in two ports on the English Channel.

On March 7, Daladier said, he told Holma:—

"For several days we have awaited only Finland's appeal in order to go to her aid with all the means at our disposal."

U.S. Will Release RCAF Plane And 2 Fliers Considering Incident 3000 Miles from Front

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—United States officials decided today to release two Canadian army aviators who made a forced landing in a military plane Saturday at Alexandria Bay in New York state.

Both the aviators and the plane will be permitted to leave the United States and return to Canada.

At the state department it was said that an investigation had disclosed that the plane was forced to land on United States territory through mistake and as a result of distress.

The investigation also resulted in a finding that the plane was not on any hostile mission or engaged in any hostile activity.

Under these circumstances, it was said, and considering that the incident occurred some 3,000 miles from active combat operations, the plane and its two aviators are being allowed to leave the United States.

The airmen, Pilot A. E. L. Cannon of Quebec and Leading Aircraftsman J. Duguid of Winnipeg, were injured slightly when their plane, from the No. 112 (City of Winnipeg) army co - operation squadron, landed on a snow-covered field.

They told customs officials at Alexandria that they lost their bearings and were forced to land when the plane ran short of fuel.

Over 316,000 Tommies Now In France Stanley Announces

LONDON, March 12 (CP)—Oliver Stanley, secretary for war, today declared it is "improper and undesirable to attempt to forecast what task the British army might be called upon to fulfil in the future."

Presenting the estimates for his department, the total of which was kept secret, Mr. Stanley told the house of commons "we have a great army in the process of formation and we hope, and indeed we are duty bound, progressively to take a bigger and bigger part of the burden of the war on land from the shoulders of ou rallies the French, who in the early days of the war had to bear such a very great part of this burden."

Mr Stanley's statement followed upon disclosure by official sources that several communications had been sent to Finland offering allied aid on an enlarged scale.

The war minister said British troops in France today are approximately double the number there in October and "every day sees an increase."

Last October Leslie Hore-Belisha, then war secretary, said Britain had 158,000 men in France. Mr. Stanley's statement would mean there are about 316,000 British troops on the continent now.

Mr. Stanley said the decision to equip an army on the present scale for continental warfare was taken only a year ago and preparation of the army had been much shorter than other aspects of national defence.

Fight For Civilization

WASHINGTON, March 12.—(AP)—Anglo-French representatives here to iron out difficulties arising from the Allied blockade said today their their nations cannot afford to hamper the efficacy of the contraband control.

The experts, Frank Ashton-Gwatkin of London and Charles Rist of Paris, added that they hoped to smooth away some of the points which have created friction with the United States.

"We believe we are fighting not only for our own lives," they said in a statement issued at a press conference, "but for the whole future of western civilization. We cannot afford to take risks."

While saying that the contraband control is an important factor which must be maintained as strictly as possible, the statement added that "at the same time, we have no desire to cause unnecessary inconvenience and loss to neutrals.

Finns Toss Reds Back On All Fronts Except About Viipuri

HELSINKI, March 12.—(AP)—Finland today disclosed that the Red army, pressing along Viipuri Bay, was continuing its advances despite peace negotiations in progress in Moscow.

Russia kept up unrelenting pressure on the northwest shore of Viipuri Bay, aiming at encirclement of the city of Viipuri, and the Finnish high command said "in some places" the Russians "succeeded in advancing a little."

Soviet attacks were repulsed everywhere else except in the direction of Pali, east of Viipuri, the high command communique said, recounting successes on the ice-coated lakes and rivers of the isthmus front south of Viipuri.

Fifteen Russian planes were said to have been shot down during yesterday's fighting, the period covered by the communique.

The army's announcement of some Soviet gains injected some feeling of reality into a capital filled with rumors and conjectures about the peace negotiations now under way in Moscow. Virtually no information concerning the parleys has leaked out in Helsinki but speculation has been intense.

The army reported new scouting and bombing flights over Russian troop, artillery and tank columns, and said Russian air activity was "very lively all day."

Two persons were killed during Russian air raids on Rukimaki Lahti, Kouvola and St. Micher.

The communique indicated fighting still was in progress on the Pali sector east of Viipuri.

Nazi Pursuits Skim Over Allied Lines

PARIS, Mar. 12 — (CP-Havas).—Speedy German pursuit planes enlivened an otherwise dull day at the Front yesterday by skimming low above the heads of British and French troops holding down the Maginot Line.

Puzzled French officers who studied the novel tactics of the German planes said they may have fired a few machine-gun bursts at Allied infantrymen, but did not attempt systematic strafing.

The planes were not of the "assault" type generally used for attacking troops on the ground, but were "pursuit" planes, which specialize in air combat and usually stay at high altitudes.

The best guess Allied air experts could make was that the German fliers were tyros out for training flights under actual war conditions.

More serious flights were carried out by reconnaissance planes of both sides, both over and far behind the lines. The Germans, however, used few planes for these flights and those only over Alsace and Northern France.

The Royal Air Force continued its regular daily flights over enemy air and naval bases in North-west Germany, Heligoland, and the Frisian Islands.

New Voters' Lists Windfall For Canvassers

OTTAWA, March 12—(CP).—Bill collectors, door-to-door canvassers and advertising agencies eager for new mailing lists have profited from a provision of the new election act under which voters' lists are mailed to electors, revising authorities said today.

The lists, it was said, formed the most up-to-date and detailed "city directors" available and as such, have been eagerly sought after as handy sources of community information.

Election authorities said these voters' lists were considered public property and there was nothing illegal in collection agencies, salesmen and even individuals seeking missing persons from obtaining the lists from printers or persons who received them in the mail.

Revising officers in all urban constituencies will conclude revision of the voters' lists tomorrow at 10 p.m. local time. The Election Act pro-

Federal Election Quiet Issue At Aldershot

ALDERSHOT, England, March 12 (CP Cable) — While the First Canadian Division has completed arrangements for handling the vote [illegible] eral parliamentary election, there is a singular lack of campaign smoke over the military training area.

A check of regimental headquarters and the barrack rooms today failed to turn up a single piece of campaign literature. However, such material still has time to reach the troops, for they can mark their ballots any time between March 14 and March 23.

The list of nominations, completed in Canada yesterday, was cabled to London where it will be printed and distributed to the various units to be posted for the guidance of voters. Ballots will carry no names.

Some of the troops have been able to get a nodding acquaintance with the election battle through the newspapers arriving from home.

Dispatch Cabinet Chieftains Show Sweden Its Folly, Is Plea Of British Press

LONDON, March 12—(CP). —The Daily Mail today suggested that "important members" of the British Government be sent to Stockholm in an effort to change Sweden's attitude toward the question of aiding Finland.

In an editorial entitled "Sweden's Folly,' the newspaper said:

"In this strange period of exciting diplomacy and unexciting war nothing is stranger than the actions of Sweden.

"The attitude of Stockholm is in marked contrast to the valor of Helsinki. To deny aid to the Finns and at the same time to urge on them a dishonorable peace are acts of suicidal folly.

"Sweden must know that if Russia got a firm grip on Finland, her own independence would not be worth a debased ruble. She knows too that if she faced up to her responsibilities she would have Allied backing.

"Mr. Chamberlain says that if Finland asks for their help, Britain and France would use 'all available resources at their disposal.' The only way to get adequate direct assistance to Finland with sufficient speed is through Sweden. And that way is barred by the Swedish government. If Finland calls for aid, must we refuse because Sweden refuses? Are the Allies content to allow the diplomatic initiative to remain in the hands of Germany?"

Toronto, March 12 (CP)

PLANS for a $10,000 memorial at Port Perry, Ont., to Daniel David Palmer, founder of the chiropractic system, were discussed yesterday at the convention of the Association of Chiropractors and Drugless Therapists of Ontario.

Dr. J. Marshall Anderson, Galt, gave a memorial address. He said Palmer was born on a farm at Port Perry and that two of his fellow-pupils at school still live there. Early in life Palmer went to Davenport, Iowa, and there practiced drugless therapy.

Seeks Blockade

LONDON, Mar. 12 — (CP). — Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, in the House of Commons today urged Great Britain to "take some very definite action" to prevent exports from the United States reaching Germany through Vladivostok, Soviet Russia's Far Eastern seaport.

Ronald Cross, Minister of Economic Warfare, said he would be glad to hear any suggestions. Mr. Mander replied he would be "very glad" to offer some.

Mr. Cross said more than 1,100,000 tons of contraband had been seized by the Allies thus far.

Lads Pay Cent Interest On Nickel Loans To Play Pinball—Owners Pay $100 Fine

LONDON, Ont., March 12—(CP) —Start of a new police drive against pinball games was indicated in city court today when two operators were fined $100 each with alternative three months in jail. They were Charles Geanos, operator of a dairy bar, and Alfred Cotterell, grovery store propriteor.

Geanos pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a gambling establishment, while Cotterell denied the charge, and was convicted after a brief trial.

In both cases, police acted on complaints from parents that their young sons were spending too much money on pinball games.

In Cotterell's case, Donald Burch 17, testified he ran a charge account at the store to get nickels to play the pin-ball game, and that on one occasion he was paid

672 Candidates Named—240 Liberal, 213 Tory

(By the Canadian Press.)

The battle pit of Canada's general election was crowded today with 672 candidates, the majority of them supporters of either of the two major parties aspiring to conduct the Canadian war effort.

In 243 constituencies, a new membership to the House of Commons will be elected March 26 by the votes of between 70,000 and 90,000 soldiers in Canada and England, and between 4,500,000 and 6,000,000 civilians.

When nominations closed across the country yesterday, the stake of government lay between the Liberal Party led by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the National Government supporters of Hon. R. J. Manion. No other group nominated enough candidates to obtain a majority in the next House.

The Liberals nominated 240 candidates and the National Government party 213 for the 245 seats. Two members will be elected in the

James S. Bowhey, 48, Canadian National trainman, Elgin street, Lindsay, died in St. Joseph's Hospital here at 10.45 o'clock Monday night, three and one-quarter hours after he had fallen from the top of a freight car near the intersection of Charlotte and Bethune streets and received terrible injuries.

Bowhey, making his first run on that particular freight train had been walking along the top of the cars as the train pulled into the station, and in some manner lost his footing and fell between two cars. Evidently he was dragged some distance because he was found at the switch close to Charlotte street while one of his boots was picked up sixty feet further north, police report.

LINDSAY, Ont., March 12—(CP) —John R. Hand of Peterborough arrived here yesterday just seven minutes too late to file his nomination papers for the March 26 federal election. He said he had been delayed by trouble with his automobile.

Mr. Hand, former publisher of the Fenelon Falls Gazette, was the recent choice of a co-operative Commonwealth Federation nominating convention to contest Victoria constituency on behalf of the party.

Those who filed nomination papers with Returning Officer A. J. Campbell before the two o'clock deadline were Bruce McNevin, Liberal, who sat in the past parliament, and C. D. H. McAlpine, Nationalist Government candidate.

156 Fliers Left Camp In Order Mixup Says O.C. Denying Lack Of Training

ST. THOMAS, Ont., March 12 (CP)—About 156 airmen left the Royal Canadian Air Force training centre near here on Feb. 10 under the impression they were pursuing their usual Saturday afternoon routine and had a right to leave, Wing Commander Reginald Collis, officer commanding the establishment, said today.

The airmen were unaware of a change in orders consequent on the establishment of a new two-shift training schedule which provided classes for them that afternoon, Collis said in a statement to a press conference.

Commissioner William H. Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police who yesterday conducted a civil inquiry into the alleged "walkout" of the airmen will report to Attorney-General Conant that he believes "between 200 and 300" airmen "walked out." The commissioner issued a finding to that effect last night.

Text of the statement made by Commander Collis today follows:

"Concerning the alleged 'violent disturbance' at this unit on Saturday, February 10, 1940.

"Prior to February 5, the program of training provided one training period daily, and classes terminated at noon Saturday, the afternoon being devoted to recreation and leave.

"On Monday, February 5, airmen under training were divided into two groups, and the daily routine was changed to provide two training periods daily for six days a week, Monday to Saturday inclusive.

"On Friday, February 9, a routine order for the following day was posted, indicating that training would terminate at noon on Saturday, February 10. As this was at variance with the routine order published on February 5, it was can-

Press Vital Link In Fight For Liberty With Civilization In Major Crisis

LONDON, March 12.—(CP). — Honoring the 30th annual meeting of the Empire Press Union, the Times said editorially to-day that the British Empire is more tightly bound together by the ideas disseminated in Empire newspapers than by legal constraints.

At is annual general meeting today, the Times said, "the Empire Press Union celebrates its 30th anniversary. That is the conventional length of a human generation, although it is pleasant to observe that the list of the council still contains the names of several eminent journalists, including J. L. Garvin and Sir Evelyn Wrench, who were associated with the Union from its beginning, or even earlier, for its considerable ante-natal history.

"Sir Harry Brittain, the founder, now only an honorary life member, has not ceased to take an active part in the union's affairs since he, while enjoying the hospitality of the Dominion of Canada, first conceived the idea of bringing together in London a conference representing the newspapers of the whole Empire.

"Beginning in last year of King Edward VII, the Indian summer of the long Victorian peace, these consultations of journalists have always been held under lowering or stormy skies.

"Lord Roseberry, speaking at the White City banquet said there was a 'hush in Europe, a hush in which one might almost hear a leaf fall to the ground. 'There has never in the history of civilization been so threatening and overpowering a preparation for war.'

"He therefore appealed to the assembled editors and writers to use their influence to bring home to the citizens of the Dominions and Colonies a sense of personal responsibility for defence of the com-

Ontario Action Overshadows Dominion Drive

(By the Canadian Press.)

Spectacular political developments in Ontario almost overshadowed the Dominion election campaign itself to-day, with the vote exactly two weeks away.

Federal party chiefs sought to gauge the potential effect on the campaign of Provincial Nixon's resignation from the Hepburn cabinet in protest against the Premier's criticism of the Federal Government's war effort.

They also kept a weather eye on the special meeting of the Ontario cabinet in Toronto, where it is expected the attitude of the other ministers will be discussed.

Official nominations yesterday placed 672 candidates in the fight for 245 seats, and as the electoral battle narrows down, Prime Minister King addresses a meeting in Montreal tonight, and Conservative Leader Manion speaks at Cornwall, Ont.

Must Finance Own Show

Finance Minister Ralston said in Hamilton: "We have a long hard war ahead; let nothing cramp our best effort." Canadians must go "as far as our capacity will permit" in financing the war effort.

Every dollar of the amount required to finance the Canadian war effort must be raised in the Dominion, and there can be no borrowing from Great Britain, Mr. Ralston said.

"We in Canada have got to raise money and we have got to keep on raising it. Some might ask how far we should go. As a member of the Government, I say we must go as far as our capacity will permit. I am not forgetting that we have a long and hard war ahead. Let nothing cramp our best effort. Success will come to us."

After receiving a great welcome in the Liberal stronghold of Quebec City, Dr. Manion reiterated his opposition to conscription and charged again that a number of Liberal Ministers from Quebec broke promises to the province not to remain in a government permitting Canada to participate in an external war.

Justice Minister Lapointe and the Prime Minister "and their crowd do not care what is good for Quebec as long as they obtain political help down here," he said.

Ottawa has been informed by the British Government that the Canadian naval service is doing as efficient patrol and convoy work as any naval unit in the British Empire, Defence Minister Rogers said at Kingston.

Rogers Opposes Kidd.

The Minister, who represented Kingston riding in the last parliament, was nominated at the joint meeting to contest the seat again. He will be opposed by T. A. Kidd, former Speaker of the Ontario Legislature, who was nominated as National Government candidate.

He said Dr. Manion, Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader, and Premier Hepburn had endeavored to create distrust across the Dominion.

"Dr. Manion has been giving answers without obtaining facts that could have been obtained by writing a letter."

Colonel Kidd charged that no greater act of political cowardice had ever been known in the field of political history than was shown by Prime Minister Mackenzie King when he "scuttled" Parliament.

"During the last months of war when the people and all the parties had pledged to them their support, they had so misused that confidence, they (Liberal Government) could not face them. The Government was stampeded. They did not want the truth to come out; they were aware that if they dissolved the House all these records would be shut up.

"No country except Germany and Russia had used its people like this. Conscription should not be an issue in this election, as it was an issue on which all parties agreed."

In more than 3,000 war contracts let by the Dominion Government, the recommendations of the War Supply Board have not been repudiated or ignored once, Trade Minister Euler said at Owen Sound.

"I maintain the present administration has nothing to conceal. It is not true that a well-oiled machine operating noiselessly without requiring attention or bother is operating at its highest efficiency? That is true with the King Government. It has not been making noisy or spectacular moves, but has been carrying on in an efficient and smooth-working fashion."

celled, but unfortunately was placed on the notice boards, before circulation could be stopped.

"The consequence of the change of orders wa sthat 156 airmen were absent from classes. When this situation was realized, service personnel was detailed to proceed to St. Thomas to notify the airmen concerned and available, to return to the school for classes. These airmen returned to their station.

"Subsequently airmen of the unit, who had made application and were granted week-end leave or late passes proceeded out of camp in the normal way. This number included personnel who had returned to the unit Saturday afternoon. No special or blanket leave was granted to these airmen and all airmen left the camp in an orderly and airmanlike manner.

No Disciplinary Action.

"After investigating the whole incident, it was considered that the men concerned acted in good faith. No disciplinary action was taken. In addition to the airmen referred to above, it is estimated that there were probably 200 airmen in St. Thomas during the mid-day pass period (11.00 a.m. to 2.30 p.m.).

As this day was the first Saturday under the new routine, it is believed that the large number of airmen present in St Thomas gave rise to rumors of an adverse nature."

Asked about airmen's complaints of shortage of uniforms, Commander Collis said that to the best of his knowledge there was no shortage of uniforms. There may have been diffculty about sizes, since rectified, and a shortage of certain items.

There was no lack of training for the men, Commander Collis said. He asked if the men were required to polish floors. He said that in a self-contained unit there must be a proportion of the men employed on general duties, including keeping the place clean. Approximately 50 people were hired a week before Feb. 10 for cleaning duties and they had since come to work.

Commander Collis said Aircraftsman J. A. Telfer, who to the Stringer inquiry complained of lack of training, had not been sent to St. Thomas for training. He was awaiting position as an aero engine mechanic.

"There is no lack of training for people sent here for training," he said. A man might wait posting. With a big expansion and heavy enlistment, it was impossible to place every man in his proper spot overnight. Possibly five per cent of the men at the station were waiting posting.

These have been supplemented by letters discussing the campaign. But so far as can be learned they have been of a private nature and have not been sent out in circular form by any of the candidates.

Reports that the political parties might send speakers to England to campaign among the troops outside the military area and after training hours have not materialized to date. (The major parties in Canada have said no speakers would be sent overseas. Any campaigning was left to literature, newspapers and letters from home.)

Nominations Cabled Over

LONDON, March 12 (CP Cable)—A full list of nominations for the Canadian election has arrived in London by cable and is being printed today, according to an announcement by Colonel J. T. C. Thompson, special returning officer for taking the vote of the Canadian troops stationed in Great Britain.

The printed lists will be distributed by taxicab and posted up in every ballot-issuing station in the Canadian Active Service Force quarters at Aldershot on Wednesday. It is up to the voters themselves to mail their ballots to Colonel Thompson at Canada House in London. Counting will begin March 26.

Not Worth It

HORNELL, N.Y., Mar. 12—(AP).—A young couple approached City Clerk Jay I. Nesbit, proferred $1.25 for a marriage licence. Informed the fee was $1.65, Nesbit said the youth pocketed the $1.25, remarking: "That's too high. I guess we'll wait a while."

Ribbentrop Told Duce On Fence Long As Possible

ROME, March 12.—(AP)—Having given Premier Mussolini an outline of Adolf Hitler's intensions, Germany's Foreign Minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, is returning to Berlin with word that Italy will stay out of war as long as Mussolini considers it advantageous, informed sources said today.

Noting reports that Von Ribbentrop's two days of conferences here might have been to "question and persuade Italy and its chief," Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano's newspaper, declared:

"Neither Italy nor Il Duce is influenceable. When Il Duce thinks of changing the attitude assumed last September, he will do it on the basis of absolutely his own evaluation of events."

Von Ribbentrop, after his week-end talks here with Mussolini and Pope Pius XII, was seen off for home last night by Ciano and other Fascist leaders.

His path crossed that of Finland's former President Pehr Evind Svinhufvud, bound for Rome, presumably to see Il Duce after a visit in Berlin which was linked with the drive to settle the Russian-Finnish war.

The Finnish Question

Von Ribbentrop's conferences with Italian officials were described officially as an "examination of the international situation," but authoritative Italians said the German Foreign Minister's forecast aim was to inform himself of Premier Mussolini's views on the possibility of Russian-Finnish peace.

Italians held it possible that should peace fall in the northern war, Britain and France might send troops to aid Finland, with a new war front resulting from opposition of both Germany and Russia.

Von Ribbentrop left in Rome a staff of German economic experts headed by Dr. Karl Clodius, but both German and Italian sources said no new agreements between the two countries were in prospect. Clodius' group merely will remain a few days to discuss operation of the commercial accord signed about three weeks ago to regulate exchanges between Germany and Italy this year.

What Von Ribbentrop discussed with Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Ciano yesterday and Sunday remained secret, although Italians stressed that the conversations were "cordial." Also secret were the nature of Von Ribbentrop's audience with Pope Pius yesterday at Von Ribbentrop's request.

There was considerable speculation that the Vatican's views toward the Nazi regime and the possibility of sending a Vatican investigator to German-held Polish territory were discussed.

"That Englishmen and Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders, South Africans and Colonials, though under no kind of constraint, continue to think alike about fundamental principles for which men may be asked to lay down their lives is not due to a unit of government which no longer exists, but rather to the freedom with which ideas and information circulate through the length and breadth of the Empire.

Wants Blockade Of Vladivostok

LONDON, March 12—(CP).—Subscribers eager to obtain a share in Great Britain's £300,000,000 "on to victory" loan caused a "run" on the Bank of England early today.

From 8.30 a.m., when the bank's clerks already were busy at their desks, there was a long stream of stockbrokers' clerks and others waiting to hand in applications. The lists for the three per cent. bonds maturing in 15 to 19 years opened today and will close tomorrow.

On the third floor of the bank a small army of workers dealt with stacks of letters piled high on green baize tables. Advance orders had assured the success of the loan last night, it was believed.

When announcing the loan a week ago today the Government said that "the amounts which the Government will need to borrow during the next 12 months will of course be considerably greater than that figure."

A New Member?

REGINA, March 12.—(CP)—Indication a new member will be taken into the Saskatchewan government by Premier W. J. Patterson is given in the estimates, under review by the Legislature yesterday in committee of supply, which provide for nine cabinet minister. At present there are only eight members of the cabinet.

Over 200 Airmen In Walkout Stringer Finds

ST. THOMAS, Ont., March 12 (CP) — Commissioner William H. Stringer of the Ontario provincial police will report to Attorney-general Gordon Conant that he believes "between 200 and 300" airmen of the Royal Canadian Air Force training school here walked out Feb. 10.

The commissioner issued a finding to that effect last night after an all-day investigation into charges of a "walkout" and "violent disturbance" at the school. Premier Mitchell Hepburn made the charges and ordered the probe.

Today the investigation entered a

Winnipeg Boxer Kehler Guilty

NEW YORK, March 12 (CP) — Ernest Kehler, denounced by a judge whose voice broke with anger as "just a cheap bum," faced today a possible penitentiary sentence of 20 years for the fatal bludgeoning of Dr. Walter R. Engelberg, German consular attache, last Dec. 5.

The 24-year-old Winnipeg boxer, who fought under the name of Ernie Haas, was convicted late last night of first degree manslaughter, a charge reduced from one of murder. A jury which heard counsel for Kehler contend he beat Dr. Engelberg to death after the latter made indecent advances in his Brooklyn home reached its verdict in six hours and 14 minutes.

County Judge Peter J. Brancato commended the verdict. He told the jury: "I am very, very happy to see that you have convicted this man. On the evidence presented, your verdict is absolutely fair. The defendant is a shrewd, clever individual. He is just a cheap bum. This man is lucky he was not convicted of a higher degree."

Bride Weeps

It was midnight when the jurors filed into a courtroom emptied of spectators. Outside in the corridor Kehler's bride, soon to be a mother herself, wept with her mother, Mrs. O. A. Letts of Ottawa. Before the verdict was reached Mrs. Kehler said: "If they keep my Ernie in jail he will die soon."

Standing before the court before being returned to his cell for sentencing later, Kehler refused to answer questions as to his age and place of birth. He gave his occupation as a coal miner.

Defence Counsel Leo Healey, who in his address to the jury said that "When a beast attacks you, you are justified in killing him," said no new trial would be sought.

Judge Brancato refused to permit him to reserve a motion to set aside the verdict.

Killer Escapes Comes To, Yields

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., March 12.—(AP)—A young married man accused of sex killing of a 11-year-old farm girl broke jail here last night, in keeping with his own prediction, but less than 4½ hours later surrendered, saying "I've just come to myself."

Thomas Allen Boys, 28, of Attica, Ind., awaiting trial April 15 on a first-degree murder charge in the death of Elizabeth Debruicker, told the Montgomery county jailer Sunday, "tomorrow will be my last day in jail." The keeper thought he was joking."

Late yesterday Harry Anderson, 60-year-old day jailer, was taking Boys back to his second-floor cell from the basement, where the prisoner had bathed.

Suddenly, he said, Boys kicked him in a groin, beat him with a broomstick he had snatched up somewhere and, trampling him, ran downstairs and out the front door. The spring lock had failed to catch.

Soon after nine o'clock, Boys knocked at the door of Louis Stanford, once assistant postmaster, and said: "Will you please call the police? I've just come to myself."

Up In The Mow

KOKOMO, Ind., March 12.—(AP)—Farmer Charles Obermeyer reported disappearance of his Guernsey cow. Deputy Sheriff Glen Newby searched high and low—and finally found the cow in Obermeyer's haymow. The only way he could figure it out, the cow had climbed to the mow on bales of straw piled like stairstaps.

Helsinki Envoys Lack Power For Final Deal

HELSINKI, March 12 (CP Havas) —An authoritative Finnish source said that a further meeting was scheduled to be held in Moscow today between Helsinki's delegation and Soviet government figures.

No member of the Finnish delegation, lead by Premier Risto Ryti, has yet left the Soviet capital, it was said.

According to this source, no definite decision has yet been reached one way or the other.

It was emphasized that the Finnish delegation, although including the premier, a representative of commander-in-chief Baron Karl Mannerheim and a representative of the Finnish foreign ministry, was not vested with plenary powers permitting conclusion of an agreement in the name of the Finnish government.

(Latest dispatches from Stockholm held that Monday's optimism over the prospect of peace had been exaggerated.)

Political circles had reported last night that the Finnish delegation, which includes former Premier Juho Paasikivi, Gen. Rudolf Walden and former foreign minister Vaino Voionmaa, might be recalled to receive new instructions.

Reliable quarters said last night that the two sides were not yet in agreement, but that a basis for discussion had been reached. Authoritative reports said the scales were evenly balanced between peace and war.

Offer Too Late?

Keen interest was aroused here by British Prime Minister Chamberlain's uncondition offer of Allied assistance to Finland, if such resistance was requested.

While it was suggested that this offer of aid might be too late, it was admitted that it may have some bearing on the Moscow negotiations. Finnish spokesmen said that after a careful study of the help which could be expected from abroad, the government had refrained from any immediate appeal for support from the western democracies.

The Agrarian newspaper Ilkka, published at Vaasa, Finland, said editorially:

"If peace proposals at this stage mean submission by Finland and slicing up her territory, then nothing else can come into question except continuation of the fight . . . The plain fact of the matter is that we do not want to stretch out the present situation a day longer than absolutely necessary.

"The near future will show to what extent there is a real will to peace on the part of our enemy or to what extent it is only a feeler."

The newspaper Kaleva of Oulu said:

"In Finland there can be discerned not the least desire to submit even to earlier demands of the Soviets, still less to those more severe than before, reportedly proposed by Moscow. We will not submit to demands which can be interpreted as submission to dictation by the aggressor against our land."

Popular interest in the negotiations was at a tremendous pitch, with practically nothing else discussed on the streets or in shops and restaurants.

Endless rumors without confirmation intensified public nervousness with the feeling that Finland stood facing a tremendous decision.

No Lull In Fighting

There has been no lull in fighting on the Mannerheim Line and no let-up in Russian aerial operations. A Finnish communique said several towns and villages outside the war zone being bombed yesterday and at least two civilians killed.

(The Russian communique today said Russian planes had attacked "military objective" and shot down five Finnish planes. It also claimed a second penetration of Viipuri with occupation of northern and eastern parts of that Gulf of Finland port which in recent days has been defended as the western strong point of the Karelian Isthmus, or Mannerheim, defence lines.

(According to the Red Army, the operation "closed a ring around Viipuri." Previously the Russians had reported capture of positions on four sides of the city.)

Press Tour

St. Thomas, March 12 (CP)

AIR FORCE officers escorted a group of newspapermen through miles of corridors at the Royal Canadian Air Force technical Training School here today. It was the final act in the public airing of the incident of Feb. 10, described as a "walkout" by Commissioner William Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police in his official report following an investigation yesterday.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn whose controversy with Defence Minister Rogers over the alleged walkout led to the inquiry was invited to inspect the school but declined.

Airmen in training to serve as tradesmen and mechanics in the operation of the British Commonwealth air training plan were at work in shops, some learning elementary carpentry, metal work, fabric work, and the rigging and fitting of aircraft.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 12 — (CP). — Rumors of a peace treaty between Russia and Finland took the props out of the Winnipeg Wheat Market in the final hour today, after prices had remained fairly level the first part of the session.

A lower trend in other world wheat exchanges depressed the market from the start but moderate general buying held values in a narrow range around previous closing levels. At the close wheat futures quotations were ¾ to ⅞ lower, May at 88⅜, July 89¾ and October 91 cents.

Chicago was nearly a cent down, entering the final hour. Buenos Aires was ½ to ⅝ cent lower at midday.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Stores or any druggist a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost. —(Advt.)

Varied Program Presented At Roseneath

ROSENEATH, March 12—(ENS)—An enjoyable social affair was held on Thursday afternoon, when members of the local branch of the Women's Institute were at home, to many invited guests.

The guests were entertained at progressive euchre and progressive crokinole. Seventeen tables of euchre and two tables of crokinole were in play and a number of others enjoyed a social time.

Mrs. Earl Thackeray won the prize at euchre with a score of 60, and Mrs. L. Turner won the crokinole prize. Lucky chair prizes were won by Mrs. C. Sandercock and Mrs. J. H. Hallett. The prize-winners each made a happy little speech of thanks on acceptance of the prizes.

Preceding the social period there was a brief business session presided over by the president, Mrs. B. Thackeray, who welcomed the guests following the opening exercises.

It was decided to hold two card parties; one on the afternoon of March 21 for ladies, and the second on the evening of March 29 for ladies and gentlemen. Committees in charge are: Afternoon party, Mrs. A. Sherwin, Mrs. Billie Halstead and Miss Geraldine Hugh; Evening party, the President, and Mrs. C. Sandercock and Misses Valda Webb and Golda Thackeray.

To Sew for Soldiers

The secretary was instructed to write the Red Cross Society branch at Cobourg for information regarding obtaining materials for sewing and knitting for the soldiers.

A letter of acceptance with thanks from the Cobourg branch for the donation of $25 from the Institute was read by the secretary.

The financial statement for the month showed receipts of $5.13.

Following the game period, refreshments were served, and a short program was presented. Joan Grigg recited; Miss Doreen Nichol played a piano solo; and Miss Golda Thackeray sang. Community singing was enjoyed, also. During the afternoon, Mrs. B. Thackeray and Miss Doreen Nichol played several piano selections.

The committee in charge of the afternoon's entertainment was Mrs. Harold Taylor, Mrs. L. Tucker and Mrs. George Mouncey as mistress of ceremonies.

A vote of thanks on behalf of the guests was moved by Mrs. D. Brisbin and Miss Hildred Taylor.

Close to eighty were in attendance.

Millbrook YPU Holds Supper And Party

MILLBROOK, Mar. 11—(ENS).—The Young People's Union of St. Andrew's Church sponsored an enjoyable and successful pot-luck supper in the Sunday School auditorium on Friday, over fifty guests sitting down at 6.30 p.m. to well-laden tables, the color scheme introducing a St. Patrick's Day atmosphere.

The president, B. B. Dawson, acted as toastmaster, and after The King had been duly honored, a singsong was led by Ken Kidd, with Phyllis Kidd at the piano. Much laughter greeted some impromptu presentations, including a mysterious parcel to Mr. Dawson, which turned out to be a pile of cookies; and to Leslie Unitt, his gift being a toy flute, on which he later put on apropriate accompaniment to the song, "Macnamara's Band."

Two mighty hunters, according to their own story, Earl Edworthy and Gordon Might, were presented with chocolate rabbits, and a magician's stunt, with three hats on a table and a bit of cake under each, was carried through by the leader and Earl Edworthy.

For the contest in eating an apple while hands were held behind the back, and each knelt before the red-cheeked fruit, Henry Gray, Teddy Sisco and Evans Hatherly took part, the first-named having the most of his eaten when the time limit was called. A novel method of clearing the tables, so the floor would be available for the recreation stunts, was to ask each one to carry to the kitchen the china and silver used for the supper, while all sang merrily, "Pass up the Dishes where you are."

Joe Blair played guitar selections while the tables were folded up and put away, and the recreation and singing games were followed with a brief worship period, Rev. A. L. Sisco closing with the benediction, while all formed a "friendship circle" round the room.

THIS LAXATIVE WORKS WHERE TROUBLE LIES!

When you're constipated, draggy, headachy, pass-up doses like calomel, salts and oils which affect other parts of the bowels first, and take CHOCOLATE FLAVOR CASCARETS instead. They taste like fine milk chocolate—and work in the big bowel where waste usually jams—cleansing it without upsetting the other 25 feet of bowel tract! CHOCOLATE FLAVOR CASCARETS do this because they contain cascara, said to give "nearest to natural action" of any cathartic, which cleanses the big bowel in 10 to 12 hours. Each foil-wrapped tablet an effective dose. Twelve tablets, only 25c; a bargain buy in relief! For free postpaid sample write "Cascarets", Dept. C-2, Windsor, Ont. (Advt.)

R.C.A.F. Plane Crashed In U. S. Territory

A United States Customs officer is shown guarding the wreckage of the Lysander plane which crashed on the American side of the border near Alexandria Bay, N.Y. Piloted by Pilot Officer A. E. Cannon and Leading Aircraftsman J. Duguid of Winnipeg, the R.C.A.F. plane was forced down when its fuel supply became exhausted. United States officials are pondering the question as to whether or not to intern the fliers, neither of whom were injured by the forced landing, which badly damaged the plane. This picture was transmitted by phonephoto and passed by the Canadian censor.

Scouters' Conference at Hamilton

The annual Provincial Scouters' conference will be held on the 29th and 30th of this month in Hamilton, and it is urged that every scouter possible will take this in. Why not phone me and let me know at 3067. Also any officer having a car so that we can arrange for groups to go down and reduce the travelling costs for all. Get ready now.

Paper Collection

The All Saints' Troop are holding a paper collection with the hopes of raising a substantial sum of money for troop purposes and would appreciate a call from friends all over the city who have papers they would like taken out of their way. Just phone 6161 and you will be taken care of. Help the troop attain their objective.

The troop is going through a real revival since the scouter has been relieved from work on meeting nights, thanks to the co-operation of his department at the C.G.E.

Ralph Pollock and Bob Siddall, who recently came to the troop from the pack through a going-up ceremony, has been attached to the Bulldog patrol, under Gord Blackwell, P.L.

Murray Street

The Cubs.—Former Assistant Cubmaster Phil Turner visited the pack this week and assisted in the work. The Red Wolves led the inter-six competition with 16 points.

Baloo McNabb led in Foot Wrestling; Bagheera Turner supervising Snatch the Kerchief; hopping instruction followed for the pack. Akela took Tenderpad instruction; Baloo, Time Telling; Bagheera, Knot tying.

Songs for the coming cub concert were practiced, the cubcraft show discussed. The Green Wolves with 107 points won the six competition for February, and Sixer Jack Sutcliffe received the pennant. Sixer Gary Zavitz has passed all tests for his first star. Good hunting, Red Fang.

The Troop.—Murray Street troop got under way in patrol work, the boys choosing their patrol leaders and seconds. Hugh Graham is P.L. with Bob Frieze assisting, in charge of the Buffalos. The Beavers are under P.L. Bill Scott, with Ray Sutcliffe assisting. The third patrol has not yet found a name but will be under Bill Peltz assisted by Wally Graham. Hugh Graham was appointed treasurer, and Bill Scott, scribe.

At St. Luke's.

A good turnout was on parade Friday, following flag break, the Buffalos and Wolves studied first aid; the Beavers, signalling, knot tying relay and Crows and Cranes were the games played.

"Kim's Game" was passed by Harold Wilshow and Doug Miller. Plans for a hike on Saturday were discussed.

At St. James'

The Cubs.—Marvin Boyter received his first star at the last meeting at which Mr. and Mrs. Allen were visitors. Mr. Allen inspected the pack with Akela. Some of the second star cubs are training for proficiency badge work.

The Scouts. — Twenty-one boys were present in the troop. Various instructions followed. The following have passed tests in knotting, J. Curtis and K. Gynane; Signs, salute and staff, K. Hopkins; Cooking, A. Roolle and E. Rutherford; the last named also passing Firelighting.

Mark Street.

The Pack.—Congratulations on the first anniversary to Mark Street. Thirty cubs were at this meeting. Assistant Commissioner L. A. Grant presented Akela Darcy Windsor with his Akela certificate.

Akela Frank Pammett of St. John's, whose fine assistance a year ago helped the pack get started, was assisted by Baloo Ruth Murray, in the investiture ceremony, when Bobby Gandy, Neil Thompson, Ken Johnson and Buddy Wright were joined to the great brother of scouts. The mothers of the new tenderpads were present, and were pleasingly surprised at the ceremony.

A birthday party then followed, Baloo having a large cake with one candle in the centre of the room, each sixer having a small cake with candle, lit his candle from the one Baloo held and, followed by his chums, the sixers formed in wheel spoke fashion, radiating from Baloo. All lights were lowered and God's blessing asked for the pack. Following this the sixers waited on guests and cubs with hot chocolate, cake and candy.

Last week the pack visited the Sacred Heart pack.

St. John's

The Pack.—Many cubs were in the jungle on Friday and took part in the game of Bull in the Ring," led by Kim, and Sock Fight under Bagheera's supervision.

The Crew.—Attendance was 100 per cent at the crew meeting and several items of interest were discussed. The skipper spoke on rover scouting. R.M. Ron Gynane is speaker for this week.

Father and Son Banquet at St. Andrew's

A splendid gathering of scouts, cubs and fathers participated in the third annual banquet in St. Andrew's Sunday school on Thursday.

Field Secretary Edgar Jones of Toronto was guest speaker, and had a very potent message for all. Mr. Jones challenged the boys to stand up to their promises in every walk of life, warning them that temptations will come, but by carrying out the scout laws all these difficulties can be conquered.

Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, croup chaplain, said grace. Scout Gerald Davis proposed the toast to the King. S. Northrop was pianist; Skipper Groombridge leading the sing song. Scout Campbell Beaton proposed the toast to the chief scout. Mr. Charles Coleman, song; Cub Douglas Head and Cub James Airth, piano solos; Cub Robin Waite, violin solo; Cub Dick Crowe, cornet solo. Dr. Honey gave a reading that was well received. District Commissioner J. T. Hornsby introduced the speaker. The Beaver patrol put on a first-aid display in real fashion.

The skit, "Ten Little Wolf Cubs," was carried out by Cubs D. Johnson, K. Dinsdale, J. Green, D. MacDonald, G. Jopling, B. Green, T. Wolfe, R. Florence, D. Crawford, and H. Grafisteen.

A vivid display of Our Flag, starting from the Flag of St. George; then the Flag of England and Scotland, finally the Union Flag of the Empire was put on by Cubs Skipper Hicks, Alex Archibald and Bruce Braund. Singing of the King brought to a close a splendid evening.

St. John's Mothers' Auxiliary.

The group Mothers' Auxiliary at St. John's (1st Peterborough) group will meet this Friday, March 15, at 3 p.m. The meeting has been brought forward one week owing to Hnly Week.

Strange Rooster In French Barn

Since the airplane began to play such an important role as the eyes of an army in war, artillerymen are obliged to take more pains in concealing their weapons. This howitzer of the British Royal Artillery is cleverly hidden in a barn that once was the home of French poultry. The side of the barn has been removed.

Britain Bolsters Currency Supply

LONDON, March 12. — (CP). — Britain took steps during the weekend to maintain and if possible increase its supply of foreign currencies in order to pay for essential imports of foodstuffs and war materials.

Under new export regulations effective March 25 proceeds from the sale of certain exports from Great Britain and parts of the Empire will be collected in specified foreign currencies according to the country with which the transaction is made.

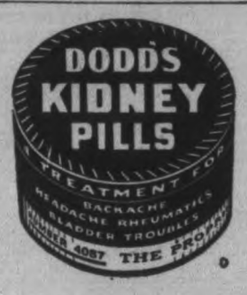
Officials explained that the new regulations, which do not affect Canada, are intended to obtain Belgian belgas, Netherlands guilders, Dutch East Indies guilders, Swiss francs and United States dollars.

Products affected are rubber, tin, jute and jute manufactures and whisky from the United Kingdom; rubber, jute and jute manufactured from India, rubber from Burma and rubber and tin from the producing colonies.

When these articles are exported to North or South America (excluding Canada and British and French teritories and the Argentine), Belgium and her colonies, the Netherlands and her colonies and Switzerland the payment will be required in the currencies needed rather than, for example, in sterling or French francs.

Flu Kills 512

LONDON, March 12.—(CP)—The influenza epidemic in England and Wales caused 512 deaths in the week ending March 2. This figure was 117 less than the toll of the preceding week, according to reports made public today.



Boat Works Burns At Trent River

TRENT RIVER, March 12—(ENS) The workshop for the making of boats, owned by Mr. H. H. Pollock, was destroyed by fire Monday night about 9.30 o'clock.

Mr. Pollock, who had left the building at 6 p.m. for his residence near by discovered the blaze coming from the west end of the building. Fortunately the wind favored nearby residences, and a bucket brigade formed by neighbors, and quantities of snow surrounding the buildings helped to keep the fire from spreading.

Mr. Pollock lost seven canoes, two newly-finished and five old ones, two models, and all his tools.

The building has been in use for over twenty years, there is some insurance. The local hockey team were playing at Norwood and were called home before the game was through to give all assistance possible to save other buildings near by. A number of hens were in the building but were rescued. Cause of fire unknown.

Private Percy Tyler of Trenton was home for the week-end. He was accompanied by Private Garnet Richardson of Brighton and sister, Miss Dorothy Richardson, who were also visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Earl Greenly.

Bethany

Mrs. Edwin Veals of St. Catharines is spending a few days with friends in the village and vicinity.

William Davis, Sr., left on Thursday to spend a few days with his daughter, Mrs. Rogers and family in Lindsay.

Mrs. (Rev.) Mason spent the week-end with relatives in Toronto.

Robert Carr of the Eighth Line, three miles west of Bethany, held a very successful sale of farm chattels on Friday, which brought very satisfactory prices. Cows brought as high as $70, horses from $20 to $117, sheep $20 and $21 each.

Hound Held In Trap

Lakefield, March 12.

A VALUABLE HOUND owned by the Toronto - Lakefield Hunt Club, and which is in the care of Wilfred Murduff, Lakefield, disappeared on Monday.

Friday Mr. Murduff was told that a dog had been heard howling in the marsh north of the village. He and Darcy Hill immediately started out in search for the dog and finally found it with one foot frozen and caught in a large trap. The animal had tramped the snow as far as it could reach and had chewed twigs, but was in a very weakened condition. However, last reports were that the dog was able to run around about as well as usual on three legs.

Smith Tax Rate Set At 21 Mills

It was estimated that the total expenditure for all purposes for 1940 will be $55,804.30, and estimated revenue $55,929.27.

The general tax rate for 1940 was set at 21 mills, or an increase of 1.9 mills over 1939.

A by-law setting the rates for school purposes in the several school sections will be considered at the next meeting.

Council decided not to collect taxes of 1940 by two instalments, but to allow a discount of 3 per cent. on taxes paid on or before July 1.

It is expected that the tax notices will be issued by the first of June.

Council decided to use space in the forthcoming Vacation Edition of the Examiner advertising the many desirable waterfront sites that are available for purchase or rent in Smith Township. In view of this it was suggested that owners should register their names and a description of their property with A. I. Edmison, township clerk, if they desire to take advantage of this opportunity.

The treasurer was instructed to issue cheques to cover the following accounts:

Peterborough Utilities, street lights	$ 15.16
Insulin account	.65
Miss N. Douglas, printing auditors' reports	11.05
Peterborough Medical and Surgical Clinic	12.00
Peck, Kerr, McElderry & Borbridge, law costs 1938-1939	70.67

A Hacking, Racking Persistent Cough

The constant hacking, racking, persistent cough that sticks to you in spite of everything you do to get rid of it is the kind that is dangerous to neglect.

The longer the cough sticks, the more serious menace it becomes to your health.

But, there is a remedy to relieve coughs—coughs that won't let go. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is that remedy.

It has a healing and soothing action on the air passages, and acts as a disinfectant of the respiratory organs, destroying the germs that may produce serious complications.

"I was Connecting Neighbours then

Suppose today you call us and say, "I want a telephone installed in my home."

The installer comes—in a matter of hours, perhaps minutes. For an hour or so he works around the house, then makes final tests and says, "Your telephone is connected now, sir."

He means, of course, that he has connected it to the central office in your locality. He might very well say—

"Now your telephone is connected to all your friends, relations, and tradespeople, like the grocer, the butcher, the baker, the dentist, the laundry, the hospital, and so on.

"Yes, and it is connected to the telephones of thousands of people you don't know but may want to call some day—to millions of telephones in other parts of Canada and throughout the civilized world—even to ships at sea."

The Split In Ontario

One result of Premier Hepburn's erratic course in Ontario provincial matters has been the resignation of Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary, Registrar-General and Minister of Game and Fisheries. One does not need to read Mr. Nixon's letter to his chief or his prepared statement to the press from any political angle in order to appreciate that Mr. Nixon has been honest and consistent in his statements. There is a good deal of that desirable element of conviction as well.

Mr. Nixon has been in public life in Ontario for 21 years, and we use the expression for what it is worth—no person has pinned anything on him. Possibly he is a bit more of a Liberal today than when he started as U.F.O. The size of his majority in the riding of Brant indicates he is a strong man there and would be difficult to dislodge. He will continue in the Legislature, and promises to give Mr. Hepburn support.

Coming to that provincially historic incident where Premier Hepburn brought a resolution hurriedly before the House in which was a vote of censure on the King Government for its handling of war effort, Mr. Nixon is candid enough. He gives the impression that he is speaking the truth. The resolution was brought in without any warning; it was hurriedly prepared, and Mr. Hepburn made the plain statement that if it were not carried he would resign. Mr. Nixon did not want to vote for it, but against that inclination there was the distinct possibility that if he did not it would mean the defeat of the Government and an appeal to the country, plunging Ontario into an election when none should be taking place. Mr. Nixon had also to consider he was the right-hand man of the Premier, that he had been intimately associated with him. It was a tight spot and Mr. Nixon knew it then and has known it ever since.

In his statement Mr. Nixon says Mr. Hepburn's chief concern has been to criticize the war efforts of the Federal Government, and the reason for that is his dislike for Mr. King. That of course is well enough known.

Mr. Nixon's criticism of Col. Drew, and the claim that he should be either a candidate in the Federal contest or holding a post in the army is hardly fair. It is one of those things which might much better have been left unsaid. Col. Drew was seriously wounded in the last war, and he has just as much right to participate in the Federal campaign as Mr. Nixon has to resign from the Provincial cabinet.

Premier Hepburn has accepted the resignation of his colleague, and another appointment will undoubtedly be made, but we doubt if the matter will end there. The wedge has been driven deeper than may appear to the casual onlooker. We are advised that the feeling of a good many Liberals is that Mr. Hepburn could not split the Dominion Liberal party by his attacks on Mr. King, but he could and would split the Liberal party in Ontario into two camps, (1) those who would continue to follow the Hepburn leadership, and (2) those who would not. One does not need to be a political prophet to see that the split has already taken place. We doubt if Mr. Hepburn can again lead a united Liberal party in Ontario.

Why Should We?

Fruit and Vegetable Growers' Association of Essex County had a meeting and tackled the tariff. There never was a tariff arranged yet which pleased all the people and the one to which the vegetable growers referred does not please them.

Canada has a seasonal tariff or dumping duty arrangement on fruits and vegetables coming from the outside world, and the complaint is that the one which slows up the imports of cucumbers, cauliflowers and such things from the States does not come into effect soon enough. The Canadians who grow things under glass should have the advantage of the Canadian market while it is high.

Getting down to that question it is not possible to think of the vegetable growers of Essex county as being the people of Canada; they are only a few of the people. They want to do something which will bring produce on the market before it is due to arrive in the ordinary course of out-door events. That's a good idea and shows enterprise, but they do not want to have to compete with stuff grown out-of-doors in the Southern States.

The real point in the situation is that the people of the Dominion want something to eat three times a day. If they prefer to have fresh vegetables and are ready to pay for them, then they will want them at the most reasonable price. At least that appears to us as a common sense way to look at it.

The vegetable growers using hot-house methods in Essex can probably supply some of the market, but they cannot put their stuff on the market at the same price as the Southern U.S. material when that is enjoying the seasonal tariff which bears lightly upon it. If we are to deal entirely with the folk in South Essex we will have to pay for their unnatural method of production at out-of-season periods in order to make the business profitable for them. We will all have to pay more in order that a few people will have the benefit. And it's pretty hard to see how it could be successfully argued that things should be done that way.

The Battle For Oil

George Garner, an engineer by profession, and member of the Oshawa Rotary Club, discussed that vital question of "oil" when speaking to Peterborough Rotarians. We use the word vital because it possibly has more to do with war today than we can possibly understand. For years Germany has been rebuilding her entire army equipment, and has been driving toward mechanization to a degree never before attempted. The world had a sample of it in the invasion of Poland. The German army did not march into Poland. It flew over it and rode through it.

Such a mass of mechanized equipment is no more mobile than the supply of gas and oil on hand to operate it. Any individual who owns a car has learned that. The success of the whole venture has been staked on there being sufficient fuel to make the mechanized army move.

Mr. Garner stated that in the last war an army division transport and mechanized equipment needed 4,000 horse-power to move it; today in the mechanized army the amount of horse-power required has been raised to 187,000. Multiplied almost 45 times.

United States has from 62 to 65 per cent. of the world's oil. In terms of barrels annually it runs this way:

United States	1,500,000,000
Russia	219,700,000
Rumania	47,000,000
Persia	77,000,000
Iraq	29,500,000

In peace time, according to Mr. Garner, Germany needs 45,000,000 barrels a year for military purposes; right now the demand is placed at 90,000,000, and if a great push were on it would call for from 150,000,000 to 200,000,000.

Hope of securing great supplies from Russia are doubtful because Russia's transportation system is in a mess, and the railway tracks there are different width to those of Germany, and there would have to be complete re-loading at some junction point.

It would be unwise to the point of dangerous for the Allies to come to the conclusion that Germany's great war machine is stuck on account of oil, but the blunt fact remains that a great mechanized army cannot move a wheel without it, and it is on the mechanized army that Germany depends. Germany will put unlimited pressure on any nation to secure supplies of oil. The battle for the possession of oil is going to be a deciding factor.

No Sign Of Weakness

There is some form of enforced thrift or economy in Germany, and we noticed where several comments had been written showing that we enjoyed a much greater freedom in Canada because we could buy anything for which we are able to pay. If we spent money on luxuries then we were keeping money in circulation. And so on.

When a country is facing a war which may be long and financially ruinous that question of financing and money and what the people can do with their money is long and deep. We do not know that the Germans are so wrong because they have adopted a plan by which people earning money are forced to save a certain part of it. And it is a nice open question as to whether Germany has erred in clamping down on what may be termed luxury buying.

If people are allowed to spend all they earn they are not going to have anything over. Then comes this point: When a government has to finance a war it can do several things: (1) It can impose additional taxation to raise immediate revenue, and in our country that has been done; (2) it can depend on its usual sources of revenue being slightly higher by reason of greater activity during war, and (3) it can borrow the money of its people. That third method is the one on which governments have to rely for war financing, and there is no guessing about that. If the people have no money then the government can get nothing from them.

The German method may not have a strong appeal to us, but it is used for the purpose of making certain that the people have money which the government can secure from them when needed. We think it is an error to regard such a method as one of weakness only. Rather it is one of planning far ahead, of leaving nothing to chance, and of keeping before all the people all the time the blunt fact that the country is at war and sacrifice in every-day life is necessary.

That Radio Audience

It is apparent that a number of political big men of all shades of opinion believe they can reach the people by making radio addresses. It seems to be taken as a matter of fact that when the speaker gets in front of the mike that people are all ready, sitting singly or in family groups around the radio just as though they were having a political gathering right in their own homes. It is a nice idea, but it isn't so.

That question has been answered not by chance, but by careful survey. Dr. George Gallup's survey is regarded as the best in United States because the work is thoroughly done. The conclusion there is that President Roosevelt is listened to by less than one-third of the radio owners, and the President is a major radio attraction. Barely 25 per cent. of radio owners heard his recent Jackson Day address.

Newspapers have made tests on the telephone and by personal solicitation and they have all found the same result. The Examiner asked seven people within a short space regarding a recent political broadcast if they had listened to it. Of the seven one lone man admitted he had heard about five minutes of it and then a friend had come in and he had turned the radio off. The seven were just average citizens, all radio owners, but they had been elsewhere than at home, or if they were home they were otherwise engaged.

The newspaper audience is different. One may think of a newspaper reaching massed people, but that is not accurate. The newspaper reaches them one at a time; reaches them when people are ready to sit down and read their paper; it is there waiting for them and they do not have to tune in at a certain minute to do it.

These radio broadcasts on which politicians in this campaign are placing so much dependence are going to disappoint them. The surveys which have been made in many places, and made carefully and well, say so in advance, and inquiries made during the campaign give the same answer.

BED TIME

(By A.R.K.)

¶ When Cousin Jake drops in on me, he is as busy as can be, can entertain himself; he needs a place for all his stuff, he never seems to get enough, and so I clean a shelf.

¶ When it comes on past supper time, Jake starts preparing sharp on nine, his schedule's like a clock; I hear him in the room upstairs, where he is busy and prepares, that's where he has his stock.

¶ Jake tinkers with his teeth a spell, and tends to them uncommon well, for they are not his own; his uppers and his lowers too, he polishes them with great ado, he'll grunt a while and groan.

¶ And then he starts upon his feet, and has to give them both a treat, so they'll feel right by morn; for Jake has callous on his soles, and he's got pads and cushion rolls, and each toe sports a corn.

¶ Sciatics touch him now and then, he hobbles with the crippled men, so Jake gets ointment out; he rubs and groans for quite a spell, and when he's through why I can tell, I hear him move about.

¶ He does his joints, his teeth and feet, then pops a pill to make him sleep, at home he tends the cat; Jake says he knows how long 'twill take, and when he strikes a goodly gait—he's through in one hour flat.

Democracies Did Not Start The World War

YESTERDAY we printed a reference, not too complimentary we hope, to an anti-British pro-isolationist blurb by one Gene Sutherland as appearing in Scribner's Commentator. Today we are glad to be able to refresh our readers' minds by a more intelligent, more wholesome view expressed by another American, the noted Dorothy Thompson.

She alluded, notes the Brantford Expositor, in a recent article in The New York Herald-Tribune, to the travels of that modern Gulliver, Mr. Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's personal envoy to the courts and the chancelleries of an embattled Europe.

"Mr. Sumner Welles' grand tour," she wrote "has a quaint and unreal quality about it. It is very correct and formal. One can see Mr. Welles, properly attired in grey pants and a cutaway, entering the proper salons and offices, dining at the proper tables, drinking the proper wines and saying, we have no doubt, the proper things."

You will not the faint undercurrent of irony in the lady's tone. Anyway, she continues, there is also a proper response (however reserved) to the official if not the actual purpose of his mission. The official purpose, of course, is to convey American desires for peace and to gather information regarding conditions the governments would require in the matter of any cessation of hostilities.

In fact, however, if we are to believe Miss Thompson, the "secret mission," which is about as secret as a Hollywood divorce, has as its object the spreading, in the United States, of "a satisfying feeling that all that our Government can do for peace is being done."

In short, Mr. Welles is in the same category as Mr. Ford and his Peace Ship during the last war — except that Mr. Welles has no ship.

"The unreal quality of all the discussion," Miss Thompson continues, "arises from a simple and completely neglected fact—the fact neglected at the dinner-table conversations. This war was not made by the Governments of democratic countries. Their Governments tried to avoid this war, and all the proposals now being discussed were discussed long ago, before the war began, and under far more favorable circumstances."

We think Miss Thompson has something there.

GERMANY, she reminds her readers, was plunged into the struggle by an administration whose decisions were subject to no check from the German people, but were dictated by one man and his party. As for Britain and France, on the other hand, and for Finland too, "this is a people's war."

"Now, since this is a fact, it is well to try to understand what the people, the people of the democracies who insisted that Hitler be stopped, are fighting about. They are not fighting about geography, or colonies, or balances of Imperial power. They are not fighting to prevent Germany from being strong. They are fighting to prevent the spread of something that threatens, not only their nations, but their individual existences as human beings. They are fighting for human rights, individual human rights."

In short, says our American writer, "this is a war against the brutal and criminal powers that governments have usurped to themselves over all human rights. It is not Capitalism or Socialism, or any of the old bogies. It is the brutal, naked, criminal power of the runaway state. And they have seen that power spreading, octopus-like, they have seen people, individual human beings, caught by its tenacles, disappear into its maw—millions of them...."

Miss Thompson proceeds to an apt description of this power and its accomplishments; it has gagged people's mouths and paralyzed their brains. "It has set sons against fathers and daughters against their mothers. It has defamed the God in whom they had faith. It has set spies upon them. It has beaten and robbed and imprisoned and tortured them. It has made their grandmothers testify against them from their graves and turned their race into a universal term of opprobrium: dirty Jews, dirty Poles, dirty Czechs."

This, then, being a war for freedom, a war to preserve human rights, what is the sense in side-issue talk about boundaries and raw materials and trade and commerce? If that is all Mr. Welles went to Europe to talk about, he might as well have saved his breath and his steamship ticket.

Miss Thompson realizes that. The New York Herald Tribune realizes it, or it would not have printed the article. Thousands and thousands of thinking Americans realize it, even if a narrow minority, for whom Gene Sutherland is one of the spokesmen, does not.

• Churchill On British Sea Power

BRITAIN'S BATTLESHIPS on active service today probably number nine at most, rather than the fourteen which survived after the Royal Oak went down. We know, from Mr. Churchill's admission, that the Barham and the Nelson were damaged, one by a torpedo, the other by a magnetic mine, and that they have not yet emerged from their repairs. The Queen Elizabeth and the Valiant were undergoing large-scale reconstruction when the war broke out, and it is not certain whether they have yet rejoined the fleet. The Repulse was pictured the other day docking for repairs, perhaps as the result of exceptionally severe storm damage early in the winter. This leaves nine ships, not including any additional vessels that may be in process of overhaul, or others that may have been damaged by German action without public knowledge.

Even with only nine battleships at sea, however, the British strength in capital ships remains outstanding. In any comparison of Allied with German power at sea, one must add the seven French battleships to the British; and these include the crack new ships Dunkerque and Strasbourg, which are a match for Germany's 26,000-ton Scharnhorst and Gneisenau. Moreover, Mr. Churchill has reminded the House of Commons that no less than 35,000-ton battleships are nearing completion and will be placed in commission "shortly." Only two of these, the King George V and the Prince of Wales, are likely to make their appearance this spring; even so, the British record of speedy battleship building is one of which the Admiralty can be proud.

The keels were laid on Jan. 1, 1937, on the very day when the old naval treaties expired; Britain must have been assembling materials and preparing shipbuilding space for months before these giants were laid down. Now, in a little over three years, they are virtually completed. Our own North Carolina, authorized in the 1937 program, was not laid down until October, 1937, and the ship is not due for completion, under our leisurely system, until November, 1941. Now we are told, with apparent pride, that it will go into commission late in 1942. No doubt the delay here can be ascribed to red tape, slowness in letting contracts and frequent changes of design, as well as to some inefficiency in our shipyards. But the British have set us an example by their foresight and efficiency in naval building long before the present war began. It will be a relief when our Secretary of the Navy can echo Mr. Churchill by announcing that our two battleships of the 1937 program will be ready for service "shortly."—New York Times.

• There's Nothing Political In It

IN KINGSTON, where most of the citizens have acquired at least some knowledge and understanding of military affairs, there will be more astonishment perhaps than throughout the country generally that Mr. Hepburn should have dragged a matter of military discipline into the election campaign. The thought that will already have occurred to the vast majority of Kingstonians is that what Mr. Hepburn describes as a "violent disturbance" at the air force centre at St. Thomas cannot be a reflection upon the Government, upon the Department of National Defence or upon the Cabinet Minister who heads that department; as an isolated incident involving discipline it can only be a reflection (and a very serious one) upon the men alleged to have been involved in it and upon the officers in charge of those men.

If Mr. Hepburn's charges were accepted as describing accurately whatever occurred, the blame falls directly upon the men and their officers. No military organization could operate efficiently in any country if it were not a fundamental principle that there can be no excuse for men who do not accept regulations or arrangements that are made for them by the authorities over them, and who do not obey the orders of their officers even if those orders are to shine door knobs.

It makes not the slightest difference whether the regulations or orders are sensible or not, the duty of the men is to obey. It is the duty of the officers of the Air Force to deal with all matters of discipline without bothering the Department of National Defence about them. If the officers were unable to handle any and all such problems without running to Mr. Rogers about them, they would be incompetent to be in charge of the Air Force. It would, of course, be absurd for anyone to suggest that the officers of the Air Force are incompetent in their positions.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

HITLER'S TERMS

HITLER didn't ask for German domination of the North Pole, but in his peace demands to Mr. Sumner Welles, the Fuehrer mentioned pretty nearly everything else. He let the United States Under-Secretary of State know that Germany wants plenty.

The Nazis want to keep occupation of Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, and Austria as well as extending their power to Hungary.

The Nazis want the British to relinquish Gibraltar, Malta and Singapore.

The Nazis want the German colonies back.

That's what he told Mr. Welles. Now, all Hitler has to do is try and get what he wants. That's not as easy as telling Mr. Welles about it.—Windsor Daily Star.

TESTS FOR MR. HEPBURN

MANY OBSERVERS are already wondering what effect the results of the federal election will have on the Hepburn Liberal Administration at Queen's Park, and whether or not he will call a provincial vote under certain eventualities.

Some argue that if the King Government is returned to power at Ottawa, Mr. Hepburn will be forced to go to the people, inasmuch as the victory of King Liberalism might be construed as a moral defeat for Hepburn Liberalism.

There are several flaws in this contention. One is that Mr. King might be returned to office, even though he has a smaller number of Ontario members. In that case, it would be difficult to say whether the result, in this province, was a vote of confidence in Mr. King or Mr. Hepburn.

If the federal Liberals sweep the country, Mr. Hepburn does not need to go to the people. True, it would put him on the spot, insofar as the future of Hepburn Liberalism is concerned. But parties in power just don't call elections if they can avoid it, when it looks as though they might be beaten.

Whatever the outcome on March 26, Mr. Hepburn will have an opportunity to make a test of public opinion. T. A. Kidd, Conservative, Kingston, is resigning to enter the federal field, as is A. W. Roebuck, Liberal, Toronto-Trinity. The premier can call by-elections in these two seats, and thus gain some idea as to the popularity, or reverse, of his administration.—Windsor Star.

When he reached home that night, his wife said, excitedly: "I saw the King this morning. I had a lovely view—right up against the factory gates. There was thousands there to see him!"

"Thousands!" said the husband, disgustedly. "I might have known you'd blab it out."

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place whither he himself would come. Therefore said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he may send forth labourers into his harvest....And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. Behold, I give unto you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy: and nothing shall by any means hurt you.—Luke x, 1, 2, 17-19.

3 BECOMES 10

IN THE YEAR that the famous duel between Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr was fought on the Hudson Palisades and Hamilton fell mortally wounded, William Hall died in New Brunswick, N.J. He left a will which set aside a fund of $3,000 in perpetuity, the income to be used for the education of poor children.

The motive was worthy, but Hall could not foresee the progressive changes to take place within a few generations, when education would be not only free but also compulsory. So for the last 48 years the income has not been disbursed because there were no poor children to educate, within the meaning of the will. And now the trustees have asked the court what to do with the money on hand, a some $10,000.

This is another demonstration that no man is able to comprehend, even in small degree, what change the years will bring in relationship and manner of living, in institutions and governments. Yet many individuals go on committing the error of trying to order the future in their disposal of their earthly affairs.—Sarnia Canadian Observer.

Aid For Producer Manion Pledges In East

HALIFAX, March 12—(CP). — Conservative Leader Manion said here Saturday night his proposed National Government would realize the need of looking after the nation's primary producers, "especially in wartime."

Speaking before an audience of 1,200 in the Casino Theatre, he pledged assistance to agriculture, and to co-operatives such as those formed by Ontario tobacco growers and Maritime fishermen.

Asserting there was too much spread between the price paid Nova Scotia fishermen and the price paid by the consumer, he said "What is needed is the right type of Minister of Fisheries." The man for this portfolio, he said, should have a practical knowledge of the business. The present minister, he said was a lawyer from a lumbering district.

Dr. Manion charged that Prime Minister Mackenzie King gave British aircraft purchasing agents two years ago the impression that Canada might be neutral if there was a war and "if it was neutral, their orders might not be filled if a war actually took place."

He reiterated his claim that the present government turned down two years ago a British effort to establish air training schools here at Britain's expense. He said he didn't know what frightened Mr. King then, adding, "Perhaps it's his American complex."

Mr. Manion said the only conclusion one could come to from Mr. King's behaviour was that he was "both mentally and temperamently unsuited to handle our afafirs in such a time of national emergency."

Continuing on a note struck in an earlier speech at Charlottetown, the Conservative leader advised his audience to "remember there are always two Mackenzie Kings—one in the House boasting of what had been done for defence, and the other in an election. You pay your money and you take your choice."

US Debates Fate Of Two Fliers

OTTAWA, March 12 — (CP). — Conversations are going forward in Washington today between Loring Christie, Canadian Minister, and United States authorities over the fate of two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force who made a forced landing Saturday at Alexandria Bay, N.Y.

External Affairs Department officials said they had provided the Canadian Minister at Washington with all the facts concerning the forced landing and were waiting to hear the outcome of his conversations with United States authorities.

The landing was made at Alexandria Bay, just across the International Boundary on the St. Lawrence River a few miles below the new Thousand Islands international bridge which President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King jointly dedicated a year ago last August.

Obituary

MRS. ELIZABETH RICHARDSON

CENTRETON, March 12.—(ENS)—The death took place early Thursday morning of one of the eldest residents in the village in the person of Mrs. Elizabeth Ann Richardson, widow of the late Millard Richardson.

Mrs. Richardson was born in Haldimand township on a farm south of the village. She was in her 81st year, and was a daughter of the late Mr. Alfred Slade and Mary Ann Chapple. Mrs. Richardson resided on a farm in the Mulholland Settlement with her late husband for some years. She also was in Cobourg and her remaining years were spent on the Slade homstead in the village. She was a member of St. John's Anglican church and as a girl attended the local school here. She was well-known by a large circle of friends.

She had not been well for some time but was only confined to her bed with pneumonia for the last two weeks.

The funeral service was held from the family residence on Saturday afternoon, Rev. T. A. Nind officiating.

Left to mourn her loss are her son, Orly at home, two brothers, Mr. Fred Slade of Cobourg and George Slade of Sceptre, Sask., and one sister, Mrs. James of Winnipeg, four grand children, Mrs. A. Rout, Cobourg, Arthur Richardson, Frieda and Donald of Centreton, several great grandchildren and nieces and nephews. Her late husband predeceased her about 40 years ago; also three brothers and two sisters.

The remains were interred in the family plot in Centreton cemetery.

MRS. SARA BEATTY

MILLBROOK, March 12 (ENS)—The death of Mrs. Sara Beatty, an early resident of Hope Township whose later years had been spent in Cavan and Hamilton townships, took place on Wednesday, following an extended period of ill health, in her seventy-ninth year.

She was a daughter of the late David and Margaret Gray, who were of Irish descent, and was born at Osaka, in Hope township, where the family homestead was located.

In 1881 the marriage took place of Sara Gray and Richard L. Beatty, at Bewdley, on Rice Lake, their home being on the sixth line of Hope. To their union four sons, Norton, of Hope, Charles on the homestead, Walter, of Campbellcroft and Willard, who died in infancy; and two daughters, Mrs. Lambert Gibson, of Carmel, and Mrs. Fred Wilson, of Hamilton township, were born.

Mrs. Beatty was predeceased by her husband, whose death took place twelve years ago, and since that time she has made her home with her daughters, alternately. A devoted wife and mother, she was a member of the Presbyterian church at Garden Hill, and since the union has worshipped with her daughter.

Besides the family already mentioned, the other immediate surviving relatives include one brother, John; eighteen grandchildren, and four great-grand-children; two sisters, Mrs. John Sowden and Mrs. John Jones, and one brother, Thomas Gray, were previously deceased.

The funeral took place on Friday, at 2.30 p.m., from the home of her son-in-law, Mr. Lambert Gibson, Carmel, and was largely attended, the service being conducted by Rev. Mr. Mallows of Coldsprings United church. The pall-bearers were her three sons, Walter, Charles and Norton Beatty, and three nephews, Walter Jones, of Campbellcroft, Stanley Gray of Perrytown, and Thomas Sowden of Elizabethville; the flower-bearers were grandsons, and included Lavergne Gibson, Victor, Willard, Harold and Louis Beatty, Peter Sowden and Bert Jones. Interment was beside her husband in the family burial plot at the Bewdley cemetery.

JAMES QUINN

KEENE, March 12—(ENS).—The funeral of the late James Quinn was held from Duffus' funeral parlors on Friday morning. Mr. Quinn was in his 65th year and the son of the late Patrick Quinn and Mary Foley of Keene.

Left to mourn are four brothers, William and Fred of Rochester, Joseph and Herbert of Winnipeg and two sisters, Mrs. Nicholas Doris of Keene and Miss Helen Quinn of Rochester, a brother John of Winnipeg died three years ago.

The funeral service was held at St. Peter's Cathedral where Requiem Mass was sung by Dr. V. Masterson. Fr. Kelly officiated at the graveside.

The pall-bearers all close friends were Messrs. Richard Doris, Frank Walsh, Augustine Bolin, George Houle, Nicholas Doris and Harold Roach. Interment was at St. Peter's Cemetery.

Trapped Nazis Set Ship Ablaze

LONDON, March 11—(CP).—The burning and abandoning of the 5,600 - ton German merchantman Hanover by her own crew, when a British cruiser caught up with her, was announced by the Admiralty last night.

The incident occurred Thursday night in Mona channel, a passage 75 miles wide between the Dominican Republic and Puerto Rico.

Loaded with 8,000 tons of ore and lumber, the freighter had sailed from Willemstad, Netherlands West Indies, in an attempt to reach Germany.

A report from Ciudad Trujillo said the Hannover's crew had ben landed on the Dominican east coast.

Three losses were announced by Britain. The 1,918-ton Maindy Hill and the 2,719-ton Chevychase went down last night in the North Sea and the Borthwick, 1,097 tons, foundered off Flushing. The Netherlands, after hitting a mine. The Maindy Hill sank after an explosion and the Chevychase collided with an unidentified ship.

The Admiralty announced the names of eight prisoners from a German submarine. No details as how or when they fell into British hands were given.

WMS President For 35 Years Guest Of Honor

WESTWOOD, March 12.—(ENS)—St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society held its March meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. S. Sargent, with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. J. E. Glover presided for the opening exercises. The roll call was answered by a verse of Scripture, containing the word "Rejoice." Next month's scripture verse will include the word "peace".

Mrs. Stephen Elmhirst, third group leader, took charge of an Easter program, presenting the message of Madras Conference. Mrs. Elmhirst was assisted in this service by Miss Mary Cameron, Miss J. Davidson, Mrs. Hugh Cameron, Mrs. Don Cameron, Mrs. R. Y. Cameron and Mrs. J. Sargent. Mrs. J. E. Glover told several interesting stories of the conference, related by the Canadian delegate, Mrs. Nellie McClung.

Closing with the Eastern hymn the ladies enjoyed a social hour. When the first quarterly tea was served. A unique and pleasing feature at this tea was a celebration of the sixtieth wedding anniversary of Mrs. John Hope, who with her husband observed their Diamond Wedding Anniversary on Sunday. Mrs. Hope, one of the most faithful and earnest members of the society, formerly held the office of president for 35 successive years.

A two story wedding cake graced the centre of the table and was decorated with six lighted tapers, each candle signifying one decade. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Sargent for her kind hospitality in the use of her home.

Statesmen's Snapshots

M. A. MacPHERSON

Probably the most popular Conservative figure in the prairie provinces is Murdoch Alexander MacPherson, chief lieutenant to National leader R. J. Manion.

He came pretty close to leading the Conservative party himself. When the leadership mantle being forsaken by Mr. R. B. Bennett was waiting for a wearer in 1936 the runner-up for the honor was "Murdo" MacPherson.

An outstanding member of Saskatchewan's former Anderson Conservative government, was this one-time farm boy, school teacher, barrister and war veteran. Although he can lay claim to being one of Western Canada's leading lawyers and public men, he is still a young man according to political standards, just 49 next month.

Although he is a westerner, Mr. MacPherson's birthplace was Grand Anse, Nova Scotia, and it was at Dalhousie University where he received the finishing touches to his education. From there he went to Swift Current.

He enlisted with the 10th Battalion in 1915, was wounded at Arleux in 1917, spent 14 months in the hospital, and then returned to Saskachewan and was named solicitor for the Soldiers' Settlement Board.

Resigning this post, he was defeated for a seat in the House of Commons by Hon. W. R. Motherwell in 1921, but four years later won a seat in the provincial legislature and was again returned four years later. This time the Conservative party was swept into power and Mr. MacPherson became attorney-general and provincial treasurer.

When the Anderson administration went down to defeat in 1934, Mr. MacPherson returned to his private legal practice. Shortly afterward Prime Minister R. B. Bennett called upon him to organize the debt settlement system under the complicated Farmers' Credit Adjustment Act, at the conclusion of which work it was thought that he would be appointed to the supreme court. However, he has continued to remain in active political life.

He has always been a worker with the Canadian Legion, being president of the Saskatchew Legion for one year. Both his sons have military connections at the present time; one is stationed at Camp Borden and the other a student at the Royal Military college.

Mr. MacPherson is quiet, his outlook moderate, his personality appealing and his voice convincing.

COBOURG, Ont., March 12. — (CP)—Relief costs dropped 50 per cent in February of this year as compared with the same month in 1939, according to the report of the relief inspector. In February, 1939, there were 59 families on relief as compared with 24 last month.

Mt. Pleasant Ladies Sponsor Crokinole

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mar. 12 (ENS). — A pleasant evening was spent in the W.I. Hall on Friday evening when Group No. 1 of the Women's Institute held a progressive crokinole. Seven tables were played and when the tallies were counted Miss Margaret Best won the high score for ladies' prize and Neill Stewart the men's. Mr. Cotton, playing as a lady, received the consolation and Arnold Best the men's. Thomas Graham won the prize for the lucky door ticket.

A dainty lunch was served at the close by the ladies of the group, with the convener, Mrs. T. C. Morden, in charge.

KRUSCHEN SHIPMENT LOST AT SEA!

50,000 Giant Packages were en route to Canada

Kruschen users who have learned the utter joy of that "million dollar Kruschen feeling" are advised to get their packages of Giant Kruschen at once to avoid disappointment. Recently 50,000 bottles, Canada-bound, were sent to the bottom of the Atlantic and the supply is thus strictly limited.

To avoid just such a catastrophe, other Giant Package shipments were sent on different ships, were successfully landed and have been distributed thinly across the Dominion. There is no saying when further supplies of Giant Packages will be made available. So do act now if you suffer the pains of rheumatism, lumbago, frequent headaches or from blotchy skin—get your Giant Package, which includes the regular 75c bottle plus a free trial size bottle. Your money back if not satisfied after using free trial size bottle. Simply return regular bottle unopened. At all drug counters.

No publications in the Dominion have directed against the Federal Government a more vehement criticism in recent months than the Financial Post and other periodicals of the MacLean Publishing Company. In issue after issue, front page diatribes have been levelled at an Administration that has been mobilizing the resources of the nation under the guidance of the specialists, chosen without regard to party.

The voters of Canada have looked at the strange hodge-podge of misinformation which has emanated from various sources of prejudice—looked at it in the clear light of the factual statements issued by responsible officials.

The judgment of the people on this misinformation is clear. The fair-minded press everywhere else has spoken—and is speaking—without hesitation of the certain return of the King Administration with a sweeping endorsation. So manifest is that even the Financial Post is compelled by the logic of events to add its prediction of the government's success at the polls to what has become all but a general chorus.

The Financial Post on the front page of its March 9 issue published a Dominion-wide survey under the heading: "For Whom and For What Do We Vote?" The conclusion is:

"PROSPECTS ARE FOR THE RETURN OF THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT WITH AN ADEQUATE MAJORITY."

No one will suppose that the Financial Post is disposed to overstate the case in favor of the King Government.

Voters of Peterborough West look with clear vision upon "THE SWING TO VICTORY." They will vote overwhelmingly for the candidate of the Government which has made THOROUGHNESS (not Scatterbrain Haste) its keynote and which will carry forward thoroughly Canada's Win-the-War Drive.

Record High Three In 5-Pin Bowling Established By Lady Bowler

A new all-time record for five-pin bowling in Peterborough was established at Duffus Recreation Academy yesterday by Mrs. S. Clarke at the Empress Hotel Bowling League. In chalking up 275, 273 and 361 games for a 909 total, Mrs. Clarke had the honor to be the first lady bowler to crash the charmed circle above 900. Although records are not available it is thought the previous high score was made in 1928 by Gertrude McCarthy when she had around 874 for a C.G.E. team, while Dot Collins, Lillian Campbell, Marion Timm and a few others have been known to swing over 800.

Next to Mrs. Clark's 909 Tom Cupoli and Joe Watson of the Westclox men hit 884 and 855. H. Frost led the De Laval with 749 (308). F. Dunfield of the C.G.E. Drafting Room 786 and Gord Card of the Brintons 701. Eddie Bedding of the Westclox topped a dozen 300 game men with 367.

The good scores noticed were:

Brinton League: G. Caird 701 (301), L. Martyn 673, G. Dodson 658, W. Firth 634, L. McIntosh 619, B. Parks 618, K. Martyn 607; Miss M. Parks 593 (268), H. McFarlane 553, E. Jones 504, I. Firth 525, Mrs. Monk 501, A. Pilling, P. Patterson and D. Ridyard 222, 209 and 208 singles.

Westclox Ladies (2 games): Dora Moore 421, G. Brand 410, M. Selkirk 401, M. Allison, M. Ferguson and M. Mongraw 245, 232 and 206 singles.

De Laval League: H. Frost 749 (308), J. Lee 666, J. Murray 629, R. Francis 612, Miss Heard 567 and Miss Lawrence 521.

C.G.E. Drafting Room: F. Dunfield 786, G. Palmer 708, O. Price 667, M. Metheral 652, H Rutherford 650, K. Wood 637, K. MacKay 604 and V. Cuff 601.

Western Clock Co.: T. Cupoli 884 (337), J. Watson 855 (355), Evans 785, (303), H. Thompson 752, R. Hayden 748 (316), E. Bedding 715 (367), M. Starr 725, J. Weir 710, H. Baptie 675, F. Barrie 670, A. Retire Seabiscuit After 80 Races

LOS ANGELES, Mar. 12 — (AP). —The racing days of the gallant Seabiscuit are ended. He ran his last and greatest race when he captured the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap on March 2. He is now retired.

A brief but formal announcement yesterday by wealthy Charles S. Howard, his owner, wrote finis to the career of this turf idol.

Seven years old, courageous contender in more than 80 races, once an ignored workhorse claimed for only $7,500, now the greatest all-time money winner in the history of the sport; once a plater, now a king—that is the story of Seabiscuit. Now he'll graze on his master's California ranch, far from the turf wars.

Seabiscuit, said Mr. Howard, has earned retirement with his purse winning record of $437,730, set in the triumph of th $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Champ Sculler Starts Early Training

World champion singles sculler Joe Burk, chops through the ice along the bank of Rancocas creek at Bridgeboro, N.J., before rowing downstream for his first practice session of the season. Burk will defend his world title, his U.S. national championship title, his Canadian championship and the diamond sculls during the coming season.

Rangers, Bruins Start 2-Game Flurry

Two of the greatest hockey clubs in history start at Boston tonight a two-game flurry that will all but determine the National league championship.

Boston's world champions of 1938-39, the Bruising Bruins, will take on New York Rangers, who have gained a one-point advantage in the strictly two-team race for the league title and the Prince of Wales trophy. The clubs will meet again at New York Thursday, when the Rangers will end their schedule and the Bruins will be left with one game to play.

Nothing quite like this climax to the schedule has come along in recent years. Such a situation wasn't possible for many seasons, when the N.H.L. was divided into two sections and the league championship was determined in the first round of the Stanley Cup series.

To observers it is a meeting of a big, rugged team that pile-drives its way to goals and a pretty-passing array of puck artists. The Bruins are the deliberate, hammer-and-tongs type and the Rangers, though their record of penalties doesn't indicate it, are more at home in smooth going.

Despite the departure of the great Eddie Shore, Boston still has a stern, hard-hitting defence in front of its sensational sophomore goaltender, Frank Brimsek. A major calamity has struck, however, in a fractured cheek-bone suffered by Captain Dit Clapper Saturday night in a game with New York Americans.

The Rangers have the goalie with the year's best record, Dave Kerr, and a crew of rushing defencemen led by Captain Art Coulter and Ott Heller. The young wizards of the forward lines, with Right Winger Bryan Hextall and Rookie Kilby MacDonald, in starring roles, were mainly responsible for the Rangers' league record of 19 straight games without defeat this season.

CAMP BRIEFS

By The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif., March 12. —(AP).—The Athletics' "injury jinx" has connected with Benny McCoy, the $45,000 beauty, but not too seriously. The rookie second sacker was struck on the Adam's apple by a batted ball in pre-game practice yesterday but wasn't badly hurt. Sam Chapman and Bob Johnson are the other Athletics on the sick list.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.— If the start is any indication, New York Giants are due to get some real fighting this season from their top-flight pitchers, Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher and Bill Tohrman set the St. Louis Cardinals down with three hits and three unearned runs yesterday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Although their record of 24 strike-outs in three exhibitions hardly looks like the usual Yankee performance, New York's world champions are beginning to take on the appearance of the 1939 club. Babe Dahlgren made his first appearance against the Reds yesterday and Joe DiMaggio reached camp in time for a workout.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—Manager Frankie Frisch of Pittsburg's Pirates has begun to pay more attention to his pitchers, whose training so far has been designed to get them into condition and who haven't been bearing down. Frankie has expressed satisfaction with the work of Rip Sewell, Joe Bowman, Dick Lanahan and big Russ Bowers.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—Bob Feller will do his first pitching of the spring season to-morrow in Cleveland Indians' fourth intersquad game. He is scheduled to work three innings, which counts him out for Thursday when the Tribe opens its exhibition program against Syracuse.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

Tonight at eight in the Brock St. palais d'ice, the two Industrial Hockey League finalists tangle in the first of their two-in-three playoffs for the loop title. It's Quaker Oats vs. the Packers, and what a battle that should be! Heading the field all the way through the schedule, the Cereal Builders entered the stretch — if we may be permitted to get racy—strong favorites over Westclox, Marines, et al. But a dark hoss, called Canada Packers, began to pick 'em up and lay 'em down right rapidly at the three-quarter post and now comes down the stretch in a neck-an'-neck race. They'll flash a lot of class and speed in this final drive, and the tilt deserves a good-sized gang of cash customers.

Let's sprinkle a little water in the dry-as-dust column today. A big interscholastic swim tourney is being lined up for the Y.M. pool on April 5th, and it's open to all school boys in the city. Gord Minty and Ham. Gosse represent the "Y", with Ernie Wolff as representative of the three Separate Schools. Others are Percy Windrim of Prince of Wales, Don Crawford of King Edward, G. C. Northey of King George, Don Munro of Central, E. Frost of Queen Alex, E. G. Wagar of Queen Mary, Jack Thexton of Confederation and Bill Wedlock of May's. The meet will be an annual affair henceforth and possible some 200 will compete. A big thing and a fine idea to promote interest in swimming among the kids and organized sports competition among the schools.

A Big Splash Meet

Entries for this monster meet close April 1st. There will be a shield for the school winning on points, a silver medal for each first-place competitor and a bronze for second-place. Also medals for the relay winners. Events include medley relay, various free style swims for different ages, ditto with breast strokes and back strokes, open race, junior and intermediate diving, free style relay and an exhibition by the "Y" senior team. More about it again.

Latest dope on the round-robin puck playoffs is that the Port Colborne Incos plan to drop out of the series after the Petes visit there next Tuesday. They're nursing two losses now and not drawing beans at the gate, so will fold up. But not until they get one more home gate—with the Petes in Port Colborne next week—in order to help cover the cost of their trip here some time ago. Which is fair enough, we suppose, and the O.H.A. will likely toss out the wins the Petes and Greenshirts have over the Incos, when the latter drop out. But it seems to us the Petes would be smart in offering the Incos a hundred bucks or even more, instead of spending over that amount to make a long tiresome trip there, and possibly risk player injury as well.

Back On Top Again

Back in the canary's perch today the Petes are again warbling a victory tune, after grabbing a 7-4 round-robin win here last eve o'er Owen Sound Trappers. Before about 1,700 frenzied fans —a good crowd for a Monday night, especially when the Sounders had been here and beaten before. But last night's Trappers were 53¾ per cent tougher than the Owen Sound bunch that lost 6-0 on local ice some weeks back—oh, but yes! They skated right with the Petes all evening and fed Goalie Ray Harding enough black licorice to make him a very sick lad, indeed, if Ray were the type to get sick easily. He isn't, and again performed in lovely fashion to be the main factor in the Petes' win. Yep, the O.S. outfit will be tougher to take on home ice than castor oil.

* * * * * *

It was a streamlined honey of a tussle, one that jerked roar after roar from the customers. Following play from end to end as it shuttled back and forth in meteor rushes kept one's head swinging like a style expert's in an Easter parade. Play was very, very fast—that's what we mean—and almost spotlessly clean. The Petes earned the nod but by only a slight margin, as the Trappers were out to win or bust out in a rash and at no time could the local speed-merchants relax or coast. It was surprising how the pace kept up. One of the best puck matches we've seen all season, including the Kitchener contest.

* * * * * *

Ray And Bun Star

In our book, Harding and Kingdon were the pick of the Petes. Bun was in on four goals and should have had a few more with some nice skating and stickwork. Harding—like the other goalie—was on the jump all evening and sparkled between the pipes. At times, our forwards were a bit disorganized in their passing, but it was a fast game with some nice back-checking shown. Our defence worked hard but we've seen 'em look a bit better. Not criticizing, we mean, but we've seen the classy Petes click a trifle better in all departments—barring goal—over an entire game. Ellis was the best rushing defenceman, while Jack Jopling, Blewett, Coughlin and the others turned in some smart hockey. Poor Red Creighton gets pressing when playing 'gainst his former buddies and can't show his real form. Smith and Nicholl shone for the Sound gang, with Dahmer good in goal and Sutton and McConachie also standing out.

* * * * * *

Many figured that the Trappers were robbed of at least one goal when the referee called a counter back for off-side. It happened twice and we believe the ref. was right the first time but that he missed the second altogether. Didn't look the slightest bit offside to us. However, on the other duke, a lot of folks in the balcony would swear that Goalie Dahmer jerked a puck, which slid an inch over the goal-line, out ere it was spotted—and thus the Petes were gypped of one. Another time, the Trappers argued a local gee was in the crease when a goal was scored. Again, on the other hand, Eddie Starr had his shoulder injured to end the first frame and did not return—so that weakened the Buckland bunch. Yep, 'twas a tight, exciting game, and the return go in the Sound tomorrow will be sweeter than a tank of maple syrup, we imagine.

Junior Series Is Tied Up In Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 12 (ENS). — The first game in the Senior Church League playoffs was played here last night with Murray Street defeating All Saints 6-3. Murray Street got two goals in the first, Dundas and Barnes scoring, while All Saints failed to find the net. In the second Murray Street counted three more, Hopcroft counting two on brilliant plays and Padgett one. All Saints scored twice this period, McDougall and King tallying. In the final period both teams scored, Dundas for Murray Street and Abraham for All Saints. The next game of this series will be played in the Lakefield Arena on Friday, March 15, at nine.

The teams:

All Saints — Goal, Lacy; defence, King, McDougall; centre, Reid; wings, Abraham, Brown; subs., Reid, Livingstone.

Referee — J. Dunkerley, Peterborough.

Mark Street Won.

The second game of the Junior Church League was played here last night with Mark Street winning out over Park Street 4-3 to tie the series at one game apiece. Play was fast and clean throughout, with only a few penalties being handed out. Mark Street, led by Eason, carried the play the better part of the game, while under the disadvantage of having no subs. Goal-getters were Eason three and Baker one for Mark Street, while Ainslie got two and Herbert Campbell one for Park Street.

The teams:

Park Street—Goal, Ainslie; defence, Harold Campbell, Martin; centre, Jobe; wings, Cox, Herbert Campbell; subs., McDermott, J. Ainslie, Kidd.

Mark Street — Goal, Robinson; defence, Scriver, Agnew; centre, Eason; wings, Curtis, Baker; no subs.

Referee — J. Dunkerley, Peterborough.

By HERB MARTIN

Completely dominating the game from beginning to end, F. Batten's rink took a good hold on the club championship last night when they met and defeated F. Green's boys by 17-4. Those who expected to see a real fight were badly disappointed. So complete was the collapse of Green's rink that it turned out to be a joke towards the finish. And while Batten's boys were playing heads-up curling it must be said in all fairness to Green's rink that everything went wrong and haywire, the harder they tried, and they were trying, the worse things got. Maybe the viewing of Harry Foote's new trophy was too much for the Green quartette; if that be so, it certainly acted the other way on Batten's hired help. And such is curling.

The vice-skips' bonspiel got under way last night and will continue this evening with another double-header. The two best games were the Colbeck-Paget and the Hawley-Clark. In the first case it was all square coming home and Paget seemed to have the game well in hand, when Colbeck with his last stone played a little wide and bumped in a stone from the side to count one and the game. The Clark-Hamley affair, the smiling doctor was two up coming home. The end went all against him and when Hamley came to play his last stone he had the game tied —he elected to play an out-turn draw to the button, and he did, put it right on the two-foot ring, and won the game by one shot. Mr. Hamley now carries on—exit Dr. Clark.

Weill Swaps Jenkins-Ambers Tilt For Return Godoy-Louis Bout

NEW YORK, March 12 — (AP). — Monsieur Armand Weill, better known as Al, stuffed a fighter into each of the upper pockets of his large checked westkit, stuck a cigar in the corner of his mouth, and went up to trade with "Uncle Mike" Jacobs the other day.

The reason was that Lew Jenkins, the larruping lightweight from Sweetwater, Texas, had just flattened Tippy Larkin, and Uncle Mike wanted to give him a shot at the title held by Lou Ambers, who is managed by M. Armand.

Now Arturo fought Joe Louis a few weeks back and went 15 rounds with the Bomber. Those 15 rounds were most uncomfortable for the heavyweight boss that evening. He was a mighty baffled young man by the Chilean's clowning style.

Since that time, Uncle Mike has said he wasn't contemplating a return match for Godoy with the Bomber. At one point, he said, he didn't like Godoy's style. The general belief here and there, however, is that it wasn't Mike so much as Louis and his fistic "family" who wanted no more of the South American way.

Some Give and Take.

So, with Ambers in demand, Weill figured he and Mike could get together on a little give and take in the matter.

"Sure, I'll give you Ambers for a May 10 or May 17 fight with Jenkins," M. Armand offered, "but I want Louis for a fight this summer with Godoy."

This was a new one on Uncle Mike, so he left that afternoon for his cabana on the shores of Miami Beach. But before he took off, he told Weill he was always willing to trade when it couldn't do any harm to the Jacobs' pocketbook.

So the report went around to-day that Ambers and Jenkins would get together in May, and that Godoy would have his chance at the head man in July.

PETES GAIN FIRST PLACE IN THE ROUND-ROBIN PLAYOFF SERIES

Locals Beat Owen Sound Trappers By A 7 to 4 Puck Score In Fast O.H.A. Intermediate Tilt

Yanking out a 7-4 win over Owen Sound Trappers here last night, the Petes swept into undisputed possession of first place in the O.H.A. intermediate "A" round-robin series standing. It was their third win in four starts of the playoff series as the locals kept fighting toward a provincial championship.

Some 1700 excited fans watched a lightning fast exhibition of hockey with the locals earning the nod by a narrow margin. They looked about two goals better on the night's play but were crowded all the time by a scrappy Trapper outfit. Play was exceptionally fast over the route and quite clean. Only three penalties were drawn, for minor mishaps, all going to the homesters.

The score was 2-1 for the Buckland bunch in the first inning and 5-2 for them going into the third. The visitors ganged up part of the final frame and held their own on the score sheet. Eddie Starr, Petes' captain, suffered an injury to his shoulder late in the first period and was lost to them for the rest of the game. Both sides were fairly flying all through and the crowd was kept in an uproar. While the Petes turned in a good game, they appeared a bit disorganized in their passing at times.

Ray and Bun

Outstanding for the winners were Ray Harding in goal and Bun Kingdon on the attack. Both played brilliant hockey all the time with the goalie spectacular time and again to rob his opponents, and Kingdon in on four goals. Blewett, J. Jopling, Tompkins and Ellis were in on two goals apiece, and the whole gang worked their heads off in a fine showing. Nicholl and Smith stood out for the visitors up front, with Sutton and McConachie almost as good, and the goalie playing a neat game.

Right from the start it was hot and even, both squads stepping on the gas and keeping the goalies on the jump. Crowe pulled a dangerous rush and Tompkins got in for two nice tries as the local first line pressed. When Crowe went off for tripping, the Sound squad tore in hard but Kingdon counted a nice goal on a fast breakaway and backhand shot at close range. He and Tompkins nearly got another, but with Crowe back play was even again. Near the end of the heat, Crowe rapped home a rebound by Blewett as the goalie came out and blocked Joe's shot. Nicholl got it right back on Smith's pass in close before the finish.

Petes' Edge

Kingdon scored on Ellis' pass on a fine rush early in the middle session and Heal came close right afterward. Smith scored from Nicholl in a scramble shortly to make it 3-2 but the Petes showed a slight edge the rest of the fast, thrilling stanza. Harding came out to rob Shears and Crowe split the defence but missed the goal. Shears scored but it was offside and Kingdon nearly got one in close. Harding thefted Red Creighton neatly and both goalies were busy. Tompkins was gated for cross-checking and the visitors peppered Harding but could not beat him. Sutton broke loose over the line and tallied as Ray came out, but it was called back for offside—many thinking the referee missed this one. With all back, the Petes rapped in two more, J. Jopling scoring from Tompkins nicely at close range and Heal getting another in a scramble, Ellis and Kingdon aiding. The visitors argued that Ellis was in the crease. The latter was waved away for interference a minute later but Harding held the fort, despite a hot attack, till his return just before the bell.

Four Sound puckists went on the attack early in the third but the locals counted first when J. Jopling —who kept battling—banged one home on Blewett's passout. Small got it right back on Shears' pass at Harding's doorstep. The visitors kept pressing in the hot going but the Petes' first line came close and later Coughlin got through for a swell thrust. Blewett apparently scored, as many thought, but it was not counted, either the puck not going over the line or the goalie jerking it out after before the referee saw it. An Ellis-Tompkins rush was close and the Trappers had five men on the attack near the finish. Kingdon got the Petes' last goal on a perfect passout from Tompkins who circled the net after a fast dash down the left boards. Sutton scored on Shears' in-close pass just before the final bell to make it 7-4.

The teams:

Trappers: Goal, Dahmer; defence, Campbell and Small; centre, Smith; wings, Nicholl and Creighton; alternates, Hutchinson, Madison, Sutton, Shears, McConachie and Blair.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Ellis and Gardner; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Heal; alternates, F. Jopling, Crowe, Starr, Coughlin, Blewett and J. Jopling.

Referee, Mike Rodden of Toronto

Yanks Beat Reds As Proof They Still Can

TAMPA, Fla., Mar. 12 — (AP).—Those who wondered last fall how long the Cincinnati Reds and New York Yankees could have gone on playing the World Series before the Reds won a game had the question partially answered, at least, when the champs poured it on again in an exhibition battle here yesterday, 8 to 7.

That made it five in a row for Joe McCarthy's crew over the National Leaguers, and, although they did not treat Ernie Lombardi like a tackling dummy this time, the Yanks otherwise displayed about the same margin of superiority as they did in the big autumn bust.

They gave the impression that they could win whenever they pleased. They still are the best, and there isn't a club in training to-day with any real hope of beating them out either in the American League race or in the 1940 World Series.

NorwoodHornets Eliminate Micmacs 6-1

HAVELOCK, Mar. 12 (ENS). — Having definitely set their course for the T.V.L. finals regardless of the obstacles which have insisted on cropping up, the aggressive Norwood Hornets brushed aside their first line of opposition on Monday night at Norwood Arena, when they eliminated the Madoc Micmacs by a 6-1 count, in a rather one-sided fixture.

Now that they have won this third and deciding tilt with Madoc, Alex Kempt's crew will be forced to meet the Stirling Shells in a sudden-death encounter, the winner of which will enter the final series with the Campbellford Sunocos for the Trent Valley League championship. The all-important Stirling battle will be fought on neutral ice to-night at Davidson's Arena in Campbellford. Should the Hornets emerge successfully from this meeting, the first game of the concluding round will be played in the Milltown either on Wednesday or Thursday, with the second in Norwood on Friday evening.

With peace reigning again in the Hornets' camp, following a temporary shakeup due to disagreeable playoff conditions, the Norwood squad attacked their opponents with a vengeance last night. So much so, in fact, that Percy Naylor's boys had little chance to hope for victory. Had it not been for the inspired performance of Ken Martin the Micmacs' astounding netminder, the Hornet score might easily have been doubled or even tripled. With the odd exception the play was continually confined to the Madoc zone, and Martin was peppered with rubber from all angles.

Hill opened the scoring after but a minute of play in the initial stanza, when he combined with Red Webb for the only goal of this session. On three occasions this period the homesters enjoyed the odd-man advantage when Stewart, Larone, and Keller spent time in the cooler.

The Micmacs were awarded a penalty shot early in the middle frame when Akey was tripped by Rod Webb on a breakaway. The light flashed as Emery took the shot, but Referee LeBarr ruled that the puck had not entered the cage, which occasioned considerable opposition from Madoc and resulted in a misconduct penalty to Larone. Still pressing, Norwood increased their lead when W. Rogers, standing right on the doorstep, batted home Aboud's drive. Neatest goal of the game was notched by Hill toward the end of the period, when he grabbed the puck from Rothwell near the Madoc blueline, evaded the defence and circled in front of the net to draw out Martin and deposit the puck.

A little over two minutes in the final canto, Hill added Norwood's fourth counter. For the next few minutes Madoc threatened and finally at the six-minute mark Stewart combined with Gilman for their one and only marker of the game. The former slapped this one home with McMaster lying on his back, after having just made a brilliant stop. A Madoc penalty to Heyworth for tripping Puffer resulted in another Norwood goal, Pep Rogers banging home Hill's pass. Hawthorne of the visitors was off also aw O'Leary grabbed the puck from a faceoff in a Madoc corner and slid the rubber by Martin for the Hornets' sixth and last tally.

McMaster and Hill earned the largest share of honors, which were otherwise fairly well distributed among the other members of the Norwood lineup. For the losers, Martin was the outstanding star, with Keller, Akey, Heyworth the most serious therat to the winners.

The teams:

Madoc — Goal, Martin; defence, Emery, Larone; centre, Keller; wings, Akey, Heyworth; alternates, McKibbon, Stewart, Gilman, Hawthorne, Vance.

Norwood — Goal, McMaster; defence, R. Webb, Rothwell; centre, Puffer; wings, Hill, P. Rogers; alternates, Brady, Aboud, W. Rogers, O'Leary, W. Webb, Gill.

Referee — Lou LeBarr, Peterborough.

Idaho Jail Nine Pop Tour Idea

BOISE, Idaho, March 12.—(AP)—Having wound up spring training with a burst of over-the-wall home runs, the Idaho State prison baseball nine is itching for an exhibition tour. Warden P. C. Meredith thinks it may not be such a bad idea.

"There would be, possibly, a maximum of 14 men who would go," Meredith wrote to secretary of state George Curtis, member of the prison board.

"We could arrange for a couple of guards to make these trips with the boys, either on a Saturday or Sunday."

Meredith's potential schedule would include games in a half-dozen or more southern Idaho cities.

Candidates Hold Joint Meeting In Marmora Hall

MARMORA, March 12—(By Staff Reporter)—Fireworks were expected at Marmora on Monday when a joint meeting of Liberal and Conservative supporters was held in the Town Hall but the crowd was orderly and official nominations verified the fact that it would be a straight fight between Rork Ferguson, Liberal and George S. White, Madoc carrying the National Conservative banner.

More than three hundred jammed the hall, and at two o'clock the time set for the close of nominations, J. Sabine, returning officer, warned the gathering that three policemen were in attendance to handle any person who became unruly, and he quoted a section of the Election Act dealing with disturbances at political meetings.

One hour was allotted to each party and both sides arranged their time so that rebuttal would be possible. Reeve N. R. Linn of Marmora was chairman.

Rork Ferguson, Norwood, was the first speaker and he gave an account of his stewardship as member. He said that he had obtained a new post office at Stirling, costing $15,000, one at Havelock costing $13,000 and that Marmora had its post office repaired. Norwood post office was already in good shape. Over $30,000 had been spent in the district on mining camp roads, and a large fish hatchery had been built at Deer River. A radio beam costing $65,000 had been built at Hubbels Hill. "I have helped scores of young people to obtain positions in large cities and have tried to assist everyone regardless of religion or politics." He added that mail service from Belleville to Bancroft and to Maynooth and Apsley had been improved.

U.S. Trade Treaty

"If it had not been for the farm members from Central Ontario, farmers would not have got the benefits they had received." He pointed out that shortly after the last election farmers received nearly triple the amount they had previously been paid for cattle and this was due chiefly to favorable trade treaties made with the United States.

He added that in his opinion there were only four real statesmen in Canada in recent years, R. B. Bennett, Mackenzie King, Hon. Ernest Lapointe and Senator Meighen.

"This is the most important vote you will ever cast and I must stress the great need for unity at this critical time."

Premier Is "Anti-British."

Mr. White, National candidate, lashed out in a bitter denunciation of Mackenzie King and the work of the King administration relating to the present war. He dubbed the Premier as "anti-British." Said he "ran away to the United States during the last war" and "scuttled parliament to prevent investigation of war contracts and patronage in this war."

"There is an election now because Premier King pulled a sharp political trick and hoped to get a snap judgment from the electors. English parliament welcomes criticism but King scuttled parliament and ran away. There were 65 questions listed on the debate by the Conservative party which were never published and which Mr. King would have had to answer if parliament had not been dissolved. These questions dealt with the shortage of clothing for the soldiers, war contracts, and patronage."

Mr. White further charged that our free parliamentary institutions are an issue in this election and compared Mr. King to Hitler, in so much as he had "gagged the radio, censored the press and scuttled parliament," gradually taking away our free institutions. I am a war veteran and the war veterans will not allow Mr. King to gag us."

He described the Defence of Canada Regulations as "stupid and absurd and would never be tolerated for a minute in England." Mr. White said he would speak his mind and would gladly defend himself in any court if brought there because of any remarks he might make.

A few of his specific charges were that the King Government had not kept their promise to initiate unemployment insurance, that Minister of Defense Rogers was not a military man but a professor of economics, and that Canadian soldiers were ill equipped when they left Canada.

"I know that the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was equipped with the stuff we brought back from France. This equipment has laid in the armouries at Madoc, Peterborough and elsewhere since 1919 and has been used for drill. They had four old Lewis guns which had been at Madoc and were absolutely obsolete. Not one man had a steel helmet."

"Each battalion should have 52 Bren guns but I doubt if there are 12 in Canada.

"Premier King is anti-British, he fled to the States during the last war, and he refused to spend $25,000 for dredging at Halifax so that the battleship Hood might dock and refuel. He refused to co-operate with Great Britain in the air scheme in 1937 and now refuses to co-operate with any other party."

Outlining the Conservative program Mr. White said they would abolish the radio license fee, oppose conscription, seek to regain the British market for Canada and set up a livestock board.

He further stated they would give every man an opportunity to enlist, form a national government from all parties and make use of the valuable experience of the war veterans.

He charged that the mail service to Bancroft was highly unsatisfactory.

"Ninety per cent of the men in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and 98 per cent of the officers are Conservatives, 42 men came from the north country to enlist and 41 were Conservatives," he said.

"Where do you get those figures?" queried a voice from the audience.

"I am an officer in that regiment myself," was the answer.

Mr. White also stated that soldiers in this regiment got their battle rompers on the day before they sailed.

T. J. Carley, K.C., of Peterborough, speaking on behalf of Rork Ferguson, described Rork Ferguson as an honest man and said, "If there ever was a riding that should be represented by a dyed-in-the-wool farmer it is this one."

"The Conservatives have run three elections on King's war record, and three times the Canadian people have said emphatically that they don't want that kind of dirt. In my opinion speeches like the one just made by Mr. White should be censored."

"Premier King called an election because of the wave of criticism. He trusted the people so he went to the people."

Dr. Manion's policy seems to be if you throw enough dirt some of it will stick. His colleagues keep repeating statements long after they have been contradicted. They say King scuttled Parliament, but Dr. Manion did a good job of scuttling the good old Conservative Party

Mr. Carley quoted three prominent Conservatives, Col. Donald Sutherland, W. S. Givens, former editor of the Kingston Standard, and J. H. Burnham as being angry over the scuttling of the old party and are now applauding the efforts of the King Government.

Answering that criticism against the Hon. Norman Rogers, Mr. Carley said Mr. Rogers is a first-class military man, and one who enlisted as a buck private in the last war. He added that Col. Ralston was another Liberal with a fine war record.

"In 1917 Sir Robert Borden ran as a Union Government and he named every man who was to be in the Cabinet. The people knew who would be governing the country. On the other hand, Dr. Manion has not named one member of his mythical National Government Cabinet."

"Premier King has appointed General McNaughton, a former Conservative, to head the Canadian forces overseas, and he named Wallace Campbell, another Conservative, to head the Purchasing Board. There has not been a political appointment since the war began."

"We are a peace loving people, we are not sword rattlers, and when war broke out we had sufficient military equipment for our needs in peace time, including 50,000 uniforms. Three weeks after war had been declared manufacturers were turning out underwear as fast as was possible. Since the very beginning the Liberal Government has prosecuted the war in an efficient and thorough manner.

Canada copied her Defence of Canada Regulations from Britain. It is true Britain has changed them and the Canadian regulations will also be changed by the King Government. I don't care what your politics are, if a man does not censor his own talk, he should have someone do it for him.

We would have had unemployment insurance to-day if the Premier had been able to keep Mitch Hepburn in his stall, and it will come yet."

Mr. Carley said there were fewer on relief to-day than at any time during the past ten years, and statistics showed that more people were employed now than at any other time in the country's history. He cited the Dominion Housing Act as one of the fine pieces of legislation that helped make work.

"Let Mr. White base his election on the charge that Mackenzie King is anti-British and I am confident in the fairness of the Canadian people who don't want to hear that said about any political leader."

"George White may know the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, but I doubt very much if he or anyone else can tell what percentage of the men are Conservatives. He should blush for shame trying to make capital out of this regiment. I could name several regiments where the reverse is true, but that's not the point. We are all in this fight together, and I say that statement is unworthy of any candidate."

Max Swanston of Peterborough and Dr. H. E. Welsh, M.P.P., of East Hastings were the timekeepers during the meeting.

Otto, Heir To Lost Throne, Seeks Confederation Of European States

In the United States today is a handsome, mustached young man who hopes to win American support for a "United States of Central European States." He is the Archduke Otto von Hapsburg, scion of what was once Europe's most powerful ruling family and heir to the vanished throne of Austria. Despite the breaking up of the old Austro-Hungarian empire, the reduction of Austria to a mere city state, the establishment of a republic and its subsequent absorption by Adolf Hitler into the expanding German Reich, Otto's mother, the former Empress Zita, continued to hope for a Hapsburg restoration and seeing Otto as emperor.

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation named 96, concentrating its strength in Ontario and the Prairie Provinces. Twenty-eight New Democracy candidates, 17 of them in Alberta, composed the fourth substantial group which included many Social Credit members of the last House.

It was a nomination day without major surprises. Party leaders were nominated as expected: Prime Minister King in Prince Albert; Dr. Manion in Fort William; J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, in Winnipeg North Centre; J. H. Blackmore, leader of the Social Credit group in the last House, in Lethbridge.

Herridge in Lists

The founder of the new democracy movement, Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian minister to Washington, entered the lists in the Saskatchewan constituency of Kindersley This is his first attempt to win an elective office.

Canadian troops in England, who have missed the fanfare of the political campaign at home, will cast their votes between March 14 and 23. The official list of candidates was cabled overseas during the night and will be posted at Aldershot and elsewhere for the information of members of the Canadian active service force and of the 110th squadron of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The overseas vote is expected to total about 25,000 in the men all exercise the franchise. Members of the active service force in Canada are to vote between March 16 and 23 and, like the troops overseas, will vote for candidates nominated in their own constituencies.

Nominations brought into the political arena several noted newcomers to election combat, including Dr. Herbert A Bruce, former Lieutenant-governor of Ontario who is running in Toronto Parkdale as National government candidate.

Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, former Conservative Premier of Saskatchewan, entered the contest in Rosetown-Biggar where his opponents are M. J. Coldwell, foremost campaigner for the C.C.F., and R. P. Hassard, Liberal. Dr. Anderson is a National Government supporter.

Two Athletes Out

Two star athletes were in the field. Sylvanus Apps, Toronto's great National Hockey League player, was named government candidate in his home constituency of Brant. His opponent is G. E. Wood, Liberal member. Fred Hoblitzell, Liberal, former Ontario amateur golf champion, opposes R. L. Baker, National Government, in Toronto Eglinton.

Hero of an Arctic rescue more than 10 years ago, Col. C. D. H. MacAlpine, mining man and prospector, was nominated National Government candidate in Victoria, Ontario. MacAlpine and seven companions were rescued in 1929 after their plane grounded and they spent several weeks far inside the Arctic Circle.

Sons of famous Parliamentarians were named in Quebec and Ontario constituencies. Huges Lapointe, son of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, runs in Lotbiniere as a Liberal while his father seeks re-election in Quebec East. H. C. Guthrie, son of the late Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Conservative Minister of Justice, is National Government candidate in Wellington South.

Douglas Stewart was in the Ontario Reformatory when his nomination papers as Independent candidate were filed in Toronto Trinity. Stewart, former editor of the banned Communist newspaper, the Clarion, is serving a minimum sentence of six months for prejudicing recruiting.

Stewart faces distinguished opposition in Trinity, his opponents being Arthur W. Roebuck, Liberal, former Ontario Attorney-General, and Hon. G. R. Geary, member of the R. B. Bennett Conservative cabinet prior to this 1935 general elections.

second stage with the visit of newspapermen to the school, where on invitation of Hon. Norman Rogers, minister of national defence, they were permitted to question the staff and personnel. Premier Hepburn, who engaged in protracted debate with Mr Rogers over the authenticity of his charges, declined an invitation to visit the school, completed last year as a provincial mental hospital and offered to the Dominion government on the outbreak of war.

Three Days for Roundup

"I believe it is true that between 200 and 300 men of the training school on Feb. 10 marched into St. Thomas and that it took military police three days to round up all who were absent without leave," Commissioner Stringer's report said.

Cecil Snyder, Deputy Attorney-General of the province, aided in conducting the investigation under the Constables Act and questioned 17 witnesses. Then he asked Mr. Stringer to "find that there was a walkout" and "to say that the Premier of Ontario was right in his statement and that the Minister of National Defence was wrong."

Advised of Mr. Stringer's finding at his farm home near the training school, Mr. Hepburn said: "The report backs up my statement in the fullest detail. It is a terrific indictment against a Minister of War in Canada that his carefully considered statement of denial should be proved false."

No Actual Violence.

The inquiry, strictly, was to determine under the Constables Act "if the situation in St. Thomas and Elgin county, by reason of alleged incidents there, necessitated the assignment of additional police officers in that area." Commissioner Stringer found that no "violence actually occurred" and deemed it unnecessary at present "to detail further civilian police officers to this area."

He ruled it was beyond his jurisdiction to inquire into the cause of the walkout, declared that "a matter solely within the jurisdiction of the Department of National Defence."

In his allegations last Tuesday, Mr. Hepburn charged that students at the school were fed-up and disgusted with doing nothing but shining door knobs and polishing floors."

Challenge To Rogers.

"It took the military authorities three days to round them all up and the censors warned local newspapermen that the story could not be published," he said, adding: "I challenge Rogers now to deny that there was a violent disturbance and that these young men were parading up and down the streets in protest against the lack of training at the school."

The commissioner found that airmen marched to a central location in St. Thomas and then dispersed, some remaining in the city and others "leaving without permission for points as far distant as Toronto." Military police, he reported, were active all through that week-end rounding up whatever men could be found in the St. Thomas area.

The hearing was strictly a civilian affair, although one airman in uniform came voluntarily to testify. The airman, J. A. Telfer, said he had been two months in the Air Force and had received no training in the trade of aero-mechanics for which he had enlisted. He took no part in the walkout and was at lunch when it occurred.

Citizens of St. Thomas, employees of the Ontario Government, Provincial police constables and newspaper reporters were the witnesses whose stories of seeing airmen marching into St. Thomas and talking to them on the streets and highways, were recounted before the commissioner.

saying that when I left political life he would leave, too."

No Chance of Election

The Premier said there was not the "slightest chance" of a provincial election in the near future merely because of Mr. Nixon's action.

Others in the Liberal fold were quick to express allegiance to Mr. Hepburn.

"I've got a job to do," said Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests. "And that job is looking after the forest resources of Ontario. I have no time for politics."

Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, declared: "I have no intention of resigning."

Mr. Nixon cleaned up his desk at Queen's Park yesterday after submitting his letter of resignation and making a statement to newspapermen. He will continue as member for Brant, the riding he has represented since 1919, but will devote more time to his farm.

His statement said Mr. Hepburn's "alliance" with Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, Conservative leader, was "particularly repugnant" to him. When the Premier and Col. Drew united in a vote of criticism of the extent of the Dominion Government's war effort, he said, "I realized the time had come for the parting of our ways."

Mr. Nixon said he had no apologies to make for voting for the resolution of criticism with the Premier and Col. Drew, saying it was introduced "without a moment's warning" and he felt obligated at the time to his political leader.

Since prorogation of the Legislature "matters have rapidly gone from bad to worse," Mr. Nixon said. He cited particularly the Premier's action in banning the March of Time film "Canada At War" from Ontario and ordering an inquiry into incidents at the Royal Canadian Air Force technical training centre near St. Thomas.

was also smashed and there were extensive bruises on his head and right leg. Death was due to shock, the result of his injuries.

The train was in charge of Conductor Roche, and Engineer Arthur Betts, both of Lindsay and the other members of the crew in addition to Bowhey were Fireman Harry Dawkins and Brakeman F. H. Gordon.

When the freight came into Peterborough it backed up the Lakefield line and picked up some cars there before proceeding to the station. It was on the way south that the accident happened. Apparently the only eye witness was a little girl, whose name the police were unable to ascertain.

Calls For Help

Stafford Sullivan, Simcoe street, taxi driver had stopped his car at Bethune street facing east on Charlotte street and the girl who saw Bowhey fall off the top of a car ran over to the taxi and told Sullivan of the accident and he hurried to Bowhey's assistance. At the same time Joe Cook, 481 Sherbrooke street, a millwright at the C.G.E. who was on his way to attend a night class at the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School, also arrived on the scene and after the injured man had been removed to the side of the track Cook applied a tourniquet with his scarf around the mangled leg. Cook afterward went to the hospital with the victim and assisted there.

Wife Is Too Late

The police, doctors and an ambulance were called and Bowhey who had been given first aid by Dr. R. K. Magee was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where it was realized that his condition was critical. Mrs. Bowhey, wife of the injured man was notified and made a hurried trip to Peterborough, arriving at the hospital a few minutes after her husband's death.

"I didn't see the man fall off the train," Stafford Sullivan told The Examiner. "All I noticed was a light coming along the top of the train and I presume that was carried by Bowhey. The first thing I knew about the accident was when the little girl ran over to my taxi and told me that a man had been hurt."

Bowhey is survived by his wife and two children, residing in Lindsay.

There will be an inquest into the fatality.

Bottle Thrown From Car Police Declare

"I saw the car door open and shortly after I saw a bottle flying through the air and light in a snow bank on the west side of Park street," said Police Sergt. John Thompson in police court this morning in testifying for the crown in a charge against Martin McNee of the illegal possession of liquor.

Sergt. Thompson who was the first crown witness said that he was a police cruiser car early one morning with Constable Archie Menzies. The officers saw a taxi pulling away from the home of Max Vincent and they followed it down Park street. Near McDonnel street the bottle episode followed and after the taxi had turned on to McDonnel street it was stopped by the police and McNee was arrested. On the rear floor of the car witness found a bottle stopper.

A bottle containing several spoonsful of what the witness said smelled like whisky was produced by Sgt. Thompson who said that Constable Menzies had found it in a snow bank on Park street.

To W. J. Arthur Fair who defended McNee witness said that McNee had admitted throwing a bottle from the taxi but maintained that the bottle found was not the one.

"This is a common kind of whisky bottle; you see lots of those around the streets, don't you?" asked defence counsel.

"Not so many these days," replied the witness.

"You mean not so many as in the days when the Star used to be writing about the bottles on the highways," said Mr. Fair.

The case had not concluded when court adjourned for luncheon.

Insomnia

Abnormal wakefulness at night is often due to an irritated condition of the nervous system. When sleeplessness continues for a length of time the vitality is impaired and the sufferer becomes so tired and worn that every duty is a burden.

NERVE IRRITATION can result from constriction of nerves by tightened spinal muscles or by slight derangement of spinal segments. In case of insomnia this constriction is frequently found along the upper part of the neck. When this exists our treatments prove really effective because the nerves are relieved of irritation. Restful, refreshing sleep returns, and the body builds up.

We will gladly explain our work to you.

Chimney Fires Keep Men Busy

More than half a dozen chimney fires in Peterborough between noon Monday and noon Tuesday are evidence that pipes in many homes here are badly in need of cleaning, Fire Chief George Gimblett said today. He warned all householders that chimneys must be kept in proper condition and that violation of that law will lead to prosecution.

He believed the increased number of chimney fires reported was due to the sudden cold spell, coming at a time when pipes are apt to be dirty after a full winter's use.

One chimney fire this morning sent the entire brigade in answer. It was on George Street in a block of buildings, one of whose tenants is Burtol Cleaners, who sent in the alarm. The cellar below the shop was filled with smoke and the fire department answered the alarm with full fire fighting force because the nature of the outbreak was not known.

White Rally Is Held In Apsley

"Rork Ferguson only spoke for about three minutes at the nomination meeting in Marmora to-day; after that he had his 'Charlie McCarthy' do the talking for him," George White, National Government candidate in Hastings-Peterborough told a meeting in the Apsley Parish Hall Monday night.

Other speakers at the rally were T. P. Lancaster of Havelock and Gordon K. Fraser, National Government nominee in West Peterborough, who acted as chairman.

Mr. White charged that the King government had made it very awkward for a lot of soldiers to cast their votes by giving them furlough during the period in which voting is to take place in their units. As a result, unless the soldiers happen to be listed in their own riding or unless they travel to the headquarters of the nearest Active Service unit they would not have a chance to cast their ballots.

The National Government candidate also challenged the government on its war effort, declaring when had been caught unprepared when war broke out and had not succeeded in catching up the slack since.

In eulogizing Mr. White's qualifications as a representative of Hastings-Peterborough at Ottawa, T. P. Lancaster pointed out that the National Government candidate had served Canada well as a soldier in the last Great War.

Gordon K. Fraser in his address dealt especially with the youth movement, charging that the King government had done absolutely nothing for the youth of the land.

Voters' Lists Revised; Names Put On

If any electors residing in the city, and otherwise qualified by nationality go out to vote on Tuesday, March 26, and are refused ballots because their names are not on the voters' list, the fault must rest virtually entirely with themselves.

The government sent around enumerators to compile the list. Copies of it were displayed in public places, and for the first time printed copies of the names of the voters in each polling subdivision were sent to the residents in the subdivisions.

This information was sent into the homes, removing the necessity of persons going out to look at the draft copies published on posts and elsewhere to make sure that their names had not been omitted. Finally, for three days this week two revision officers are sitting for the purpose of adding to the list the names of persons who are entitled to vote but were overlooked during the preliminary enumeration.

Wednesday, March 13, will be the last day for the revision of the voters' list. W. F. Huycke, K.C., in the city council chamber and John A. Harstone in the chambers of Judge Smoke will sit from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night, with intermissions for lunch and supper.

Mr. Huycke received forty applications on Monday. Most of them were for corrections of names on the list. Fifteen names were added to the list and three this morning.

Sheriff Harstone had added around 140 names up to noon today. This comparatively large number was partly explained by the omission of residents on Murray Street east of George Street in the first stage of the work.

War Bulletins

Received By Examiner Over Canadian Press Leased Wire

PARIS—(AP)—Heavy gunfire was heard in Paris this morning, but several hours later the firing still was unexplained. There was no air raid alarm and no planes were seen.

Last night Paris was shaken by the thudding of anti-aircraft fire as searchlights picked out a plane, presumably German, over the capital area. There was no raid alarm, but radio stations shut down for a time to prevent hostile planes using their signals as a guide to the city.

BERLIN—(AP). — The German high command announced today that a French plane was shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

The complete communique:

"On the Western front, no special events.

"The Air Force reconnoitered over Eastern France. One French plane of the Poetz 63 type was shot down by anti-aircraft artillery."

LONDON—(CP). — The trawler Halifax was sunk in the North Sea today from an unexplained cause, its crew of nine being rescued by a sister ship, the Ipswich.

MELBOURNE — (CP-Reuters). — Treasurer P. C. Spender announced today that the Australian war loan amounting to £18,000,000 sterling has been subscribed and that the lists will be closed tomorrow.

THE HAGUE—(AP).—The Netherlands tanker Eulota, 6,236 tons, was sunk by an explosion last night near the south coast of England but her owners were advised today that the entire crew of 42 was rescued by a British warship.

Horticultural Plan To Discuss Gladioli

A. H. Downey of Long Branch is expected to attend the general meeting of the Horticultural Society on Thursday evening in the office of the Department of Agriculture. His address should be of special interest to those who favor the gladiolus, and will include colored slides of new varieties and views of the Canadian Gladiolus Society at Stratford last year. These slides have been shown only at a preview of the semi-annual meeting of the society and are for the use of affiliated societies of the C.G.S.

Delegates to the convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association will give a report on their trip. Members and friends are urged to attend this meeting.

FOURTEEN HOUSES

A partial survey of the city reveals that contracts have been let for fourteen new homes and applications for loans under the Dominion Housing Act are coming in every day. Indications are that when the snow goes building will be brisk in all parts of the city.

PLEADS GUILTY.

A Norwood man pleaded guilty in police this morning to creating a disturbance and was fined $5 and $3.75 costs after Chief Baker of Norwood had said there was nothing very flagrant about the case and that the man had not been drunk. The charge was the result of a street argument.

COMPLAINTS

Paperhangers, painters and plumbers are complaining that householders are postponing work that could be done more cheaply and conveniently right now. Many paperhangers are out of work but in a month will have so many calls they will be unable to handle them. They are hoping that a few housewives would decide to paper and paint this week.

CLEVER DANCERS.

Seven dancing pupils of Marion Perry Laird entertained at a 20th Century Club social evening on Monday in the Elite Night Club. They delighted the large gathering with a waltz tap and did a waltz clog as an encore. The pupils are Doreen Hogg, Winnie Land, Hilda Noble, Audrey Hogg, Irene Lewis, Marcelle Doogan and Isobel Detlor. J. A. Macdonald of Toronto and R. M. Glover were the speakers. Two films of motion pictures were shown by Roy Pitchford of the Roy Studio; one showed skiing at Nassau and Bethany.

WOMEN CONSERVATIVES.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Conservative Association was held at headquarters, George street, on Monday afternoon with the president, Mrs. J. H. Cridland in the chair. The meeting was addressed by Senator Iva C. Fallis and Gordon K. Fraser.

KEEP ROAD CLEAR.

Police complain that motorists refuse to keep the road clear when cruiser cars with the siren sounding come along. Monday night a police squad rushing to the accident on the C.N.R. at Charlotte and Bethune street had their progress blocked several times by cars refusing to give them a clear road.

IT'S DIFFERENT NOW.

The advent of motor transportation has changed political campaigns. Monday afternoon George White, National government candidate in Hastings-Peterborough, took part in a nomination day debate at Marmora and Monday night he had a meeting at Aspley many miles to the northwest. Getting around like that in a winter campaign in the old days would not even be dreamed of by the politicians.

GRADERS IN PICTURES

Alderman E. R. Wilson, chairman of the Board of Works, has arranged for a showing of motion pictures demonstrating the uses and operation of power graders in the council chamber Wednesday, March 13 at 7.30 o'clock. All the members are expected to attend in view of the intention of the Board to buy a new grader this season. Presumably any others who are interested will be welcomed.

Young Salesman Given Month

When his father declined to go his bond for good behavior, Gordon Phillips, 18, Toronto magazine salesman, was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning to a month's imprisonment in the county jail for the theft of $4.

Phillips had been remanded until today for sentence, after pleading guilty, in order to give him a chance to communicate with his family.

Today the father declined to sign a bond for suspended sentence "I think he should have some punishment," he told the court.

"It's just as I suspected," Magistrate Langley remarked. "This is probably not the first time this boy has been in trouble."

He then imposed a jail sentence on the prisoner.

Poultry Producers Are Offered Help

J. F. Francis of the poultry department of the Ontario Agricultural College was in the city today enquiring into the service of the local farm produce market. He said his visit was for the purpose of ascertaining whether his department could be of any practical assistance to the producers of poultry, especially in developing a demand among local consumers.

On the Kitchener market, one of the more enterprising in the province, all poultry must be drawn and cleaned before it is offered for sale.

In North York the market permits the sale of undrawn poultry, but they have a special department where poultry is drawn and cleaned, and on request is cut up and made completely ready for household use.

"Many young wives don't know how to prepare a chicken for instance, or they don't like the job, and the little extra accommodation for them is greatly appreciated," Mr. Francis said. "It is perhaps one of those conveniences which should be considered in the administration of a farm produce market."

Mr. Francis said that possibly some effort might be undertaken here to discuss with farmers the preparation of poultry for the market as a means of stimulating business.

OBITUARY

THOMAS J. BRENNAN

CAMPBELLFORD, March 12.—(ENS)—Following an illness of little more than a week Thomas Joseph Brennan, 71, died at his home here early Sunday morning. Mr. Brennan a native of Frankford, came to Campbellford 18 years ago and though he spent most of his life as a carpenter and building contractor. He was assistant pumping station operator at the town plant for the past eight years.

Following his marriage to Catherine Johnston in Stirling forty-four years ago, he lived for 26 years at Wellman's Corners where he worked as a carpenter and also for a time as cheesemaker at Plum Grove factory.

Surviving him besides his wife are three sons, Dennis of Fulton, N.Y.; Vincent of Glen Miller, and Donald of London, Ontario; and five daughters, Mrs. Harry Cassidy, Toronto; Mrs. D. O'Connell, Petrolia; Mrs. William Cain, Norwood; Mrs. R. Dunk, Toronto; Mrs. John Duff, Campbellford. One brother, William of Thorold also survives.

Requiem mass will be celebrated by Rev. J. V. McAuley from St. Mary's Church here on Wednesday morning and interment will be at St. Mary's cemetery.

Millbrook L.O.L. Install Officers

MILLBROOK, Mar. 12 (ENS). — L.O.L. No. 79 held its annual meeting on Friday at 8 p.m. in the local Lodge Hall, Brother Nathaniel Belch occupying the chair, and conducting the installation ritual. The officers for the current year are: W.M., Gro. William Francey; D. M., Bro. J. L. Byam; Chaplain, Bro. W. A. O'Brian; R.S., Bro. Johnston Rowland; Fin. Secretary, Bro. Speeches were made by a number of the visiting brethren from Fallis Line L.O.L. No. 40, and by the new officers before the Lodge was dismissed.

Women's Institute

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong extended the hospitality of her home, Union Street, for the March meeting of the Women's Institute, at 3 p.m. on Saturday, the president, Mrs. E. C. Richards, occupying the chair.

There were eighteen present, and in answer to the roll call, each member responded with a health fact, regarding the vitamins and other necessary ingredients supplied by different fruits and vegetables. Some time was spent in arranging for the dance in the Town Hall which the branch is sponsoring on March 18, with music supplied by Galloway's Orchestra of Bethany.

Mrs. W. H. Arfstrong, leader of the Junior Girls' Group, asked that the branch follow its usual custom and pay the board of the two delegates being sent to the annual conference at the O.A.C., Guelph, in May, the customary six dollars being voted; also that the Senior W. I. give donations toward the Country Store, and afternoon tea which the girls are holding in the Community Waiting Room on Saturday, March 23, and patronize the event by means of which the club is attempting to raise funds towards the delegates' expenses to Guelph.

Thirteen pairs of socks were brought in, and these, with a quilt now completed, will be donated to the local Red Cross branch; Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. T. G. Harkness finished the quilt. Miss Crystal Stewart, Reg.N., gave a demonstration of giving a sick person a bath in bed, and of massage, her sister, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, taking the part of the patient; the proper manner of making a bed was also shown.

This practical example of the topic for the day, "Health Education," led to a number of questions being asked, and was both informative and interesting, and Miss Stewart was warmly thanked for her contribution to the day's program.

Scores Pacifists

LONDON, Mar. 12 — (CP).—Too much learning has made some university professors mad, declared the Very Rev. L. E. Blackburne, Dean of Ely, criticizing those who hold pacifist views.

"I can understand a pacifist who says: 'I don't believe in fighting for anything under the sun,' and going to live on some island in the South Pacific," he affirmed. "But I can't understand a man living in England and holding views of that kind.' It is just pious, idiotic, humbug."

Youth Of Today Measured Up In Call To Arms

Young men of Canada have met the criticism of an older generation and answered with ringing conviction the charge of decadence that has been levelled against them, by the stirring way they have answered the call to high duty. So declared Rev. R. H. Howden of St. John's, Lakefield, and chaplain of the Grove School, speaking at the annual father and son banquet at George Street United Church last night.

Rev. Mr. Howden deplored the slurs that have been cast on the younger generation of today and declared it indicated a refusal by older people to understand the complexity that has come into living today, and in which youth is trying to grow to maturity. He said he was proud of the way in which young men, in the years of depression that have been upon the world, have answered the challenge of unemployment. They have refused to become bitter about their lot and now that their country needs them, they are responding in great numbers to service in a crusade against oppression.

He asked the boys to whom he was speaking to hold to their vision of a world where God and not might constitutes right, regardless of what may come, prosperity or the reverse, sorrow or joy. And he warned them to be prepared at the end of the war to establish a World Federation founded on a true spirit of understanding and sympathy. This conflict must go on, he declared, and he urged that unswerving loyalty be shown the Motherland by each person in this land so that liberty and decency may be maintained. For that end to be gained, and for the new world order at its conclusion each person must share in responsibility, he said. Every British subject in Canada must take his part.

Understanding Needed.

In his address, Rev. Mr. Howden stressed the importance of understanding between fathers and sons, between all the peoples and all the nations of the world. He warned parents against becoming too engrossed in their personal affairs to reach toward the sons' problems. The burden of lifting youth to high standards of character and citizenship does not fall on the church or the school entirely he said, although both those agencies were doing good work. The church and the school take for granted the assistance of the parents and without them their work is of little avail. Fathers are not doing their share unless they make their sons' interests their own, he claimed.

Fathers must pass on to their sons not only sound character but the experience they have gained through the years, he maintained.

He urged a closer co-operation between youth and fathers as the ideal for which to strive. Each generation has made its valuable contribution to the welfare of the world, yet that contribution could be greater if youth took advantage of the experience of those who had passed their way before them, and if parents did not scoff at the high enthusiasm of their sons, he said. By the fusion in spirit of the two generations there would be no limit to the accomplishment possible, he maintained. John Bradshaw moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

The lengthy program lasted until a few minutes before ten o'clock after a banquet that started at 6.30 and included a wide variety of entertainment. Chairman of the meeting was Rev. M. C. Parr, pastor, who left a sick bed to be on hand for the annual affair.

A sing-song led by V. Boorman opened the program and George Gatfield proposed the toast to the King. Following a few remarks by Rev. Mr. Parr, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church spoke briefly on behalf of visitors, expressing his appreciation for the kindly welcome always accorded him at George Street Church.

A feature of the musical program was a duet by Ernie Victor and Albert Crowe. Ernie Victor, member of the Salvation Army Junior Band, played an astonishing number of home-made instruments that even included a xylophone. Albert Crowe accompanied on a banjo.

A toast to father and son relations was proposed by Ken Burnham and replied to by H. G. Walker. Presentations were made by Ralph Burns to the oldest father present, the father with the greatest number of sons and grandsons present, the father giving evidence of having attended the earliest similar banquet in the church.

Robert Hardie was magician and astonished the fathers and sons alike. A contest between fifty fathers and fifty sons was waged. Mr. Stewart proposed a vote of thanks to the ladies of the church who had provided the dinner and Mrs. W. P. Hetherington, convener, who was presented with a bouquet as a token of appreciation, responded.

With the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," and the sounding of taps on the bugle by William Greatrix, the program closed.

A Good Sportsman

FRED MARSHALL, former game warden, calls attention to an article in the monthly bulletin of the Department of Game and Fisheries entitled The Game Warden Speaks.

"Sportsmen, through their clubs and periodicals, are frequently given an opportunity to list the virtues they consider essential for a good warden. If the game warden were given an opportunity to list the essentials of a good sportsman, they would probably run in this order: (1) Be as courteous to me as I am to you; (2) Display game and licenses without being asked when I identify myself; (3) Think of me as an aid to better hunting and fishing, rather than an obstacle to your hunting and fishing happiness.

Theft Of Trees Case Dismissed

"This is only a civil matter; it might not even be a good civil case," Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., said this morning in dismissing a charge against Delbert Crapp of Smith township of stealing trees to the value of over $25 from Richard Spencer of the same township.

Crapp was defended by Alex L. Elliott, K.C., while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. prosecuted.

Spencer said that there had been an agreement by which Crapp paid him $10 in each of two years for the wood on an acre of a woodlot owned by the complainant but that this winter accused had been ordered not to cut any more wood on Spencer's property In spite of that Spencer said that Crapp had cut 35 or 40 cords during the present winter.

To Mr. Elliott witness admitted that Crapp had offered to pay him $5 for the wood cut this winter but added that that was "after he had been pulled."

Crapp in his own defence said that he had entered into an agreement with Spencer by which he was to pay the complainant $25 for the wood on four acres and was to have three years in which to do the cutting. In the other two years he had paid $10 in advance.

Magistrate Langley said that the case should not have been brought into police court at all; it was a matter for the civil courts.

Mail-It-Away Edition Draws Praise

LAKEFIELD, March 12—(ENS)—"It pays to advertise in the Examiner Mail-it-Away edition," was the comment made by Reeve Gordon Scriver at the regular meeting of the Lakefield council in the council chamber Monday evening. A letter from Ackerman's Sportsmen's Guide asking an advertisement brought forth some discussion as to the best results obtained from different forms of advertising.

A large checkerboard sign will be placed at the west end of Queen street where five persons lost their lives last summer when the car in which they were riding plunged over the bank of the runway into the water.

Stop signs will also be put at streets opening on Water street.

Fire Chief A. H. Clark was present and addressed the meeting re fire brigade matters.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL

Mrs. Everett Birdsall of Birdsall, Asphodel, has returned home from Kingston, where she spent a week with her uncle, Mr. W. C. Kent.

Members of the Dominion Executive and City W.A. branches joined in Corporate Communion this (Tuesday) morning at 9.30 in St. John's Anglican Church. Tonight at eight o'clock there is to be an open meeting for W.A. groups at All Saints' Church.

Norman Lowes of Bethany, pupil of Miss Helen Patton, A.T.C.M., has been successful in obtaining with honors the recent examinations in Grade Two Theory conducted recently by the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Brown of 35 Crescent Street are today quietly observing the thirty-eighth anniversary of their wedding.

Mrs. E. H. Bartlett will be hostess tonight at a meeting of the Art Study Club. A paper on the Riccardi Palace and the Medici will be given by Mrs. R. E. Cutting, and on Savonarola by club members.

The executive committee of the St. David's Society met at the home of the president, Mrs. G. Pakenham, on Monday evening. Plans were made for the social activities of the organization during the next two months. A St. Patrick's Day program is to be presented at the next meeting of the society on March 18. Refreshments were served by the hostess after the business meeting.

A supper meeting of the Elizabeth Parker Auxiliary of Trinity Church was held Monday evening. Narcissus, St. Patrick's Day motifs and green tapers gave the tables a festive air. Mrs. C. L. Upper, social convener, was in charge of supper arrangements. Mr. Robert Spence of Lakefield, guest speaker, gave an interesting outline of the Youth Conference at Amsterdam, which he attended in August, 1939, and at which countries were represented from all parts of the world. A musical number was sung by Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, Mrs. O. H. Nicholls and Miss Margaret Woistenholm. Mrs. H. V. Dobson was at the piano. The president, Miss Irene E. Madill, was in the chair for the business period. Following the Easter Thank-offering, the closing prayer was pronounced by Rev. G. S. Easton.

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. To Present Musical Play

St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. members, who so creditably presented "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" last year, are now putting the finishing touches on a new musical play, "The Romance of Jack and the Beanstalk," for which the copyright is held by Miss Queenie Hope, who wrote both words and music.

With a cast of about forty, the play is to be presented in the Collegiate Auditorium on March 28. The lead is being taken by Mr. Jack Davies, who sings, among other catchy tunes, "Up, Up the Magic Ladder" and "Love's Song I Sing." There will be chorus number, and dances originated and directed by Miss Leone Comstock. Mrs. J. H. Forbes is in charge of costumes, and Mrs. Foster is directing the music.

Dominion Secretary Tells Of Dorcas Work

Interesting facts in connection with her work as secretary-treasurer of the Dorcas Supply Department were given by Mrs. C. O. Lucas of Toronto Monday evening at a meeting of the Evening Branch W. A. in St. John's Anglican Church. Mrs. Lucas is in the city for the annual meeting of the executive of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Missionary Society of the Church of England. 1,410 children are clothed by the Dorcas Department, Mrs. Lucas said, and told of 25 Indian children who were brought to the mission and fitted out from head to toe with clothing. They had never worn shoes, and had never lived in a house. This is only a small part of the Dorcas work, she said. Missions are looked after from the "Empty Stall". Clothing from there is taken by the steamer "Nascopie" once a year to the eastern Arctic.

Mrs. Lucas made a special appeal to W. A. members to remember the missionaries in Baffin Land, who receive bales and mail but once a year. Their disappointment would indeed be keen if either bales or mail should be missed, she said. The hospitals, too, are indebted to the Dorcas for invaluable aid and substantial help. Dorcas work gives one a clear idea of the immensity of the Yukon and the Northern territories, where so much is being needed and accomplished, Mrs. Lucas remarked as she appealed also for W. A. aid in regard to churches, hospitals and the North and West missions. Bales, which are sent from England did not arrive this fall, owing to war conditions.

Mrs. W. J. Downer presided for the meeting, which was held in the Guild Room. The bible reading was given by Mrs. J. Bell, the secretary's report by Miss A. Stout, the treasurer's report by Miss A. Millburn. Mrs. B. Ottewell reported for the Dorcas, and Mrs. J. W. Bryitt reported an excellent amount on hand for the Extra-Cent-a-Day Fund. Mrs. Bell reported for the sick and visiting committee; the Board report was read as sent by Mrs. W. E. Ross of Toronto.

Mrs. A. Higgins was welcomed into the branch as a new member, a former member of the Campbellford W.A. Refreshments were served by Miss E. Clementi.

Stage Fashion Show In New York

Fashion problems of the business woman "who has outgrown size 38 dresses" were given consideration in two fashion shows given recently in New York. Actual case histories of customers whose fashion difficulties were solved by the store stylists were presented.

A bugle call opened the show, keying it to the patriotic color theme of red, white and blue (navy), a combination featured almost exclusively in the daytime dresses and suits shown. For daytime, navy jacket dresses were given prominence, most of them developed in rayon crepe and having bolero or fitted jackets. Navy and white print rayon crepes were also shown. Red and white accents were picked up in accessories or in hats. Many of the dresses had white lingerie touches and red flower corsages.

One of the case histories presented was a girl who had needed fashion advice because her appearance had proved detrimental to her career. The girl herself was presented in the show, first as she appeared some months ago, and then as she was outfitted by the stylists. Everything from foundation garment to make-up had been studied to give her a chic appearance.

Throughout the showing the special problems of different figure types, such as the tall woman, the heavy woman, and the matronly figure, were noted.

Senator Fallis Suggests Reversal Of Liberal Slogan

Speaking at the monthly meeting of the Women's Conservative Association Monday afternoon, Hon. Iva Campbell Fallis called attention to the slogan adopted by the Liberal Committee, "A Peterborough boy for a Peterborough job." Senator Fallis suggested that it would be a great deal more to the point if, for a change, the Liberals would think of the unemployed of Peterborough and adopt for their slogan "Peterborough jobs for Peterborough boys."

After almost five years of administration by the King Government, during all of which time Peterborough was represented by a supporter of that Government, not one single thing has been done for the welfare of the youth of our city, Senator Fallis said. Mr. Mellis, head of the Government Employment Bureau, is authority for the statement that there is practically no change in the unemployment situation here and asks the citizens to provide all the odd jobs they can for men and women of one's city. We are told almost every day, over the radio or through the press, by Cabinet Ministers of the King administration, that huge war contracts have been let, and the war is being prosecuted with all vigor. There is little evidence in Peterborough to substantiate this statement, and still, after six months of being at war, any man from this city or district who wishes to serve his King and Country must wander over the province at his own expense (as many of them have done and are doing today), instead of being able to enlist in his own town.

Although polling day is but two weeks away, there are still many people who say they cannot make up their minds how to vote in this election. There is only one of vital importance. "Has Canada, under the leadership of Mr. King and his cabinet, been pulling her full weight in this war?" And the answer is "No" from the great majority of Canadians. Then if she has not in the past, she will not in the future if the King Government is returned, because the same men will be in the saddle. Mr. King made the statement a few days ago that for three years he saw this war coming. That being the case, there is no possible excuse for unpreparedness.

During the session of 1939, Conservative members pleaded for more adequate defense preparations: Their pleas were ignored, and instead the Government voted one hundred million dollars for Public Works for an election year. Millions of dollars were available to build Post Offices, which were neither needed nor wanted, and to dredge inlets and harbors where no boat ever docked —but no money for uniforms, boots, or blankets for our soldiers.

Mr. King himself has admitted in this campaign that he knew the need but gave as his excuse that the people would not support a policy of preparing for war in time of peace. In other words, Senator Fallis declared, he was afraid his party might be defeated at the polls if they voted the amount he knew was necessary. Mr. King was given an opportunity such as comes to few leaders—to forget elections and serve his country as a true statesman by preparing for the day he knew was at hand. Instead he chose the path of political expediency.

There are thousands of people in this riding who resent this unpreparedness in the face of knowledge of facts; who resent the refusal of the Prime Minister to allow a single question to be asked by elected members of Parliament; who feel that, just as England and France had to change leaders in the midst of the last war in order to secure a proper and successful prosecution of the war, so Canada today needs new blood at the helm; men with youth, vitality, energy, and fired with a whole-hearted desire to prosecute this war with more vigor. These people, Senator Fallis concluded, are voting for Gordon K. Fraser, an energetic candidate supporting an energetic leader, Bob Manion.

Encouraging reports were given by ward workers at the meeting, held in the committee rooms, George Street, with a large attendance. Mrs. J. Cridland spoke briefly, quoting from Miss Wkinifred Kydd's broadcast on "National Government" given recently over a national C.B.C. network. Gordon K. Fraser, Conservative candidate, made a special appeal to women to make use of their franchise. In Peterborough county during the last election only 19,022 out of 23,566 voters went out to vote, he said.

Announcement was made of Mr. Fraser's appointment as a representative on the Ontario Conservative Executive, the first time in many years that Peterborough has had a representative.

The next meeting of the Association is to be held at the Women's Conservative Club on the eighth of April.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, March 13.

The lunar transits affecting the affairs of this day are rather conflicting. While there is sign of an expansive and benefic influence in things generally, there also are deep sources of deception and trickery to be handled with vigilance, sagacity and a wise, judicial state of mind. Friends in high places may be called on for advice and more substantial co-operation. In strictly private affairs friendship and hospitality play a major part in promoting happiness and social gratifications.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a particularly pleasant and progressive year in their domestic, social and affectional life, with much of a congenial and festive nature transpiring. But in business there are rather adverse prospects, with intrigue, treachery and sinister undercurrents with which to cope. However, resort to friendship, good fellowship and the wise counsel of those in power and prestige may be influential in routing adverse situations. But keep alert to falsity and impositions.

A child born on this day may be fairly talented and ambitious, having a warm and expansive nature but one easily taken advantage of, because of its susceptibility and sensitivity to schemes and subtleties.

Skiing down the steps of the Vatican has been a favorite sport for young people of Rome this Winter.

Stunning Slip Covers Made in Simple Steps

Learn Tricks For A Smooth Fit

What a revelation! Your old sofa all dressed up in the gayest of chintz slip covers. Astonishing, too, how quickly and economically you make such a cover.

To make your cover, work in easy steps the pin-on way. First remove all cushions, then smooth the fabric down back and over seat, a width for each section of the sofa. Pin along lines of the upholstery and cut, allowing 1½ inches for the seams. In the same way fit other sections—sides, back, arms.

Simple with a few tricks to get a trim professional look. One of our diagrams shows how you take tiny darts to fit rounded corners. The other shows how you make small slashes in the fabric where arms join the back—so the fabric won't draw.

Smoothly you go from the pinning stage to basting, stitching, finishing —with the detailed instructions given in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to fit any type of chair or sofa the pin-on way. Suggests color scheme, fabrics, trimmings.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO MAKE SLIP COVERS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

HEAD COLDS

Here's what to do if a head cold has you down: Put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol in each nostril.

Va-tro-nol contains several relief-giving agents of known value in treating nasal congestion—plus ephedrine—and is expressly designed for nose and upper throat. This active medication penetrates cold-clogged nasal passages and helps to remove the congestion that causes so much of the misery. You'll feel relief the moment this tingling medication begins to spread through the nasal passages.

Best of all Va-tro-nol helps prevent many colds from developing when used in time. You never know when colds will strike—so keep Va-tro-nol on hand always.

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells.
Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a reliable "WOMAN'S" tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.
Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

Hold Box Social At Alderville

ALDERVILLE, March 12.—(ENS) The box social and concert held in the community hall under the auspices of the Young People's Union was well attended.

Rev. E. Beech presided over the opening exercises and Mrs. Fred Smoke presided over the Christian Culture department program. There were choruses by a number of children, a piano duet played by Mrs. James Bigwin, Jr. and Lorne Simpson, and vocal numbers by Miss Charlotte Marsden, Mrs. Fred Smoke Lorne Simpson and Miss Rena Simpson.

Short talks were given by Mrs. Mary Black and Rev. E. Beech. The boxes were auctioned by Fred Smoke.

"Old Maids" Should Rejoice, Take Pride in Their State. Some of World's Greatest Women Never Married—Today's Letter Box.

Dear Dorothy Dix — Will you please do everything possible to coin a new and satisfactory term for the obsolete "old maid" and broadcast it to the world. The term old maid is a relic of the Victorian days and carries with it a stigma that should not be applied to the many happy unmarried women who are engaged in worthwhile work and service in the world. Why should the so-called old maid be so ridiculed? Why should she be a standing figure of fun in the world.

ALOHA.

ANSWER:

Possibly there was some reproach in the term "old maid" in the days when marriage was the only avocation open to women and when it was obvious that every woman would marry if she could. Then for a woman to remain single indicated that she lacked charm and attractiveness.

But that view of the unmarried woman is so much of a thing of the has lost any shade of disparagement which it once might have had. Nobody thinks that the reason a woman doesn't marry is because she can't marry, but assumes that she is single for the same reason that an old bachelor is, because she didn't want to marry. And no one any more thinks of making fun of one than the other.

As for inventing a new term to describe the status of an unmarried woman that would be an improvement on "old maid," I doubt if that can be done. Certainly the term "girl bachelor" was no help and was promptly repudiated by women themselves, since it made a dignified, efficient, middle-aged woman sound ridiculous Nor does the legal appellation of "spinster" offer any comfort to the woman who doesn't want to be called an old maid.

So the thing for old maids to do, it seems to me, is to get over their silly antipathy to being called old maids and realize that nobody else in the world, except themselves, cares whether they have no husband or have had six. No women are more popular in society than jolly ild maids, and so far as getting along in the world, she "travels the fastest who travels alone," as Mr. Kipling would say if he was considering the subject. No women are rated so highly as employes as are clever, competent old maids who can give their minds to their jobs instead of having them cluttered up with anxieties about husband and children.

So, instead of trying to have the term "old maid" abolished, be proud that you are one. You have a lot of awfully good company in such women as Anna Shaw and Miss Willard and Florence Nightingale and hundreds of other great women in every line of work, who were all old maids.

About Working Wives

Dear Miss Dix—What does the modern man expect of his wife? At the urging of my husband I started to work outside of the home, although I had a family. I kept house without help, sewed, etc., and was not relieved of any of these duties after getting a full-time job. My husband has never helped me in any way in my domestic duties, but now he complains that I am not a companion to him. that I do not play golf with him or go out with him in the evenings. He doesn't try to entertain me or help share my burden as I share his. Apparently the modern husband thinks that when he gives a woman the right to write Mrs. before her name he has done all that is expected of him.

A READER

ANSWER:

Certainly when a wife helps to bring in the bacon, the husband should take his turn at frying it, but unfortunately this seldom happens. In the great majority of cases where the wife works outside of the home, her husband expects her to do all of the housework in addition, with no assistance from him. Also he expects her, after doing a hard day's work in the office, to come home and get the dinner and clean up the house and still be as fresh and gay and ready to step out with him as if she had done nothing but lolling on a sofa and taking it easy all day.

Perhaps it is human for a man, when he finds out that Georgianna can do it to sit back and let her do it. But if Georgianna has any sense and backbone she will suggest to hubby in no uncertain terms that if she goes out and helps earn the living he must help with the housework; that he can get just as much exercise sweeping the floors and scrubbing the bathroom as he can in playing golf.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Is it love when a woman of 48 is so in love with a man of 38 that she can't think of anything but his smile or be really alive when she can't see him? Would this feeling last if they were married? UNCERTAIN WIDOW.

ANSWER:

Sounds like a bad case of infatuation, but these belated love affairs are hazardous adventures. My earnest advice to you is to have the money your husband left you tied up good and tight and fast before you marry a man ten years younger than yourself.

Red-Headed Girls

Dear Miss Dix—I am very much in love with a fine girl, but she has red hair and my mother has an allergy toward red hair. She refuses to see the girl or have anything to do with her or her family. This has made a very strained relationship between my mother and myself. Another thing that worries me is the supposedly eternal fickleness of red-headed women. I have had any number of people warn me against marrying a redhead. Do you think redheads are generally bad-tempered and fickle? This girl doesn't seem so, but after all girls put their best foot forward in order to get their man. Please advise me.

LOUIS

ANSWER:

The color of a girl's hair has nothing to do with her character and I am surprised that you should be silly enough to think it does. Your mother would be equally opposed to your marrying a brunette or a blond.

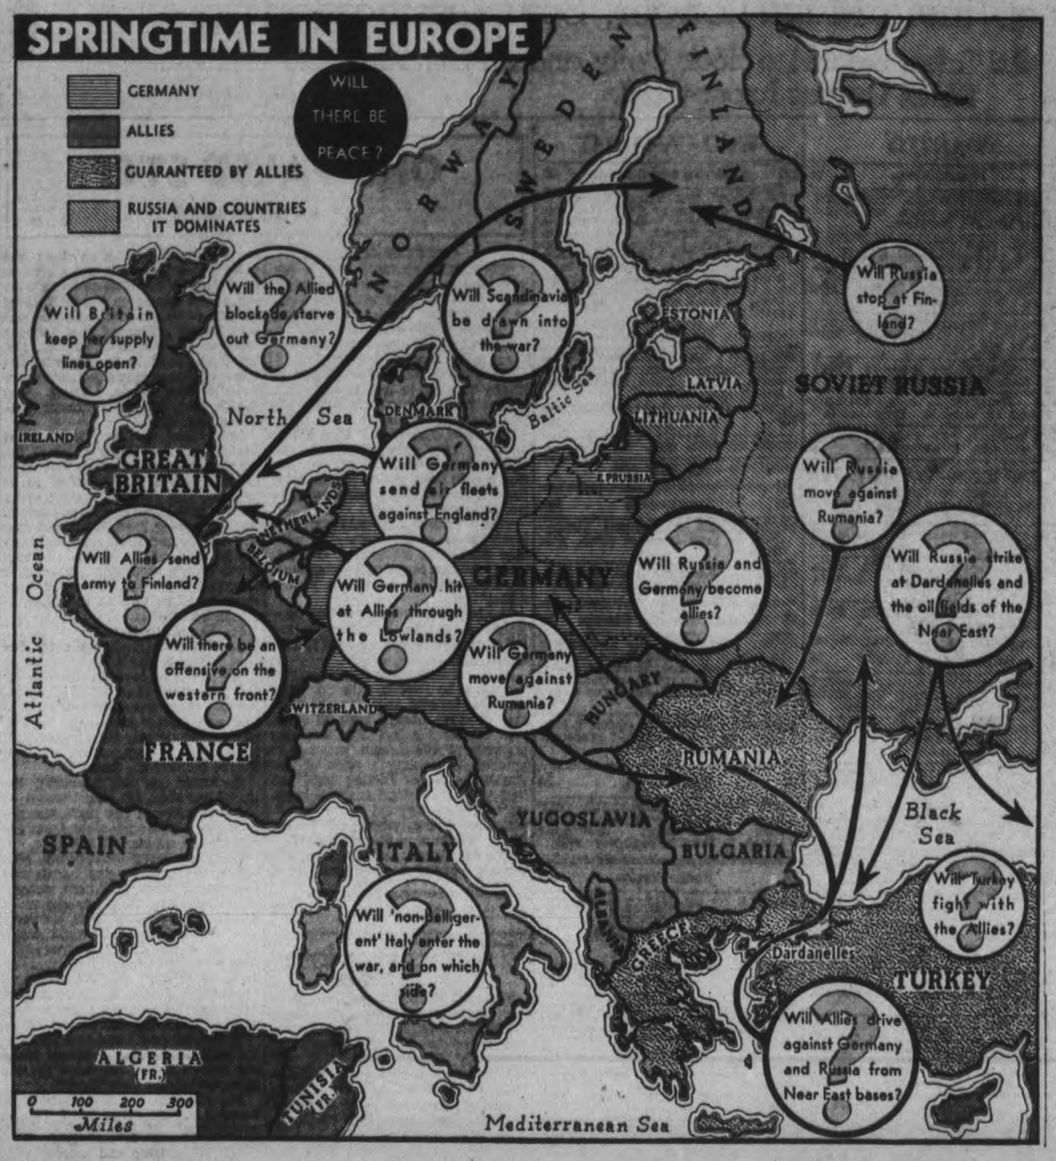
War Enters First Spring—Now What?



A.P. Feature Service

The war's at spring—meaning better fighting weather throughout most of Europe. So generals and diplomats and John Q. Citizens all over the continent are concerned with these questions.

Besides the weather there's another factor that puts Europe on the anxious seat—Adolf Hitler's tendency to do something dramatic in March. Just a year ago he took what was left of Czecho-Slovakia, and just two years ago he added Austria to the Reich.

What everyone is chiefly interested in, of course, is whether the Allied-German war is going to result in some old-fashioned fighting. Events of the last few months have greatly complicated that subject. For on the one hand each side claims that its war-by-blockade is going along nicely. And on the other hand the possibility of new battle fronts has been opened by Russia's invasion of Finland and the Allies' concentration of troops in the Near East.

As for the way the continent is lined up—Italy is still tied to Germany by the old Rome-Berlin axis, but the axis isn't nearly so strong as it used to be. An invasion of the Balkans by either Germany or Russia might find Italy on the other side. At the same time, Britain's blockade against German coal for Italy isn't making Mussolini feel any more friendly toward the Allies. Hungary is closely tied to Germany economically.

Especially interested in the answers to the questions spotted here is President Roosevelt's travelling reporter—Under-Secretary of State Welles. If he can bring home definite answers to any three, the United States may find it easier to chart the course of its foreign relations—and the President may find it easier to decide whether or not he shall run again.

May Be Interned

United States officials may intern Pilot Officer A. E. Cannon, ABOVE, and Leading Aircraftsman J. Duguid, of the R.C.A.F., who made a forced landing at Alexandria Bay after losing their bearings and running out of fuel.

Proof Of Nazi Duplicity

King George is shown here looking at a German magnetic mine, fished up by British Admiralty experts. The mechanism of the mine bears dates in 1938, proving that Germany was preparing for magnetic mine warfare at the time of the Munich crisis. Britain now has developed a method of "depolarizing" metal ships so that the hulls will not attract magnetic mines. The Queen Elizabeth was thus equipped when she reached New York.

IN MEMORIAM

BUCHANAN.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Robert C. Buchanan, who departed this life March 12, 1937.

We miss her for we loved her so;
But God, we know, loved her more
And called her from this world below
To dwell with Him for evermore.

—Lovingly remembered by Husband and Daughter.

MILLER. — In loving memory of George Miller, who passed away March 12, 1938.

O, happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still;
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Ever remembered by the Family.

ONE FALSE STEP

BY KATHRN BEMIS

CHAPTER XVII

"IT TAKES so much out of one sometimes—this picture business," came from Mary Black irrelevantly as she studied Janis after having called the studio about the test.

"Did you—did you get the studio?" Janis asked through set lips.

"Yes, I did." clipped out Mary, as if she wanted to get it said in a hurry. "And it's no use—they say you don't photograph."

The room suddenly swayed before Janis' blurred eyes. The cup she was holding tilted, slid off her lap. She looked down at the tea puddling the rug at her feet, unable to say a word.

"They wanted you—said you were lovely in so many ways—but your face came out all wrong. Oh, I'm nearly as disappointed as you must be, Miss Sheldon — please believe I am!"

"I—I don't know what to do," confessed Janis, for a bitter instant fully comprehending all that failure meant to her.

Janis refused Mary Black's urgent invitation to remain with her until morning, insisted that she was quite able to drive herself back to town. She reluctantly left the inspiring presence of this woman, who was so gracious to others in spite of her worldwide fame. Feeling that she had gained a friend made a snug, warm feeling abound Janis' heart, which somewhat relieved the aching disappointment registered there.

The drive home through the early evening coolness sharpened her senses, making it seem that she could gather strength enough to go on living her life. The steady creaking of the wipers on the windshield seemed companionable and she was soon nearly convinced that nothing was ever so bad as it seemed. Not being able to make the grade in pictures, of course, was a jolt, but there were compensations. There was Rock's love, Rock's beginning success as an actor.

From now on she would exert herself to promote his interests. So, perhaps it was all for the best Sally Chesser was a little spitfire to be avoided. The girl had blurted out a pack of falsehoods in a fit of passion. She had never liked Sally, and now she had proved what she was. Naturally, she would speak to Rock about Sally's accusation, perhaps to Lucinda, also; but she could hear them laughing now at the utter ridiculousness of it all.

Rock Keeps His Date

By the time Rock came for her that evening, Janis was all set to greet him with loving attention. He met her more than halfway, striding into the living room as if he were lord and master here, catching her to him so tightly she protested laughingly: "Stop, Rock — stop! You're ruining my hair!"

He kissed her lips hurriedly, the tip of her chin, his lips lingered on the soft curve of her neck where a cream lace ruffle fell away from her faille gown as blue as her eyes.

She drew back breathlessly, surveying the good-looking length and breadth of Rock in dinner clothes. She again approved her choice of a man. There was a force, a directness about him that would single him out in any crowd. He was really handsome, he would get what he went after and, she acknowledged regretfully, women would always be attracted to him. She must fully realize this, make allowances for it.

"I wonder how I can be a successful wife to a famous screen star," she mused aloud, her head on one side surveying him critically.

His short laugh held a note of triumph. "By being good to me, sweetheart," he said lightly. "Let's get going. Where's your wrap?

"But, first, dear—I'd like to show you something."

She took his hand, pulled him along to a little desk at the end of the room. Under the soft glow or a white-shaded lamp lay a slip of paper. She took it up and handed it to him.

"What—a check for $500? Why, honey, you shouldn't have done this! I really didn't mean to——"

"Yes, you must take it—use it. We're on a share and share alike basis now, aren't we? What is mine is yours and——"

"I'm glad you're seeing it that way. Just as soon as I get squared around, honey, I'll pay you back."

"There's no great hurry—but it would help if you could give me some of it by the end of the month."

Peeved With Lucinda

He stuffed the check into his wallet, shrugged. "There you go again, pleading poverty. You haven't been trying to cover up what you're really worth, have you, darling? Gee—that would make me feel like you thought I was out for all I could get."

"How silly! I knew you were terribly up against it—or you wouldn't have asked me for anything. I know how a man hates borrowing money from a woman."

"Yes—he sure does," slowly agreed Rock.

He added, hastily: "That's another nifty outfit you're wearing." His eyes swept down from her snug-fitting blue basque to the matching long, billowing skirt, from which coquettishly peeked small silver slippers.

She sobered, took her ermine wrap from the back of a chair. "That reminds me," she said, weighing her words. "Do you think Lucinda gets commissions from shopkeepers?"

He looked startled, abruptly set his face in a hard tight line. "How do you suppose she manages to look so well-groomed? Sure, she takes all she can get. That's why you shouldn't listen to her every time she wheedles you into spending so much. It's Lue's game and a good one—if you can find suckers enough with dough to blow."

"Suckers—dough? Oh, Rock, I wish you didn't have to be so slangy!" Underneath this protest was a sharp spurt of anger—anger at Lucinda, at Rock, at herself.

"You're cross again. I know what you're thinking—I introduced you to Lucinda. But I didn't know she'd get you to buy everything in sight—honest, I didn't. I thought you looked like a girl with sense. But from now on, I'm going to attend to financial matters for you. I'll be your manager—handle your picture income, too."

She hung her head, aimlessly took up a fountain pen, dropped it to the desk blotter, dangerously close to tears.

"There won't be any income for me—from pictures, I've—I've been turned down."

He glared at her in astonishment. "You mean it—you've heard from the studio?"

She nodded forlornly.

He put his two hands on her shoulders, laid his head against hers. "Never mind, kid—it will take a lot to make us quit, won't it? You've got me — and I'm going places."

She lay in his arms for a short heavenly moment; Rock, in one of his mellow moods, was irresistible.

Another Surprise for Janis

He finally released her, solicitously assisted her into her wrap. Even the thought of what her purchases during the last few weeks must have netted Lucinda were not so sharp-barbed now.

As Rock had said, the girl had to live, and Janis was beginning to suspect that at no time had Lucinda lived very opulently on what she made in motion pictures. A thread of compassion went through Janis' anger at the thought of Lucinda's plight. It wasn't funny to be without money—she had experienced that.

Rock hurried her out of the house, saying: I've got a big surprise for you. For a change, I brought around a car — always driving a woman's car on a date wears a man down."

Her arm was tight in his and he was walking so fast down the walk, she had to run a few steps to catch up with him.

"You needn't have done it, Rock! I'm always glad to use my car," she protested breathlessly.

"Wait until you see this one! It's a nifty! Streamlined, lemon yellow in daylight—blue leather cushions."

"You must have borrowed it from a film star. Whose car is it?"

He laughed shortly, halted her beside a low-slung, convertible coupe that glistened pale gold under the street lamp.

"Isn't that a bird?" he asked exultantly.

"It's—why it's—beautiful!"

"The star it belongs to—is a man you know pretty well."

She was filled with foreboding. She pulled away from him, tried to read his shadowed face.

"You don't mean—it's your car—you didn't buy it?"

"Rights! I knew you'd like it."

Stunned Into Silence

She was stunned into silence. The idea of his buying a car just now was so—so preposterous."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

FINISH AS A NO TRUMP.

ORDINARILY we hate to get into a situation in which one of the defenders is left with the last trump after ours are all gone. There are contracts, however, which can be made only by deliberately building that position. If we have a bunch of set-up cards, and the man with the last trump can do nothing but lead to them, then we really finish playing the hand as if the declaration were No Trump. Sometimes failure to pare the opponent down to his last trump, by playing our last ones, will allow him to score two of his trumps by means of ruffs, instead of only one.

	♠ A J 10 8 ♥ K 8 ♦ K 9 8 5 4 ♣ K 2

	♠ 6 5 ♥ A Q J 10 4 ♦ J 10 7 6 ♣ Q 10

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♥
Pass	4 ♥

At two tables of a duplicate tournament the bidding was the same, also the early play, on this deal. West led the club 8 to the A, the club K took the second trick, the heart K and A were taken, then the diamond J led to the Q, K and A, East firing back the club J, ruffed by the heart 10. Then came the difference.

One declarer played his heart Q and J, leaving West with the last trump. He then began to lead diamonds. West ruffed the second one, but had nothing to return but a spade to dummy's A, the declarer finishing with diamond tricks and making his contract.

The other declarer, after ruffing the third club, was afraid to bare himself of his last trump, so immediately led diamonds. West ruffed with his 6, led his spade Q to the A, and the dummy had to lead either another diamond which West could ruff or a spade to East's K, in either case giving the defenders the setting trick.

What is the best defense on this deal against South's 1-No Trump, doubled by East and passed by the next three players?

Marmora, Deloro Rise To Call For Legion Funds

MARMORA, March 12—(ENS)—Members of Marmora Branch Canadian Legion are much pleased with the support they have received in connection with the campaign to raise $500,000 to enable the veterans' association to carry on their work on behalf of soldiers who have enlisted in the Canadian Active Service Forces. The allotment for Marmora, Deloro and Cordova was $250. Havelock Branch of the Legion canvassed Cordova but the money all goes to the same fund. Marmora and Delora contributed over $300. Any further donations will be appreciated as all the money raised will be used in the splendid work being undertaken by the veterans.

Deloro Red Cross Circle has been busy during the past few weeks. Socks, sweaters, mitts, helmets, pyjamas, and hospital gowns are now being made.

During the past week four cartons containing socks and sweaters were sent to the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in England ,and one shipment of pyjamas were made to the Canadian Base Hospital at Taplow, England. Plans are now under way for shipping special parcels to relatives of members of the Circle.

Last Sunday night the roofs of the garages belonging to Messrs. G. B. Airhart and H. E. Vansickle caved in due to the weight of the wet snow which fell that day.

Mr. W. J. Cottrell, who has been very ill at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, appears to be gradually improving these last few days. His many friends hope he will soon be able to return home.

Messrs Ed. Lummiss and Harry Black spent the week-end in Toronto.

Group I of St. Paul's Church held a very successful euchre party at the home of Mrs. George Kerr on Tuesday evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. B. Bonter, Mr. Henderson and Miss Keith Cronkright. Lunch was served by the members of the Circle.

Reported Near Death

Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim, leader of Finland's heroic defence against Russian onslaughts, is reported near death. According to the reports the strain of the Russian campaign against Finland has been too much for the 72-year-old Finnish hero and he is confined to bed under the watchful eyes of personal physician.

Enemy Aliens Under Guard At Kananaskis Camp

Brownlee Appeal Goes Before Privy Council

LONDON, March 12—(CP Cable)—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council today began hearing the appeal of J. E. Brownlee, former Premier of Alberta, from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada in the seduction suit of Vivian MacMillan.

Their Lordships at the outset caused a narrowing of the grounds of appeal by refusing Mr. Brownlee's counsel, Frank Gahan, leave to argue that the verdict of the trial jury was against the weight of evidence that the judge misdirected the jury.

At the trial in 1934 Miss MacMillan, who since has become Mrs. Henry Sorensen by her marriage to a druggist of Edson, Alta., alleged she was seduced by Mr. Brownlee on a number of occasions during 1930 and 1931 while she was a stenographer in the Alberta Government service. Mr. Brownlee at that time was head of the United Farmer Government.

The jury returned a verdict of $10,000 in favor of Miss MacMillan and $5,000 in favor of her father, Allan D. MacMillan, railway employee who was associated with his daughter in bringing suit. The trial judge, Mr. Justice Ives, refused to enter the verdict and dismissed the case on the grounds that damages were the gist of an action for seduction and that Miss MacMillan had not proved damages.

An appeal by the plaintiffs to the Alberta Court of Appeal was unsuccessful. The case then was taken to the Supreme Court of Canada which in March, 1937, allowed the appeal and restored the jury's verdict of $10,000 in Miss MacMillan's favor.

The Grounds Allowed.

After limiting the grounds of appeal today, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council agreed to listen to counsel for Mr. Brownlee on the following reasons contained in the appellant's case:

That special damage is necessary to support a seduction action and that no special damage was proved in that the respondent was never pregnant and had not proved any incapacity for service or other damage caused by the carnal knowledge which she alleges;

That the Supreme Court of Canada misconstrued the Alberta Seduction Act;

That the reasoning of Mr. Justice Ives, of the majority of the Alberta Appellate Division and of Mr. Justice Davis was to be preferred to that of the majority of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Gahan informed Their Lordships that he had obtained general leave to appeal, but this was challenged by the Lord Chancellor, Viscount Caldecote.

"Speaking for myself," the Lord Chancellor declared, "I am not much inclined to allow your general leave to appeal to be used so as to open all sorts of questions relating to the jury's verdict and I should be inclined to think that under the Order-in-Council it is quite plain that the only point on which you obtained leave to appeal was to discuss the important question of law raised by section V. of the Seduction Act of Alberta."

After private consultation Their Lordships made the ruling on what it would be possible to argue.

Mr. Gahan spent the rest of the day reading the judgments of the Alberta Appeal Court and the Supreme Court of Canada.

The hearing will be resumed tomorrow.

Soviet Machine Gunners In Finland

Kitchen Aprons Paraded By Lakefield WI

LAKEFIELD, March 12 (ENS).—John Bradshaw, barrister, Peterborough was guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Lakefield Women's Institute on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. N. S. Higgins, president presided for the business period. A special feature of the meeting was a parade of kitchen aprons, Mrs. M. Harvey carrying off the prize for the best apron.

Two quilt tops have been completed and will be quilted in the Memorial Hall Thursday, March 14, with a pot luck dinner to be served at the dinner hour.

Mrs. A. B. Mann was present and addressed the meeting asking for assistance in collecting medicine bottles and other types of bottles for the Nicholls Hospital Auxiliary.

A requested reading was given by Mrs. T. W. Chaplin in her usual capable manner.

A letter from the Peterborough Fair Board regarding suggestions for Institute entries, was read and it was decided to have a display under the heading "Care of the Clothing."

The president and Mesdames A. Davis and J. W. Ridpath were appointed as representatives from the branch to the Local Council of Women, Peterborough.

Mrs. (Rev.) H. R. Howden, the program convener, introduced the speaker who spoke on the topic "The Constitution."

Americans speak of the Constitution and mean a piece of paper on which is contained their whole constitution. "It is the greatest in the world, doesn't have to be proven. They admit it.

An Englishman never speaks of his Constitution save to grumble about it. He knows of no constitution save his gout. But he does know and is very jealous of a body of rules and customs—not written—not contained in law books. But they have all the force of English conscience behind them.

"We Canadians never speak of our Constitution, because no one is interested enough to know if we have one or not."

Votes of thanks were heartily tendered Mr. Bradshaw and Mrs. Chaplin by Mesdames A. Dorris, A. Darling.

Family Honored At Garden Hill

CAMPBELLCROFT, March 12. —(ENS).—The spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Banister and Mr. and Mrs. Weston Banister, was the scene of a most enjoyable evening, when the members of Garden Hill United church choir held a banquet in honor of the members of the Dunbar family, who are leaving to reside at Welcome. The guests of honor were Mrs. Ansen Dunbar, Miss Mary Dunbar and Messrs. Lawrence and Lloyd Dunbar.

The guests of the evening were received by Mrs. W. J. Banister and were ushered into the large living room.

The tables, which were set in the attractive north living room, were tastefully decorated with bands of pink crepe paper, lighted candles in silver candelebra, flowering bulbs and place cards in cups of assorted candies and nuts. Places were laid for forty.

Those seated at the head table were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Dunbar, Miss Mary Dunbar (a student at Peterboro Normal school), Messrs. Lawrence and Lloyd Dunbar, Rev. A. T. Robertson, Mrs. Robertson, Miss Helen Jean Foster, a student at McDonald Hall, Guelph, who came down for the occasion, Mrs. W. J. Banister, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Maybee, Mrs. W. Brotherwell and Mrs. W. A. Caldwell, Mr. W. J. Banister, Mr. W. Brotherwell and Mr. W. A. Caldwell, were unable to be present.

Mr. Lloyd Dunbar has been an efficient president of the choir, and owing to the fact he was guest of honor, the duties of toastmaster and chairman for the evening went to the vice-president, Mrs. Percy Maybee.

The first toast was 'The King.' The toast to the guests of honor was capably replied to by Mr. Lawrence Dunbar, who made a few remarks. The toast to the friends of the choir present was ably responded to by Rev. Mr. Robertson.

At this point the toast mistress spoke at length on the vacancies in the choir by removal within the last few months and made special reference to two of the oldest members, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Gray, who found it necessary to give up choir work. As a special tribute to them a toast was given. Weston Banister in his own inimitable manner replied to the toast to the Banister family.

Community singing was enjoyed for a short period, after which the famous Garden Hill male quartette sang and a piano solo by Eldora Spicer followed.

W. Brothwell read an address to the departing members. On behalf of the choir and presentations of a bed light to Mrs. Dunbar, English Morocco bill folds to Lawrence and Lloyd and a bottle of French perfume to Miss Mary were made by Misses Gloria Gray, Eldora Spicer, Wilmot Caldwell and Meta Beatty. Gracious replies were made. Miss Beryl Challis sang, in sweet soprano voice, 'Over the Border.' A double quartette sang 'Evening and Morning,' a musical festival number for 1940. The singers were Mesdames K. Cruse, M. Dunbar, P. Maybee, Miss W. Caldwell, Messrs. Wes Hannah, M. T. Gardiner, S. W. Gray and L. Dunbar.

In a few well chosen words, cleverly composed in rhyme, Mrs. Maybeen made reference to the forty-six years' choir work of Mrs. Dunbar and on behalf of the choir Mrs. Hamill presented a large basket of beautiful spring flowers to Mrs. Dunbar as a tribute to her faithful service and regular attendance. Mrs. Dunbar, although completely taken by surprise, thanked the choir in her usual gracious manner. As a gesture of the recipient the flowers were placed on the pulpit of the Garden Hill United church for the service the following day. Two delightful solos were rendered by Mr. Lawrence Dunbar, and a number by the male quartette concluded the program.

The evening was brought to a close by the singing of 'The More We Are Together.'

Mrs. H. M. Foster was the able accompanist and the arrangements for this most enjoyable evening were made by Mesdames K. Cruse, H. M. Foster, Milton Dunbar, Percy Maybee and Miss Wilma Caldwell of the social committee.

Nudists Vanish

London, March 12 (CP).

IT TURNS OUT that the war and its accompanying blackout has stripped nudism of its money-making possibilities.

Mrs. Denyse Bedingfield's nature colony in a 20-room house at Frien Barnet, north London suburb, was a thriving business with nearly 600 members until the war broke out. Summoned for £38 taxes the other day she said her colony now had only one tenant who paid 30s a week. Her yearly income before the war had been nearly £2,000.

"It isn't the winter," she explained to the magistrate, "for nudism can be practiced indoors. No, it's the war, the blackout and evacuation. And some of my members have joined up."

Bailieboro Group Plans For Party

BAILIEBORO, March 12—(ENS)—Mrs. Roy Greer was hostess to the monthly meeting of the Women's Institue Thursday afternoon with an attendance of twelve.

Business items included the last card party of the season to be held on Tuesday, March 12 and an Irish supper March 21, and a box to be sent to a local soldier in England. Also a gift box to be sent a sick member. Mrs. Miles Hutchinson read a paper on the 'Institute Ode,' kindly sent the local branch by a Warkworth Institute member, which was greatly appreciated and a motion was passed that a vote of thanks be tendered same lady for the excellent paper.

Mrs. Bert Byers and Mrs. Hutchison, the program committee, took charge. Several short readings were given—Mrs. Fell's 'Cheerfulness,' Mrs. Eagleson, 'Thankfulness,' Mrs. Armstrong 'Unselfishness.' A helpful hint was given by Mrs. Hutchison on the washing of a sweater; Mrs. Byers held a very amusing contest on the human side of a watch. Meeting closed with the Institute Ode, followed by the serving of delicious refreshments by the hostess. A hearty vote of thanks was endorsed by the president.

Mr. Cliff Patton and Walter Casswell of Toronto, were recent visitors in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nurse of Long Island, Rice Lake, have moved to the home of their daughter, Mrs. Clifford Emberson. Mr. Nurse has not been in good health for some time and intends to have an auction sale in the near future.

Social Evening Held By Lakefield B.Y.P.U.

LAKEFIELD, March 12.—(ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Walker, Queen street, Lakefield, gave their home for a pleasant social evening of the Baptist Young People's Society on Friday evening when members of the congregation were guests of the society.

The St. Patrick atmosphere was carried out in the table decorations of green streamers and shamrocks.

A number of games and contests were enjoyed followed by dainty refreshments. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the host and hostess by Miss Winnifred Rosborough, president of the society and seconded by Mis Ruby Nicholls.

Planning Peace

A portrait of Sven Hedin, famous Swedish explorer and said to be a friend of Adolf Hitler, who is reported a prime mover in plans to call an armistice in the Soviet-Finnish hostilities. Others working toward an armistice were said to be former President Svinhufvud of Finlahd; Elias Erkko, Finnish minister to Sweden; and Mme. Alexandra Kollontal, Soviet minister to Sweden.

OBITUARY

MISS ANNIE HALLIGAN

BEWDLEY, March 12 (ENS).—The funeral of Miss Annie Halligan, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Halligan and sister of Frank Halligan, was held at the family residence on Wednesday afternoon. Rev. H. Millow conducted the service.

Miss Halligan passed away Monday morning in hospital, having just been moved there on Thursday. She had suffered quite a lot of illness during the past year or so.

The pall-bearers were Fred Wilson, Arthur Buttar, Roy Marshall, Harold Minifie, Hilton Doidge and Hugh Halligan.

St. Mark's, Zion Conduct Euchre

ZION, March 12 (ENS).—At highly successful card party was held at Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dixon's home under the auspices of St. Mark's Anglican Church W.A. last week. Ten tables of euchre werep layed, also several games of Chinese checkers.

The highest score prizes were won by Mrs. Roy Frankish and Mr. Stinson Lancashire. Consolation prizes went to Mrs. Ernest Robinson and Jack Robinson.

Among the guests were Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd of Peterborough. Refreshments were served, and a social half hour or so brought a pleasant evening to a close.

Mr. and Mrs. Enos Kent and daughter Elinore motored to Port Hope on Saturday to visit at the home of Mr and Mrs. T. Hutchinson, parents of Mrs. Kent. Friends here will be glad to learn that Mrs. F. Mason, sister of Mrs. Kent, is out of hospital and recuperating steadily since her recent accident.

It is heard with regret by all that Miss Jean Kindred had the misfortune to slip and fall breaking her wrist last Sunday in Peterborough, while on her way to visit her father, Mr. John Kindred, who is ill in Nicholls Hospital.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed on Sunday, March 10, in Zion United Church.

Robert Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson suffered a severe cut on his leg just above the knee when a hay knife slipped and struck him. Three stitches were required to close the wound.

New Canned Food For Tommies

WASHINGTON, March 12J(AP)—British "Tommies" in the French front line soon will be eating a new emergency ration developed by dietary experts of the United States army—and so will 65,000 American soldiers.

The British government, it was learned today, has placed an initial order with an Indianapolis firm for a consignment of the new canned "chow."

The United States army will give "field ration, type "C" a two-day tryout during manoeuvres in Texas next month.

The ration, designed for a possible three-day emergency during fighting, is packed in twin tin cans, each with its key opener.

Each man will carry one 15-ounce can of pre-cooked meat and beans, one of beef stew, one of meat and vegetables hash, and three companion cans, each of which contains six ounces of crackers, one ounce of sugar, and ¾ ounce of pulverized coffee, soluble even in cold water.

The new ration costs 70 cents a day (as against the present daily ration allowance of 40½ cents), but the price is expected to be reduced by quantity production.

The army also is experimenting with a super-emergency ration — a hard bar composed of chocolate, milk, soy bean meal, cocoa butter and other ingredients. Major Paul P. Logan, an instructor at the Army Industrial College, who holds the patent, made its taste such that men will not be tempted to eat it as candy.

In dire necesity, a man taking three 4-ounce bars (each containing 600 calories) a day could be sustained in the field for three of four days.

Suffocates

TORONAO, March 12 — (CP). — George A. Allen, 28, died from suffocation early today as fire swept the interior of his home in North Toronto. Firemen said it was evident that Allen tried to escape from his smoke-filled bedroom but collapsed.

The fire, which started in the basement, was discovered by Allan Warnes, 19, and Ian Macdonald, 15, newsboys.

Couldn't Walk Without Help Because Of Severe Arthritis

Suffered Six Years. Nothing Seemed to Help Me, But Now Syntona Has Given Me Such Grand Results, Says This Lady.

MRS. M. HARRIES

Sluggishness of the organic system may often lead to many distressing symptoms, such as rheumatic aches and pains, constipation, indigestion, kidney and bladder irritation, headaches, and a score of other symptoms. Because Syntona contains 12 herbs and roots which act on stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels, it aids digestion, improves assimilation and aids in the elimination of poisons and irritating acids. Thus, hundreds have found relief from painful and distressing ailments, which had failed to yield to other treatment.

Here is the joyful experience of Mrs. M. Harries, 187 Cannon Street East, Hamilton, Ontario, who says:

"For about six years I had been troubled with arthritis and nothing ever seemed to help me. The joints of my arms became so sore and stiff I couldn't raise them above my head and then it set in my limbs and feet so badly that I couldn't get around without being carried.

"I was ready to try most anything, and when I read about Syntona being made from herbs and roots I felt that it might help me as I always had great faith in herb medicine. Well, I started taking it, and it did more than I ever hoped for. The soreness and stiffness has just about all gone away. I can sleep better because I have no pain now, and I am so happy about what this grand merdicine has done for me that I wish everybody suffering like I did would give it a trial."

If you suffer as described above, come to Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough and find out how this grand herbal medicine can help you also. Remember the name "Syntona" and avoid disappointment.

Hepburn Talks Nixon Out Of Resigning--Cabinet Intact

Nixon Patches Difference With Premier

Taking Few Days' Rest Then Returning To Cabinet Duties

TORONTO, March 13.—(CP)—Hon. H. C. Nixon will leave Toronto for "a few days' rest" and then return to take up his duties as provincial secretary, his "misunderstanding" with Premier Mitchell Hepburn at an end.

Mr. Hepburn tore up Mr. Nixon's letter of resignation, submitted Monday, after conferring only a few minutes last night with the man who had been his chief supporter since the Ontario Liberal administration was elected in 1934.

The return of Mr. Nixon was just as sensational as his resignation announcement. He had told the Premier in his letter, "I find myself completely at variance with your recent policy, statements and acts."

Only four hours before the Premier called on Mr. Nixon in his hotel suite, all other available members of the cabinet had pledged support to Mr. Hepburn in an extraordinary council.

The disagreement was over the premier's continued attacks upon the federal Liberal government of Prime Minister Mackenzie King. When Mr. Nixon announced his resignation, he said he and all other members of his family would vote Liberal in the federal election March 26.

He Reconsidered

"Mr. Nixon has re-considered his decision to resign and has re-entered the cabinet,' Mr. Hepburn announced to newspapermen after the conference.

"It was a complete misunderstanding. After the cabinet council I felt very much worried and concerned over his resignation. I decided

Coal By Rail

Berlin, March 13 (AP)

GERMAN authorities displayed satisfaction today over conclusion in Rome of a new agreement under which Germany, to dodge the Allied sea blockade, will send coal to Italy by rail.

The agreement, signed by Dr. Karl Clodius, Germany's chief economic negotiator, and Senator Amadeo Giannini, eliminates ships as coal carriers between the two countries.

Assassin Slays Sir M. O'Dwyer, Wounds 3 Others

LONDON, March 13 (CP)—An Indian assassin today shot and killed Sir Michael O'Dwyer, former Lieut.-Governor of the Junjab and wounded the Marquess of Zetland, Secretary of State for India, and two other former Indian officials.

The scene of the shootings was a crowded meeting of the East India Association at Caxton Hall, near Westminster Abbey.

In addition to Lord Zetland, who was grazed by a bullet, the wounded were Lord Lamington, former governor of Bombay, and Sir Louis Dane, like Sir Michael, a former Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab.

Both Lord Lamington and Sir Louis Dane were wounded in the arm.

Sir Michael, who was 75, fell bleeding from a wound in the chest. Lord Zetland fell by the side of his presidential chair

The Indian gunman shouted "make way" and dashed down the crowded aisle towards the door.

There was a stampede in the crowd for a moment and then two men jumped on the Indian.

No one of the audience of 150 was allowed to leave for 2½ hours. Police surrounded the building.

Finland Sold Out By Sister Democracies Yields Karelia, Arctic Areas, Hanko Troops Counter-Attack Till Last Minute

Russia Gives Finns 3 Days To Sign; Orders Trade Treaty

HELSINKI, March 13—(AP).—It was officially announced today that War Minister Juho Nieuukanen and Minister of Education Uuno Hannula had resigned from the Finnish Government because they opposed accepting the Russian peace terms.

Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner disclosed the terms to the Finnish people in a broadcast to-day, declaring Finland was forced to capitulate because Norway and Sweden would not allow passage of Allied troops. The head of the Finnish army, Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, was scheduled to speak to the nation tonight, and President Kyosti Kallio tomorrow.

Tanner described the terms of peace with Russia as "unexpectedly severe" and "much more severe than those demanded by the Soviet Union last Autumn."

"Our representatives tried to bring the negotiators to modify the terms, but in vain," he said in a broadcast.

"The peace will be a heavy one," he added. "Our future possibilities of defence will be restricted."

He added, however, that "Finland will once more arise to be a vital state and its people will find a means of sustenance."

Immediately after the Foreign Minister's broadcast all flags on public buildings were lowered to half mast.

MOSCOW, March 13—(AP).—A peace treaty halting the undeclared war in Finland with broad territorial, economic and military concessions to Russia was announced today by the Soviet Government.

Hostilities ended at 11 a.m. today (4 a.m., EST) and the Finnish Government was allowed three days to ratify the treaty.

Under the treaty, the Russians said, Finland would yield to Russia:

The entire Karelian Isthmus, including the bitterly-contested Mannerheim defence line, strewn with Russian and Finnish bodies;

The wrecked but uncaptured city of Viipuri, along with Viipuri Bay and its islands;

All the shores of Lake Ladoga and some territory northeast of the lake. (Where the Finns have reported the slaying of thousands of Russian troops);

A 30-year Russian lease on the peninsula of Hanko, Finnish "Gibraltar" at the mouth of the Gulf of Finland, which Russia intends to convert into a military and naval base;

Various islands in the Gulf of Finland;

A broad swath of eastern Finland in the region of the Arctic Circle;

A railroad to be built this year to link Russia's White Sea ports with the Gulf of Bothnia;

Operation of a Russian airline across the Petsamo district between Russia and Norway and no restriction on passage of Russian citizens

Allied Army Our Neighbors Shut Door On Could Have Saved Us Says Finn Minister

HELSINKI, March 13.—(CP)—These are the words used by Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner today in describing how Sweden and Norway blocked the offer of Great Britain and France to send aid to Finland:

"The western powers declared that they were ready to send a completely equipped expeditionary force if our country asked for it.

"This plan was carefully examined by our high command. The conclusion was reached that the dispatch of such an expeditionary force would have been effective.

"There was only one small point: How could these troops reach Finland? The Baltic road was closed. The road via Petsamo was long and difficult, and was occupied by the enemy.

"The only possible route was that of Sweden and Norway. Finland approached the governments of these countries to obtain free passage of Allied troops. The same request was made by the Allied governments.

"But passage was sharply forbidden by the two countries in question because of their attitude of strict neutrality. This formal prohibition prevented Allied aid."

Believes Peace Wisest While Defences Are Still Unbroken

HELSINKI, March 13 — (AP).—Weary Finland, lacking weapons and unable to accept foreign offers of help, ended her bitter 3½ months' struggle against Soviet Russia today by yielding more soil and economic and military independence than demanded before the war.

At 11 a.m. (4 a.m., EST), the dogged, courageous Finnish army stopped fighting, and a gloomy peace settled over the battlefields, from the corpse-piled Karelian Isthmus to icy Lapland.

Beginning Friday, the Finnish troops will retreat at the rate of seven kilometres (about 4.5 miles) a day to narrowed frontiers fixed by the treaty signed at Moscow last night, but still subject to formal ratification by the Finnish Diet within three days.

After an anxious night in which Russia announced the stringent peace terms and the Finnish government was silent, Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner disclosed them in a broadcast to the Finnish people.

Lacked Faith In Promises.

Finland was forced to yield because she lacked arms and "had no faith in the promises of others" to aid in the unequal struggle against a foe 50 times her size, Tanner said.

Great Britain and France yesterday disclosed they had offered on February 26 to send 50,000 troops to Finland, but Tanner said, "The only possible route was through Norway and Sweden, who refused to let the troops through. This refusal proved an unconquerable obstacle.

"Thus Finland was left alone to face an enemy of superior numbers.

"The surrender is not our fault—it is the fault of our being forsaken by our fellow democracies."

He said that dispatching of allied troops to Finland by sea was "too hazardous."

Tanner said it was wisest to make peace while Finland's defences remained "unbroken."

"What kind of peace?" Tanner asked. "A severely wounded nation is surrendering important industrial and agricultural territories."

This, said the foreign minister, creates new responsibilities and makes a new building program necessary. He called for a united nation to carry out the reconsolidation.

"We have risen from ruin before," he said. "We have plenty of land left.

"The united front is needed just as surely during peace as war.

"There is the foundation for a new dawn for our nation in the future."

No Reinforcements

He praised the conduct of Finland's stubborn defenders, saying their feats were "astonishing and beyond expectations," but reinforcements were lacking.

The public—which reacted to the peace with numb bewilderment—also was lauded by Tanner.

"The home front acted wonderfully and the people's morale was praiseworthy," he said, under almost daily bombing attacks and other hardships of war.

Scandinavia Sad At Peace Cost; See Dark Future

COPENHAGEN, March 13—(AP).—(AP).—Scandinavia received the Finnish peace today with relief that the war is over, sadness at Finland's capitulation, and with forebodings for the future.

Talk of a northern defence union in which the little countries would band together for protection against more powerful neighbors was brought out into the open.

Early editorial comment emphasized that Finland had made enormous sacrifices in the interests of peace in the north.

In Sweden especially there were indications that popular opinion, shocked at the severity of the terms imposed upon Finland, would insist that some guarantee be given that Finland will not have to fight alone in the event of a new attack.

Norway too was concerned. The Oslo newspaper Dagbladet said that "the peace conditions made it im-

Sweden Fearful Finland Will Blame Her

STOCKHOLM, March 13—(AP)—From the welter of Swedish press comment on the Finnish-Russian war climax there emerged today a proposal that peace be insured by a defence union with Finland. Now, more than ever, the press said, Finns will need Swedish help.

The Conservative Svenska Dagbladet called the Moscow treaty a "hard peace" and asked what the Finnish people would say when they learn its terms.

"Many will say that Sweden is to blame," the newspaper said, "but at least the peace now must be guaranteed by Sweden in a defence union with Finland and possibly with Norway."

The Stockholm Tidningen commented that without Swedish material and help the Finns could not have held out as long as they did and added, "Sweden must stand side

France Sees Norway, Sweden Paying Dearly Later For Bitter Neutral Roles

PARIS, March 13—(CP-Havas).—Future Soviet policy may give Sweden and Norway sad reason to regret the "neutrality" policy which barred Finland from formally requesting the direct aid offered by the Allies, French observers predicted today.

It is held here that Moscow now holds "the key to Scandinavia" as a result of the harsh peace terms forced on the Finnish delegation led by Premier Risto Ryti.

Diplomatic quarters here pointed to Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner's assertion today that Helsinki decided against appealing for the troops offered by France and Great Britain solely because Sweden and Norway had refused them transit.

It can be hoped, it was said, that Finland's neighbors will have no future reason to repent their unrelenting stand.

The terms imposed on Finland were regarded here as leaving the republic powerless to contest future Soviet demands, much as Czecho-Slovakia was made impotent by the loss of Sudetenland.

Paris realized yesterday that the Finnish delegation at Moscow would be forced to submit to Soviet terms. Signature of the pact came as no surprise, but the harshness of the terms did, since recent reports had indicated, Russia had moderated her demands. The latter reports had largely stemmed from German and Swedish sources.

French quarters took it as a matter of course that Germany should have helped play Russia's game of deception, but believed it a strange and somewhat disturbing role to be adopted by Sweden.

Mannerheim To Rule.

COPENHAGEN, March 13—(AP).—Scandinavian political quarters expressed the belief today that drastic political changes are inevitable in Finland following conclusion of peace with Russia and that formation of a temporary military government is likely, possibly headed by Field Marshal Baron Gustaf Carl Mannerheim, Finlands' war leader.

It was reported here that two Finnish Cabinet Ministers already have resigned.

Finland, it was said, is now facing a troubled period of readjustment and rehabilitation in which military rule appears necessary.

Atlantic Service

London, March 13 (CP Cable)

THE aeronautical editor of The Daily Herald said today that trans-Atlantic air mail service between Foynes, Eire, and Botwood, Newfoudland, would start in June and would be followed before the end of summer by regular passenger service.

Three 30-ton flying boats, the Golden Hind, Golden Horn and Golden Gleece will soon be available for carrying passengers, he said, while the Caribou and Cabot will carry mail.

The writer said this would be the "only wartime air link between this country and America."

2,000 Canadians Wait Word From Helsinki

TORONTO, March 13.—(CP). — Kingsley Graham, Finnish consul, said to-day he was waiting for word from Finland as to whether the Finnish Diet ratifies the peace treaty with Russia before he would move towards the dispersal of the 2,000 Canadian volunteers who were preparing to go to Finland.

The men are gathered at various centres from coast to coast and one group is now on its way here from Vancouver. The offer of 2,000 men was cabled to Finland Friday.

"I think we would be unwise to do anything until we have official confirmation of peace," said Mr. Graham. "If we get word to send the men at once, they'll go. The funds are ready."

TNMMINS, Ont., March 13. — (CP).—Eleven volunteers who were ready to leave here to go to their country's aid waited word to-day from the Finnish consul at Toronto as to what they should do now. At South Porcupine 15 more waited.

Hore-Belisha Charges Technicality Excuse For Inaction

LONDON, March 13 (CP)—Great Britain was ready to throw the full weight of available resources into Finland's battle against Russia—in response to an appeal which never came, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today. At the same time he declared that every Finnish request for war materials had been answered.

Mr. Chamberlain's statement was made in the course of a brief debate in which Leslie Hore-Belisha charged that the government was pleading "a pure technicality" — Finland's failure to appeal for men —as an "excuse for inaction."

The prime minister's declaration that all requests for materials had been answered came in reply to a question from Mr. Hore-Belisha as to whether Finland had not made repeated requests for materials and men. It was not correct to say the beleaguered country had made repeated requests for men, the former war secretary said.

It always had been understood that "it was for the Finnish government to decide the course of action they considered best suited to their interests in the light of all available knowledge," Mr. Chamberlain said in opening the discussion on the Russo-Finnish peace settlement.

"As I informed the House on Monday," Mr. Chamberlain said, "we had made preparations to throw the full weight of all available resources into the scale on hearing that this was in accordance with the desires of the Finnish government."

Trio In Ottawa To Face Trial For Propaganda

OTTAWA, Mar. 13 — (CP). — Three youths, Harry and Louis Binder, and Arthur Roy Saunders will stand trial before a Supreme Court judge and jury, Magistrate Glenn Strike decided to-day after a preliminary hearing on charges of printing and distributing anti-war propaganda.

The three face three charges under Defence of Canada Regulations, relating to the printing and distribution of a pamphlet, containing such statements as:

"Withdraw Canada from the war. Speed the end of the slaughter. Vote Communist. Vote for peace." It said the Canadian Government and capitalist interests were conspiring "with the Imperialist war lords of Europe to make war against the Soviet Union, the land of Socialism."

Evidence at the preliminary hearing was given by police officers and consisted mainly in the identification of copies of the pamphlet and other papers and of a multigraphing machine on which it is alleged to have been printed.

Allied Prestige Hit By Peace, But No Body Blow

NEW YORK, March 13—(CP).—New York's morning newspapers agreed today the Allies have not suffered a major loss as a result the Russian-Finish peace treaty signed in Moscow. The ultimate fate of Finland prompted pessimistic speculation.

Remarking that an Allied expeditionary force presumably would have landed at Narvik, Norway, coming within range of the Swedish iron-ore mines on its way to Finland, The Times said editorially that "If the time for this project has now passed, one may doubt whether its disappearance is a body-blow to the Allied cause in Europe's major war."

The Herald-Tribune saw the peace treaty as a "considerable" blow to the prestige of the Allies, but concluded they have not suffered any loss "so far as the major military issue of the war is concerned."

Primary Boasts Roosevelt For Third Term

MANCHESTER, N.H., March 13.—(AP).—Official groundwork for a possible "draft-Roosevelt" movement at the Democratic national convention was laiad in New Hampshire to-day as the United States' first 1940 primary election gave the chief executive a full slate of delegates pledged to a third term.

Eight delegates at large and four district delegates, all committed to the President's renomination, were elected with the backing of a majority of the State's Democratic leaders, and, under New Hampshire law, must vote for him at the convention until he gives them a formal release.

The rank and file of the Democratic party ignored protests against a third term and passed up alternative standard bearers, with the result that three candidates pledged to Postmaster General James A. Farley, one to Vice-President John

13 Die, 37 Injured As Tornado Whips Louisiana

SHREVEPORT, La., March 13 — (AP).—Thirteen persons were killed, at least 37 injured and hundreds made homeless by tornadic winds which struck hardest in Shreveport late yesterday and then moved across the Louisiana border into Texas.

Fire Chief Sloan J. Flores estimated damage in Shreveport at more than $1,000,000.

The storm, accompanied by hail and rain, caused most damage in a Shreveport residential section before striking across the border in the area between Elysian Fields and Bethany, Tex. Five hundred Shreveport homes were damaged.

National guardsmen were called out immediately to prevent looting of homes. The Red Cross stepped in to aid the needy.

Finns Will Retreat 4.5 Miles A Day Until New Frontiers Are Reached

MOSCOW, March 13.—(AP). —A protocol attached to the Russian-Finnish peace treaty, outlining the methods of its fulfilment, follows:

The contracting parties fix the following procedure for the cessation of hostilities and the withdrawal of troops beyond the state frontier established by the treaty:

1. Both sides cease hostilities at noon March 13, 1940, Leningrad time.

2. A one-kilometre (⅝ mile) neutral zone will be established between the lines of advanced units as from the hour fixed for the cessation of hostilities, and in the course of the first day troop units which in accordance with the new state frontier find themselves on territory of the other side shall be withdrawn for one kilometre.

3. The withdrawal of troops beyond the new state frontier and the advance of troops of the other side toward the frontier shall commence at 10 a.m., March 15, 1940, along the whole frontier from the Gulf of Finland to Lieksa and at 10 a.m., March 16, north of Lieksa. The withdrawal shall be effected by daily marches of not less than 7 kilometres (4.5 miles) in 24 hours while the advance of troops of the other side shall be effected in such a way that rear units of troops being withdrawn and advance troops of the other side being marched toward the new frontier shall be separated by a distance not less than 7 kilometres.

4. The following time limits are fixed for withdrawal in accordance with Paragraph III. on various sections of the state frontier:

(a) On the section from the sources of the Tuntsjoki River, Kuolajaervi .Takall, the eastern shore of Lake Joukamo the withdrawal of troops of both sides shall be completed by 8 p.m. on March 20.

Kremlin Council Table Nets Russia Prizes Red Army Failed To Grab

LONDON, March 13.—(CP)—The Soviet dictated treaty ending the invasion of Finland after 105 blood-drenched days inflicts a costly peace on the Finns at a price far higher than was demanded before the Red army invaded the Republic's soil.

Last Oct. 5 the Soviet leaders, flushed with the new hegemony which their implied threats had easily gained over the Baltic countries of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, demanded similah concession from Finland.

Wary but diplomatic, the Finns tried to negotiate, and the Russian proposal finally boiled down to this:

Finland to be given a strip of Soviet Karelia on her eastern border in return for an undefined but evidently narrow strip of the Karelian Isthmus directly northwest of the Russian metropolis of Leningrad; lease or sale to Russia for a 5,000-man naval base of the Finnish Peninsula of Hanko, commanding the entrance to the Gulf of Finland; cession to Russia of an unspecified part of the Rybachi and Sredni peninsulas in the Arctic Ocean; exchange of some islands in the Gulf of Finland, and demilitarization of frontiers.

The Finns refused, principally on account of Hanko and the proposed loss of their carefully built-up Mannerheim Line of defences on the Karelian Isthmus.

On Nov. 30, the Red army invaded Finland. Its plans bombarded Helsinki and other Finnish cities. Just across the border, the Russians established at Terijoki a puppet "people's government of Finland" under Otto Kuusinen, Finnish communist who had been in exile for 20 years.

Declaring they would fight to the last man if need be, the plucky Finns appealed to the Moribund League of Nations, which promptly expelled Soviet Russia and started

Coster-Musica Used Shampoo To Make Millions

NEW YORK, Mar. 13 — (AP). — How an alcoholic shampoo—easily divertible to beverages for a thirsty populace—enabled a master swindler to gain control of the $87,000,000 McKesson & Robbins drug firm during the prohibition era was told in Federal Court to-day.

The story was related by George E. Dietrich-Musica, 46, of Fairfield, Conn., a brother of F. Donald Coster-Musica, the president of McKesson & Robbins, who committed suicide in December, 1938, after he was exposed as an ex-convict.

Testifying as a Government witness in the trial of five defendants on charges of conspiracy and mail fraud growing out of the scandal, Dietrich-Musica described the financial comeback of his brother 20 years after he had hoodwinked investors in a scheme known as "the $1,000,000 human hair swindle"—an affair dating back to the pre-war days when women wore high-coif-

Howe's Fortune Challenged By Dr. Manion

CORNWALL, Ont., March 12. — (CP).— Transport Minister Howe was challenged here last night by Conservative Leader Manion to tell how much of Mr. Howe's "fortune" was made from cost-plus government contracts.

"Is it because of his experience with this kind of contract that Mr. Howe is now in charge of the War Supply Board " Dr. Manion asked.

Speaking to 3,000 persons in Cornwall Armory, the Conservative leader replied to a radio address by Mr. Howe directed at Dr. Manion's election efforts.

Dr. Manion charged the Transport Minister with uttering a "common garden variety of lie" when Mr Howe said the government's determination to eliminate profiteering was not being well received by a small group associating themselves with the "so-called National government party" led by Dr. Manion.

Quick Path To Sweden.

"With a railway to be built to Kemi (on the Gulf of Bothnia) the Soviet army can at any moment cut Finland in two and get to the Swedish border," said the paper. "The whole south of Finland will be defenceless by losing the Mannerheim Line fortifications and in the Russian occupation of Hanko."

This paper observed that "this is a very hard peace, but under the present conditions it was the best solution."

"If Finland had continued the war Germany might have stepped in and taken the whole of Finland before help had arrived from the Western powers," Dagbladet said.

A similar view was expressed in Denmark. Typical of Danish press comment, the Copenhagen afternoon newspaper Ekstrabladet said:

"Finland sacrificed more for the cause of the north countries by accepting peace than by conducting war. By taking the heavy burden of peace on herself she has prevented the Scandinavian countries from becoming a new theatre of war."

Swedes especially expressed grief for Finland and a developing concern that the peace terms may bring new threats to Sweden's own safety.

Statesmen's Snapshots

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen

The only prime minister the province of Manitoba has given to Canada is Ontario - born Arthur Meighen, now Conservative leader in the senate and unquestionably one of the leading statesmen of his time.

Three decades ago Mr. Meighen made his first speech in the House of Commons. As he finished Sir Wilfrid Laurier turned to one of his cabinet ministers and said, "At last Borden has found a man."

Since that time Mr Meighen has occupied the most important political posts Canada has to offer. In 1921 the government he led went down to defeat. In 1925 he narrowly missed becoming prime minister for the second time and did fight his way back to a short-lived reign of power in 1926. That same year he passed from the active political picture for six years until he returned as a senator, and the Conservative leader in the upper house.

He was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth nor with numerous political friends. At one time he delivered milk for a living.

While, in 1874, he was born in Anderson, Perth County, Ontario, was educated in St. Mary's high school and graduated from the University of Toronto in 1896, it was in Winnipeg that he really began to practice law and it was Portage La Prairie that adopted him as its favorite son and sent him to the House of Commons as their representative in 1908.

In June, 1913, he was given the coveted post of solicitor-general, which did not carry a seat in the house. Two years later he entered the Borden cabinet. For the next five years, the war years, he held many important portfolios and earned an unsurpassed record as a legislator. He put through the War Measures Act, War Time Election Act and many other important measures. When Sir Robert Borden retired as Conservative leader in 1920, Mr. Meighen became prime minister.

When he retired to private business life six years later, he formed an investment trust company in Toronto, which life agreed with him so well that he added 25 pounds to his weight. While he was out of public life, he agreed to serve as a member of the Ontario Hydro Electric board, which he did for several years.

believe that Finland had signed a peace treaty on the terms cabled to this country.

C. M. Haapenen, prominent Timmins businessman, expressed the prevailing sentiment in the Finnish community when he said:

"The general thought among the Finnish people is that it is not true. They cannot understand why Finland should sign such peace terms. If it is true, and the Finns leave the Mannerheim Line defences, it will be a matter of the Finnis dancing as the Russians play. All of Finland is lost. It is just the same as the German occupation of Czechoslovakia."

Full of Sympathy

Of Finland, Mr. Chamberlain said, "in their decision they may be assured that the people in this country are united in sympathy for the situation in which they find themselves and admiration for the courage with which they have maintained for so long the struggle against overwhelming odds."

The House cheered this statement loudly.

"This epic story will be recounted in the chronicles of their own history and will remain alive in the memory of all people," Mr. Chamberlain continued.

He said the British government had made plain "their readiness to give all possible help to the Finns in their gallant struggle against aggression."

Clement Attlee, Labor leader, following Mr. Chamberlain, declared "we are all agreed in admiration for the Finns in their struggle, and while we are relieved that the slaughter has been stopped we deeply regret the success of aggression."

As Britain had been willing to assist the Finns in defending themselves against aggression, said Mr. Attlee, "we should render them all the assistance we can in order to repair the damages of this unprovoked attack on their people."

The government's decision not to give large scale aid to Finland until the Finns formally appealed for it was attacked by Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war secretary.

"Is is not a pity, in relation to the magnitude of these events and of their far-reaching character, to plead as an excuse for inaction a pure technicality?" Mr. Hore-Belisha asked.

"While associating myself with the expressions of sympathy with the Finns," said Mr. Hore-Belisha, "is it not a fact that repeated appeals have been made by that country for assistance in materials and men?"

No Repeated Requests.

Mr. Chamberlain replied: "It is not correct to say that repeated requests for men had been made by the Finnish government."

The Finnish government, said Mr. Chamberlain, "made repeated requests for materials and every one of those requests has been answered.

"They had been informed as long ago as Feb. 25 that if they were to make an appeal to us we should be prepared and were making preparations to send them men as well as materials."

Only yesterday Premier Daladier of France declared Britain and France had 50,000 troops fully equipped at two ports ready to embark immediately if Finland should call.

In the circumstances in which they found themselves, however, the Finns decided not to make such a request, Mr. Chamberlain said.

Mr. Hore-Belisha asked for a full debate "in the light of these events on the whole conduct of the war."

Mr. Chamberlain declared in reply to a question that "at no time did we threaten the neutrality of Sweden." Sweden's neutrality was presumed to have been involved in the question of transporting allied troops to Finland.

Mr. Hore-Belisha's request for a debate brought a shout from a Labor member: "And discuss you too. You want us to fight the world."

Maisky Leaves.

Asked by Sir Archibald Southby, Conservative, if he was "satisfied that in these harsh peace terms accepted by the Finns there is a guarantee they will really be observed in spirit by Russia" and whether "the help offered by Britain and France to Finland had been rendered impossible by action of the Norwegian and Swedish Governments," Mr. Chamberlain replied:

"It is obvious that I can give no such guarantee as asked for in the first part of the question. As regards the second part, a request for this help was not made by the Finnish Government."

In the midst of the exchange on the Finnish-Russian peace, William Gallacher, Communist, declared a settlement of the Finnish question could have been reached in November "without bloodshed if it had not been for outside pressure."

Shouts of "No" came from various sides of the House.

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax made a statement similar to Mr. Chamberlain's in the House of Lords.

Lord Snell, Labor Leader in the Upper House, expressed "satisfaction that the physical agony of this miraculous little people has now ended, but with a feeling of regret that the spiritual injuries they have received will endure; that right has once more been defeated and wrong once more triumphed in the world."

Western Front Livened Only By Patrols

PARIS, March 13 (CP-Havas) — Air operations continued today to feature the war picture along the Western Front.

Activity on the ground was confined to routine patrol work and sporadic artillery fire. This morning's French communique again advised that there had been "nothing to report" during the night.

French military quarters disclosed that the anti-aircraft guns heard in the Paris region Monday night had been brought into action when German planes were discovered approaching the capital.

Most of the air operations on both sides has been concentrated on reconnaissance and photographic flights. No battles were reported and French quarters flatly denied insistent German claims that French ships had been shot down in past days.

French flights over the German lines have been complemented daily by British air operations over Nazi naval bases. France particularly welcomed news that an R.A.F. bomber had accounted for another enemy submarine.

French fliers have been concentrating on observation flights over the Rhineland and southern Germany.

coordinating aid to Finland from neutrals. Sweden, Bri[illegible], France and other countries fo[illegible] some war equipment; the Unite[illegible] States and others gave non-military aid.

While the world looked on in admiration and astonishment, Finland, one-fiftieth as populous as Russia, fought the invading hosts to a standstill for months.

One of the coldest winters in half a century aided Finland's defence and Finnish soldiers killed and wounded the freezing Russians by the thousands.

Early in January the Finns announced two great victories: Annihilation on the eastern front of the Soviet 44th and 163rd divisions of 15,000 and 18,000 men each. On Feb. 19 they announced the slaughter of the Soviet 18th division.

Modern Miracle.

Finnish ski troops, with mobility offsetting the Soviets' sheer numbers, accomplished a modern miracle. Many military observers said the long-dreaded might of the Russian army had been proven a myth.

But slowly and ponderously, with utter disregard for casualties, the overwhelming Russian manpower finally penetrated the Mannerheim Line of defences on the Karelian Isthmus.

Swarms of Russian bombers, often 500 or more at a time, mercilessly devastated nearly every city and hamlet in Finland, although not a single important Finnish community yet had fallen into Russian hands.

Finally, after three months of war had depleted Finland's manpower and supplies peace negotations were started behind the scenes. Neutral Sweden acted as an intermediary.

Just one week ago a Finnish delegation headed by Premier Risto Ryti went to Moscow to discuss Russia's new offer—although Russian leaders had said they never would deal with any Finnish government other than the one they themselves had set up at Terijoki.

Today, while Britain and France were ready to rush 50,000 soldiers to the defence of Finland, the Finnish leaders chose a galling peace.

Happy Hostesses Entertain At Harwood

HARWOOD, Mar. 13 (ENS)—The Happy Hostess Girls' Club met at the home of Mrs. Hilton Graham on Saturday afternoon, with sixteen members present. President Lettice Drope opened the meeting, with Jeanea Aldrige as secretary. The roll-call was answered by each member handing in her record book. Miss Frances Corkery took charge of the discussion. Final arrangements were made in connection with the St. Patrick's tea and demonstration to be held on March 16 at the home of the president.

Misses Moyer and McCulloch gave a demonstration of candy-making, and their results were later enjoyed by those present.

Table decorations were judged by members and the meeting closed in the usual manner.

Hall's Bridge Group Hold Social Eve

HALL'S BRIDGE, Mar. 13 (ENS)—A very pleasing event took place on Friday evening when the teachers and Bible Class of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Gillespie to spend a social evening and during which Mr. Gillespie was presented with a floor lamp as a slight token of appreciation of his faithful service for many years as superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Graham and family, with Edward Wood, spent the week-end with relatives at Lindsay.

Mrs. M. Chevier of Toronto has been spending a short holiday with her parents at Hall's Bridge.

John Shearer, who has been home convalescing with a fracture of the leg, has returned to Kirkland Lake.

A. Carew of Lindsay was in the village on Saturday last. Mr. Carew is greatly concerned over Bruce Hall who a few days ago was knocked over and rendered unconscious by a blow from a sledge pole and at the same time sustained a fracture dislocation of the right wrist. Mr. Hall is at present doing well under the local doctor, although a minor operation may be necessary later on.

Mrs. Tom Elliott is spending a few weeks' vacation at the home of her son, Gale Elliott, at Lakehurst. She is expected to return home shortly.

The Hall's Bridge War Workers met at the home of Mrs. Wallace Shearer on Tuesday afternoon, with eleven members present. Owing to the absence of Mrs. Willis, who is still confined to her room, the vice-president, Mrs. Bruce Hall, presided. A minute's silence was observed in memory of His Excellency Lord Tweedsmuir. The reports of the various officers were given and a letter of appreciation from the I.O.D.E. was read, other business followed, and a discussion as to future plans and work took place. A committee was appointed to attend to the packing of another bale and arrange for making relief quilts. Tea was served by the hostess.

On Tuesday last William Smith was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, for treatment. Mr. Smith has been ill for some time.

On Wednesday Mrs. Fred Bennett slipped and fell on the floor of her kitchen suffering a fracture of the right arm. She is being attended by Dr. Willis.

A few days ago Max Wilson was knocked out by a blow from a chain and hook sustaining a lacerated ear and painful bruising of the face.

Levi Moore was also amongst the list of unfortunates, having his foot run over by a sledge skid. He is doing well.

On Monday last Darcy Jacobs severely injured his foot with a blow from an axe, severing two bones. He is now under treatment in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

On Tuesday Peter McCue was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in a serious condition. He has been under the care of the medical officer of the Curve Lake Reserve for some time.

On Saturday last Samuel Knott visited Toronto and on Sunday morning had a cerebral apoplexy. He was buried at Curve Lake Cemetery on Thursday afternoon. He has three brothers and a nephew still living on the Reserve.

Warsaw

Mrs. Joseph Matthews is not improving. Her son Harold is staying with her, and she has sent for her other sons.

Mrs. Arthur Payne is visiting her sister, Mrs. Alec Darling.

Miss May Clements, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Clements in the West and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clements who formerly lived here, is visiting relatives in and around Warsaw.

Manion Silent When Army Begged Money Declares Col. J. A. Dewart

Hon. Dr. Manion, Colonel George Drew and Premier Hepburn were linked together by Colonel John A. Dewart Tuesday night as irresponsible critics of Canada's military effort who in the lean days of pacificism, accentuated by the depression never once raised a voice on any platform to advocate preparedness of Canadian armed forces.

Colonel Dewart was the main speaker at Grady's School at the Indian River turn on No. 7 highway with E. Bruce Fowler, and W. B. Gordon assisting the Liberal candidate, R. M. Glover. Deputy-reeve Percy Davidson was appointed chairman by the assembly of men and women from the countryside.

A note of bitterness recurred in Colonel Dewart's tones as he related from his own experience the years of humiliation through which the military authorities pleaded for equipment and were told by Parliament that funds were not available. In 1932, during the Bennett regime, and also during the depression, the militia had been reduced to such straits that the possibility of disbanding the Canadian militia was feared.

"I know men on the headquarters staff at Ottawa who have worked 18 hours a day on the tremendous job of transfering the military structure of this country from a peace to a war basis, arranging for equipment, enlistment, personnel, quarters, and so on first for 30,000 and 40,000 men, now getting up toward 100,000. My feeling is that such irresponsible criticism disparaging the work of the staff and our whole military effort is wretched recompense for the splendid work those men have done."

Mr. Glover also spoke at Villiers with F. D. Kerr, K.C., Howard Quinn and R. O. Standish.

Comfort To Enemy

"The King administration is being criticized almost entirely for having failed in Canada's military effort so far, and consequently it is on those lines that one has to meet such criticism. I am rather astonished that men who should be responsible are making irresponsible statements which I feel certain are militating against our best military effort and are very comforting to the enemy.

In 1920 we all had the opinion that we were through with war for good, and that the task of maintaining peace and fair dealing was within the power of the League of Nations. The feeling throughout the world was that the covenant of the League provided the solution to that great problem. By 1928, however, we began to realize that the League was not going to function, and that it had not much chance of functioning without the means of applying armed force. Here in Canada, the government of the day, the King government began increasing the appropriations the people were willing to make for the purpose of building up our military force. I remember that time because I was actively engaged in the militia. Then in 1930 the government of R. B. Bennett came into office. I am not accusing the Hon. R. B. Bennett of disloyalty. The fact is that we were passing through a severe depression, and in 1932 our military appropriation was diminished to such an extent that it was almost necessary to disband the Canadian militia.

No Friends of Militia

In that same year Canada spent less per capita in military expenditure than all the other countries except Peru. The people did not think it was necessary to spend money for military purposes. And today we hear men like Dr. Manion and Hepburn and others making ridiculous criticism of the lack of preparedness in Canada, and not one of them was willing at that time to stand up and convince the people that the money was needed at that time."

Colonel Dewart stated that the regiment went to camp with only one pair of boots, with only one suit of clothing; that the men had no change of boots and clothing for wet weather. "Year after year we pleaded at least for extra boots. Hepburn was in the House of Commons at the time, but he didn't stand up in the House and say that something should be done about it. Yet, you all remember the fuss he made about one overcoat as he did recently in the Legislature."

With the return of the King administration in 1935, Colonel Dewart said that the appropriations for national defence were steadily increased until in 1939 they were the largest since the conclusion of the last war providing for effective training of a comparatively large body of men.

Need of Modernizing

Military authorities felt that war was inevitable, and everything possible was done with the money the people were willing to grant through their representatives in the House of Commons. In 1934 and 1935, those authorities regarded the military set up as obsolete, with too many militia units and too many cavalry units, that the weapons of the infantry and the artillery should be changed. And it was also realized that the expense involved in bringing about those changes was colossal. In 1936 there was a reorganization of the militia all over Canada, based on the war establishment adopted in Great Britain.

Plans were drafted for the complete organization of six divisions, but pacifist sentiment was so strong in this country that no public man would take a stand on any platform in support of the needed reorganization, "yet they must have known that Canada would be in the war if it came." The plans eventually narrowed down to two divisions, one for the defence of each coast, and were on paper for years under the chief of the general staff. Everything was done to get new equipment, and Colonel Dewart quoted General Matthews as saying that when the cost of modernizing one division was put on paper that it took one's breath away in the sentiment abroad at that time.

After Munich, when the British people got the scare of their lives they set about to get everything ready as speedily as possible. They required their own munitions, and for that reason Canada could not obtain from them the armament that could have been bought in normal circumstances.

"No Money Available"

Criticisms that are now heard about why the authorities did not have everything ready were utterly irresponsible, Colonel Dewart declared. "I've followed this thing year after year as a militia officer, and our association passed resolutions asking for the things that were needed, and time and again the reply came back from the government stating that they knew it was necessary, but the money was not available."

With the outbreak of war, Colonel Dewart continued, the mobilization of two divisions was authorized. One of them is in Great Britain and the other still in Canada. Every details of mobilization had planned, providing for equal representation of the provinces on virtually a basis in proportion to population. Of the original plans for six divisions, two-thirds of the Canadian militia was tem was not a mass recruiting system was not a mass recruiting as in 1914, but according to regiments, and the Canadian militia had worked for years with a meagre amount of money that was spent on the training of officers and non-commissioned officers to be qualified and ready to train recruits in the shortest possible time, and that result had been produced. No time was lost in the training of the men who joined the new Canadian army.

Colonel Dewart briefly told the story of how the general order for the mobilization of two divisions was signed by Lord Tweedsmuir on September 1, and when Prime Minister Chamberlain announced a state of war on September 3 at noon all that remained to be done for the calling out of the first troops in this country was the signing of telegrams that had already been prepared. By evening that day the work of mobilization was proceeding all over Canada.

"You hear about some men who can't find places to enlist," Colonel Dewart said, and explained that there had to be a choice between the mass mobilization of 1914 and the organized plan prearranged that was now in effect. At the outset of the last war men flocked from all over the country to the camp that was hurriedly built at Valcartier. There it was found that there were too many senior officers of one rank and too few of another, not enough non-commissioned officers, and so on. Of the 35,702 men who had enlisted up to September 20 of that year 5,081 were found to be medically unfit and were sent back to their homes. The first contingent was sent to England before the Bri-

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Suffered for Two Months from BRONCHITIS

Buckley's Mixture Cleared It Up

Every sufferer from bronchitis, grippe, coughs, colds or asthma should benefit by this Peterboro' man's experience, and get quick relief. His son, Mr. J. Desmond, says: "My father has suffered from bronchitis for the past two months and nothing we gave him seemed to do him any good. Finally we tried Buckley's Mixture. That was just two weeks ago. Today he says he feels like a new man." Bronchitis and tough, hang-on colds yield quickly to Buckley's Mixture. You can tell from the first dose that it is doing you good. The cough is relieved, hard, tough phlegm begins to come up easily, breathing becomes easier, raw air ducts are soothed. Don't experiment. Buy Buckley's Mixture. 76

Nothing To Take Home

Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Minister, visited Rome. It looked at the time the trip started as though there would be good material on which to work. Britain was nipping off German shipments of coal destined for Italy and Italy would be feeling grieved. And that would be good atmosphere in which to work for the tightening of the Rome-Berlin axis. But Britain had settled the whole business with Rome before Ribbentrop reached the city and the stuff out of which to make thunder no longer existed.

There was interest attached to von Ribbentrop's visit to the Vatican, and it was carefully announced in advance by the Vatican paper that the German diplomat was the party asking for the interview. There is rather an interesting form which must be observed in interviews with the Pontiff. The visitor cannot ask questions, and that leaves the direction of the conversation in the hands of the Pope.

Ribbentrop's reception in Rome was not what could be called cordial; there was nothing hostile in evidence, but it was a long way removed from the enthusiasm which marked such visits in the full-blown noon of the Axis arrangements. The correspondent of the New York Times pays a good deal of attention to the visit to the Vatican, regarding it as of more important than conversations with Mussolini. He admits that nothing is given out; the interview was private, and it is necessary to rely on secondary sources of information.

Von Ribbentrop offered his congratulations to the Pope on his election, but it was recalled that at the time of the election Hitler had sent no message, nor had he done so on the occasion of the death of Pius XI.

Ribbentrop thanked the Pope for his efforts in working for peace, but here again it was recalled that unlike France and Britain, Germany had never before recognized that such peace efforts were being made.

Although all information comes from secondary sources it is stated on the authority of sources which are said to be reliable, that von Ribbentrop did mention the question of peace.

The Pontiff, it is believed, brought to the front the question of the treatment of people in Poland, a Catholic country. Broadcasts from the Vatican on this subject have been frequent, and the statements made telling of torture and death have been so pointed that they must constitute nothing less than a very large thorn in the flesh for the Reich. It is probably in poor taste to introduce the language of the day within the well-ordered affairs of the Vatican, but when the fate of Poland was brought up the visiting von Ribbentrop would be standing on the well-known "spot."

The feeling of reliable correspondents in Rome who are not much given to coloring or shading their despatches seems to be that von Ribbentrop went from Berlin to Rome with a dozen experts and his own body guards, and on the return trip he had virtually nothing to take home in his diplomatic basket.

The War Of Nerves

The inquiry conducted at St. Thomas concluded there had been a walk-out of students at the R.A.F. training school. There was nothing new in that as the information had been published in the St. Thomas Times-Journal on February 20 or thereabouts. It was also found there had been no trouble; police had not found their duties heavier as a result. The weight of evidence was all bent toward establishing that the walk-out had taken place. It could not go farther and ask the reasons because the inquiry had no jurisdiction in that field.

It may be, and we admit this is speculation, that the trouble is that in the initial stages of organization there has not been enough for the students to do. There can't be anything wrong with the premises, for they are about the finest and newest in the province in the multi-millionaire class.

We have heard it stated there is more difficulty today in keeping men in good shape in France than when there was active warfare. The problem of what to do with thousands of men, or with lesser numbers, when they are not fully engaged has always been a puzzler. There is nothing equal to the condition where men are tired by night and thankful for the opportunity of a turn in bed.

It must be remembered this has been called "a war of nerves" and with good reason. Germany may have ordered it that way and with good reason. It is trying and difficult to stand ready and prepared for something which may or may not happen. It becomes more difficult at the end of six months than at the termination of the first three months. It may be the same feeling enters all our activities. The Allies so far have not forced the issue; they are content to wait as long as Germany desires it. They are making themselves stronger by so doing, but the waiting is none the less trying for that reason. Our belief is that the young men at the St. Thomas school who have not had enough to do will probably have sufficient to attend to before long.

Not Drawing Crowds

What's gone wrong? We listen to addresses at times, and more frequently see the statement glaring at us in print that we are in the midst of the most important election in the history of our young nation. The government to be elected is going to be entrusted with our entire war effort; it will have power to enforce taxation to pay for the war and that taxation is going to be heavy.

All true, but what's gone wrong? In some places we notice the revival of the habit of publishing the number of people who attended a political meeting.

Turning to the Western end of our province we learn there was no person from Goderich, the county town of Huron County, in attendance at the official nomination meeting in Wingham. People cut their political beef in thick slices in that part of the province, and as a rule there would be a good enough showing from both parties at the nomination meeting. This year none at all.

Hon. James Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, is making a tour of that section. Fact is he's a native there, although he went west long years ago. He addressed a meeting in Kincardine and there were 45 present. He did better at Wingham with an audience of 400, but 400 is not the measure of the usual campaign effort.

M. A. MacPherson, K.C., Regina, stumping for the National party, visited Wingham, and he did not go above the 400 mark either. When Holly Acres, a member of the Ontario Legislature, spoke for the Conservative candidate in Clinton, a town which is readily accessible to a wide enough area, he is credited with having drawn only 100 to the meeting.

We know road conditions are not yet the best, but in other years it would take extremely bad roads to keep people from flocking to the point where their favorite brand of political faith was going to be expounded.

We noticed where a resident in an interview had given his explanation. This way:

> "There is too much mud slinging in this campaign. What is the use of men going around trying to make us believe one party is any more loyal than the other. We know all the candidates around here and we have never questioned the loyalty of any of them and we are not doing it now. Why do they want to talk about conscription and the effect it may have on farmers' sons when neither party in this election is in favor of conscription. When they get down to business people will perhaps go to their meetings."

And as explanations go that one may come as close to the point as any other.

Can Say Much

Captain Roy Brown, an outstanding pilot in the last war, made an address in support of the National Government candidate. His complaint was that censorship regulations had been imposed to save the King Government from criticism. That claim has been made before. The passing of censorship regulations dealing with press or radio or other means of communication are always issued in time of war, and they are issued by the government in power, regardless of what government that might be.

The censorship regulations reached newspaper offices during the last war much the same as they have this time. They come in somewhat the same category as all other regulations, those dealing with food prices, with the exchange of foreign securities, and so on. They are all considered essential and must therefore become effective.

If the ban is on the radio, it certainly is not on the public platform. People are at liberty to take the Government all to pieces there and there is nothing to make them put it together again when the meeting is over.

Just One Side

It does look at times as though some of our newspapers were going rather much out of their way in publishing stories from soldiers who have what they claim to be a grievance. There was a recent case where a Toronto paper carried a story of two members of the Perth regiment who turned up in Collingwood without funds and with "two weeks' leave without pay."

The story which did not mention the names of the soldiers, said the men had had no pay since December, dependents' allowance had been withheld, and they had been receiving only three fair meals a week. Military offices of District No. 1, with headquarters in London, has decided to secure all the facts, after which a retraction of the story will probably be requested.

If pay had been withheld it would be for being absent without leave or some other infraction of regulations. Any person familiar with military life knows well enough it is not exactly uncommon for some one to have been dropped off the pay list as a matter of discipline.

As for not having good meals — we don't believe it. Headquarters of the Perth Regiment is in Stratford. One can read any day in the columns of the Beacon-Herald of what is going on there, as there is a resident correspondent in the barracks, and it would appear that all is going well.

When such reports are placed in circulation they give the impression that something serious is wrong. The men are being ill-used; their money is being taken from them. The full story is never told and to that extent it is decidedly unfair.

The Idea's Not Bad

Young lady of 18 years was taken into custody by the police at Sudbury, and the charge was "vagrancy," and that of course covers almost anything. In this case the girl was wandering around the streets just before dawn and her explanation was that she had been forced to leave her rooming house and was seeking new lodgings.

Not a complete stranger in Sudbury was this girl for she had been remanded last October on a similar charge and allowed to go on the understanding that her going would take her in the general direction of Ottawa, her home.

She explained she had returned to Sudbury "to marry my boy friend," and that seems right enough. Means another little home starting in the community and all that. The magistrate was partially inclined toward leniency but he was not bowled over. He gave the girl one week of freedom and by that time she was to report to his office and produce a marriage certificate.

Perhaps this may stir the "boy friend" into action. At least it should. Whether some such co-operative plan on the part of the bench generally would produce results is of course going off the deep end into speculation. And yet we suspect there are scattered over the land a number of young ladies who would almost welcome some such action in order to cause the "boy friend" to declare himself and reduce his vague intentions to such understandable dimensions that the young lady would have opportunity to say yes or no. Possibly the magistrate's court is not the most desirable place under the sun to set up such a tribunal but until we have something better it might well enough serve the purpose.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Lord Haw Haw, Germany's English-speaking radio announcer, suggests that Britain may move her seat of government to Canada. Whether that would help much at the moment is doubtful, as the government here is under fire.

In the Brantford Expositor items of 35 years ago we read: "William Aberhart was appointed by the Public School Board as temporary principal of Central School pending the appointment of a successor to the late William Wilkinson." And before that the Premier of Alberta attended high school in Seaforth, Huron Co. The school had a ball team and William Aberhart was the pitcher and Dr. F. C. Neal of Peterborough was the catcher.

TAXES

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Grandfather worried with alarm, about the taxes on the farm, talked early and quite late; he had to scrape about a lot, until the full amount he got, and it was far too great.

¶ He never could quite understand, they pitched the money out like sand, they knew no thrift at all; he'd like to call the voters in, to see if they shared views with him, so they might hire a hall.

¶ In spring the roads were filled with mud, before the trees had shed a bud, the bridge was shaky too; he couldn't drain his land at all, the ditches all got clogged in fall, he'd sack and fire the crew.

¶ Grandfather said he'd move to town, he'd heard the taxes there were down, he'd help to hold the lid; he said that things were in a groove, the only thing to do was move, a thing he never did.

¶ I knew just what grandfather paid, and all the groanings that he made, he sang his hymn of hate; he feared he'd lose his goodly farm, the drive shed, cows, the pigs and barn, much like a hymn of hate.

¶ And I've paid taxes in my day, think what grandfather used to say, to howl he'd little cause; if he'd see bills that come today, I'm sure as anything he'd say—how fortunate he was.

Europe Seems Filled With Spies Just Now

PARIS.—A fragmentary picture of espionage activities in France gleaned from such incidents as the sentencing of the so-called "Stuttgart radio traitors" to capital punishment March 6, is all that leaks out from behind a well-guarded Government wall of official secrecy.

Frequent German placards along the front line or German radio announcements reveal that German intelligence has a way of finding out information and events not generally published in France.

But the only way that Frenchmen discover what their Government is doing to counteract this obvious leakage is the increasing number of court trials.

Paul Ferdonnet, who was tried March 6 in absentia after being accused Feb. 13 of treasonable radiocasting nightly from Stuttgart, 50 miles across the border in Germany, was France's "Number One Traitor." A French writer, M. Ferdonnet's radiocasts in French, attempting to split Anglo-French unity, were subject to every known jamming devise by French radio operators who sought to drown out the broadcasts.

M. Ferdonnet had served German interests before the outbreak of the war by publishing books and articles attacking the Czechs and Jews, and denouncing France's pact with the Soviet Union as a probable cause of war. He made good his escape from France, however, not even stopping long enough to collect a sum of 57,000 francs which he had deposited in a bank.

At present he is chief French agent of German propaganda. His accomplice, Andre Obrecht, another Frenchman, was also sentenced to capital punishment in absentia.

These, and similar executions, arrests and indictments of alleged spies and traitors, have focussed French attention on the far-flung workings of the German espionage system.

One of the first official warnings of the gravity of this problem was sounded by Premier Edouard Daladier himself in a speech which he delivered before the Chamber of Deputies last June.

A SEQUEL to the Premier's speech was the arrest, by the military authorities, of two French journalists, Aloys Aubin and Julien Poirier, charged with being paymasters for German secret agents in France. M. Poirier passed on shortly after his arrest; Aubin will soon be brought to trial before a military court.

Women played a raher prominent part in the German espionage machine in France. A striking figure among these is the Baroness von Einem, whose widespread operations as a German spy have resulted in a trial in absentia, at present in session. Charged with perhaps less influential missions by Germany was Elizabeth Butner, a familiar figure in many Parisian salons. A third woman spy was a Frenchwoman named Marthe Moreuil, who was detected in a chemical factory which was occupied with war orders.

A military court at Lille recently sentenced Karl Szebereny, native of Germany, to capital punishment for espionage, while a few days later in the same city a plot to obtain military intelligence from French and Belgian soldiers was reported to have been frustrated by police raids.

The raids followed the arrest in Belgium, near the frontier, of a man and two women and discovery of a collection of gift packages of letters destined to procure military information.

THIS particular type of propaganda has been thwarted by the march of events; and the clandestine German espionage organization in France today tends rather to concentrate on spreading rumors calculated to stir up distrust between French and England. One reason which causes the French authorities to take the German espionage very seriously is the phenomenally well developed German intelligence service in Poland, which greatly facilitated the conquest of that country.

One of the latest espionage centers of Europe today, however, is in Rumania, where British, French, and German agents are working constantly to obtain information which will give their countries the upper hand in the current struggle for supremacy in Rumanian oil shipments.

Foreigners in Bucharest are constantly accusing one another of being spies. On one side British businessmen accuse German agents of bribing Rumanian postal officials to hold up letters bound for England, in order to crimp British business operations.

On the other side the German agents accuse the British of numerous train wrecks and oil explosions of recent months.

Rumanians, habitually tolerant of such machinations, credit both sides, including the neutrals, with circulating the legion of rumors which pervade the capital.

ALWAYS GROWING

The Ontario civil service numbered 7,769 as of January 31, including 1,716 temporary employees. Quoting this statement from the Sentinel-Review, a friend asks: "Is this the fulfilment of the Hepburn campaign promise to 'reduce the civil service by 50 per cent?'" Can't say what the total was when "Mitch" took over, but two years ago it was 7,612, including 922 temporary employees, so the trend is still upward.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Letter To The Editor

NEED A CHANCE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—In a recent issue of The Examiner, reference was made in the news columns to the demand of the organized farmers for what they term "parity prices" for their products, with the cost of the things farmers buy from Canadian factories.

Subsequently, I observed the astonishing assertion credited to Premier John Bracken (Manitoba) in last week's Financial Times, of Montreal, namely: "One-third of the population of Canada is directly associated with agriculture—but receives only one-twelfth of the national income."

I think this shocking economic unbalance is what is chiefly the matter with Canadian economy. At any rate it seems a sufficient explanation to this reader as to why Canadian secondary industries have been finding customers with increasing difficulty. Along the same trend of thought, I suppose an economist would have not much difficulty in indicating a definite relationship between lack of purchasing - power "down on the farm" and scores of thousands of workless urban Canadians dependent upon public relief?

It seems to me that something should be done about this. I recall a reference, by one of the leading executives at last week's meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, to "the suspicion and misunderstanding which exists between the farmer and the businessman," and the desirability and need for its elimination. Well, sir, if the above data are accurate, there seems to be a genuine "cause" behind the condition referred to? If urban Canadians are wise, they will co-operate in the matter of finding a workable technique by which their chief customers—the 700,000 farm families—will win a fairer share of the nation's income. Under today's inequity, there are still some four hundred thousand Canadians (mostly urban) on what former prime minister R. B. Bennett described as "a rotten thing"—the dole. Every effort should be made to get the s.s. "Canada" onto a more even keel?

RURALITE.

• Know Hitler By Looking at Poland

FOURTEEN CANADIANS, headed by Prof. Watson Kirkconnell of Winnipeg, have written to Premier Mackenzie King protesting against "the unprecedented barbarism now being carried on in Poland" by the Nazi invaders.

It is well that the case of Poland be kept fresh in the mihd. The Canadian prime minister cannot do much about the situation, of course, but the protest may help to stir up renewed interest in the appalling things going on in that country.

Nothing perpetrated by the German imperial armies during the last war, not even in Belgium, is comparable to the atrocities which Hitler's armed forces are committing in Poland today. In community after community, Poles of all ages have been and are still being indiscriminately arrested, herded into public squares and executed by Nazi firing squads.

The invaders are carrying out the systematic extermination of Poles who have been prominent in political, civic, religious and cultural life. The Polish nation is in process of being broken so that nothing remains but a mass of impoverished, terrorized and leaderless serfs — to make liebensraum for the superior creatures who know no pity.

Entire populations of some cities—Gdynia, for instance, which was built and peopled by the Poles—are being deported into the "interior," which is being transformed into a kind of vast reservation where the inhabitants are permitted to exist, but not much more. In modern times there has been no organized villainy to surpass this in wantonnness and cruelty.

The lesson in all this is that Hitler and his tyrant-conquerors are doing to the Poles what he will do to all vanquished foes, including the British, wherever they live. Hitler hates the British far more bitterly than he does the Poles, and, to his way of thinking, humanitarianism is humbug and talk of human rights beneath contempt. There are only masters and slaves.—Ottawa Citizen.

• Worthwhile Being A Canadian

HARRISON B. WILLIAMS of Ottawa, writing in the Journal, states plainly and with effect what it means to be a Canadian citizen:

Daily I hear the roar of airplanes but I do not run for cover in fear of enemy bombers.

At night I can light up my house as brightly as I wish for there are no blackout regulations.

No Government restrictions tell me how much food or clothing my family is allowed. We can have all that we can afford.

My Spring shopping list does not include gas masks for any of us.

My newspaper gives me the truth about conditions at home and abroad, omitting only those items which would be of military value to our enemies.

I am free to join any lodge, club or group I may choose.

On the other hand, neither my sons nor I are compelled to join any military or semi-military organizations or labor battalions.

I can join any political party, criticize its leaders, its policies and speak freely without being sent to a concentration camp or before a firing squad.

I do not fear that my family or neighbors will report me to the Gestapo and I know that my telephone line has not been tapped by my Government.

I am on friendly terms with my fellow-Canadians, be they Protestant, Catholic or Jew and I can speak freely and trade with them with no fear for my safety or theirs.

I am free to worship God without any restrictions from the government as to when, where or how it must be done.

I do not have to register with the police, in fact the only registration card I carry is one I voluntarily carry in case of accident.

When I travel within this or neighboring countries, which I do freely and without passport, I see no sandbags, A.R.P. signs, anti-aircraft emplacements nor other harbingers of a rain of death.

I think of those in other countries as international friends who respect my rights and my country's borders as I respect theirs.

In brief—I am a Canadian, heir to a bountiful land, a multitude of privileges, unlimited freedom....all of which I try to merit and shall try to preserve for my children.

LESS GARRULOUS

IN SPITE of all the masculine misgivings of all the years of the suffrage battle, women haven't been nearly so garrulous in politics as men. Here's Mrs. Frances P. Bolton of Cleveland elected to Congress with only one campaign speech, and that a short one. She is the first woman ever elected to Congress in Ohio, a Republican chosen to fill the unexpired term of her husband, representative Chester C. Bolton, who died last October.

Neither her economy of speech nor her great wealth proved obstructive. She will possibly be the wealthiest member of Congress. She was Frances Payne Bingham of Cleveland, married to Mr. Bolton in 1907 and is the mother of two grown children. Her husband's fortune was developed in the steel industry, in which he was engaged from 1905 to 1917. At her home in Lyndhurst, Cleveland, Mrs. Bolton has been the center of social, civic and philanthropic activity, but this is her first venture in politics. She is 54 years old.—New York Sun.

RAN GREAT RISK

Whatever the reason for the Queen Elizabeth's dramatic crossing, the highest of credit must be given to her captain and crew for their daring. For it must be remembered that these seamen were running a far greater risk than the Germans who manned the Bremen in that liner's publicized escape. The worst that the Bremen's crew faced was capture. But, if a submarine had succeeded in sinking the Queen Elizabeth, the best that her crew could have hoped for would have been the refuge of open lifeboats on the wintry Atlantic.—Buffalo Courier-Express.

THE PRIMARY INTEREST

THAT the primary interest of the Ontario Government in the Liquor Control Act is the large revenue it affords was openly disclosed by the Premier of the Province speaking in the House. When the Dominion Government increased taxes and stepped up the tax on liquors for war revenue, the Ontario Liquor Commission immediately advanced its prices for spirits. It is claimed by the Hon. Senator Hardy, a good Liberal, that this advance was exorbitant. Be that as it may, the increased price apparently lessened the sales with the result that the Commissioner cut prices to increase sales.

This is a somewhat far cry from the views of D. B. Hanna, the first Commissioner of the Liquor Control Board in Ontario. His dictum was that if control did not lessen consumption, it would be a failure.

Mr. Hepburn measures success by the quantity sold.—Temperance Advocate.

NOT PEACE TERMS

These (Hitler demands) were not peace terms: they were war cries. Their intent was less to impress President Roosevelt than to give the German people another glimpse of a Promised Land, and to frighten the British and French leaders whom Mr. Welles will see after he leaves Berlin. For these purposes Hitler might better have hired the Sportpalast. There, at least, he would have had all the publicity he wanted, and also a battery of spotlights and a chorus of "Sieg Heils" to cheer him on. — New York Times.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And it was at Jerusalem the feast of the dedication, and it was winter. And Jesus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch. Then came the Jews round about him, and said unto him, How long dost thou make us to doubt? If thou be the Christ, tell us plainly.

Jesus answered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witness of me. But ye believe not, because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you. My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand.—John x. 22-30.

HIS OCCUPATION

A brightly-dressed young man presented himself at a recruiting depot and expressed his wish to join the army.

The sergeant in charge asked him the usual questions, and entered the answers on his sheet. "Occupation?" he inquired.

"Well," said the young man, "I hardly know what to say. You see, my uncle left me a pot of money a year ago, and I've just run through the lot. That's why I'm here."

"I see," replied the sergeant thoughtfully. Then a broad smile broke over his face, and he entered in the necessary column, "Brass finisher."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

DOOR BELLS FOR DOGS

We read in the Electrical Times that at the front door of many houses in Copenhagen a small foot pedal projects at a point near the ground where the dog usually scratches to call attention. He is taught to press this pedal when he wishes to rejoin the family circle and his action closes the circuit of an electrical bell. The idea pays for itself by avoiding muddy paw marks on the door. — The Dog's Bulletin.

Crisis Reached By 1945 Speaker Claims

The next few years will be the most momentous in the history of the present race, and by 1953 chaos will have vanished and the New Order will be functioning, A. S. Boulton of Toronto told a gathering at the Paragon Hall on Tuesday evening. His topic was the "Destiny of the Modern White Race."

Mr. Boulton described himself as a student of the Great Pyramid which was built 4,500 years ago by a great white race of which we had no history until ruins were unearthed by the archaeologists.

"They were in possession of scientific data far ahead of what leading scientists know to-day, and they used this knowledge to build a perfect structure which enshrined their history. The present white race in this twentieth century have duplicated the history of this vanished race up to the present time and it is known now that certain measurements on this Great Pyramid will tell us of our own history to come.

"This pyramid was built in such a way that by the use of astronomy, geometry, and mathematics we are given dates which tell when the same events will happen to this race, proving that God's Divine plan is being carried out and lived by our race for the fulfilment of His plan for the establishment of the Kingdom of God on earth."

"The next few years will be the most momentous in the history of the present race, but we are not being led into economic tribulation Like the children of Israel we are being led through and out of tribulation and we will establish a perfect economic order, not based on the value of gold.

"By 1953 the New Order will be working, and in my opinion the crisis will be reached before 1945."

Joseph Bell was chairman.

Obituary

MRS. RICHARD BEATTY.

BEWDLEY, March 13.—(ENS).—The funeral service of Mrs. Richard Beatty was held Friday afternoon at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Gibson at Carmel and was largely attended.

Mrs. Beatty passed away Wednesday morning in her seventy-fifth year. She had been in poor health for a year or so, and since the death of her husband several years ago, has resided with her daughters, Mrs. Gibson at Carmel and Mrs. Fred Wilson at Bewdley.

Rev. H. Mellow, pastor of Plainville United church, where the Wilsons attend, conducted the funeral service.

The floral tribute marked the esteem in which Mrs. Beatty was regarded as a loving mother and friend.

Left to mourn her passing are her two daughters, Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Gibson, three sons, Walter, Charlie and Norton of Garden Hill, also several grandchildren.

Four grandsons acted as flower bearers, and pallbearers were sons and nephews.

Interment was made in the Bewdley cemetery

Among those who attended the funeral of Mrs Beatty at the home of her daughter and son-in-law: Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Gibson, Carmel; From Bewdley were Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Buttar, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Buttar, Mr. and Mrs. William Benson, Mr. Wilbur Cole, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Buttar, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Halligan, Mr. William Gordon, Earl and Jack Wilson and Mr. Dixon. Several others attended the burial service at the Bewdley cemetery.

British Artists Turn Firemen, Policemen Slash Prices To Scrape Living In War

LONDON, March 13—(CP). — War dealt British artists a hard blow. Many work as firemen, policemen and air raid wardens to earn a bare living and those still having time to paint slash the price of their pictures in the hope of making a sale.

John Pemberton, who received as much as £210 ($935) a picture until war began, is making less than £3 a week teaching—not enough to pay the rent of a studio and buy meals. He has not sold a picture since September and was unable to take part in a recent show of the National Society of Painters, Sculptors, Engravers and Potters because he had to cancel the society subscription of £4 4s.

Stanley Grimm, who became a police constable, entered three pictures in the show. Since the war began he has not made enough money painting to live. He pounds a beat in Kensington and paints on his days off.

James Proudfoot, now in the auxiliary fire service at Chelsea, painted a picture of the Thames called "Chelsea Reach" in his time off duty. He hung the picture at the National Society show.

"There's absolutely no business," said Jacob Epstein, the sculptor whose work has aroused so much controversy. "What can we do? Be day laborers? Most of us are too old for that. We wouldn't be be taken on."

AS YOU HOPE FOR VICTORY— Be Generous

A CUP of coffee and a doughnut seem small enough reward for a man who has gone over the top in the face of machine gun fire.

A pair of dry new socks means much to a man whose feet have been wet for a week.

These are only some of the things the Salvation Army does for the soldiers, but the veterans of the last war have never forgotten those two little services, and the spirit of Christian kindness that went with them.

All that the Salvation Army did for the troops in the last war will be done in this war—and more—if you will help according to the need.

THE RED SHIELD PROGRAMME

The Red Shield programme of the Salvation Army serves Canadian soldiers physically, mentally and spiritually—in the training camps ::: in the concentration centres ::: in the war zone; in Canada ::: in England ::: in France—as near to the front line as the military authorities permit. It takes care also of the soldiers' dependents where need arises. Help them also in their work among Canada's poor.

Volunteer workers will call upon you. Receive them kindly as they deserve and give as your heart dictates.

Ask the Soldiers. Ask the Airmen.

Ask the Mothers About Canada's War Effort

Many electors are doubtless honestly perplexed as the politicians argue about the extent of Canada's share in the war-making of the Empire. We suggest that you ask the people who know.

Ask the soldiers and the airmen about training conditions and equipment. They will paint the picture for you in colors that will be unmistakable.

Ask the dependent mothers of Canada's soldiers how long they have had to wait before they got any assistance from the government.

Don't be fooled by figures tossed at you by apologists for the King government. The truth is yours for the asking and it will be found quite different from the window-dressing statements of Mr. King and his followers.

The answers you will get from Canada's soldiers and the mothers of Canada's soldiers will help you to understand why there is a rising tide of indignation against the King government, led by soldiers and veterans of the last war, that will on March 26 sweep that failure in peace and war out of office.

Everywhere Canadians have decided that the slogan of the Liberal party must be changed into "Out With Mackenzie King."

In Peterborough West the electors have made up their mind that KING MUST GO and they will do their part by voting for and electing—

Turf King To Go Into Retirement

Greatest money winner in the history of the American turf, Seabiscuit has gone on the retirement list according to an announcement made by his owner, C. S. Howard. The gallant seven-year-old will go to stud in North California this spring after achieving a sensational comeback when he captured the Santa Anita classic. His last effort, and his greatest triumph, marked his 89th race and his 33rd win.

Indians Move Up To Beat Ramblers

(By the Canadian Press.)

Springfield Indians have no hope of catching up with the first-place Providence Reds, but they're bound they'll make second position in the Eastern Section of the International-American Hockey League by the time the playoffs roll around.

The Indians moved into second place last night by a 3-2 victory in a home game against the lowly Philadelphia Ramblers. The victory brought them a single point ahead of New Haven who were idle.

As far as the Eagles are concerned, Springfield will have a battle on its hands to keep second position.

The Ramblers gave the Indians a good fight last night. Thibeault scored two goals for Springfield and Thurrier the other. Allum and Germann notched Ramblers' counters.

All-Star Lists In Hockey Soon Coming Up

TORONTO, March 13 (CP)—All-star time has come to the National Hockey League again, accompanied by the speculation that always spring up when the writers go to work to select the Canadian Press teams.

One familiar name is almost certain to be missing when the ballots of hockey writers in the six National Hockey League cities are counted and the first and alternateteams of 1939-40 are compiled.

Eddie Shore has made the first team in seven of the nine years in which it has been chosen for the Canadian Press. This season the veteran hurtling defenceman has left Boston Bruins to devote most of his time to managing and directing his newly-acquired International-American League club at Springfield. He made a few appearances with the Bruins and then was traded to New York Americans, who have used him when he could spare the time.

There will be other changes—some based upon the fading of long-established stars, some upon injuries that have kept players out for long periods and others upon the rise of brilliant youngsters like Boston's famed Sauerkraut Line. Some writers would elect the high-scoring Krauts from Kitchener, Ont.—Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart—as a unit.

Matter of Goalies

Dave Kerr of New York Rangers so far ahead in the league averages that no other goaltender can catch him, is bound to give Frank Brimsek of the Bruins a fight for the position that poker-faced Frank won last season in his first appearance as a big-league goalie. The selectors won't overlook Earl Robertson's work in keeping the Americans going behind a wobbly defence.

Aubrey (Dit) Clapper, selected beside Shore on the defence in 1939, has played better than ever at the blueline for the Bruins since Eddie's departure. What the Boston captain has to worry about most is the continued brilliance of such established defence stars as Ebbie Goodfellow of Detroit, Earl Seibert of Chicago and Art Coulter and Ott Heller of the Rangers.

Syl Apps, last year's all-star centre, was out of Toronto's lineup almost continuously for two months this season with injuries. In his absence other pivots attained new prominence. Among them was Schmidt, the league's leading point-maker, Neil Colville and Phil Watson of the Rangers, Bill Cowley of Boston and Murray Armstrong of the Americans.

Apps' absence also had a detrimental effect on the effectiveness of his linemate, Gordon Drillon, who was named at the right wing post on last year's first team Bryan Hextall of the Rangers meanwhile has gone far ahead in the league's goal-getting department, Bauer has made a deep impression and Mush March has kept pinch-hitting for Chicago.

Some Others

Toe Blake, voted to the left-wing berth last year despite the fact he was with the sixth-place Montreal Canadiens, has been handicapped even further by the Canadiens' drop to the cellar. But Blake still is a great player. Dumart has progressed rapidly with Boston and Bob Davidson of Toronto, Tommy Anderson of the Americans and Johnny Gottselig of Chicago have played their old steady games.

Paul Thompson's great job of coaching at Chicago has earned plaudits everywhere and may win him the coaching position. Cooney Welland and Frank Boucher, replacing Manager Art Ross and Manager Lester Patrick respectively as coaches of the Bruins and Rangers, have maintained a constant fight for first place, while Red Dutton has kept his Americans punching.

N.H.L. LEADERS

Penalties—Korner, Toronto, 87 minutes.
Shutouts—Kerr, Rangers, 7.

To Replace Chisholm

Pep Kelly will probably be fired into the breach to replace Lex Chisholm, who will be lost to the Leafs for the rest of the season due to a broken arm suffered in a practice game.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

Since we are readying up to pull out at the ungodly hour of 10 this morn for Owen Sound with the Petes, surely we'll be permitted to write part of this pillar de piffle with our elbows and a pair of scissors. -Or is one scissors enough? The Petes wanted to get an early start this a.m., lunch in Orillia and rest up in the Sound a few hours ere tackling those tough Trappers on their own ice in a round-robin fray. It means a hard game and an all-night trip home, with work coming up on the morrow as per usual, and another tough tilt here Friday with the Collingwood Shipbuilders. A hectic hockey week for the Buckland bunch.

* * * * * *

This from Kitchener: "Twin City hockey fans are hoping hard that Peterborough and Kitchener meet in a series for the championship of the O.H.A. The Petes came here Friday to keep their round-robin date with Greenshirts and the collision of these two fast-skating, hard-hitting clubs produced just about the best game of hockey seen here this year. As a result of the 'Shirts 2-1 win, they now share the lead with the Petes in the standing, and everyone at the rink Friday hopes that's the way the five-team playoff will end....Gamey Lederman may have lost some of the old zipper and dash that made him one of the most feared defencemen in International League years ago, but he still knows how to hand out a good solid bodycheck and his shot still troubles goalies."

About Dit Clapper

And Baz O'Meara of Montreal writes: "A nasty surprise was noted in Boston where Dit Clapper had his cheek bone broken. His eye may be affected. Clapper (hailing from Hastings) is one of the old iron guard who will play even if he has to wear a birdcage on his face with sea-going binoculars. Either that or play by the sound system. He will win an all-star berth as far as Bimelech is expected to win the Kentucky Derby. He is quite a fellow. As we were first to proclaim that he would fill Eddie Shore's shoes in a way that they might even pinch, we feel sorry to see him in such a plight. Clapper is our idea of one of the greatest players that ever laced on a shoe." Hastings will love ya, Baz!

* * * * * *

In a recent Tely, Bun Morganson spake thusly: "The one thing that may halt Baltimore Orioles in their titular march is penalties, of which the Marylanders have a substantial number already. Under the Eastern Loop rule about three major trips to the penalty box, three of Pick Hines' players may run into trouble. They are George Grigor, Fred Hunt and Jack Dyte, all with two. George Boll, Carl Ripley, Guy Roach, Jack Tuten and Ned Vitarelli have one each, and a rough-and-tough scrap may see them go over the top any night." We see our Ned is still in there punching, and also those ex-Falls' bruisers—Dyte and Grigor.

Some Diamond Dust

A ball item might not be amiss amidst this mess—Allah, such alliteration!—so here goes: Annual O.B.A. meeting is April 6th in Welland and only members up this direction are Bob Elliott of Deloro and Ken Colling of Bella Villa. Nominations must be in by March 23rd. Annual meeting of the T.B.A. is March 16th in Toronto, and we may learn then that there will be no senior ball up that way for the Petes to work in upon. Mickey Paige, now manager at Welland, is asking for transfers of star players there to the number of nearly a dozen — ouch, but Welland will be a packed outfit. Incidentally, the Class "D" pro Pony Ball Loop will run again with teams from Olean, Batavia and Falls, of N.Y., Bradford of Pa., and London and Hamilton of Ontario.

* * * * * *

And the annual Ontario Softball Assoc. meeting is listed for a week from this Friday in Toronto. With no meeting being called here, it is doubtful if any delegates from Peterborough will attend, though they should. Dave Leether, member of the O.S.A. executive, will take in the meeting again. Affiliation fees are: Senior "A" $10, senior "B" $8, intermediate "A" $6, intermediate "B" $4, intermediate "C" $3, junior "A" $3, junior "B" $1 and juvenile $1. This is a good softball centre, both the city and district, for girls' and men's leagues—and there should be some local activity within a few more weeks.

Quakers Cop Duke

Last night at the Brock, Quakers jerked out an 8-7 decision over the Packers in the first of the two-in-three Industrial Loop puck playoffs. Next one, we expect, will be Thursday eve. A fair crowd viewed a lively tilt, with Quakers having a bit of an edge for two frames but being crowded plenty by the battling C.P.C. crew in the third. Reg. Edmunds turned in a swell effort for Jim White's outfit, and the Porridge Punchers showed class, too. A nice, clean fast tussle throughout.

* * * * * *

Oshawa Bees, back from a junior "B" round-robin loss in Aurora, came up with an odd alibi. They said three of their pucksists had neglected to have skates sharpened before the trip, so took 'em to an Aurora place to get the job done. And they got "the business," instead. The Motor City writer didn't go for it worth a dime and said: "No, no, boys, that'll never do!" Reminds us of the Fliers arriving here and suddenly discovering that their skates were sharpened for artificial ice, not the natural type—as if that made a difference. Of course, it has been known to happen upon occasion in a strange town, where an unscrupulous skate-sharpener used a file instead of a stone! Moral: (as a ring ref. would advise) Protect yourself at all times.

Dese, dem and dose: Wonder what the local cage setup is for this coming week-end; we're fresh out of hoop info....Eddie Starr will not be playing the next few games for the Petes, we expect, as he has a bad bruise on the shoulder; he may be oke in about a week....Kitchener 'Shirts and Collingwood battled to a 4-4 overtime round-robin draw on Collingwood's natural ice last p.m.....The Incos are billed to go to Kitchener on Friday ....Our St. Peter's juveniles were eliminated from further O.J.H.A. competition last e'en 8-4 in a sudden-deather in Port Perry; tough luck, lads....Those Stirling T.V.L.-ers are gonna be tough yet, and last eve they held Norwood Hornets to a tie in Campbellford; same squads clash there again Thursday....Riverdale Grads of Toronto announce they'll play senior ball this year if they get a loop lined up....Pat Calladine was getting something of a bouncy ride in the Industrial Loop playoff last night, but he didn't burn up....If we muff any local sports news today, blame it on the early takeoff for Owen Sound....And once again this round-robin series is around robbin' us seriously of sleep!

Training Camp Briefs

AVALON, Calif., Mar. 13 — AP). —Chicago Cubs prepared to set out for the mainland and their first exhibition game with the White Sox to-day minus a regular third sacker (Stan Hack), a regular centre fielder (Hank Leiber), and their most famous pitcher (Dizzy Dean). Hack who has been recovering from an operation, was due in from Los Angeles to-day, but holdouts Dean and Leiber haven't been heard from lately.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — The two most recent arrivals in New York Yankees' Camp, Joe DiMaggio and Red Ruffing, are full of ambition for the coming season. DiMaggio hopes to lead the league in batting again and take home and runs-batted-in honors as well, saying: "I think that if I can go through the season without getting hurt I can do it." Ruffing says he expects to win at least 20 games this year.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Bill Terry keeps trying hard to make trades that will strengthen his New York Giants. But all he's been able to get so far is a ground keeper who has been serving Cleveland Indians.

PASADENA, Cal.—Jimmy Dykes' big problem seems to be what to do with all his Chicago White Sox infielders. He likes Jimmy Webb as understudy to Shortstop Luke Appling and Bob Kennedy to fill in if Jack Hayes has knee trouble again. Don Kolloway also looks good and may oust Kennedy from the relief job.

Gain A Victory By 8-7 Score In Third Frame

Quakers yanked out an 8-7 victory over Canada Packers last night at the Brock St. rink in the first game of the two-in-three Industrial League final playoffs. A fair-sized crowd of fans saw an interesting puck tussle on good ice. The second game may be played at the Brock on Thursday night.

Play was fast and fairly even last night, though the Oats outfit had a margin the second period after an even first frame. The Packers ganged up desperately and looked better through the third, but could hot quite cop the nod. They had it tied a 7-7 till near the finish.

Tight In First

The score was 2-1 for Quakers in the first and 6-3 for them to end the second. It was a fast, clean game with some good hockey shown by both sides. The last-period drive by the C.P.C. crew made it just a toss-up for some time. Farr drew three penalties and Csumrik one for the losers, while Kerby got the gate twice and Kennedy once for the victors. Both goalies turned in a good game, with Todd, R. Cournyea and Csumrik probably the pick of the losers on the attack, and Edmunds playing a brilliant game on defence. He was the best man on the ice. Shine, Calladine and Kennedy with Webb were the best of the winners.

Webb and Shine scored for Quakers in the first heat, as R. Cournyea tallied for the other squad. Calladine, Webb, Kerby and Kennedy all notched one for Quakers in the middle chapter, with R. Cournyea and Edmunds doing the scoring for the Packers. In the third, Todd got two nice ones for the C.P.C. crew, as Csumrik and Edmunds scored also. For the Quaker Oats, Kennedy and Shine each banged one home to cop the duke in the tight tilt. The teams:

Remember When—

Defending the world light heavyweight boxing title he had won from Bob Olin at St. Louis the year before, John Henry Lewis outpointed Jack McAroy, British challenger, in 15 rounds at New York four years ago today. McAroy, rated Britain's greatest pugilistic product since the First Great War, was outclassed throughout the fight, and won only three rounds.

Kitchener Team Ties Collingwood

COLLINGWOOD, Ont., Mar. 13 —(CP). — Kitchener and Collingwood Shipbuilders played to a 4-4 overtime tie here on Tuesday in the Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate A round robin series.

Hause's goal for Kitchener with less than three minutes left to play sent the game into goalless extra time after 60 minutes of fast clean hockey.

Bauer put Kitchener in the lead in the fifth minute of the first period but Stewart and Burns netted for Collingwood before Grau batted home Kitchener's second to end the first period in a 2-2 deadlock.

Wilson and Broduer scored for Collingwood in the middle period but late in the third Lang slipped through for Kitchener to cut down the margin and then Vrooman and Grau set up the play for Hause's tying goal.

Kitchener — Goal, Bindernagel; defence, Hause and Simon; centre, Bauer; wings, Grau and Vrooman; subs., Fehrenbach, Smith, Lang, Clare, Huber.

Collingwood — Goal, Nobes; defence, Brophy and Young; centre, Brodeur; wings, Stewart and Sandell; subs., Brock, Burns, McCarl, Wilson, Stoutenburg, Fryer.

Referee—Mike Rodden, Toronto.

To relieve the shortage, 7,000 tons of corn were shipped into Eire recently.

NORWOOD AND STIRLING PLAY TO DRAW IN SUDDEN DEATH GAME

Second Game Is Ordered For Thursday

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13 — (ENS). — The clash between Norwood and Stirling here last night to decide who would play off with Campbellford Sunocos for the T.V.L. Trophy ended in a 6-all draw after ten minutes' overtime.

President Charlie Davidson ordered a second encounter here on Thursday evening.

It was a wide open game with both teams playing a rugged brand of hockey which grew pretty ragged at times during the final stanza owing to the fact that Norwood having just wound up their series with Madoc were not in as good condition as the Bombers. In fact the heavy schedule which they had been playing for the past week played a major part in influencing the league's decision to permit a second game.

Stirling Goalie Good.

Both Fox and McMaster played stand-out hockey in the nets but the Stirling goalie probably gave the best exhibition of the two as he made some spectacular saves during the final period when he came out of his net on half a dozen occasions to beat the Norwood puck carriers. The game was fairly clean with Stirling getting five of the nine penalties handed out by Referee Herb Payne. All were for minor offences and the only episode which threatened to create a disturbance was when Ingram and Weir squared off during the third but they thought better of making an issue of the affair and both stayed on the ice.

At least ten minutes were taken up by arguing whether or not Weir had slapped the puck in on Fox half-way through the third and though it appeared as though the disc had made a direct path through the net the referee ruled no goal despite the protests of the Norwood outfit.

The Terriers got their best break of the game when with less than three minutes of regulation time left to play Hank Ingram, chief bulwark of the Stirling defence was waved away for a heavy bodycheck he handed out, but Norwood had already used up their best efforts and they were held at bay for the remainder of the session.

After a scoreless opener the Shells marched into an early second period lead with a considerable edge on the play and superior combination as well as back checking. It was on the back-checking and passing where the faster Hornets fell down, and the Stirling aggregation had a three goal lead before they broke into the score sheet when Webb dropped O'Leary's pass into the net.

It was Armstrong, hard working centre player for Stirling who opened the scoring when he notched the initial tally on a pass from Ingram, who figured on four of his teammates' tallies. Morton stretched the lead by jabbing it in after skating from behind the net. Continuing to dominate the play he rang home Richardson's rebound from close range, making the score 3-0. A clever passing play by Webb and O'Leary was rewarded at the eight-minute mark and Hill cut the lead by one more and then got the equalizer. Both of these were rapped home as he stood in front of the Stirling net waiting for the biscuit to be centred out from behind. The Shells fell down badly at this stage, failing to cover up; however, Ingram returned and picked the open corner with a beautiful shot from the blue line to put the lads from the East one up. He repeated the performance again in the third, but Hill sank Puffer's pass to cut the lead to 5-4 and the fans saw ten minutes of lightning fast hockey as Norwood fought for the equalizer. Puffer was benched for high sticking Armstrong, but came back in time to cruise in with Weir, and once again tie up the score. In the overtime period Stirling again hopped into the lead as Armstrong drilled home Ingram's well-laid pass but Norwood recovered less than a minute later as Puffer back-handed one in during a ganging attack.

First Period.
No score.
Penalties—Armstrong, Fraser 2, Rothwell.

Second Period.

Stirling—Armstrong (Ingram)	4.55
Stirling—Morton	7.00
Stirling—Morton (Richardson)	7.20
Norwood—Webb (O'Leary)	8.00
Norwood—Hill (Rogers)	11.00
Norwood—Hill	12.10
Stirling—Ingram	14.35

Penalties—Rogers, O'Leary.

Third Period.

Stirling—Ingram	2.00
Norwood—Hill (Puffer)	4.00
Norwood—Puffer (Weir)	13.00

Penalties—B. Morton, Puffer, and Ingram.

Overtime.

Stirling—Armstrong (Ingram),	1.40
Norwood—Puffer	2.45

The teams:
Norwood — Goal, McMasters; defence, R. Webb, Rothwell; centre, G. Puffer; wings, N. Rogers, F. Hill; alternates, W. Webb, O'Leary, Weir, Brady, Gill.
Stirling— Goal, Fox; defence, H. Ingram, B. Jones; centre, M. Armstrong; wings, A. Fraser, R. Walker; alternates, J. Walker, Morton, Richardson, D. May, J. Fraser, B. Bolte.
Referee—Herb Payne.

Another Chance?

Phil "Hard Luck" Stein may get another chance with the Maple Leafs this season, Manager Connie Smythe is reported to have said. Stein is at present net-minding for Providence, but Mike Karakas will be put in the Providence net if present plans go through. If this happens Stein will be established as under-study of Turk Broda.

Bruins Win 2-1 Over Rangers To Top League

BOSTON, March 13.—(CP)—Two wide-flung doors to the National Hockey League championship remained open to the confident Boston Bruins today, while New York Rangers needed all the breaks to win the desperate two-team struggle.

The Bruins defeated the Rangers 2-1 in Boston Garden last night when Eddie Wiseman, the half-pint wingman who came here in mid-season, tipped in a goal with less than two minutes to play. The crowd of 16,304 raised a tumult as the Bears approached their second successive league title.

The victory left Boston a point ahead and with two games to play before the end of the schedule, while the Rangers have only one game left — a meeting with Boston at New York tomorrow. Even if the Rangers should win that one, Boston still can take the title by beating the last-place Montreal Canadiens here Sunday.

Eddie Wiseman

Besides the league championship, the team finishing on top gets the right to open at home against the second-place club in the first round of Stanley Cup playoffs for the world title.

Heller Starts It

The Bruins had to come from behind to win. Ott Heller drove home a 40-foot shot in the first period to put the Blueshirts ahead, while Phil Watson waited by the goal just in case the defenceman's shot failed to get by Goalie Frank Brimsek.

Bobby Bauer, little right wingman of the Sauerkraut Line, tied the score in the second when he sank a passout from his centre, Milt Schmidt, who had skated the length of the ice and rounded the net. Schmidt, the league-leader in point making, raised his point total to 41 while Bauer tied the other member of their line, Dumart, for second place with 31.

Bobby Bauer

Wiseman, obtained by the Bruins in a trade with New York Americans for the great Eddie Shore, deflected the puck just enough to push it past Goalie Dave Kerr when Art Jackson fired it from the side in the dying stages.

There were few hectic moments outside the scoring. In the second period, however, Bryan Hextall of the Rangers drew a five-minute penalty for lacing Red Hamill with a right to the jaw when they collided.

Professor Lott Instructs

George Lott, one of the greatest doubles players in the history of tennis, is an instructor now. He is shown here with a young pupil at the Bermuda stadium where he takes a class daily. You'll notice that the once hawkeyed Davis Cup star now wears spectacles. Bermuda, incidentally, is the place from which tennis made its jump into the United States. Instructor Lott's classes are made up of Bermuda children and children of visiting Americans. Ages range from eight to 14 years.

Locking Boosts Lead 4 Points

NEW HAVEN, Con., March 13.—(AP)—Norm Locking of Syracuse Stars increased to four points his lead in the International-American Hockey League scoring race last week. Only one week of the regular season remains.

Locking, who held a one-point margin in the last tabulation, now stands at 57, with Freddy Thurrier of Springfield Indians, an upstart in the high-scoring division, a close second with 56 points.

Pete Bessone of Pittsburg Hornets, with 96 minutes spent on the fence, had no rival within 23 minutes in penalty statistics.

Plainfield Nips Bees By 3-0 Using Imports

TWEED, Ont., March 13 (ENS)—In a hotly contested game of the finals of the Tweed Rural League the Plainfield contenders shut out the Farnsworth Bees 3-0 to tie the round at one win each.

After playing strictly Plainfield boys during the regular schedule the visitors sprung a surprise by icing some Zion Hill imports with their own squad.

In the first period Carleton slipped through the defence to rap in the lone counter of the period. Rivers, flashy centreman of the Bees received a bad gash over the eye resulting in him being removed for the balance of the game.

The second counter of the game was also tallied by Carleton, when he outskated the Bees who were caught up forward, early in the second.

Clever stick handling by Don Meraw, who replaced Rivers at centre for the Bees kept the Plainfield boys guessing, as the little fellow slipped in on several occasions to break up and dash away only to have Parks on the visitors' defence outguess his passing plays.

The Bees stepped into the Plainfield boys in the last period, and only heavy checking kept them off the score sheet, while Plainfield tallied their third counter, late in the period, with Denyes banging home a pass from a scramble in front of the nets

Plainfield strongly protested the playing of two juvenile players. Baker and D. Meraw, claiming that they were too fast for the Rural League. However, the Bees put these youngsters up in the thick of the battle and they stood the test well. When the protest failed, the Zionites poured over the boards and things became quite lively. Zion Hill played in the Centre Rural League this winter, and are rated superior to the Plainfield squad. A third game will be played to break the deadlock.

Lineups—

Plainfield—goal, Gifford; defence, Parks, Dickey; centre, E. Denyes; subs, Harrison, C. Carleton, Gray, Moore, H. Carleton, Emerson.

Farnsworth—goal, Mouck; defence R. Palmateer, L. Gunning; centre, Rivers; wings, H. Meraw, Lajoie; subs, N. Thompson, D Palmateer, Baker, D. Meraw.

THE SPORTS ROUND-UP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—A good long distance Kentucky Derby bet is Carrier Pigeon, 30 to 1 . . . Johnny Paychek will do his drilling for Joe Louis behind locked doors, just as Georges Carpentier did for Dempsey . . Frank Demaree of the Giants is slated to replace the unsigned Joe Medwick on the National Baseball League all-star squad.

Attention, Judge Landis: The Cardinals will concentrate 68 farm hands at Columbus, Ga., beginning March 18 . . . (Looks like good pickings) . . Lanny Ross, the songster, who set the quarter-mile record for the Penn relays in 1927, still keeps in shape by trotting around Central Park every morning, rain or shine.

Shipstead and Johnson, the St. Paul ice show promoters and skaters, netted $400,000 last year—all of it gravy except the manager's cut . . . Has the N.B.A. taken a mail vote and decided to crown Petey Scalso featherweight champ effective April 1? . . During his holdout campaign Red Ruffing paid a catcher to come around every day and help him get in shape.

Hubbel's Store Demolished In $5,000 Fire

BANCROFT, March 13—(ENS).—Fire destroyed the store and office of H. A. Hubbel and Sons with all their contents nine miles west of Bancroft on Highway 28, early this morning. Loss was estimated at approximately $5,000.

Nature of the outbreak is not known. Mr. Hubbel said there was no fire in the stove when he left the premises last night, and the blaze broke out about six this morning. He asked provincial police to investigate.

The fire is the second serious one Hubbels have known. Thirteen years ago their grist mill and store burned at a loss of $10,000.

that before attending next day's council I would see him myself and talk over the whole situation. I repeated what I said in caucus a year ago: That members of the cabinet and my supporters in the House were privileged to vote and speak as Canadians on national issues.

"We both regret the misunderstanding which arose and which culminated, unfortunately, in Mr. Nixon's resignation. We have now reached complete agreement and no one is more happy than I am.

Mr. Nixon was asked if he would appear on the platform Thursday when Mr. Mackenzie King addresses a Federal election campaign meeting here.

"I am going away for a few days' rest," Mr. Nixon said.

"Then he'll be back at Queen's Park," Mr. Hepburn said. "He needs a rest."

Happy To Be Back.

"I endorse everything the Premier has said," Mr. Nixon declared. "The unfortunate misunderstanding which arose regarding the principle of Cabinet solidarity has been cleared away and I am happy now to rejoin my colleagues.

"I should have first discussed the whole matter with my colleagues and the Premier. This business would never have happened if I had done so. But the Premier has made is clear to me that the views I hold on national affairs are my own."

The matters on which Mr. Nixon said he and the Premier disagreed when he announced his resignation were:

The Legislature's vote criticizing the Federal Government's conduct of the war, which Mr. Nixon charged the Premier had forced upon his followers;

Subsequent attacks by the Premier on the Dominion's war effort;

Banning of the March of Time film "Canada at War"; and

The Premier's charges of a "walk-out" or "violent disturbance" at the Royal Canadian Air Force technical training centre near St. Thomas.

After yesterday's Cabinet session, Mr. Hepburn gave a hint that the way might still be open for Mr. Nixon's return when he made it clear that the Provincial Secretary's resignation had not been accepted.

"All the Ministers, including myself, expressed sincere regret at Mr. Nixon's action," he said. "It was a most harmonious meeting. All the Ministers pledged their absolute loyalty."

TROUSERS CAUSE DEBATE

Because the Minister for Social Services ordered 400,000 pairs of cotton trousers, Australia has a heated argument as to whether the Government should issue cotton or woollen trousers to those on relief.

Girl Volunteers Eager For War Work

Forming the nucleus of a nation-wide movement sponsored by the Ford Motor Car Co., of Canada, to train women to operate and repair cars and trucks so they may be ready if needed to drive ambulances or trucks of the Canadian army, 10 Toronto girls got their first peek at the insides of an automobile recently. Margaret Greenwood, one of the fair students, is shown here removing the air cleaner from a carburetor. Dealers all over Canada are co-operating to provide instructors and facilities for the W.A.M.S. classes which will soon be started in various centres of the Dominion.

Howe's Fortune

Mr. Howe had said this group believed by a campaign of misrepresentation it could seize office and "restore conditions during the last war."

With the Common People.

"When Mr. Howe charges me with aligning myself with thugs and racketeers, it is a lie," Dr. Manion said. He wondered just whom the financial interests were working with in the election, anyway. The Conservative Party was not getting their support, because he had made clear when he accepted the Conservative Leadership he would work for the common people.

He termed Mr. Howe's address "an even mixture of falsehood and abuse" on a par with the speeches of "little Mr. Rogers" (Defence Minister Rogers).

Mr. Howe had accused him of "trying to bribe the people with their own money" when Dr. Manion proposed abolishing the radio licence fee, but Dr. Manion retorted that the Government was "taking the people's money and only bribing their own party."

He charged the Government with the "Hitlerite closing up of freedom of speech" by its sudden closing of Parliament, by its ban on the broadcasting of political meetings and by its censorship of radio election broadcasts.

He told the audience, a large part French-Canadian, that Liberal Cabinet ministers were making widely different statements in and out of Quebec Province, trying to split that province off from the rest of Canada and keep it as a solid bloc for themselves.

Dr. Manion proposed more Labor representatives on war boards and appointment of a Labor man to administer the Labor Department. There was not now one industrialist in the whole Cabinet. He felt more diversified representation in tht Cabint was essential. Of the 16 ministers 10 were lawyers.

"I've nothing to say against lawyers, but they're just not good enough that 10 of the 16 Cabinet ministers should be lawyers," he said.

"Not The Right Regime"

Dr. Manion said the Government of Prime Minister King was "not the proper Government to carry on in such a trying time, any more than it was a proper Government in peace time." Its record had been one of failure, lack of vision, imagination and courage.

It had failed to deal with the vital problem of unemployment. During its regime there had been 1,000,000 on relief and 500,000 unemployed, a state of affairs which could not continue indefinitely under the present economic system. An overthrow of this system might lead to Communism or Nazism.

He accused the Prime Minister of "scuttling" Parliament on January 25 in the hope that the people would not be enlightened on the questions of the day when voting took place.

Dr. Manion reiterated his opposition to conscription and to railway amalgamation.

experience, the people were asked to vote for a "mythical" national government of which they knew nothing.

"What is the platform of the National government party? when was it laid down? There has been no meeting of the party. There has been no meeting of its candidates.

Mr. King spoke in the Forum before an audience estimated at between 6,000 and 7,000. It was his first platform speech in Quebec and his third political meeting since the campaign opened. He will speak tomorrow night in Toronto.

Replying to charges that he had "scuttled parliament" when he asked for dissolution a few hours after opening of the sixth session Jan. 25 last, Mr. King declared those who made these charges were prepared to scuttle the people" by denying them the right to choose those who would administer their government.

A September Dissolution

If he had only his own feelings to consult Mr. King said he would have asked for dissolution immediately after the September emergency session when the government was authorized to declare a state of war with Germany.

"But that obviously would not have been in the interests of Canada because there were grave tasks we had to perform at once." He referred to the organization of defence and overseas forces and the various war time executive bodies.

It was 'unthinkable" that parliament should have prolonged its own life by obtaining an act of the Imperial Parliament as was done in 1916. It would be denying the people their constitutional right of electing a new parliament every five years. Such action "is the beginning of the end of democracy."

Conservative Leader Manion had "deserted" the party which chose him its leader in 1938. "Is Dr. Manion not doing in this election exactly what Mr. Stevens did in the elections of 1935?"

Advocates Thought

"Mr. Stevens was returned, but not one of his candidates was elected. Think of what, as a consequence, became of the party, of its name, of its platform and its promises.

"It might be well for those who are being carried away by the name 'National Government' and by Dr. Manion's many promises, to think of that between now and Easter Monday.

"Suppose Dr. Manion is not himself returned. Is there any guarantee that any one of his followers will honor his pledge to form a National Government or to carry out a single promise he has made?

"Dr. Manion will say there is a possibility that I may not be elected. There is, of course, such a possibility but I do not think it is a probability.

"But supposing I am not elected. There are 15 gentlemen of outstanding ability by whom I have been surrounded in the cabinet for years past. Every one of them stands for the same policies as I do, are pledged to support and carry them out.

"They would see that not a moment is lost in carrying on Canada's war effort in accordance with the wish of the electors as expressed at the polls."

When the odor of that bit of chicanery had faded, the witness's brother—born Philip Musica, son of an Italian immigrant barber — masqueraded under the name of F. Donald Coster and started a small drug business under the name of Girard & Company, in suburban Mount Vernon.

Shampoo a Bonanza.

That was in 1923, when the lush profits of bootlegging were beginning to be emphasized by gang shootings, rum-running, and speakeasies.

Dietrich-Musica related how his brother seized the opportunity to "muscle in"—legally, more or less—on the bootleg bonanza by manufacturing a shampoo which the witness freely acknowledged could be diverted into beverage alcohol.

In spectacular fashion, Coster-Musica, now become a staid-appearing citizen, who shied at publicity, pyramided his shampoo business with such success that by 1926 he was able to gain control of the 100-year-old McKesson & Robbins drug firm for $1,000,000.

Dietrich - Musica testified that Girard & Company boomed from a $35,000 net income in 1924 to $175,000 two years later; and to explain the swift expansion he recited a conversation he said he and his brother had with two of the defendants now on trial—Rowley W. Phillips, an investment broker, of Waterbury, Conn., and Horace B. Merwin, president of the Bridgeport Trust Company.

"Merwin and Phillips said there was a rumor around Bridgeport that we were diverting alcohol," Dietrich-Musica said.

"My brother told them that everything he was doing was perfectly legal, remarking: 'People will drink almost anything these days of prohibition, and anything that has alcohol in it eventually goes to the bootleggers'."

The witness said the conferees laughed over this reference.

"Front" in Canada

Shedding new light on "dummy corporations" established by his brother, the witness told how Coster-Musica blandly coped with the difficulties of handling a vast corporation on a financial shoestring by floating large issues of stock.

When the returns from a 15,000-share sale proved insufficient, he said, Coster-Musica began talking about organizing a Canadian company.

'My brother told me he didn't intend to manufacture anything in Canada," he went on, "and confidentially he described a report sent out on the Canadian project as 'window dressing'."

The prosecution then read to the jury a series of letters exchanged by Merwin and Phillips in 1927, in one of which Phillips addressed Merwin as "Dear Horace" and said the possibilities of the Canadian company "staggered the imagination."

In another letter, discussing a proposed circular, Phillips wrote that the Canadian firm "will be useful as a gesture—and it will cost only $1,000 or $2,000."

Dietrich-Musica and two other Musica brothers have already pleaded guilty to conspiracy and violation of the Securities Exchange Act.

Besides Phillips and Merwin, the defendants are John H. McGloon of Fairfield, Conn., former vice-president and comptroller of McKesson & Robbins, and Leonard and John O. Jenkins, brothers of the widow of Coster-Musica.

or commerce across this area;

A promise that no Finnish warplanes, warships or submarines, except small coastguard boats, will operate in the Arctic Ocean.

In return, the Finns get peace and a yearly rental of 8,000,000 Finnish markka (about $120,000) for Hanko.

Trade Pact Ordered.

They must negotiate a trade treaty and make a non-aggression alliance with Russia. (Russia denounced the previous non-aggression pact just before invading Finland on November 30.)

Russia's original demands, which the Finns had refused, were less severe. They offered Finland part of Soviet Garelia on Finland's long eastern border in return for a small strip of the Karelian isthmus northwest of Leningrad; a lease on Hanko; part of the Srendi and Rybachi Peninsulas; and exchange of some islands in the Gulf of Finland.

The new, drastically-revised frontiers are outlined in a map appended to the treaty, but detailed determination is provided by a mixed commission to be formed within ten days.

Listed specifically in the treaty as concessions to Russia are the towns of Sortavala, Suojarvi, and Kakisalmi north and west of Lake Ladoga; the territory east of Markajaervi near the Arctic Circle, and the town of Kuoljaervi on the Salla front.

(These localities have figured in the war news in connection with reports of smashing Finnish victories over the invading Red army.)

The lease on Hanko also would include a number of nearby islands and the adjacent waters, the Finns to withdraw within 10 days.

The Arctic Petsamo area, occupied by Russian troops, is to be relinquished to Finland with the provision that Finland will establish no military or naval bases in the Arctic and that Finnish warships there must not exceed 15 or 400 tons each or any number of 100 tons or less.

Must Build Railway

The Finns would have to build during 1940 a railroad from Kemijaervi to the Russian border to connect with a Russian line to be built from Kandalaska. (As the border is now drawn, two-thirds of this 150-mile distance is in Finland.)

This route would connect with the present railroad from Kemijaervi to the head of the Gulf of Bothnia, and the treaty provides the right of Russian transit over it to Sweden.

The treaty would restore automatically trade relations between Finland and the Soviet Union, with a formal trade pact to be negotiated.

Non-aggression is provided in the following clause:

"Both contracting parties undertake mutually to refrain from any attack upon each other, not to conclude any alliances and not to participate in any coalitions against one of the contracting parties.

The treaty was drafted in the Russian, Finnish and Swedish languages.

Tass, Soviet government news agency, said it was signed at 2:30 a.m. by Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Soviet Presidium Member Andrey A. Zhdanoff, and Brigade Commander Alexander Mikhailovich Vaseleffsky for Russia; and by Premier Risto Ryti, Juhu Paaikivi, General Rudolf Walden and Prof. Vaino Voionmaa, for Finland.

The Finnish delegation has been in Moscow for several days conducting hitherto secret negotiations for peace.

Battleground for Centuries

The Karelian Isthmus and its ancient city of Viipuri, a part of the price Finland is announced to have paid for peace with Russia, has been a frequent battleground since the 13th century.

A irregularly-formed land bridge extending from southeast Finland into Russia, the isthmus separates the Gulf of Fnland and Europe's largest lake, Ladoga.

At the southeastern end of the 70-mile wide isthmus is Leningrad, leading Soviet seaport, and the northwestern end is Viipuri.

It was via the Karelian Isthmus that the first Finnish settlers went to Finland in the fourth century. And it was here, following their independence from Russia after the First Great War, that they erected their stout Mannerheim Line, a system of land and water fortifications that stalled Russia's latest invasion for 3½ months.

Russian acquisition of Viipuri would mean the loss to Finland of the chief industrial, commercial and distributing centre for her eastern territory.

Viipuri rose in warfare. The ancient seaport, to-day reduced to a shambles by Russian siege guns, had its origin almost 650 years ago in the avenging crusade of a Swedish war lord, Marshal Torkel Kuntson.

His mission was twofold: To take revenge against the hardy pagan Finns for 500 years of raids against the Scandinavian seacoast and to convert them to Christianity.

In 1293 Knutson succeeded in establishing the grim garrison castle of Viipuri. Arund it grew the present city, until the Russian invasion a thriving metropolis of 74,000 persons and a gay resort to summer with parasoled beaches thronged with visitors from all Europe.

Attack in 1709.

Peter the Great, the ship-building Czar, threw his legions against the city in 1709 with such frequent and disastrous assaults against the Swedish-directed Finnish defence that the gates of Viipuri came to be known as "the death of the Muscovites."

Peter finally defeated Charles XII of Sweden and Viipuri was fored to surrender. Thereafter the city was Russian-dominated until the Bolshevik revolution and the eventual establishment of the Finnish republic on June 17, 1919.

Koivisto, less than halfway between Viipuri and Leningrad, is another important Karelian Isthmus city where Finland's timber exports have gone to markets of the world.

The Koivisto forts, eastern anchor of the Mannerheim Line, fell recently to the Russians.

Hanko, the Finnish "Gibraltar of the Baltic," where the Russians gained a military base by the treaty, guards the northern entrance to the Gulf of Finland, watergate to Leningrad.

Besides its military value, Hanko is important as a seaport. Since 1890 its harbor has been kept open during the winter months by ice-breakers when most other Finnish ports were frozen over.

Although a port as early as the 13th century, modern Hanko dates only from 1874 when the peninsula was connected with the interior by a railroad. Much of Finland's herring and salmon are exported through this port city of 8,000 population.

Loan Still Good

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP)—The belief prevailed in Washington today that Russo-Finnish peace would not affect the recent $20,000,000 loan to Finland by the United States export-import bank, but would enable the money to be used in reconstructing the war-torn country.

Formal comment on the Soviet announcement of a treaty ending the Baltic conflict was withheld by officials until the state department could study complete dispatches.

Government fiscal experts, however, have professed no concern about the money loaned to Finland. Several months ago the export-import bank turned over $10,000,000. Then congress increased the bank's capital so that it could make another $20,000,000 loan. The latter has been allocated but has not been used.

Officials took it for granted that the Finns would make purchases in the United States with the money. As one high official said yesterday, "Finland will need a lot of things whether the war goes on or not."

Rotarians Hear Expert On Bird Life

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13 — (ENS). — Jack Willmink, whose aviary is one of the largest in this section of Ontario told Rotarians at their weekly luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel here on Monday that like most bird fanciers he had begun with a couple of canaries and finches which can usually be purchased cheaply and are distributed by dealers in England to all parts of the world.

The speaker related that as a boy he used to capture birds and learned from his early experiences that it took from one to two weeks following capture before the bird would become sufficiently confident in its captor to accept food. This he declared was particularly true of such birds as the nightingale.

Though aviculture was formerly the hobby of the working man today many enormous collections of rare birds are found in England where they are owned by men of wealth. There are many different types of birds raised by fanciers but by far the most interesting and at the same time most expensive are birds of the parrot type. He said that some breeders had become so skilful in the art of mating birds that they can now produce progeny of any desired color. To substantiate this the speaker told of a South American bird which appeared at an English bird show in colors of an unnatural blue color. Though the bird took first prize the award was not officially made until directors of the show had made careful tests to prove the colors had not been mechanically applied.

Must Have Time.

He warned his listeners not to attempt to keep birds unless they were prepared to put plenty of time and effort into it. The parrot type bird in particular was one which the amateur should not try to keep unless he was prepared to spend a sufficient amount to build proper cages which should be built of cement and steel since their hard bills could easily destroy those fashioned from wood. Despite the fact that many types of birds are quite hardy, most must be kept in heated houses during extremely cold weather. Weasels and mice are the greatest enemies of birds in captivity and the aviculturist must carefully guard against either getting into his colony. Birds sometimes die for a reason which looks mysterious to the fancier but may actually be only due to the fact that mice have run over its food and once it is in contact with these little vermin the birds will refuse it and die of starvation.

The speaker pointed out that an excellent service was provided free of charge at Guelph to which dead birds could be shipped for autopsy by men associated with the Department of Agriculture.

Rotarian F. G. DeCarrol moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

The club welcomed as a new member William A. Hogle, who entered under the classification of nurseryman.

Chest Clinic Work Is Highly Praised

Praise for Peterborough's Health Department and the co-operation it had extended was voiced by Dr. F. J. Millner of the Provincial Chest Clinic in speaking briefly to the Board of Health on Tuesday.

Dr. Millner said that the local setup was excellent. The Medical Officer of Health, the local physicians, and the health nurse have co-operated with us to the fullest extent and the result is that when we come here to hold a clinic we find 25 per cent. of the work done before we arrive," said the spaker.

As a consequence regular clinics were being held in Peterborough despite the demands from other districts. The work was so firmly established here, he said, that it was considered desirable not to miss a clinic and so they were held every four months. Only four cities in Ontario were so favored.

Since the work began here 28 or 30 persons have been sent to sanitariums. At the present clinic 240 persons were listed for examination.

"Does the number indicate an increase in the incidence of tuberculosis," asked Chairman James Dutton.

"Not at all," replied Dr. Millner. "It merely means that the people of this community have become conscious to the necessity of early examination and treatment."

Miss Zita Kearney, the health nurse, since coming to Peterborough Department, has been active in setting up the chest clinic and has mainly been responsible in organizing much of the chest work in the city.

22 Boys Pass Swimming Tests

Twenty-two boys passed tests last evening at the Y.M.C.A. when they went through their paces in the swimming pool under the supervision of Gordon Minty, swimming instructor.

The boys are all members of the group which D'arcy Windsor takes to the 'Y' every Tuesday evening for social and physical training. Forty-three boys gathered around the fireplace in the lobby for a half-hour of reading, and later they had an hour's workout in the gym led by Hamilton Gosse. The program wound up with the swimming tests and a brief talk explaining the aims of the course by Gordon Minty.

Salvation Army Report $6,264

The Salvation Army's drive in Peterborough for $10,000 has passed the 60 per cent mark in five days, it was revealed at a luncheon meeting at the Empress Hotel today.

A total of $6,264.46 has been collected to date and workers at the meeting expressed confidence the drive will go over the top by Friday when the closing meeting is to be held. Chairman C. A. Salmonsen asked for co-operation of the people of Feterborough in making this success possible. There is no need, he declared, to remind residents of this city of the worth of the Salvation Army. The Army enjoys the same high reputation in Peterborough as in all other communities in Canada, he said, and its work is well known.

The drive started last Friday evening and hope was expressed then that it would be completed by the following week-end.

Beverage Plants Are Given High Rating

Peterborough beverage plants are given a high rating by Sanitary Inspector Don. MacPherson, in his monthly report presented to the Board of Health at its meeting Tuesday.

A thorough and detailed inspection of all beverage plants was made this month with particular attention given to methods of bottle washing, says the report. Three plants are equipped with hydraulic washers and a fourth one equipped with a soaker type machine. Both machines are efficient if properly operated and in order to determine this, tests were made of percentage of caustic in washing solutions, temperatures of washing and the time in which bottles are in contact with the solutions. These were all found to exceed the minimum specified requirements of the regulations. However, in order to further substantiate this, numerous samples of beverages were submitted to the Provincial branch laboratory for analysis. Further, a number of empty washed bottles were examined for the presence of bacterial contamination. The reports on these various tests were all excellent.

Since previous inspections of these plants numerous recommended changes have been put into effect. In making these changes the beverage plants have improved and I have no hesitation in saying that these establishments are in very good sanitary condition. In one plant an extension of time has been given in order to facilitate the making of several changes which will involve the expenditure of a considerable amount of money.

A high standard certificate was issued to one plant when this plant had been found to comply in every respect with the regulations and when the various beverages upon examination had been found free from contamination and of good quality.

University Club Reviews Books

The February and March meetings of the University Women's Club have taken the form of book reviews. After a short business period in which the forthcoming Triennial meeting was discussed and communications read and noted, Miss Howson delighted her listeners with an ably presented book review on E. F. Benson's "Queen Victoria's Daughters." Miss Howson's summary, interspersed with various passages read from the book, were especially interesting in the light of present day affairs and the recent death of E. F. Benson. As the members of Queen Victoria's family had intermarried and become a part of so many of the present day European nations, the account of their lives is valuable.

In March the book review was given by Miss Ila Giles on Antoine de Saint Exupery's "Wind, Sand and Stars," an interesting and unusual transcript of an aviator who measures not by his mechanical skill, but sees deep into human emotions. His graphic descriptions are charmingly expressed in a diametric opposition of the magic and practical, and his humor has a scintillating witchery. Nothing was lost of all this by the vivid and descriptive manner of Miss Giles' presentation.

An Irish contest was held before the serving of light refreshments. Hostesses for the February meeting were Mrs. Gordon, Miss M. McIntosh, Miss R. Barns, and Miss I. Waddell; for the March meeting, Mrs. V. R. Henry, Mrs. H. Graham, Mrs. S. J. Graham, and Mrs. S. Thompson.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, March 14.

A day of swift-moving and stirring events is forecast from a very interesting chain of planetary configurations. It is a day blanketed by the curious advice to expect the unexpected, for there will be sudden visitations both singular and unpredictable, and these will have far-reaching influence in shaping the future desting and fortune. There are auguries of the weird, psychological and devastating, but all unite to make a pattern of surprising success, unexpected progress and strange adventures, probably in business, affectional and spiritual relationships.

Those whose birthday it is are on the brink of a year of strange and entirely unforeseen, possibly unprecedented, adventures and experiences. It would be well to anticipate all manner of sudden visitations, which may have deep influence on the business, social, creative and romantic life. Handled with discrimination and a degree of poise and wise adjustment, they are likely to have thrilling denouements. There may be premonitions, psychic insight or lofty creative urges in the realm of poetry, music or fiction.

A child born on this day may be unusually original and talented in unique expression. It may have a strange career, with romance and adventure, culminating in success and possibly renown.

Will Ask For Your Support

These two youngsters holding the worn cash box are grinning because they know they are picked out for a good work, and because they know they are going to make a success of their job. They will be on the street Saturday with their cash box collecting donations for St. Vincent's Orphanage. Saturday is the Orphanage's annual tag day, and your support is earnestly sought. In his monthly report to the Board of Health Dr. Gordon stated that there were 45 lives births and three still births in Peterborough during February. Deaths numbered 29 and there were 16 marriages during the month.

MORE CHIMNEY FIRES

As Peterborough's cold spell continues, so does the number of chimney fires reported to the fire department is being rushed by such calls and warned householders once more that unclean chimneys may lead not only to serious fires but to prosecution at law.

PNEUMONIA KILLS NINE

Pneumonia was the most prevalent cause of death in Peterborough last month, according to Dr. Gordon's official report. Various types of pneumonia were responsible for nine deaths while heart diseases accounted for five and cancer for four. There were 61 cases of measles reported during the month.

INQUEST TOMORROW

Coroner Dr. E. P. Snider will preside at an inquest in the police court Thursday night into the death of James S. Bowhey, Lindsay trainman who was fatally injured in an accident here Monday night. Twelve or fourteen witneses will be called including the crew of the train involved.

NEW STORE FRONTS

Another section of George street is having its face lifted, joining the march of progress that has brightened the main stem considerably in the last two years. The two stores are Dutton's Nut Shop and Althouse Beauty Salon, both owned by the Schneider Estate. Charles Huffman has the general contract. Business is being carried on as usual.

WHAT ABOUT CLIPPERS

Complaints from barbers that the sterilizing process for clippers required under the new city bylaw would injure the clippers were ventilated at Tuesday's meeting of the Board of Health and the members agreed that there was some justification for the complaint. The sanitary inspector will get some information as to how the matter is handled elsewhere.

OUTSIDE THE RIDING

It will interest many to know that several of the candidates in this election do not live in the ridings in which they have been nominated. Gordon K. Fraser lives in Hastings-Peterborough and is a candidate in Peterborough West. Colonel McAlpine lives in Toronto and is the National candidate in Victoria, while Jameson Bone, fiery Belleville mayor, lives in South Hastings and is National candidate in Northumberland.

PARLOR CAR BEING REMOVED

The parlor car on the early morning C.P.R. train from Peterborough to Toronto is being discontinued. The train leaves here at 7:10 a.m., leaves Toronto for Peterborough each afternoon at 5:30. Last run of the parlor car will be from Toronto on March 16, from Peterborough on March 18.

TRAFFIC COURT

There were only two cases in traffic court this morning, W. J. Middleton of Lindsay paid $2 and $2.50 costs for failing to pull over to the right to give a passing car its fair share of the road and R. B. Stevens of Oshawa who pleaded guilty to a breach of the city's traffic bylaw was fined $2 and 75 cents costs.

To Serve Milk In Bottles

Customers of local restaurants who order a glass of milk henceforth will have it served to them from half-pint bottles, the Board of Health decided at its regular meeting Tuesday.

Ald. W. G. Ovens brought the matter to the attention of the board. He pointed out that it was a much more satisfactory plan from the viewpoint of the consumer to have the milk brought to the table in a sealed container and served to him in that way than to have the glass filled from a larger container and brought to the customer.

One member pointed out that under the present plan there was no guarantee that any milk over in glasses would not be dumped back into a container to be served to other customers.

BRISBANE, Australia—(CP). —A month after passing an all-time record for sugar production, 50 per cent of Queensland mills were still at work. All surplus sugar will be marketed in Britain, and a $12,000,000 crop is expected.

Request To Remove Name Of Aged Woman From Voters' List Is Refused By Officer

An unusual request was made before Revising Officer W. F. Huycke, K.C., when Sidney H. Mitchell applied to have the name of his mother, Mrs. G. A. Mitchell, Sherbrooke street, stricken off the voters' lists.

Mr. Mitchell's reason was that his mother is 95 years of age, is bedridden and would be unable to vote and he did not want her bothered on election day by the political organizations.

Mr. Huycke refused the request because the reason stated by Mr. Mitchell did not come within the list of causes under which names may be taken off.

As a result Mrs. Mitchell's name remains. Not only that but it found that the enumerator had listed her under the wrong initials and with only one "L" and the revising officer made the necessary corrections so that her right to vote, instead of being taken away is now more clearly established than before her son's application.

Board Of Health Recommends Naming M.O.H.

The appointment of Dr. L. A. Clark of Toronto as acting medical officer of health, provided he will accept a salary of $3,000 and an allowance for moving expenses, will be recommended to the City Council, the Board of Health decided at its regular meeting Tuesday.

A motion to this effect, moved by Mayor Hamilton and Ald. W. G. Ovens was carried after a letter had been read from the Board of Education stating that it was satisfied to carry on as at present with Dr. Robert Nott as school health officer, but was ready to co-operate with the Health Board in co-ordinating the services when the proper time came for such action.

Reports of recent milk tests made by Dr. Waite were received with satisfaction by the Board. Dr. Gordon and Sanitary Inspector McPherson said that the reports were exceptionally good.

The sanitary inspector submitted a report of a test of the new method of testing milk, in which he said that it was impossible without further experiments to make a definite finding as to its efficacy.

Ald. Ovens said that he was satisfied that the new plan would ultimately be adopted everywhere.

The inspector was commended by Mayor Hamilton and other members for the thoroughness with which he had conducted his investigation.

The Market Hall. ....

Ald. Ovens referred to the recent discussion in the property committee as to the cleanliness and tidiness of the market hall, and the sanitary inspector was asked as to his inspections.

Mr. MacPherson said that he fumigated the place every Friday, but had done nothing in regard to untidiness.

"I think the city should set an example in these things," remarked Chairman Dutton."

It was decided to recommend to the property committee that when the bylaw in regard to the appointment of a market clerk is being considered a clause should be inserted that the market must be kept in a condition satisfactory to the sanitary inspector.

Present at the meeting were Ald. James Dutton, chairman; Maydr James Hamilton, Ald. W. G. Ovens and D. G. H. Melton.

McNee Is Fined $100 And Costs

Although Martin McNee told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court Wednesday afternoon that the bottle the police said they picked up on Park street was not the one he had thrown out of a taxi cab, the court decided that the charge against McNee of having been illegally in possession of liquor had been sustained and a conviction was registered.

McNee was fined $100 and $3.25 costs and the fine was promptly paid.

When the accused took the witness box he stated that he had had an empty bottle in his pocket for some time on the night he was arrested and that as he was driving along Park street in the taxi cab he decided to throw it away. At that time he said he did not know that a police cruiser car was following the taxi. McNee stated that the bottle was different in shape from the one the police produced as an exhibit.

In giving judgment, Magistrate Langley said that he could not accept the explanation and would register a conviction. McNee was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair and Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry prosecuted.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HOMESPUN MAGIC

A veteran Liberal party worker told an interesting tale with a homespun flavor at the committee rooms Tuesday night. He was systematically canvassing every family for Liberal votes when he arrived at a house where the housewife was in bad humor and a baby could be heard squawling lustily. The worker walked into the house only to have the woman tell him, she was too tired to talk politics, because the baby was teething and for three nights she had not been able to get a wink of sleep. The old timer asked the woman if she had any whole allspice and a needle and thread. When those were handed over the old fellow fashioned a necklace and suggested to the lady that she place the necklace around the baby's neck at bedtime. Then he went his way. On Saturday the party worker was on the market when someone grabbed him by the arm and he recognized the woman who had the crying baby. "I want to thank you," she said. Both the baby and myself have slept sound every night since you were at the house, and I want to not only thank you again but tell you I will certainly vote for Rollie Glover."—McG.

Police Probe Fire In Store Near Bancroft

BANCROFT, March 13 (ENS)—Provincial Constable Stanley Palmateer is investigating possibility of incendiarism in connection with an early morning fire that destroyed the store and office of H. A. Hubbel & Sons, 9 miles west of Bancroft on Highway 28 today. Office and store burned to the ground with a loss estimated at $5,000.

H. A. Hubbel asked police to investigate cause of the blaze. He reported that the fyling cabinet had been opened during the night and $60 in bills removed.

The fire broke out about six o'clock this morning and flames shot almost instanteously from several sections of the building. Mr. Hubbel said there had been no stove or furnace fire alive when he left the premises last night. The loss was only partially covered by insurance.

All contents of the store and office were destroyed in the blaze, even to the business records. A fire fighting force went from Bancroft and members were instrumental in preventing the fire from spreading to a nearby garage and two dwellings.

The fire was the second in Mr. Hubbel's experience on the same ground. Thirteen years ago his store and mill were burned to the ground at a loss of $10,000.

Jas. Geraghty Is Re-elected

Approval of the proposed Federation of National War Charities to pool public contributions for auxiliary war services was expressed by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce Tuesday. It was proposed by the Better Business Bureau of Toronto. The idea of one appeal to take the place of the duplication of canvassing for the financing of agencies that provide various forms of assistance for the men of the new army was suggested recently at the meeting of the city council by Alderman Dutton.

Jas. W. Geraghty was re-elected president of the Chamber with the other officers who were also retained, George A. Macdonald as vice-president; John J. Turner, treasurer; and J. J. Dorris, secretary.

With Interest

BLOOMVILLE, N.Y., March 13—(AP).—E. W. Simmons, machinery dealer, picked up a letter—with a $200 cheque attached—and read: "This should pay my debt to you." When Simmons checked his ledgers, he found that the writer had left town in 1922 owing him $114. The cheque took care of that, the letter said, "plus interest."

A Sino-German aviation corporation in China is to merge with a Sino-American concern, according to reports.

Plans Are Laid To Continue Concert Series

Another group of world-famous concert artists will be heard in Peterborough next season, according to an announcement made today by Dr. J. J. Craig, president of the Peterborough Canadian Concert Association. The group includes the original Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers under the direction of Sergei Jaroff; Roland Gundry, brilliant young violinist; Margit Bokor, dramatic soprano and famous for her operatic and concert appearances in the greatest musical centres, and Poldi Mildner, sensationally successful pianist whose recent appearances in Eaton Auditorium were reported in most eulogistic terms.

It was the unanimous opinion of a largely-attended meeting that these artists will comprise the most attractive series sponsored thus far by the local musical organization. George H. K. Mitford, director, told of the progress which the Canadian Concert Association has made during the past year and stated that it was because of the increased "purchasing power" of the Association as a whole that made such artists available.

In view of this imposing list the meeting decided that the capacity of the Collegiate Auditorium may well be taxed to accommodate all those who will be desirous of attending the concerts. For that reason arrangements are being made to accept renewals and new members co-incident with the final concert of the current season, which will be given by Raya Garbousova, "greatest of woman 'cellists" on April 1st.

Miss Dorothy Dodds and Miss Norma White were joint hostesses at a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower in honor of Mrs. Jack Kennedy, the former Martha Wells. The shower was held at Miss Dodds' home, 225 Engleburn avenue. Guests included forty girls of the 4th floor of the Western Clock Company, former associates of the bride. A basket decked in pink and white and laden with gifts was drawn into the room by small Beverly Ann Lillico. Tea was served by the hostesses.

FASHIONS

This versatile pattern makes three dresses, so different one from the other that you'd never guess they were all fashioned on the same original design. For wear at home, we suggest the simple V-neck model, just the thing for household tasks. For street and important afternoons try the version with flattering heart-shaped neck and crocus-white trim. The shirtwaist model with lapels will see you through informal occasions all day long. All three frocks feature a slenderizing and practical button-front, and soft bodice fullness.

Style No. 3198 is designed for sizes 16, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39-inch material.

A St. Patrick's day party was enjoyed Tuesday evening by 105 members of young people's groups of Knox and George Street Churches Tuesday evening, at which George Street members were hosts. Miss Loretta McDougall and Mr. Lloyd Parnall were in charge of program arrangements, which included games, contests and a quiz feature. Mrs. L. Ash, president of the George Street group, welcomed the guests. A devotional period was conducted by Miss Mary Duncan. A delicious lunch was served after the program.

Mission Groups Join For Easter Meeting

St. Andrew's United Church Missionary Societies, the Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary, Alpha Mission Circle, and the Afternoon Auxiliary, joined in an Easter thank-offering meeting held in the church parlors on Tuesday evening. Mrs. A. Pilling presided. Rev. Dr. E. W. Young opened the meeting with prayer, and the Easter story, taken from the 28th Chapter of Matthew, was read by Miss Ruth Barns. Miss F. Dixon led in prayer.

The guest speaker, Miss E. Dunoon of Lindsay, president of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the W.M.S., was presented by Mrs. A. E. Porteous. The aims and purposes of the Missionary Society to unite in world-wide Christianity, and to create missionary-mindedness, which is an integral part of church work, were outlined by the speaker.

Miss Vera Burgess thanked the speaker on behalf of society members.

A sacred solo, "There is a Green Hill Far Away," with Miss Margaret Widdess at the piano, was sung by Mrs. Ford Turner. Tea was served after the meeting, which closed with prayer by Mrs. J. A. Dewart.

Easter Meeting Is Inspiration

The W.M.S. Easter meeting given in story and song was an inspiration to the members and the guests of St. James' United Auxiliary on Tuesday. Presiding at the opening devotions and the business session the president, Mrs. W. Rose, led this part of the service and welcomed the members of the W.A. and other visitors. Arrangements were completed for the annual Woman's Missionary Society Sunday to be held on March 17, for which the pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik, has accepted an invitation to be the special speaker.

The committees chosen by the executive for the successful carrying out of this important service were ratified by the meeting. Another annual event of interest for which plans were finished was the mother and daughter banquet at which Miss Rachel Young, Children's Aid secretary, will be speaker.

Members absent owing to illness were remembered in prayer and other practical ways.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. E. R. Frost was appointed pro tem, and reports from the various departments were received which shows the auxiliary has made a fair start in its first quarter year. Among these was the treasurer's statement, by Mrs. R. B. English, of finances, which proved encouraging for the short period.

Christian Stewardship was brought in a challenging appeal by Miss M. Deyell, who said: "The right mood for giving is one of great glad privilege. The old Scriptural rule of giving a tenth to the work of religion and charity has stood the test of experience. Let there be some definite percentage which mind and conscience can approve. Let people everywhere give as they live sparingly or bountifully. Beginning to train early, Mrs. E. M. Davis, secretary of the Bay Band, told of a visit from her Presbyterial superior, Mrs. H. Alton, at which plans were made for the progress of this department which reaches its zenith in June each year.

Speaking of war as overshadowing all our thoughts, Mrs. E. Beavis, reporting for Temperance, declared that the present conflict was essentially an economic one, and everything that can be done to conserve Canada's resources is of paramount importance. Referring to the liquor traffic she said: "While the investment is not a total loss, it is probably more non-productive than any other. It wastes national resources, dissipates purchasing power, and cripples the nation's productive effort. Is it too much to ask in behalf of those who have given sons to this war that they be protected from these other evils while fighting for the Empire."

Mrs. Ross Payne, leader of the group in charge of this Eastertide service, took the chair, and the familiar hymn, "When I survey the wondrous Cross" was softly sung, with Mrs. Doig at the piano. The story of the Crucifixion was read from St. Luke's version, chapter 23, by Mrs. M. M. Ingham. In a beautiful story the last hours of our Lord's life upon earth were related by Mrs. Payne from the time of the Last Supper up to the tragic events of the Crucifixion, and concluding with its application to our own lives. "Let us then turn our gaze toward the loving, the life-giving God, and we know that the life we need is there for us." Interspersing the story at intervals were appropriate messages in hymns in which all had a part, as well as a solo "'Tis Midnight and on Olive's Brow" by Mrs. E. Kitney; a solo, "He died of a broken heart" by Mr. Newble, with accordion accompaniment, all joining in the chorus; and a duet, "Alone," by Mrs. E. Kitney and Rev. F. W. Craik.

Prayers were offered during the service by Mrs. E. M. Davis and Mrs. E. L. Woodley, while the pastor brought another Easter remembrance to a conclusion with the benediction.

Home and School Association News

CENTRAL SCHOOL.

Central Home and School Association held its March meeting in the kindergarten room of the school on Tuesday evening. A good representation of mothers was presided over by the president, Mrs. B. Fowler.

The meeting opened with 'O Canada," and the Home and School prayer.

The guest speaker of the evening was Mr. Brock of the Brinton Carpet Company, who showed four rolls of film on the screen pertaining to the process of carpet weaving. The pictures were clear and beautiful and were explained in an interesting manner by the speaker. The entire process from the washing of the wool to the beautifully finished carpets was closely followed, and proved very fascinating.

Miss L. Macfarlane, with a group of her music pupils, gave a demonstration of the teaching of music by the group system. The children, by their quick and clever answers, reflected great credit on their teacher and themselves, bringing out the good points of the modern way of teaching music, both in theory and practice. Miss Macfarlane and her pupils were heartily applauded.

Five girls from Mr. Munro's class sang two choruses, "Wooden Shoes" and "Sleepytime." These pupils are being taught by Mr Munro, and are chosen to take part in the musical program which will be presented in Toronto at the Easter Educational Convention.

Mrs. Fowler conducted the business of the Association which was as follows:

The roll call showed that the month's prize was won by Mr. Munro's room. A paper collection will be held next week, and parents are asked to give the children all the help possible. Mrs. K. Leeming was chosen as delegate to the Easter Convention. Mrs. J. H. Quirt and Mrs. Delahaye, who are the nomination committee, request the members to fill in and hand over the nomination slips before the April meeting.

The meetings will be held as formerly on the second Monday of the month. The program closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Post-war economic planning is being discussed in Australia.

C.A.S. Superintendent Appeals For Contributions of Magazines

An appeal for women's magazines was made by Miss Rachael Young Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the Children's Aid Society Board in the Council Chamber of the City Hall. She explained that in her visits she was surprised to find reading material was considered such a luxury, and asked for the assistance of city women in helping to supply this reading material.

A nominating committee of Mrs. W. J. Oke, Mrs. Tucker, Norwood; Reeve W. A. Anderson and Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt was appointed to bring in a slate of officers and directors at the annual meeting. Miss Young, to be accompanied by a member of the Board, was appointed as delegate to attend the Regional Conference of the Children's Aid Society at Brighton on the 15th of March.

Proof of the high respect in which the local Children's Aid Society is held was evident in a request from the Department of Social Science, University of Toronto, in which permission was asked to send two students to work with the superintendent.

The Shelter report, presented by Mrs. E. F. Lawrence, stated that one child was admitted to the Shelter on February 1st; two during February; six went out during February; ten were in the Shelter on the first of March. There were two police cases, 16 cared for during February, and eight doctors' examinations. Three of the children went to Toronto and visited the Museum, two of them paying their own train fare from their savings; a friend donating $1.50 toward the other child's fare. The children were treated to the screen picture, "Gulliver's Travels";

Begin Your Slimming on 3-Day Liquid Diet

Continue on Low-Calory Foods

"See how much weight I've lost!" says Mrs. Slim, displaying her loose skirt to Mrs. Hefty. Alas, Mrs. Hefty's dresses just get tighter and tighter.

But she'd lose also, as much as two pounds a week, if she'd follow Mrs. Slim's plan—a three-day liquid diet to start reducing, then slimming low-calory meals.

And how pleasant the three-day liquid diet is! You simply plan your housework so you can relax for a few days, then you settle down to a regime of refreshing drinks every hour or so. Orange, grapefruit, lemon, pineapple, prune and tomato juice—as well as tea and coffee—are on your list.

After this preliminary cleansing you go on a tasty low-calory diet. No danger of "starving". Just avoid such bulge-makers as breaded veal cutlet (250 calories), canned corn (200 calories, ⅔ cup), apple pie with cheese (300 calories). Choose instead a slice of roast veal (100), ⅔ cup buttered string beans (60), apple snow (only 125 a cup)!

In our 32-page booklet you'll find reducing menus for 14 days. Gives details of liquid diet, recipes for low-calory desserts. Has a calory chart for everyday foods, also menus for gaining.

The Japanese people are artistic, industrious and self-sacrificing. The buildings and bridges are particularly beautiful in design. In Tokio, which has a population of seven million people, there is a woman's medical college with 4,000 graduates. Miss Curtis told of the 198 volcanos and the earthquakes to which the people have become so accustomed they do not pay much attention unless they are very severe. The farms are small, but very well cultivated. The speaker told of a Japanese student who was travelling in our West, and when asked what she thought of Canada, replied "It looks as if no person taking care of it."

The arrangement of flowers and the entertainment of guests are arts taught to the children. Japanese women are always faced with such a tremendous amount of sewing that they are never finished.

Miss Curtis closed her remarks with the statement that only two new missionaries had been sent to Japan in seven years, and that many of the workers already there are forced to retire because of advancing years, urging that more helpers be sent.

The opening exercises consisted of soft music played by Mrs. W. P. Purdy. Mrs. James Goldie was heard in a beautiful sacred solo, "How Do I Know That Jesus Is My Savior?" with Mrs. M. C. Parr at the piano. A short poem, "The Rose of the Cross,' written by Mrs. C. W. McGee, was read by the author; Mrs. W. T. Cox gave the Bible reading, and prayer was led by Mrs. James Brown.

Thanks to the speaker and soloist was expressed on behalf of W.M.S. members present by Mrs. H. McHoull.

Prolonged cooking takes the flavor out of onions. Cook them only until they turn clear and are tender when tested with a fork. They will then be firm and full of sweet flavor.

All Education Is Not Between Covers of Books. Ability to Get Along With People Is One of the Best Assets in Business.

The great American fetish is a college education. The majority of the population devoutly believe in the superstation that a college diploma is a conjure bag that brings its possessor fame and fortune and success in every undertaking, and that wards off poverty, sickness, hard work, old age, falling hair and halitosis. With this artless belief firmly fixed in their minds, millions of fathers and mothers slave themselves to death to try to secure this priceless blessing for their offspring. Even before the baby is born they start scrimping and saving and doing without all the little comforts and luxuries that would make their own lives pleasanter in order to send junior off to college. That is their idea of fulfilling parental responsibility. If they can put a lot of dumb girls and boys, who have no intellectual yearnings whatever, through college, they feel that they have done their full duty to their children and are ready to fold their tired hands and depart in peace.

And if they cannot send their children to college, loud is the wailing and the breast-beating among parents who mourn because they cannot give their children the "advantages" that those of richer fathers and mothers have. They seem to think that their unfortunate youngsters are foredoomed to failure because they have never belonged to a fraternity or sung about dear old Alma Mater. They are humbly apologetic to their children because they cannot give them the college yell which they think is the open sesame to all the doors of success.

Apparently it never occurs to these poor parents, who are graduates of the University of Hard Knocks instead of fashionable schools, that all education is not put up between the covers of school books and that they have things to teach their children that will carry them farther than anything they can learn in any college.

They can learn them; for instance, how to sell themselves to the world. This is a branch of information virtually ignored in institutions of higher learning, yet on a man's and woman's ability to get along with other people depends not only their happiness but also their success in life. It is a man's best asset in business. It is a woman's trump card in society. It insures domestic bliss in matrimony.

The earth and the fullness thereof belong to the suave, the courteous, the adroit who know how to say the right thing at the right time and in the right place; who can be firm without being offensive; who can differ with us without insulting us, and smooth us down instead of rubbing our fur the wrong way.

They can teach their children how to sidestep temptation. Not one father in a thousand ever tells his sons while they are still little boys about the dangers of what we euphemistically call wine, women and song. Of course, he preaches his little out-and-dried sermon about being sober and moral, but he doesn't tell the boys that at every turn of the road the demon rum and the scarlet woman are waiting to grab them.

Yet any father can show his boy how to avoid them. He could put the fear of a wrecked stomach and shattered nerves into him. He can call the lad's attention to the shaking old alcoholics and the doddering paralytics and the prematurely senile old men all about us who are reaping the harvest of their wild oats.

Mother could teach her daughter why petting isn't safe. Just telling Sally that it isn't "nice" to let boys kiss her and manhandle her isn't enough. The last thing in the world that Sally wants to be called is "nice." And so she laughs at Mother and goes her way to destruction because Mother hasn't taught her that her danger lies from within and not from without, and that it is not from men she must protect herself but from her own passions.

Parents can teach their children that work is not a curse but a blessing; that it is the one interest in life that never flags; that it is the one solace in time of trouble. They can teach them to love to work, to get their greatest happiness and thrill and excitement out of it. And they can see to it that when their children start out in the world that they know how to do some one kind of work so well that there will be a demand for their services, so that they will not have to go around hunting a job. The Job will seek them.

Parents can teach their children how to make money, how to spend it and how to save it. And on this knowledge depends their prosperity and happiness in life.

They can teach them how to be good husbands and wives and neighbors and citizens. In a word, they can teach them the fine art of living, and that is the most important thing that any of us can learn.

Problem in Marriage

Dear Miss Dix—I am a young man of 27 who believed that he would never become entangled in a love problem, but here I am up to my neck. Six months ago I met a young woman with whom I fell violently in love at sight, but I find she is a widow with two children and also has her father and mother living with her. She is very desirous of marrying me, but, although I love her, I have not the courage to undertake such a ready-made family. My wages are only $28 a week, but she claims that she will work to keep the ball rolling.

In the meantime, I have met another young lady who is very attrac-

Miss S. Curtis Tells Of Life In Japan

W.M.S. members of the city's United churches were guests at the Easter thank-offering meeting of George Street WMS. Tuesday afternoon, at which Miss Sybil Curtis, who has spent thirty years in mission work in Japan, and is visiting her cousins, Mrs E. E. Harvey and Miss E. McKay of this city, gave an interesting talk on conditions in Japan, stating that while the Japanese government is at war with China, the Christian Church of Japan is not at war, and was praying earnestly for peace. "Japan needs prayers of all Christian people as never before, for nothing can destroy our friendship in Christ," she said.

There is conscription in Japan Miss Curtis explained, but as one young Christian said, "If I must go to China, I must take Christ with me, for that is the only way we can win—we can never win by war."

Lantern slides were shown picturing the natural beauty of the country, with its cherry blossoms and

BABY'S TEETHING UPSETS QUICKLY CHECKED

YOUR BABY must "get a tooth". But he need not get a fever with it—if baby's mother is wise he won't.

Here is what one wise mother, Mrs. Archie Begbie, of Consecon, has to say: "We have not lost one night's rest through teething as I always use my old standby, Baby's Own Tablets. They are worth their weight in gold."

And Mrs. B. A. Sebine, of Galt, Ont., says: "I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my baby girl since she was three weeks old and, although she cut her teeth rapidly (all four molars at once) she has never yet wakened us at night. I would not be without these tablets."

Give these safe, sweet-tasting tablets at the first sign of teething fever. Easy to take, prompt in action, yet safe. Analyst's certificate in every package.

Also effective in Constipation, Simple Fever, Diarrhoea, Upset Stomach, Colic, Simple Croup and Fretfulness. Get a box today. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

ONE FALSE STEP

BY KATHRN BEMIS

CHAPTER XVIII

"Well—is that all you've got to say?"

"What more—can I say?" Her voice sounded discouraged.

She got into the luxurious interior of this unbelievable extravagance of Rock's, sank into the high-cushioned seat with a sigh.

He jumped in beside her, pressed the starter, released the brake, began a flow of eager talk which she scarcely heard. She felt so helplessly miserable now. Which way could she turn? This man beside her was so unpredictable. She felt as if she had been doused with ice water. She shivered violently inside her soft ermine wrap.

THEY glided smoothly along the street and Janis allowed Rock to ramble on and on without comment. At a red light, he finally turned to her. "You're not very chatty tonight. What's wrong?" he asked.

"As if he didn't know!" cried her broken heart. But she told him: "Nothing—only you said you had pressing bills. Now with this car—how do you expect to manage?"

"So that's what the dear little girl is miffed over! Can't you figure it out, darling. My salary keeps coming in these days—I'm on contract."

"But you ought to think of the future," she told him impatiently. "You could use my car whenever you like—I won't need it very often—now. By the end of the year we'd have something to begin living on."

"Good grief! Do you think I'd take your car away from you? Besides this boat is a good advertisement. People will stare when I drive down the street—think I'm somebody—and before long, I will be. See?"

"No, I don't!" she flared, realizing why he had needed five hundred.

"Be reasonable, Honey. You peeved about the check you just gave me? I'm paying up a lot of old bills, exactly as I told you. How can a man be an actor and worry about bills—be pestered by a lot of cheap collectors?"

"Two and two make four any way you put it Rock—and you're not adding things up." She was sizzling with anger.

"What a killjoy you are!" he got out sullenly.

Lucinda Joins Them

They drove on a few blocks in stiff silence, then he suggested airily "Let's go show the car to Lou. I'll bet she'll say I did the right thing when I snatched up such a bargain. I suppose you're not interested in what this boat cost."

"I'm not," she told him curtly.

He sent the late motor model purring into Hollywood Boulevard without further comment, and soon pulled up before Lucinda's address.

With one arm on the wheel, he leaned toward the angry Janis.

"Love me—hate me—or what?" he asked, his face close to hers, his voice tenderly anxious.

Her heart skipped a beat and shattered her self-control. She met his kiss with lips that slowly surrendered to his. She wondered why she never was able to remain provoked at him for any length of time.

He let her go with a laugh, jumped out of the car, saying with sprightly assurance: "Everything will be O.K. darling. I like the best of everything and I'm out to get it. Relax and play along with me—you'll like it."

He swung confidently up the walk toward Lucinda's bungalow, as if he had settled all difficulties.

Janis, coming out from under the anesthesia of his love-making, thought: "His balance wheel—where is it. And why—oh, why did he have to come here to show this car to Lucinda?"

But she was not long left in doubt. Lucinda and Rock soon strolled toward the street, arm in arm, the long skirt of Lucinda's formal swirling gayly from beneath her white rabbit evening coat. Evidently, Lucinda had been dressed and ready to go!

They paused beside the car, with Lucinda exclaiming: "What a beauty! It's simply marvellous! Aren't you wild over it Janis?"

Before Janis could reply, Rock had assisted Lucinda into the middle of the wide seat, and Janis, with a queer sinking feeling, realized that Sally Chesser had been right. Rock had a date with Lucinda tonight which he intended to keep.

Hollywood Night Life

The restaurant to which Rock took the girls was fragrant with cut flowers and fine food; palms and cacti set in vari-colored jars gave a festive air to the place in keeping with the holiday-minded crowd which nightly dined there. They sat at a guileelessly private table amid low lights becoming to all women.

Lucinda, in her clinging black velvet gown, began preening herself at Rock with the first cocktail, and Janis wondered how long she could endure watching Rock glow under Lucinda's transparent flattery.

The orchestra began an irresistible throbbing melody, and Janis waited for Rock to invite her to dance. But it was Lucinda who said: I can't keep my feet still, Rock." And he immediately got up grinning

"Let's take a whirl around then," he said, and left Janis sitting alone, without so much as a backward glance.

Janis was stiff with chagrin and hot anger. Then she took herself in hand. There was just one thing left to which she could cling, and that was her pride. She wouldn't let Lucinda and Rock know how they had hurt her. Even when she saw them dancing cheek to cheek, she was determined to cover up her feelings.

Dorothy Dix

tive, has a fine position and no family complications. She also wants to marry me. Which one would I be wise in choosing? And, if I take the younger one, will I forget the widow? PUZZLED YOUTH

ANSWER:

The daring young man on the flying trapeze has certainly nothing on a young man who would even contemplate marrying a widow with two children and a father and mother to support when he is only earning $28 a week. Don't consider taking such a foolhardy risk, particularly as your affection for the lady in question doesn't seem to prevent your having an eye out for another pretty girl.

Marrying a widow with children is a risky business at best, because children are noisy, mischievous and troublesome, and, while it may seem cute for your own little darlings to run shrieking through the house playing Indian, tramp mud on your best rug and hurl food across the table at each other, it gets on your nerves and makes you want to commit murder when they are some other man's offspring.

But why are you so anxious to marry when you are not enough in love with either girl to be able to choose between two attractive women? Marriage is only justifiable when you are in that state of mind in which you believe there is only one woman in the world and that you can't live without her.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

THREE VITAL REASONS

THERE CAN be lots of different reasons for overtaking a winning card led or played by your partner. When you can do it on the defense against No Trump and thus assure yourself of a chance for an additional lead which will set up the remainder of your suit, that is one vital reason. If doing that is necessary to get the suit established before your side entry or entries can be knocked out, you have a second one. If taking the lead from him so you can knock an entry out of the dummy before its suit is established, you find a third. Sometimes the three are more combined in a single play

South	West	North	East

Pass	Pass	Pass

West reckoned here that he had South right where he wanted him, and that more points could be made beating the No Trump contract than by taking out in diamonds. He was right in passing, but later upset the apple cart with a bad play.

After West's correct lead of the diamond 10 to the A and South's lead of the spade J to the K, East returned the diamond J. If West had overtaken that with the Q and then led a third diamond to knock out the K, he could have raised Merry Ned with the declarer. As the latter led a second spade, West could have passed it and taken the third spade, thus killing the dummy while he himself took two more diamonds, then switched to a club. Played this way, the defenders could have taken eight tricks and the declarer only five, thus being set two.

When West failed to overtake the diamond J, East had to shift. Unfortunately he picked a club. South won, led a spade, then another to West, who knocked out the diamond K. The last spade was won in dummy, then the club 10 finessed, declarer thus making his contract with two spades, two diamonds and three clubs.

Tomorrow's Problem

If North opens this deal with a psychic 1-Heart to try to prevent game, how should East and West bid to get there anyway?

Coe Hill

For the first time in twenty-six years, church services in Faraday United Church have been held every other week during the winter months. Despite the bitter cold and plenty of drifting snow, the community of Faraday got out with its shovels and teams many a day in order to have open roads between Faraday and Coe Hill. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Buchanan of the Coe Hill United Church circuit deserve much credit for the great efforts set forth in this record.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Denford, of Faraday, accompanied by Mr. Arlie Waterman, spent Saturday in Coe Hill.

It has been reported Miss Marjorie O'Brien, who is in attendance at the Toronto Bible School, former resident of Gilroy School district, is in a Toronto hospital suffering from pneumonia, although her condition is not serious.

Mr. George Gilroy, in his 85th year, the oldest resident now living in this village, attended three church services on Wednesday. These special services are being held every Wednesday during Lent by the Rev. A. Redding of Bannockburn.

Pte. Clifford Landon, of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, now serving in Quebec, spent the week-end with his wife and family; also Pte. Andrew Campbell of the same regiment at Quebec visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Campbell of Gilroy School district.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Rollins and son Robert motored to Toronto on Wednesday.

Marriage Ties Of 76 Years Been Broken

PICTON, March 13—The death of Mrs. Peter Addison Mabee at her home, west of Picton has broken the marriage ties which have existed almost 77 years. The late Mrs. Mabee was born Elizabeth Huycke, 95 years ago in Athol township. Mr. Mabee, 97, and their only son Stanley, 75, and a 49-year-old grandson, Raymond, both of Williamsport, Pa., survive. Mr. Mabee and the late Mrs. Mabee have twice received cables of congratulations from the King on wedding anniversaries.

Of United Empire Loyalist stock the death of Mrs. Mabee recalls some early history of the pioneer family in Ontario into which she married. The founder of the Mabee family in Ontario (it should be written in Canada for there are Mabees and Maybees all over the Dominion) was Frederick Mabee, New York Loyalist, who after the revolution was subjected to such persecution that nothing remained but voluntary exile to Canada. The first of the family to come to America was Pierre Gaspard Mabille (for that was the original spelling of the name) in 1624 who established the family of repute in New York state.

Information has been handed down by Frederick Mabee to generation after generation that his ancestors were Huguenots of Anjou, and during the massacre in 1572 escaped to Holland and won prominence.

Seigneur Pierre Mabille de Nevi died in Holland and left considerable property, which has accumulated and is held by the Dutch government, and for generations has been known as the "Mabee fortune."

After the revolution Frederick Mabee and other members of the family took up residence in New Brunswick in 1783. He was accompanied by Peter Secord, a cousin (and founder of another historical family in Canada). Having heard of the richness of Upper Canada, both families migrated to Long Point. They left New Brunswick in 1792, arrived in Turkey Point in the summer of 1793, thus anticipating by three or four years the settlement inaugurated by Simcoe.

Frederick Mabee died in 1794 and when a year later Simcoe visited the district, he knelt in reverence at the grave of the first U. E. Loyalist and white man who died in the district. Many tales of those days have been handed down from generation to generation of the Mabee family whether their names be spelled Maby, Mabee or Maybee, for they all come from one stock, the loyalists of New York. And now near the eastern town of Picton, a descendant's wife has passed on just two weeks before the 77th wedding anniversary which makes them Canada's longest married couple.

Descendants of this historical family in the Peterborough district are Mrs. C. Leslie, Mrs. J. Fanning, McDonnell street, Robert Maybee, Gilmour street, E. Maybee, Sherbrooke street and Percie Maybee, who resides south of Peterborough.

Campbellford Utilities Commission Reconsiders, Gives Town $8,000

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13. — (ENS).—Dread of a five-mill increase in this town's tax rate disappeared Monday afternoon when at a meeting of the Water and Light Commission a motion to grant the council a total of $8,000.00 during the year 1940 was passed by the Board.

All members of the Commission were present and the meeting took the form of an adjourned session from last Friday when definite action was postponed because Commissioner Charles Davidson was absent. Mayor F. F. Long, who by virtue of his office, is also a member of the Utilities Commission, opened the subject of the grant, which has already stirred up a veritable hornet's nest among citizens who, following last Friday's meeting, believed an increase of five mills in the tax rate was imminent when the Commission announced they were definitely not in a position to make the corporation a grant of $10,000 again this year.

In his opening remarks the Mayor reiterated the Council's position, claiming they were doing their utmost to keep the tax rate down despite the fact that the half-mill subsidy had been withdrawn and an increase of $1,000.00 had been made in the Board of Education's requisition for the year. He explained that the tax arrears had come in so well last year that they had been able to face the electors with a $3,000.00 surplus. Officials in the tax collector's department had estimated that there would be from three to four thousand less in arrears collected in 1940 and he argued that if the grant was down by $4,000.00 the tax rate would have to be set at 50 mills or four above last year. He claimed the Commission's estimated increase of $2,000.00 in receipts plus the $3,100.00 less in debentures payements would offset the Utilities' "war costs" of $5,000.00. Mr. Long felt that a saving might be effected by placing guards on the power plant at night only, cutting cost by $1,500.00. He also recommended that the consumer should bear the eight per cent tax on domestic light instead of the Commission. After tabling a list of suggested savings for the Commission which included the spending of $1,000.00 less for labor; $1,500.00 for guards; $3,000.00 off debentues payments, and $500.00 less for incidental expenses such as telephone, the Mayor added, "It looks to me as if the grant could be made the same as last year." When he pointed out that the cost of living had increased by 13 per cent Chairman Benor interrupted, asking why the Commission should saddle an additional 8 per cent on the people by passing on to them the tax on domestic light.

Mayor Want $10,000

"I think the Commission should try to get along by making as few repairs as possible during the war years. The governments have decided to eliminate a number of public works as a matter of economy and I think we should do the same," Mayor Long said.

"In the light of these facts I'm going to make a motion that the grant be $10,000.00 to be paid if, as, and when required, which means if the council finds the amount is not needed they will not ask for it."

"We went in the hole $4,000.00 to give you your grant last year and now we're down to a surplus of $6,000.00. We can't afford to go further in the red this year," declared Chairman Benor.

"In the last 15 years we've given the town $185,000.00 or enough to pay off the entire debenture debt of the corporation as well as paying off our own debentures which the town has charged back each year to the tax payers. To carry on in this manner the Commission has had continually to rob the Utilities, and if the Commission doesn't consider the utilities first they are absolutely negligent in their duties." Commissioner Benor struck back at the Council for their charges of extravgance levelled at the utilities. "What telephones can we cut off?" he asked. "There are two telephones at the power plant, one of which belongs to the Hydro and one to the Bell telephone, and there are two at the office, of which one is also owned by the Hydro. As far as the extension in the manager's office is concerned, it's not good business for us to be making private calls in the front office where customers can overhear the conversation, and as for the extension in the barn very often the men are working there after the office has been closed and we are therefore in a position to give better service to our consumers. It's cheaper to have these facilities and save the men's time."

Defends Commission

"I defy any member of the Council to show that they have done more in the interests of Campbellford than the Commission Board has in the past two years," continued the chairman, declaring that in his opinion it was time the council did a little economizing.

"My opinion is that we should let the council know that the grant is to be reduced this year and every year until we get on our feet. The more money we give to the town the more taxes go up. Show me where you ever reduced taxes by $10,000.00. It didn't reduce them, all it has done is keep them at the same level," declared Mr. Benor.

"The money has to be raised," countered the Mayor, "and if it isn't taken from the Utilities it will be charged up to the tax payers."

"If the public utilities were put in shape we could give the town $25,000.00 more easily than we gave $10,000.00 last year."

Admitting that the reserves were well below the ten thousand dollars they were formerly kept at, Mr. Benor indicated it was his intention to keep them where they are. "I don't think this is an opportune time to build up our reserve, but neither is it a time to cut into them more." He suggested that the grant should be cut gradually so that the effect would not be too hard on the taxpayers and offered to make a motion that a grant of $7,000.00 be made. This motion, like the one of the Mayor's found no seconder, and Mr. Benor changed the subject to power reserves. He said that in another three years the Hydro may not need to buy power locally, and therefore felt it was imperative to build up the system in order to handle a capacity load of consumers in the town, where all of the surplus power could be sold.

"We've done a lot of work in the past few years," declared Manager P. C. Denyes, "but it's now getting to the point where we can't just patch up any longer as our primaries and secondaries are overloaded and new ones will have to be put in. Last year more money was spent on maintenance than ever before. We had to buy a number of new transformers, and this year we'll have to spend more on labor."

Following a suggestion by the Mayor that the Commisison set the highest possible amount they could pay over to the town, Commissioner Davidson made a motion that a total grant of $8,000.00 be paid if and when required by the council. This was supported by Chairman Benor and carried. "I'm seconding this motion on the understanding that the grant will be reduced each year until adequate reserves have been rebuilt and the system is again in the position to give service."

Referring to the recent death of Thomas Brenan, who for the past eight years had been employed as pumping station operator, the secretary was instructed to write a letter expressing the sympathy of the Board to Mrs. Brenan.

Large Group Trent Ladies Attend Quilting

TRENT RIVER, March 13. — (ENS) — Mrs. Harold Thompson, hostess for quilting and pot-luck dinner. A most successful quilting and pot luck dinner was sponsored by the members of Group 4 of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church.

An autograph quilt has been in the making for some time, with two hundred and ninety-four names worked on 42 blocks. The color of the top is mauve with the embroidering done in mauve and old gold. As there was an attendance of 44 ladies, only the required number could work at the quilting while other employed their time knitting for Red Cross work. Later in the afternoon a second quilt was set up.

Tables were arranged in an L shape in the dining room with floral decorations for the centre pieces. The tables were reset three times to serve those in attendance as a number of gentlemen sat at the first table. The menu consisted of steaming meat pies, scalloped potatoes, roast beef, various kinds of pickles, salads, jellies, tea biscuits and many kinds of tempting pies. At the conclusion of the serving of the dinner, quilting was resumed.

Ladies' Aid Meets

Mrs. Thomas J. Brown, president of the Ladies' Aid called the meeting to order with Mrs. Walter Lewis presiding at the piano. Mrs. John Scott, secretary, read the roll call. A number of members paid their dues. The treasurer, Mrs. Gordon Shearer reported cash on hand about $28. Cards were ordered for the sick. The members discussed missionary giving.

Mrs. Harold B. Wood received a letter from Mrs. Roy Burgess, formerly Zella Paget, of Toronto, containing a cheque of five dollars in memory for her later father, Mr. James Paget who passed away about a year ago and who previously contributed towards the Ladies' Aid Society, owing to the late Mrs. James Paget being a member. A letter of appreciation will be forwarded to Mrs. Burgess for the gift. A hearty vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Thompson for her generosity in opening her home for the occasion. A fee of 15 cents was made for the dinner, resulting in a total of $9.20 for group four together with the sum of $29.40 collected for names on the quilt (10 cents per name.) The quilt is to be sold.

Among those in attendance were Mesdames George Brooks, Percy Johnston, J. Ruttan, Percy Lewis, Emerson Glenn, James Cook, M. T. Lean, Clare Morrow, John Free, Gordon Shearer, George Humphrey, Thomas Dunham, James Longmuir, John Scott, T. W. Brown, H. B. Wood, K. Walters, George Longmuir, Gerald Morton, Joe Tedford, Harry Dunford, Walter Lewis, K. Thompson, Harold Van Volkenburg, W. G. Scott, J. Brown, Earl Greenly, M. Cavan Societies Hold Joint Meet

CAVAN, March 13—(ENS). — The Cavan W.A. and W.M.S. held their March meeting at Miss A. Tinney's home on Thursday afternoon.

The vice-president, Mrs. J. W. Perrin presided in the absence of the president, Mrs. D. J. Hunter. Mrs. W. E. Honey conducted the devotional period.

Mrs. Richard Matchett, Mrs. Milton Carr, and Mrs. Honey reported successful pot luck dinners. A pancake social was decided on for Wednesday evening, March 14, with Mrs. Melville Carr, Mrs. D. Tinney, Mrs. McCullough, Mrs. N. Braithwaite, a committee in charge of the supper arrangements, and the Young People to arrange a program.

It was decided to purchase an Easter lily for the church for Easter Sunday.

It was decided to make a quilt for the Red Cross.

Mrs. Snider's group will be in charge of the April meeting.

Repeating the Apostle's Creed in unison closed the meeting.

Mrs. R. Matchett took the chair for the W.M.S. session.

The roll call was answered by a verse of scripture on Peace. The treasurer's report showed $10.73 on hand.

Mrs. Honey was requested to arrange for a speaker for the W.M.S. special service after Easter.

It was decided that each member should make a quit block 18" x 18" for the W.M.S. bale quilt.

The roll call topic for Easter will be Thanksgiving.

Miss Malone gave an interesting synopsis of a chapter of the study on India, dealing with the prevalence of such diseases as leprosy, malaria, and tuberculosis.

Mrs. Snider read a letter written by Miss Nellie Elliott, who was foreign secretary for the Y.W. Association in Hong Kong. It told of the work being accomplished.

The April meeting will be held at the parsonage.

After the meeting was formally dismissed the W.A. served afternoon tea and the contents of a sale table were disposed of, six dollars being added to the W.A. treasury.

Bethany Y.P.U. Presents Comedy-Drama

BETHANY, March 13—(ENS).—Young People's Union of the United Church set a new high in village dramatics last week when they presented a three-act comedy drama entitled "Call Me Mike" to a capacity audience at the Town Hall.

Every member of the cast showed exceptional ability and the entire play was carried through without a single hitch. Those who took part are Marshall Wright, Elizabeth Tanner, Allan Beer, Eunice Waddell, Donald Kyle, Arnott Neals, Earl Weatherill, Jean Fairbairn, Clara Beer, Mervyn Porteous, Joey Leaves, Catherin McClelland.

Helen Patten and Norman Lowes delighted the gathering with a piano duet between acts, and other musical numbers were a vocal duet, Hazel Jack, and Rev. C. Ferguson.

A.Y.P.A. Meets

The semi-monthly meeting of St. Mary's A.Y.P.A. was held at the home of Mr. Henry Ward, with 18 members present on Thursday evening.

Discussion was held regarding the coming Diocesan conference, which is to be held in Toronto in April.

Most of the members decided to try very hard to attend the Lenten rally, to be held at St. George's Branch, Peterborough, on March 14, at which Rev. E. Mason will be the guest speaker.

The next regular meeting will be held at the home of Mervin Smith on March 20. Yvonne Rowan and Robert Reid will act as program committee for that evening.

Rev. Mason then gave another very interesting address on the Book of Common Prayer, speaking on the order of Morning and Evening Services.

After the concluding number, a dainty luncheon was served, and a hearty vote of thanks extended to Mr. and Mrs. Ward and Ben Page for their hospitality.

The Rev. F. Carpenter and Mrs. Carpenter of Toronto are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Snider.

Mrs. R. Hootan is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. Douglas.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fry, Peterborough are visiting Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Syer.

SWEDEN NOW COURTS FINLAND

Nazis Threaten Balkan Setup With Soviet-Rumanian Pact

Reds Jubilant Over Army's Great Victory

Pact Reasonable, Just Says Moscow; Now Hold Viipuri

MOSCOW, March 14.—(AP)—Jubilant Russia announced today the Red Army's final triumph against Finland — occupation of Viipuri, which the treaty of peace already had made Russian.

The beseiged city apparently was the last active sector of the 105-day war. An army communique said the Russians occupied it yesterday, five hours before "hostilities ended on all sectors of the front in conformity with the peace treaty."

Tass, Soviet news agency, reported crowed mass meetings throughout Russia to acclaim the peace which the Soviet Union scored as a gain strategically and materially.

An editorial in the government newspaper Izvestia declared that the changes in the Finnish-Russian border were reasonable and just.

"The treaty," it added, "revealed that neither during diplomatic negotiations nor after a military success does the U.S.S.R. present to even its smallest neighbors a demand incompatible with their national dignity or independence."

The newspaper asserted that Scandinavian countries were relieved because peace had dissolved any direct threat to their independence or of their being involved in war.

Miracles of Heroism

Typical of workers' resolutions reported by Tass was this one adopt in a Moscow automobile factory:—

"Our heroic Red army showed real miracles of heroism and demonstrated what the army of the Soviet can accomplish when fighting for its people.

Their Gallant Defence Ended In Bitter Peace

With the recently concluded peace pact between Russia and Finland, the gallant defence waged by Baron Gustav Mannerheim and his small Finnish army came to an end. The heroic three and a half months defence put up by the inferior forces of Finland against the Red hordes of Dictator Stalin will undoubtedly go down in history as one most gallant and brilliant military defences of all time. Field-Marshal Baron Mannerheim, LEFT, is shown here going over a map with General Oesch, his chief of staff.

Country First

Port Arthur, March 14 (CP)

ALTHOUGH predicting the return of the government, Transport Minister Howe said in a radio address here last night that if the result of the election March 26 is otherwise, he will seek an opportunity to work as a dollar-a-year man in any capacity which might be assigned to him in an effort to aid Canada's war effort. Mr. Howe spoke for 30 minutes from a Port Arthur station (CKPR).

Speaking in his home constituency for the first time since the election was announced, Mr. Howe pointed to the development of Trans-Canada Air Lines as an outstanding achievement of the transport department under his administration.

Urges Election Officers Speed Returns

OTTAWA, March 14 — (CP). — Election officers should do whatever they can to aid The Canadian Press in promptly collecting accurate returns of the Dominion elections on March 26, Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer, said today.

"Every election officer and particularly every deputy returning officer, poll clerk and candidate's agent at the polls should do whatever he can to furnish to The Canadian Press, newspapers and their accredited correspondents, as early in the evening as possible on polling day, accurate statements of the results of the vote at every polling station," he said.

Mr. Castonguay pointed out that when deputies complete their statements of the result at each polling station the information they contain is public property. The chief electoral officer continued: "Every deputy returning officer and poll clerk as well as every candidate's agent should do what lies in his power to notify the number of votes cast for each candidate at their polling station to the press and to the candidate's organization with the least possible delay."

The chief electoral officer included in each of the 32,000 ballot boxes used on polling day a special memorandum to deputy returning officers requesting them to co-operate with The Canadian Press and its accredited correspondents. The returning officer for each electoral district has also been requested to co-operate with The Canadian Press in the collection of the results of the election on polling day.

Dauntless Finns Plan Forts for New Borders As Scandinavian Neighbors Worry Lest Reds Grab Helsinki, Keep On Coming

Last Penny Of Any Debt To West, Now Paid States Mannerheim

HELSINKI, March 14 — (AP). — Shrouded in peace, Finland today counted on new fortifications and a prospective alliance with Norway and Sweden, if need me, to same her from Czecho-Slovakia's fate.

Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner made it clear that despite the crushing peace that ended 105 days of war with Soviet Russia, Finland intended to take every step to protect her newly-narrowed borders from future threats.

Asked if fortification of the new borders would be permitted, Tanner said:

"Who is going to stop us?"

He added, "Our military commanders say all borders are defensible."

Nevertheless, with the great Mannerheim Line and most of Finland's other frontier defences ceded to Russia and a Russian naval base to be established on the key peninsula of Hanko under Tuesday's treaty of Moscow, Finland looked forward to discussions soon aimed at a defensive alliance with Sweden and Norway.

These northern neighbors already have agreed to talk it over at Finland's initiative, Tanner said, although they refused such an overture when the war was in progress.

To the mourning public of Finland, which lost thousands of its sons and much of its wealth in the futile struggle against invasion, the government broadcast a plea for continuing in peace the co-operation and unity that was so characteristic in war.

Great Task Ahead.

That epic struggle, the government said, was now just another "chapter of history," and Finland must turn to the task of rebuilding her ruined cities and humble homes laid waste by Soviet bombing planes.

The grim Finnish army prepared for the step-by-step withdrawal from its snowy battle fronts as provided for both armies in Russia's truculent peace terms.

First withdrawal, a minimum of seven kilometres (about 4½ miles) is scheduled tomorrow in the Lieks area, with similar retreats to follow in other sectors on a schedule that calls for the last removal from the Petsamo area April 10.

Premier Risto Ryti and the delegation which accepted the Russian settlement passed through Stockholm today on their way home to Helsinki from Moscow.

The government already has been informed of the main points of the treaty, but Ryti is bringing the full details.

Foreign Minister Tanner indicated that the formality of ratification by the Finnish Diet might not come for several weeks.

The sad old Finnish Field Marshal, Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim, declared in his final order of the day that Finland has "paid to the very last penny any debt we may have owed to the West."

Baron Mannerheim estimated the

Finland's Intact Rights Held Only Consolation

HELSINKI, March 14 (CP Havas) —Finland's rights and the army that has shown its capacity to defend them are still intact, President Kyosti Kallio told the Finnish nation in a radio speech today.

The Finnish leader said the country hoped for aid in the tremendous task of reconstruction but would depend in this task primarily upon its own strength and its own unity to see it through.

The struggle, he said, had welded the nation as never before and he urged the people to preserve this unity as their utmost precious possession.

„One consolation remains," he said, "Finnish rights continue to exist. Our moral victory is an accomplished fact. We count on those who hold the same ideals as we to aid us now in the heavy task that lies before us.

"We must assess as its true value the aid that has been given us up until now, but we must count above all on ourselves. Our union must remain our principal source of strength. In the unequal struggle, from the point of view of relationship of forces, we were able to preserve our union tact.

Nation Welded Tighter

"Our sorrow is great, but our wisdom must sustain us in our effort for reconstruction. Our political life, the form of our state, survive like the people themselves. Our army has remained intact and ready to defend our liberties. The struggle tempered and welded us together.

"We bow before the thousands of heroes fallen for the country. We above all thank Field Marshal Carl Gustav Mannerheim who remains for all of us the symbol of heroism of our soldiers.

"It is now our duty to take charge of the invalids, the families of the dead, and all the other victims of the war, including all the evacuees.

"Disappointment was great in the attitude of Sweden and Norway which refused transit which would have enabled us to resist the invader victoriously. I hope, however, that it has become clear to our neighbors that an unbreakable and durable union must be established among the northern countries.

"People of Finland! You can be proud of the role you have played as the vanguard of western civilization."

Sweden Ready Now To Talk Defence Hookup With Finns

STOCKHOLM, March 14—(AP)—The Swedish foreign office announced today that the Swedish government, in reply to a question from the Finnish government, had declared itself ready and willing to "discuss the possibility of a defensive alliance."

Norway's Foreign Minister, Halvdan Koht, made a virtually identical announcement soon after President Kyosti Kallio of Finland in a broadcast from Helsinki said the need for such an alliance was apparent.

The three northern nations, moving for joint defense discussions, apparently were spurred by Russia's term exacting vital territorial concessions from Finland as the price for ending the Finnish-Russian war.

Cause For Uneasiness

Sweden and Norway found cause for concern in the rail and air right-of-way Russia won across Finnish territory to the Swedish and Norwegian frontiers.

—Sweden, taking stock of changes in Scandinavia's strategic position as a result of a Soviet Russia's inroads on Finland, is prepared for an "unbiased examination" of the situation, lest Finland become another Czecho-Slovakia.

Apparently she favors some sort of defensive alliance of the north countries to insure that the Russians will not follow up the Moscow settlement with a march to Helsinki as the Germans followed Munich with a march to Prague.

There remained, of course, the possibility that Germany herself might stand in the way of any such Russian move.

A Swedish stand for closer collaboration of the north countries—perhaps an outright alliance—was hinted last night when Swedish Foreign Minister Christian Gunther

Rumanian Chief In Berlin On 'Trade Deal'

BERLIN, March 14—(CP)—One new factor in the Russo-German-Rumanian situation was given as the recent arrival in Berlin of a Rumanian general. Technically, he is here to negotiate extension on the German-Rumanian trade treaty to Bohemia and Moravia. But just why a military rather than an economic mission should visit Berlin at this time is a mystery.

Another factor is a special delivery letter which reached foreign diplomats and other distinguished foreigners today asking them to stay away from a luncheon of the German Academy to which they had accepted invitations. Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat of the Ministry of Economics was scheduled to speak on Rumania.

Slow Allied Call For Planes Baffling U.S.

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP). —While Congress took a hand in the simmering controversy over Allied warplane purchases, aviation circles tried today to reconcile reported Franco-British eagerness for United States fighting craft with the slow trickle of actual orders.

The release of latest type American warplanes to the Allies aroused many Congressmen, and a House Military Affairs sub-committee ordered an inquiry for early next week to determine whether national defence interests were being jeopardized. A move for a kindred investigation was instituted in the Senate.

As far as aircraft manufacturers are concerned, the whole subject is confused by contradictions.

Despite last week's announcement that the Allies intended to spend $1,000,000,000 for planes, there has been no inclination of a speed-up in contracts, aviation sources said.

In the last three months only about $40,000,000 in Allied aircraft orders have been placed, and aircraft circles are puzzled by the deliberation which the foreign purchasing missions are exhibiting.

The House of Representatives inquiry plans to hear Secretary of War Woodring and Major General George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, on why manufacturers have been permitted to release lately-developed Air Corps planes, among them a 400-mile-an-hour fighter, to foreign purchasers.

Release of this craft, the P-40, helped whip up the present furore.

Trouble In East?

Tokyo, March 14 (AP)

THE Japanese war office today disclaimed knowledge of a recurrence of fighting between Japanese and Russian troops on the Manchoukuo — outer Mongolian border, saying it believed such reports were groundless.

Unconfirmed Manchoukuoan advices reaching Shanghai said Soviet troops had advanced five miles and were moving up men and equipment on the trans-Siberian railway.

Last summer's outer Mongolian border fighting was halted by an Armistice Sept. 16.

Berlin Piloting Russ Deal With Rumania

BUCHAREST, March 14—(AP). —Reports that Russia is negotiating a non-aggression pact with Rumania and a trade agreement with Italy were linked today with German diplomacy.

Observers here pictured Germany as eager, now that peace has been restored between Finland and Russia, to prevent any possible future armed "adventures" so that Russian supplies can be available for Germany's war machine.

Berlin was said even to be the scene of the Russian-Rumanian negotiations. Although official circles would not comment, authoritative sources said last night that a commission of high Rumania army officers was in the German capital.

These reports, coinciding with the end of the Russian-Finnish war, occur while Balkan attention is facing anxiously toward the East and Rumania, particularly, is wondering whether the Soviet may attempt

Last Minute News Flashes

PARIS—(AP).—The Senate voted unanimously today to go into immediate secret session to hear Premier Daladier explain his conduct of the war to date. The vote was taken after the Premier himself, responding to press comment on the Russian-Finnish peace and pressure in parliament, offered to discuss with the senators both the war and the political situation.

TORONTO— (CP). — J. A. Skiff, squadron leader of a volunteer Canadian air force recruited recently to go to Finland, said to-day the squadron would not be disbanded, but would offer its services to the Allies. "The infantry units that were formed to go to Finland's aid are now being dismissed, but we are keeping our airmen together," Skiff said.

Peace Ends Fear Of Red-Nazi Military Pact

LONDON, Mar. 14 — (CP). — Peace between Soviet Russia and Finland has killed a possibility of Russia and Germany being driven into a full military alliance, authoritative Foreign Office circles said to-day.

They asserted it is the British Government's view that Russia and Germany are not military allies now nor do they believe Russian aid to Germany will extend beyond the economic sphere.

Since intervention in Finland by the Allies first was discussed it was

Finn Cities Blown To Bits, Censors' Lifted Ban Bares Nation's Awful Toll

(Editor's Note.—Wade Werner, Chief of the Associated Press Bureau in Copenhagen, was in Finland for most of the Finnish-Russian conflict, and here discusses features of the war kept secret under the censorship while the fighting lasted.)

By WADE WERNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

COPENHAGEN, March 14 (AP) —Now that the Russian-Finnish war is over some of the most obvious reasons influencing the Finns in their decision to sign peace can be disclosed.

While the hostilities continued the censorship policy naturally dictated suppression or minimizing of the damage done by the Soviet air raids to industries and transport vital to continuance of armed resistance.

The havoc wrought by the bombers actually was tremendous. Not a single large town in all Finland escaped punishment from the air.

This was bad enough for the civilians, hundreds of whom were killed while countless others saw their homes demolished, burned or badly damaged. But damage to the factories and railway transport as well as harbor facilities was a more vital factor in crippling Finnish defence.

Hanko and a number of other towns practically ceased to exist. Some railway junctions had little left but tracks and the movement of troops through such points to the front was a most difficult and dangerous task.

In late February when I passed through the junction of Elisenvaara the western shore of Lake Ladoga, trains were crowded with reinforcements, some southbound toward the Karelian Isthmus, some travelling to the northeast of Lake Ladoga. The troops with whom I travelled moved through with the utmost difficulty for Elisenvaara had been bombed five times during the night before our arrival and bombers raided us four times during the day.

My censored dispatch did not mention soldiers but it was the movement of reinforcements to the front that the Russian raiders were crippling. Elisenvaara already was in ruins when we left but it was bombed again repeatedly in succeeding days.

Viipuri, seaport at the western end of the Karelian front, was so sys-

Darrow Fails Chicago Magician 2nd Time As He Seeks Sign In Flutter Of Hymn Book

CHICAGO, March 14.—(AP).—Claude Noble, a magician, stood on a bridge in Jackon Park, held out a hymn book, and called upon the spirit of Clarence Darrow to manifest itself if it could.

Hopefully, he stood in silence for a full minute. Then he turned to the newspapermen and said: "No manifestation."

It's been the same story for more than 75 years.

Noble, who came from his home in Detroit to conduct the experiment yesterday, said magicians had been trying to get a glimpse into the great beyond since the days of Conte.

No Soviet Peace Fooling F.D.R.; U.S. Embargo Orders Stand

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP) —With President Roosevelt indicating uneasiness over Finland's future, the United States will continue to regard Russia warily for some time.

This became apparent today when it was learned from a reliable source that the "moral embargoes" against Russia, imposed by Mr. Roosevelt and the state department after the Soviet invasion of Finland, would be maintained indefinitely regardless of the Baltic peace.

The president laid down the "moral embargo" on the shipment of airplanes and parts to Russia early in December. This was later amplified by the state department to include materials going into the manufacture of airplanes, such as molybdenum and aluminum, and also plants and plans for the manufacture of aviation gasoline.

No move to lift any of these embargoes will be made for some time, it was learned, because:

1. Officials are not sure that Russia will not again move against a Finland weakened by peace treaty, as Germany did against Czecho-Slovakia weakened by the detachment of Sudetenland.

2. Nor are they sure that Russia, now that her hands are freed by the peace treaty with Finland, will not move against other nations, perhaps in the Balkans or the Near East.

3. Nor are they sure that materials sent to Russia are not going through to Germany.

Some Clouds Yet

President Roosevelt's concern over the Finnish situation was expressed in a statement issued by the White House. He said:

"The ending of this war does not yet clarify the inherent right of small nations to the maintenance of their integrity against attack by superior force.

"The people of Finland, by their

Avoid Finn Pact Is Press Tip To Norway

OSLO, Norway, March 14 (AP)— The Liberal newspaper Dagbladet warned Norway today not to enter into negotiations for a defensive alliance with Finland and Sweden.

Norway's Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht said this country already had agreed to "consider the possibility" of such an alliance, and similar word came from Sweden.

The newspaper pointed out that the third clause of the Finnish-Russian peace treaty forbade Finland to enter an alliance against the Soviet Union, "and this excludes any defence pact."

It said that if Norway had declared its willingness to discuss such possibilities, "we must assume that answer was given before the peace conditions were made known.

"If the cabinet should propose a pact, the storting (parliament) must reject it any cost."

The Dagbladet previously had urged active Norwegian intervention to help Finland fight Russia.

BattleLost,ImperishableFameWon U.K. Press Says Of Heroic Finland

LONDON, March 14.—(CP). — Following is London newspaper comment to-day on the Finnish peace:

The Times:

"The Finns have lost the battle but they have won imperishable fame. For the rest, the outcome of of 3½ months of war cannot be regarded with the slightest satisfaction by any one except, indeed, by Stalin—and not wholly even by him. He expected his troops to walk into Finland and establish a Soviet republic there. He has united the Finnish people against Bolshevism as they have never been united before, and his puppet Kuusinen, (designated head of a communist "government") who was to have been installed in Helsinki within three weeks, has for the present apparently been relegated to limbo.

"The last few days have shown to the public in France, in Great Britain and in Finland herself how much the western democracies were prepared to do in support of the Finnish armies if that support had been formally invited and if satisfactory arrangements could have been made with the countries through whose territories alone land armies could reach Finland.

"The difficulties of Sweden and Norway are fully understood here. Their geographical positions is unenviable. If Great Britain and France had once engaged in open warfare with Russia then Germany would very likely have stepped into that arena—she certainly threatened it—and these small countries probably would have become a battleground of giants.

"A criticism that can reasonably be made is that if the same readiness to help had been shown in the earliest days of the conflict as has been shown in the last few weeks, the Russian forces might never have

Parties Make Drive On Ontario Vote

(By the Canadian Press.)

The Liberal government carried its chief campaign offensive into Premier Hepburn's capital city today with Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Justice Minister Lapointe and Defence Minister Rogers scheduled to speak tonight in Toronto, where the Ontario premier has voiced frequent criticisms of the war effort and Mr. King's administration.

As the drive for electoral favor moved towards a new climax, Conservative Leader Manion planned to address a Guelph, Ont., meeting this afternoon and speak in Hamilton in the evening.

Discussion of the National government proposal of the Conservative leader dominated campaign speeches last night with leading parties concentrating their appeals in Ontario.

Denying Mr. King's charge that he had "scuttled the Conservative party," Dr. Manion said in Kingston, Ont., that he is "leading the Conservative party along the best lines —placing our country first and our party second, serving the nation and the empire, rising in times of crisis above petty political ambition."

Will Emerge Again.

The Conservative party will emerge "after this period of national and international crisis, as it did after 1867 and 1917, unified and unashamed."

He recalled the National government plan had been endorsed by a caucus of Conservative members of parliament. Conservative leaders in all provinces, with one exception, and Conservative associations across on, or Dante, in Europe.

There are always arrangements made beforehand. In the case of Darrow, the great criminal lawyer and agnostic, they were agreed upon at a meeting in a Detroit hotel three years ago.

"I was there and so was Howard Thurston," Noble said. "Thurston believed in spiritualism, but Mr. Darrow did not. But Mr. Darrow agreed to manifest his spirit if I would give him the opportunity."

Just a year ago yesterday, on the first anniversary of Darrow's death, Noble conducted his experiment in the hotel room where the pact was made. This year he chose the bridge over the lagoon into which Darrow's ashes were strewn.

Noble asked his small group of witnesses to bow their heads in memory of Mr. Darrow. Then he said the Lord's Prayer and called out:

"Clarence Darrow, I am here in fulfillment of the pact that we made with each other. If you can manifest your spirit to me, do it now."

Darrow had promised to try to agitate the book so that it would fall from Noble's hand. The magician trembled, but nothing stirred the book, not even the wind.

tematically bombed it was useless as a supply base even before the Soviet troops advanced to within easy artillery range.

Seaport Wrecked

Turku, vital western seaport and industrial centre, was raided almost daily and bomb damage to harbor facilities and vital factories was disastrous.

Tampere—munitions centre—was scourged systematically by large fleets of bombers.

Civilian morale everywhere was magnificent—but when factory after factory is destroyed and even foreign supplies and munitions cannot be moved over railroads without the greatest of handicaps and despite heroic work of railwaymen, how can soldiers continue fighting?

In the midst of increasing transport difficulties the Russian drive against the Mannerheim Line was intensified. The Finns had strong steel and concrete forts on the Summa front—the weakest point in naturally strong defence lines on the Isthmus—but such a tremendous volume of Russian shells rained down on them they finally were undermined. They tipped upward like boxes—throwing their guns out of alignment.

Swedes Gave Way.

The tragic misfortune for the defenders here was that Swedish volunteers who just had relieved seasoned but fatigued Finnish troops broke under a surprise attack of Soviet tanks. Before the rout could be halted the Russians had penetrated several miles and the whole Finnish line had to be reorganized.

Despite the setback on the Isthmus, however, despite the increasing difficulty of moving men and munitions to the front, despite the lack of seasoned reinforcements to replace tired troops, Finnish morale was unbroken.

Foreign military observers generally agreed that the Red army would need years really to conquer the Finns if they abandoned the cities and fought a delaying guerilla war through lake, swamp and forest regions.

The fact that the Finns calmly chose instead to sign peace now on harsh Russian terms means only to some of these observers that Finland is willing to sacrifice greatly for a breathing space in which she can reorganize defence of her independence on a modern basis—particularly as concerns defence against enemy bombing fleets.

made the advances which, at a cost of half a million men, they have achieved in 100 days of hard fighting. Time was spent in exploiting the rather cumbrous machinery of the League (of Nations) when swift and resolute action by Great Britain and France would have had immense material and moral effect in Finland and in all neutral countries as well."

The Daily Sketch:

"The Soviet government by brutal force has possessed itself of the keys of Finland's house. The example of Germany and Czecho-Slovakia has stretched a long shadow over the scene. But there is another long shadow of an earlier day. Twenty-two years ago was concluded the first treaty between belligerent nations in the last war. Germany then had Russia under her heel and imposed on her the treaty of Brest-Litovsk.

"Russia—and it was the same government, there has been no break in Soviet continuity—ceded rather more than a third of her population, almost a third of her arable land, more than half of her industry, and all but a fraction of her coal fields. These were the terms which Germany enforced in March, 1918. In November where were they? They depended entirely on circumstances which were liable to alteration and which in fact underwent considerable alterations. That was towards the end of the Great War.

Settlements Mean Nothing.

"We now are only at the beginning of what will probably be in its results an even greater war. Settlements now mean nothing unless we are fighting this war for nothing there will have to be a great reshaping of Europe in which such treaties as those now made between Russia and Finland will be subject to drastic revision.

"For this temporary triumph Russia directly and her ally Germany have paid a great deal. Assuredly Germany did not make the alliance, with its inevitable consequence of alienation of Italy, Spain and Japan, merely so that Russia should strengthen her hold over the Baltic.

"This is what Russia has done. But in doing it she has exposed her weakness as a military power, and, to an extent which it is as yet difficult to estimate, reduced her ability to give effective help to her ally.

"She has on paper achieved a victory. But it is in the strictest sense a pyrrhic victory. Unless her rulers are completely demented they must know that another such would leave them helpless before any assailant—and the assailant might easily be, in the turns of the next year or so, Germany herself.

"The moral of the Finnish war is that aggression does not always pay. That is, to be sure, a weak and ambiguous moral rule. But its establishment should encourage us to go on to establish the rule that in the long run aggression never pays."

Loathing For Russia.

The Daily Express:

"In parliament yesterday Mr. Chamberlain laid flowers on the grave of Finland. M.P.'s applauded enthusiastically his tributes to the gallantry and courage of the Finns.

"But later on there was an even stronger demonstration of feeling.

"McGovern (Glasgow Independent Labor member) talked of the loathing and contempt felt for Russia. Immediately an uproar of approbation filled the House.

"Now there is a wise rule in diplomacy: Fight or settle. Either make war or else make peace.

"We ignored that rule in dealing with Italy over Abyssinia and paid a heavy penalty.

"We should not make the same mistake over Russia.

"Since we have not made war on Russia, we should try to settle any differences with that country.

"Since we do not fight Stalin with weapons, it does not comfort the Finns to hear us fighting him with words.

The Daily Mail:

"Once again aggression triumphs. Once again brute force has overwhelmed a small, freedom-loving civilized nation."

Insolent Mutilation.

The Daily Telegraph:

"No voice should be raised outside the shrunken frontiers of Finland to criticize that hard choice.

"The terms of peace are a more insolent mutilation of Finland than that which was proposed by the Soviet Government in November and which the Finns took up arms to resist.

"Such conditions leave Finland at the mercy of the Soviet whenever Stalin chooses to give the order for a fresh advance.

"The Scandinavian powers would neither send troops of their own nor allow transit to the troops of Great Britain and France.

"Never was there a more short-sighted policy. Sweden and Norway chose it in the belief that the security of Finland was no vital interest of theirs. Sweden actually assisted Russia to obtain this cynical travesty of peace. Already the Scandinavian peoples are beginning to find out their mistake."

movable property from the areas ceded to the U.S.S.R. under the peace pact.

There are at least 250,000 people who will have to find new homes. Many of the 80,000 inhabitants of Viipuri, the 6,000 inhabits of Kakisalmi, and the 5,000 of Sortavala have already been evacuated from those war-razed zones now passing into Russian hands, but the task of making the population shift a permanent one has yet to be carried out.

Along the north borders of Lake Ladoga the thawing snows will bring to light, Finns believed, at least 50,000 Russian corpses. The entire area will be dangerous for all living beings until it is cleaned up.

Along the southern shore of the lake the Russians take over a number of important industrial centres, notably a number of lumber and cellulose plants of recent construction. The new frontier also cuts across all the streams hitherto used by the Finns for floating cut timber down to the mills and to Viipuri for export.

told a special gathering of Parliament that the "danger is not over" and that "as a result of Finland's altered frontiers our own position has become worse, viewed generally, than it was before the Russian-Finnish conflict."

Gunther pointed to provisions in the peace of Moscow advancing the Russian frontier toward Sweden in the Salla area and providing for construction of a railway through that zone to link the Russian Murmansk railway with a Finnish line connecting with Swedish Haparanda at the head of the Gulf of Finland.

These, he said, are "conditions that are of evident interest to us."

Deny Pressure on Finland

Gunther said that Sweden's role in the initiating of Finnish-Russian peace talks was that of an intermediary, that Sweden put no pressure on Finland to accept Moscow's terms and that Germany had not tried to influence the Stockholm government.

Now that peace has been achieved, he said that "the northern countries should be prepared to direct their policy more purposefully than before" and added that the question of strengthening their cooperation should be submitted to "an unbiased examination."

(At Helsinki, Finnish foreign minister Vaino Tanner said that Finland had taken the initiative in asking for conversations looking to a defensive pact with Sweden and Norway to insure her altered borders against further violation.)

The Swedish newspaper Socialdemokraten said that only "a defence alliance in life and death" of the northern countries could insure future safety and appended the warning:—

"We do not believe in the durability of the new peace, and we do not believe in peace guarantees from a power which has dismembered and violated a free people."

the belief in some informed quarters that intervention on a large scale would result in a Russian-German military alliance.

Now that peace has come to the north it is widely held here that Russia may become isolationist for the time being. It is argued she lost heavily in men and supplies and will want to consolidate her gains before considering any further adventures abroad.

Sources holding this interpretation on the peace said Russia would continue to supply Germany with oil and wheat but on a greatly reduced scale due to war losses.

So far as Germany's aid to Russia in the war with Finland was concerned, this was regarded as indirect, the British Government berepresented as believing Germany "consistently refused aid to the Finns."

65 To 70 Manion Seats In Ontario Forecast By National Speaker

"Dr. Manion will have 65 or 70 seats in Ontario after this election; I have been from one end of the province to the other and the swing is definitely toward national government," declared Rev. Alfred W. Downer, M.P.P. for Dufferin-Simcoe in addresing a meeting in the Lakefield Memorial Hall Wednesday night in the interest of Gordon K. Fraser, national government candidate in West Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Downer was the main speaker at the rally which was presided over by Frank C. Erskine of Lakefield. Others who addressed the audience were Mrs. J. H. Cridland, president of the Peterborough Women's Conservative Association, John R. Corkery and Mr. Fraser himself.

Moving pictures formed part of the program and the musical features were supplied by Mrs. Dorothy Pammett's Peterborough Royal Hawaiian Serenaders who introduced a new Fraser campaign song to the tune of "Marching Through Georgia."

"I was interested," Rev. Mr. Downer began, "to see the faces of the children light up when Mr. Fraser came forward to speak. When you have a candidate who is the friend of the children you can't go far wrong." Mr. Fraser, he said, was known not only here but in many other parts of the province and there were numerous ridings which would be glad to have such a candidate.

That Censure Vote

The speaker ridiculed the statement made by Premier Mackenzie King that he had brought on the election because of the resolution of censure that had been passed by the Ontario Legislature. "Do you mean to say that if your village council here passed a resolution condemning the Hepburn government—and you would be quite justified in doing so—that that would be sufficient reason for Mr. Hepburn deciding to call a provincial election?" asked the speaker.

"I want to talk a little about the vote of censure for I was there in the Legislature and I know something about it," he continued. "It came because the Organization of Resources committee had been appointed by the Legislature at the beginning of the war to go to Ottawa and place the entire resources of the province, everything we had, at the disposal of the Dominion government to assist in prosecuting the war reported that nothing had been heard from Mr. King after the offer had been made. The resolution was moved by Premier Hepburn and seconded by the president of the Ontario Liberal Association, Hon. T. B. McQuesten and it was supported by every cabinet minister in the House." Mr. McQuesten, indeed, not only seconded the vote of censure but said afterward that the war effort of the King government was going around like a lion but it was wearing the clothing of a jackass.

Burns The Book

And Mr. King immediately announced that all these charges would be answered in the only place in which it was proper that they should be answered—in Parliament. The House came together and was dismissed in a few hours as if Mr. King had said "Cover the think up; people will forget it in a short time." He was just like the bookkeeper who burns the books when he hears that the auditor is coming."

Dealing with what he called the lack of preparation for war on the part of the King government Mr. Downer said that many men who were accepted as A1 in September were discharged several months later because they showed symptoms of 'T.B.". "If you saw some of the men I saw in Toronto and saw the lack of proper clothing in many cases you would not wonder at the symptoms," the speaker said.

"I saw men without proper uniforms and without proper shoes and one man declared that he was in the army five weeks before he got a change of socks and then the fresh pair came from the Red Cross."

Premier King, he said, had tried to claim at first that Canada was fully prepared for war, but he had changed his tune and now sought to blame the administration of Mr. Bennett for the lack of preparation. There was no menace of war during the Bennett regime, pointed out the speaker; and as far expenditures for defence there was not greater critic of Mr. Bennett's efforts in that direction than Mr. King.

The Munich Crisis.

"When the Munich crisis arose," said Mr. Downer, "and Australia and New Zealand sent messages to Britain that they were with her to the last man and the last dollar, Mr.

Friends In Emily Pay Honor To Miss Morrow

EAST EMILY, March 14—(ENS).—On Thursday evening about forty people, members of St. John's Anglican church and friends, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunlop to honor Miss Elizabeth Morrow, who is moving away. She has resided in this district all her life and has been a member and faithful worker in the church.

The evening was spent in playing cards and Chinese checkers. During the evening Miss Morrow was asked to come forward and a very appropriate address was read by Mr. George Tully and Miss Jane McConnel made the presentation of a beautiful travelling bag. Miss Morrow, in a few well chosen words, thanked the people for their kindness, after which all joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow." Refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening brought to a close.

On Wednesday evening the members of the Ladies' Guild of St. Jame's Anglican church held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Wilbert Clark, the president, Mrs. Arnot Boate, presiding. After the business the ladies spent the remainder of the evening in knitting for the Red Cross. Refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

No Red Victory

Rome, March 14 (CP-Havas)

THE Russo-Finnish peace does not constitute a Soviet victory but is proof that the Soviet regime faced a crack-up unless it ended the war, Il Telegrafo, family newspaper of Italian Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano said today.

Other Italian newspapers concentrated attention on the international political consequences of the Moscow peace and stressed the enhancement of Russia's military and naval status.

Il Popolo Di Roma, however, echoed Il Telegrafo's viewpoint, saying: "It is a compromise peace rather than a brilliant Soviet victory."

Il Telegrafo declared that unmistakable "creakings" recently has been heard from Russia, similar to those which preceded the revolution of 1917.

Statesmen's Snapshots

The first Canadian treaty ever made with a foreign country independently of the United Kingdom bears the signature of Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, No. 1 French-Canadian in Canada today, a man whose life reads likes an Alger story.

His is the fabulous story of a poor farm boy who became an adviser to the King of the greatest Empire the world has known.

It is a story of a backwoods lawyer whose word is now listened to with respect around the world.

It is a story of an awkward young man who entered the House of Commons unable to speak, write or read a word of English, but who eventually became one of the most polished orators in the House.

That is the story of Ernest Lapointe.

This round-faced, round headed, blue eyed man who stands six feet three inches in his stocking feet is probably the biggest man physically in political life in the whole British Empire. After his great personal victory in the recent Quebec provincial election he became one of the major political figures, not only in Canada, but in the entire British Commonwealth of Nations.

For seven generations the Lapoints have lived in Quebec. Ernest Lapointe was born 64 years ago on a farm, a small farm consisting of a few acres tilled by his father. And perhaps the Minister of Justice would be a farmer today had it not been for a parish priest who saw possibilities in the boy and sent him to a college at Rimouski. Here he won a scholarship which sent him on to Laval University, where he graduated in law.

In 1904, while he was still a comparatively obscure lawyer, a federal by-election was held in his home constituency, and he was sent to Ottawa. He has been there ever since. It seemed as if no Quebec member had ever entered the House with so little chance to succeed. He knew no English whatever, and was not a good speaker in French.

Year after year he sat on a back bench in obscurity. Then he was persuaded by a friendly member to learn English, which he accomplished by memorizing long lists of words and working steadily at the task.

In 1913 he made his first speech in the House of Commons in English. When he resumed his speech Sir Wilfrid Laurier, always on the lookout for outstanding men, went to Mr. Lapointe and congratulated him warmly.

In 1920, he became the acknowledged Liberal leader in Quebec. When Mr. Mackenzie King formed his first cabinet, Mr. Lapointe became a "front bencher" when he accepted the portfolio of Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe

Since then he has represented Canada at London, Geneva and many other of the world's capitals. He has made and signed treaties, has been the house leader of the Liberal party and an outstanding statesman.

When the King's coronation honor list was announced in May, 1937, the only Canadian to be mentioned was Ernest Lapointe. He was appointed a Privy Councillor, a body upon which the Crown relies for advice in matters of policy. While he has been foremost in insisting upon the autonomy of Canada, he has also been foremost in declaring Canada's obligation to take her full part in the great struggle which is now upon the people of the Dominion.

Something NEW in BEANS!

The appetizing, rich-brown colour, finer mealy texture, and tempting flavour of LIBBY'S DEEP BROWNED BEANS are made possible by a new patented process of cooking—exclusive to LIBBY'S. This new cooking method INDIVIDUALLY bakes each bean to a deep brown colour—penetrates right through to the centre, achieving a uniform degree of tenderness and deliciously-mealy richness. There isn't a "hard" or "mushy" bean, and LIBBY'S new cooking method brings out to the full the rich, zestful flavour. LIBBY'S DEEP BROWNED BEANS are done just the way you would want to do them yourself, and LIBBY'S save you the long, hot hours in the kitchen necessary to proper bean cooking. LIBBY'S confidently say to you: "Try LIBBY'S DEEP BROWNED BEANS—and if you don't think they're the best you've tasted, LIBBY'S will pay you DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!"

We suggest you try

LIBBYS COOKED SPAGHETTI

Costs approximately 3c a serving, and because of its piquant, zestful flavour, is a happy change of menu your family will like—particularly children. Should you not agree that LIBBY'S COOKED SPAGHETTI is the best you've ever tasted, LIBBY'S will pay you DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

If you don't agree that LIBBY'S DEEP BROWNED BEANS are the best you have tasted, from the standpoint of: (1) Flavour; (2) Texture; (3) Colour—LIBBY'S WILL PAY YOU DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK. Just send the label with your name and address—your grocer's name, and purchase price—to Libby, McNeill & Libby of Canada, Limited, Chatham, Ontario.

Finland Beaten Down

Estimates are that Russia lost 200,000 and had 250,000 wounded in the campaign in Finland. On the same basis we learn that Finland lost 15,000 killed in 105 days of war. That means the Russian losses were nearly fourteen times as great as those of the defending Finlanders.

It may be all over now, as all that remains is for the Finnish Diet to accept and ratify the terms of peace imposed by the Russians in negotiations. On the surface they look stiff, but the fact has to be faced that Finland was holding out against terrific odds. It would have been impossible to win victory with her limited army. She has given to the world the greatest demonstration of bravery and devotion, and she has given as well to Russia a reputation for inefficiency and blundering from which it will not soon recover.

There has been aid forwarded to Finland, and there would have been more had it not been for the barriers set against getting the aid to the point where it was needed. Sweden would not go to the aid of Finland, nor would Sweden allow the Allies to cross her territory in so doing, and the attitude of Norway was much the same.

There will always be that feeling that more could have been done for Finland, but when one looks at the map and realizes how impossible it was for assistance to get in there it may be realized that Finland was a hard place to reach. It was similar to Poland when the German attack came. France and Britain could not get in there. So it actually means that another little nation, while not occupied by an invader, has to surrender much that it held important and has to be content with forfeiting much of the right to defend itself in future. In that sense it is a win for Russia and Germany even if the price paid has been terrific.

To what extent the alliance between Russia and Germany holds good today is something which we do not know. It is known that Hitler was in favor of arranging some sort of peace terms; he apparently felt that the struggle there had gone far enough. But why? He could not have been moved by the manner in which Russians bombed civilian areas in Finland because his own troops did the same thing in Poland. It would have made no difference to him if the Russian high command was throwing away thousands and tens of thousands of men uselessly in stupid attacks. All that would mean not a thing to Hitler.

The more plausible idea is that Russia's tangled system of transportation and production needed to be straightened out in order that it could be set in operation to work for the strengthening of Germany's supplies. Germany counted on getting raw materials from Russia when their agreement was signed, and Hitler is probably anxious that his Russian milch cow shall start to produce something in his pail. We can think of no other reason why Hitler favored making peace between Russia and Finland.

To what extent the change is going to make it harder for the Allied powers is entering the field of speculation. Whether the Russian Red army will turn toward the Balkans for fresh conquest we do not know. The one fact which seems to stand without tottering is that Russia, now released from her campaign in Finland, will be in a better position to turn her dirty hands toward giving greater material aid to Germany—and Germany is our enemy.

He Was Out; Now He's In

This business of trying to keep abreast of the times and writing things to put in the paper is getting us down. Down deep. Just a day or so ago Hon. Harry Corbin Nixon, Provincial Secretary, Minister of Game and Fisheries, wrote a letter to Premier Hepburn saying he was through. He also prepared a statement for the press telling exactly why he had done what he had done. It was good straight stuff. At least we thought so. Mr. Nixon had come to the sad old parting of the ways, the fork in the road, or some such place, and he had decided he would remain in the Legislature as a private member sitting for Brant, rather than be numbered with the cabinet.

Since then the letter of resignation has been torn in several parts and tossed away. Mr. Hepburn's picture has been published showing him with an arm around the shoulder of Harry. It is difficult to find the word which fits the case, for Mr. Nixon has unresigned.

So what? When word of the resignation went forth people in various places began to make comment. For instance there were 1,000 Hamilton and Wentworth Liberals at a meeting where a word of commendation was passed on to Mr. Nixon when he left the cabinet. Even 40 miles from Toronto the message must have come as a faint cheer to the then departing Secretary. Other Liberals not friendly with Premier Hepburn had done much the same. When the undoing of what had been done was accomplished it left the well-wishers of the resignation policy holding the bag. This is a troubled season through which we are passing and the word "Turncoat" came to the tip of the tongue and slipped over the edge. A hero one day and a day or so later a turncoat! No wonder it gets one down when trying to keep the records straight.

So the Ontario cabinet is intact and the word has gone forth that they are at liberty to do whatever the members wish regarding the Federal campaign. If they desire to go on the hustings in support of King candidates—and five of them have already done so—they are at liberty to do so. They can be loyal to Premier Hepburn and also loyal to Prime Minister King against whom they passed a vote of censure. Perhaps it is all as clear as can be to those immediately concerned, but to the folk outside there is no clarity in it. We fear Mr. Nixon has furnished his opponents with a deal of material for future use. His definite statement giving reasons why he had parted with Mr. Hepburn was laid before the world and it remains in existence. When he withdrew his resignation he could not withdraw his statement. Mr. Nixon is comparatively a young man but he would have to be very nimble in order to turn so complete a somersault without feeling a twinge afterward.

Abusing Public Men

We have read on several occasions that the "financial interests" are supporting the King Government; we have seen it stated with equal force that these same financial interests are backing Hon. Dr. Manion in the hope of securing large army contracts out of which they hope to make generous profits.

So in turn each party is accusing the other of wanting to be in power during the war for the purpose of serving these "large financial interests."

At other times we have noticed that the loyalty of many of our men in public life is being questioned. Those who are in office are not loyal; those who are seeking to secure election are not to be trusted.

Our own belief is that the people in general are disgusted. And it is high time those who are making political addresses based on disloyalty and the yearning for war profits should turn to something better, stronger, higher and more worthy.

We have a goodly company of mighty fine young Canadians in England now; they are completing their training there and are ready to move into action when called upon. We have other groups clean across the country in training and ready to depart; we have a great air training course now in operation and recruits from other parts of the Empire will participate in it.

In addition we have thousands of women all over our land who are spending their time, talents and often their own cash in making supplies for our troops.

In no place do we find evidence of disloyalty, and in no place have we come across groups of people whose one and only desire is to make as much money as possible by huge profits out of the war.

The people have nothing whatever against good plain criticism, straight speaking founded on facts, but public men are doing something which they will afterward regret when they seek to blacken each other in the eyes of the public. In other times we have heard much about the manner in which public men are subjected to abuse, but during an election campaign we come to the conclusion, and we believe rightly, that the abuse comes from the public men themselves.

City Has 13,400 Vacant Lots

Under our present system of doing business it seems impossible to avoid the situation where a municipality finds itself coming into possession of more of its own real estate. The municipality does not want it. It would be much better that it should be in possession of other holders to whom the city could turn and ask for taxes. But it has actually been taxes, or their non-payment, which has caused the property to revert to the municipality.

The city of Windsor, Ont., across the river from Detroit, must have created something which looks like a record in ownership. We learn the city now has on its books 13,400 lots, all of them vacant with an assessed value of $3,500,000. One official says the city should be getting $123,000 per year in taxes from the property. Actually it is getting nothing at all.

Those lots in Windsor have an average value of $261.19, and an alderman who is interested in the plan wants to sell them at one-quarter of their appraised value, but current taxes must be paid by the purchaser as they fall due. Then if a house is built within three months there will be an exemption from taxes for a period of five years.

That is looking quite a distance into the future, and looking at the future is probably the reason why Windsor has in its possession 13,400 vacant lots. The people in the city who do pay their taxes have had to provide the money for the city to buy in these lots at tax sales; that is, the taxpayers themselves have paid up the back taxes on these 13,400 lots. We dare say most of them were held for purely speculative purposes, but when the period of growth took a slump the speculators withdrew and decided to let the property slide.

At best our system of land acquisition, and the accompanying system of the city buying in property for arrears of taxes is faulty. It puts a burden on ratepayers which they should not be called upon to carry. They have enough to do when paying their own taxes without being called upon to pay as well the unpaid tax on property which comes into ownership of the municipality through tax sales.

The Finns In Retreat!

The army of Finland is doing something in preparation for what is termed peace which it never did in the days of war. It is retreating at the rate of 4.5 miles per day.

It is necessary that the army of the Finns shall go back until it passes the new lines set as the future boundaries of their little land.

What the Russian army was unable to do in weeks of warfare was accomplished at the conference table. At least it was called a conference table, although it was more in the nature of a gathering where Finland was told what it had to do if it desired to keep on living even on a restricted scale.

It takes no great flight of the imagination to picture the feelings of those hardy Finns in retreat. Possibly they are tired and weary, but they must have been that way often enough before without showing their backs to the enemy.

Measuring out those 4.5 miles over which they must retreat in 24 hours until the specified distance is covered would be wormwood and gall for the gallant Finns.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A reader asks if a candidate can withdraw after official nomination day. Certainly; a candidate can withdraw, but by doing so he forfeits his $200 deposit.

We admit our vocabulary is fairly well limited at all times, but when Mr. Nixon resigned and then took it back, did he unresign or what?

A lady speaking in Toronto said there was no such thing as a model husband, and added that no woman would want him if he did exist. And she's probably correct on both counts.

A letter mailed in Brooklyn 32 years ago and addressed to R. E. Graham of Pittsburgh has just been delivered, and in those 32 years Mr. Graham has moved only from one side of the street to the other. Perhaps if he had stayed where he was he might have known 32 years ago what he found out the other day.

Barber in Seaforth is trainer of the local hockey team, and he made the promise to the captain that if the team beat Clinton in the finals he would let him cut his hair any way he liked. The team won and the trainer had his hair cut. A picture of the barber makes it appear that the victorious captain had used nothing but the clippers.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra had his way, he wrote a speech he had to say, he memorized it too; he told his party leaders straight, he also told his candidate, what he had planned to do.

¶ My cousin would not sit and sit, he up and threatened how he'd quit, they couldn't sit on him; he longed for action at the front, where he could join the cry and hunt, and burn his surplus vim.

¶ They figured best part of a week, where they would let my cousin speak, and then they picked a spot; most eighteen miles he'd have to go, and roads out there had ice and snow, it didn't look so hot.

¶ But Ezra practised yet some more, he'd rim the villains to the core, he took his ancient car; he scoffed at ice or banks of snow, he knew the road and how to go, he steered by moon and star.

¶ He practised as he drove along, broke into phrases loud and strong, his voice he felt was rich; but there was ice upon a hill, enough to make a nasty spill, he landed in the ditch.

¶ He walked a mile to get a phone, and found that no one was at home, out there he spent the night; the workers never moaned nor winced, in fact I think they're now convinced—the thing worked out all right.

Begin To Worry About Having Too Much Gold

WASHINGTON controls two-thirds of all the available gold in the world, and the suggestion has been advanced several times that other nations might possibly consider it was good business to adopt something else as the basis of wealth. That possibility is mentioned several times in the following despatch from Washington:

WASHINGTON. — While economic reconstruction after the war will perforce require confidence, faith and trust, it will also need—among other things—an international monetary system.

To serve fully as the vehicle of a liberated world commerce such a system must have a recognized universal standard such as, for instance, gold. Gold has served this purpose in times past for nearly every nation.

Discussion turns ever more frequently to the $18,000,000,000 gold held in the United States—and what to do about it.

Two-thirds of the world's one-time chief medium of exchange now lies in this Nation's vaults. The name "Uncle Midas" is likely to spring into use abroad as other such nicknames did after the World War.

The "golden touch" that became the curse of Midas came upon that storybook character, however, when he "loved gold, not because of what it would buy, or the good he could do with it, but because he was a miser."

The "use" of gold, not further acquisition or continued hoarding, is one of America's major problems—for the perils inherent in too great a "corner" on gold are widly recognized.

How to use it? Suggestions are many and varied.

One suggestion that has come from nonpartisan sources interested only in the end to be attained and not in the political aspects, is for lending of this gold to form the basis of an international monetary system — lending at a rate so small that it could hardly be called "interest."

To allay thoughts regarding other "loans" made during the World War and not repaid, it is pointed out that the international agency which would accept gold for world use must be bound—and would be bound—to repay gold with gold.

The gold situation is causing increasing anxiety in Washington, not only among Congressmen but in the Treasury. Meanwhile the gold flood continues.

According to Federal Reserve figures—the United States is receiving $70,000,000 in gold a week. It is receiving $280,000,000 a month. In the last 12 months it received $3,278,000,000.

On Feb. 28 the United States owned or had in its possession $18,166,000,000 of gold, some of it held for foreign order; the other nations had only $9,632,000,000. How long, it is asked, can this situation continue?

Deprived of gold, how long will it be, it is asked here, before other nations repudiate gold and find some other unit of value? And what would be the value of America's great gold store then?

Senator Warren R. Austin (R) of Vermont, Minority Whip of the Senate, urges a new monetary commission to advise Congress on the growing gold problem.

THE GLUT of gold, Senator Austin warned, offers opportunity for unparalleled inflation. It should not be left "subject to political pressures."

"No section of the country," he declared, "no private interests, no political or partisan power, should control it."

With such an accumulation of wealth for an inflationary basis," he asserted, "revival of business could be a fuse leading to the gun-powder stored here."

Like other Senators, he looked with growing alarm on the rising pile of yellow bars; so inert and impassive as metal; so explosive and uncontrollable as a store of credit and value.

"To the....gold now in our control and management," said Senator Austin, "additions are coming and will continue to come for some time after the war ends."

Senator Elmer Thomas (D) of Oklahoma has addressed the Senate in favor of a world bank as a solution to the increasing problem of gold imports.

He proposed to make the expanded Export-Import Bank in effect a "world bank." He has introduced a bill proposing to permit the Export-Import Bank to sell or lend any portion of America's surplus gold to approved central banks and governments of the world. His bill also proposes coinage of "a single monetary unit" for the world—the coins to contain one ounce of pure gold.

The difficulty with Senator Thomas' proposal, as seen here, is that it makes no provision for getting this gold coin out into the hands of the other nations. That is, of course, unless Congress is willing to lend it out.

That might be a cheaper course in the long run, it is hinted, than seeing all the world's gold dumped in America, and then having the rest of the world hit on some other form of currency, leaving the United States holding the bag.

• One Parking Place and Ten Cars

THE recent news that warrants are to be issued for the arrest of 50,000 San Francisco motorists who chose to ignore the notices of parking violation which they received has made the entire city conscious of a problem which is daily growing more difficult to solve. It concerns the miserably inadequate provisions for parking which this city offers and the unfair advantage which officialdom has taken of the motoring public.

Thousands of automobiles enter the downtown business district each day for the purpose of bringing people to work, to make purchases, or to seek entertainment. And for every ten cars that enter the heart of the city, there is parking space for only one. Few cities today are able to cope with the parking difficulty, but perhaps that is not the fault of the cities, for the geographic planning of thickly populated areas cannot hope to compete with the swift progress of automobile manufacturing.

Where the cities are at fault is in the abuse of drivers who have no place to park their vehicles. In San Francisco, this penalizing of drivers has fallen to the level of racketeering — very profitable racketeering. The police department has taken the street parking areas of the city, extremely limited to begin with, and defined them in such a way that an honest parking place is practically non-existent. There are red zones, white zones, yellow zones, gray zones, zones of every kind and description.

The hapless motorist who chances to entrust his vehicle, even for a short space of time, to the wrong hue is quickly apprised of his lack of discrimination by a police officer who is more vigilant in the matter of imprudent parking than in the far more important problems of reckless or drunken driving, traffic snarls, or dangerous speeding. As a result, tens of thousands of motorists are summoned to court every year to pay fines which are almost impossible to avoid in San Francisco's congested areas.—San Francisco Argonaut.

• Radio Speakers Are Very Dull

THE English-speaking peoples, a famous Frenchman long ago assured the world, take their pleasures sadly. It seems that nowadays and hereabouts, we are apt to take rather sadly our new pleasure of listening to election campaign speeches by radio broadcast.

Truth to say, our election campaigners, when they come to that invisible ordeal by microphone, seem to suffer a change, a transformation in all their being. They are undoubtedly sad and surely they infect us all with their sadness.

They seldom sparkle, they are never gay. They do not rouse most of us. Our hearts seldom burn within us as they talk by the way for their 15-minute, or still more dolefully, their half-hour stint.

There are other credible explanations of this phenomenon, but certainly the most plausible one is that our election broadcasters have not had the opportunity of mastering the necessary technique of the radio broadcast. They read their pieces—and they so obviously are reading. A great many of them read their faithful little bits, for the grand old party and against the other rascals, very much as little boys in class recite their recitation.

They are in bondage to the script. They are lonely and lost in their little cell, knowing that they have passed the censor, conscious that they are all prunes, prisms and politeness. They miss the rough and tumble and the warm human contacts of the old hustings. They just can't get going at all.

This modern machinery of the ethereal radiations has reduced us all to machine politicians now.—Vancouver Province.

• "The World Desires Our Dissolution"

SAID Adolf Hitler at Germany's Memorial Day celebration on Sunday:

"The world desires our dissolution."

The pity is that Hitler did not ask the question: Why? Did not ask himself why it is that, despite all Germany's propaganda, practically every nation on earth, with the possible exception of Red Russia (herself a vile aggressor) prays for Germany's defeat.

The answer, as all the world knows, is in years of German deceit, in a tale of monstrous lying, in a calendar of aggression without parallel in history. Not a nation in Europe today but fears Germany, knowing that it cannot live in security if the Nazi philosophy prevails. Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland—a Europe of hunted refugees—tell the story.

A peaceful Germany, a Germany seeking to work out its own destiny within the borders of the Reich, would have no enemies. Germany—the Germany of the 1920's and 30's—had no enemies. She had full access to the world's raw materials; she could buy anything she wanted within the British Empire at the price paid by England; her trade grew enormously. It was only when Adolf Hitler and his Nazi confederates demanded more than that, only when they sought to dominate Europe, to have "the German plow follow the German sword," that the world turned against them.

Hitler, declaring now that the world desires Germany's dissolution, is defiant. It is the defiance of the gangster warring against society. But while Hitler shouts his defiance today, while he is clearly confident of his position, a time will come when his defiance will grow less. Before the nations challenging Germany a long, hard road there may be, but that road will be travelled just the same. To believe otherwise is to doubt the future of civilization. — Ottawa Journal.

To The Editor

A WORLD COURT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Humanity must be resurrected from the cataclysm of war, rather than being borne under by it with hell triumphant as it is today. Totalitarian powers may move without popular mandate, but with democracy legislation is worthless without it.

Therefore that Britain, Allied and democratic powers be sufficiently fortified in our war aims, this campaign for a genuine peace should proceed with an increasing volume to its ultimate goal, and instituted with these powers as sponsors.

With the optimism innate with our people, civilization will move out of the beaten path only in time of great crises; so in time of war we prepare for peace based on the removal of opportunity for aggression. Armament to be in control only of the world court and world police force. Science and invention have remade the world. Science uncontrolled can also destroy it. In this war of religion against irreligion there can be no mere benevolent neutrality.

WORTH IMITATING

THE LEGISLATURE of Nebraska has just completed a special session. It lasted eleven days and cost the state $5,000. Nebraska has a non-political legislature of forty-three members called the senate and there is no second chamber. Regular sessions are held biennially. The members are paid $1,744 for the two years and get no extra pay for special sessions. Executive sessions are forbidden. Newspaper men attend all committee meetings. The plan centralizes responsibility and brings the legislative processes into the open. Senators have nothing to gain by marking time. So in the recent special session of eleven days Nebraska revised an unemployment compensation law, improved the pension system and attended to several other financial items that might have required weeks under the former bicameral plan.—Brandon Sun.

"TAKING SIDES" EASIER

Some time ago the Statesman, in announcing an independent policy during the coming election campaign, mentioned that it was more difficult to maintain an independent stand than to take sides. The Midland Free Press expresses similar sentiments when it says: "It is always easier for a newspaper to take one side or the other. To hold the balance evenly and to present the unbiased news and views is much more difficult." We might say, too, that rabid party workers on both sides usually figure an independent paper opposes the party they represent.—Bowmanville Statesman.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and disease among the people. But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd....

And when he had called unto him his twelve disciples, he gave them power against unclean spirits to cast them out, and to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease... These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not; but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel....

Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils: freely ye have received, freely give.—Matt. ix, 35, 36; x, 1, 5, 6, 8.

Press Suspects Aid Offered Finns Too Late

LONDON, March 14 — (CP). — Britain's reply to reports of a Finnish-Soviet peace, the Times said today, "will be a renewed and strengthened determination to rid Europe of Hitlerism, author of all the dangers to which its civilization now stands exposed."

According to the Times, the Anglo-French offer of direct military aid to Finland was originally made "some weeks ago when the Mannerheim Line was unbroken and before the Russian proposals had become known through the medium of the Swedish Government."

The Daily Mail observed that Great Britain and France "will have to face criticism for not giving more substantial aid to Finland earlier, but it can now be stated that there has been a British force of many thousands waiting to embark at a British port for Finland for some time.

"Constant contact has also been kept with Field Marshal Mannerheim, who has been aware in these recent days of the extent of the new help Britain was ready to dispatch."

The News Chronicle said that the Finns have shown "how true it is that moral factors far outweigh the physical, even on the battlefield."

Some observers tried to portray Scandinivia as "the villain of the piece" through refusal to allow Allied reinforcements to cross their territories into Finland. This refusal weakened the Allied promise of aid, it was contended.

Blame Scandinavia.

"The obdurate refusal of the Scandinavian countries to allow the passage of military aid was decisive," said the London Daily Herald.

The authoritative British Press Association, however, quoted most English papers as agreeing that the offer to aid Finland was made too late.

That the Russian-Finnish armistice would kill any plans of Allied military operations through Scandinavia against Germany's flank or Russian was evident in London. Only yesterday in Paris, Premier Daladier told the Chamber of Deputies that 50,000 Allied troops were momentarily ready to go to Finland—if she called for help.

The British and French press regarded the war in Finland as finished business. The "harsh" and "onerous" terms, said the British Press Association, apparently were forced upon the Finnish delegates.

"Germany exerted all of her influence" to end the conflict, it added, "but it remains to be seen whether she now will get from her Soviet ally the support she apparently expects."

Commenting on Bucharest reports that Berlin and Moscow would seek now to oust the Allies from their advantageous contracts for Rumanian wheat and oil, Genevieve Tabouis wrote in the Paris newspaper L'Oeuvre that his move would be only the start of a Balkan campaign.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did — even look healthy and strong, yet —you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

American Scrap For British Armaments

The armed British freighter Harberton is shown loading scrap iron at Miami as she prepared to run the gauntlet of submarines and magnetic mines to England. The scrap will become sinews of war for Britain—if the Harberton gets through.

Hundred Present At Keene AYPA

KEENE, March 14.—The A.Y.P.A. held its monthly meeting in the town hall on Monday evening nearly one hundred young people were present.

The meeting opened with all singing, "The Maple Leaf Forever." This was followed by the reading of the minutes of last meeting after which a short business discussion took place. A dance for the benefit of the Red Cross will be held on Easter Monday here.

A quartette, consisting of Delbert Coward, Milton Anderson, Dick Eason and Douglas Brown with Donald Murray at the piano, sang. Roy Dunford gave an interesting account of current events.

A most interesting and humorous talk was given by A. R. Kennedy, editor of the Examiner.

All joined in a delightful singsong.

A short play entitled, "Love Without Tears" was well given by the Misses Isobel Short, Phyllis Kempt and Delbert Coward, Mac Short, Dick Eason, Joseph Barnard.

A delightful box social took place and round and square dancing concluded the evening's entertainment.

Miss Vera Allen of Peterborough is guest of Miss Maeme Renwick.

Miss Helen Kempt has returned from Peterborough.

Miss Lois McCarthy, R.N. of Toronto, is visiting at her home here.

MAORIS ON INCREASE

LONDON—(CP)—Speaking at a dinner in London marking the centenary of New Zealand, High Commissioner W. J. Jordan pointed out there are 85,000 Maoris in the country now, compared with only 50,000 in 1901.

Zion Ladies Busy Making Quilts

ZION, March 14 — (ENS). — The Regular meeting of the Zion United Church W.A. was held at Mrs. J. E. Dixon's home on Wednesday afternoon and was well attended.

Following the opening exercises, Mrs. W. Crane read the scripture lesson and Miss Mable Robinson offered a prayer; Miss Alice Burns gave a reading on the meaning of Easter. President, Mrs. E. Kent, read a letter from Miss Muriel Thompson, school teacher near Wilberforce, expressing appreciation for the bale of clothing which was packed by the W.A. and sent to needy children at Christmas time. Miss Thompson capably distributed the articles of clothing.

It was decided to hold a social evening at Mrs. Roy Frankish's home on March 27. After working for some time on the quilts the ladies are making, dainty refreshments were served and the meeting closed with a benediction.

The April meeting will be at Mrs. James Jackson's home.

No Time To Fritter

LONDON, March 14—(CP). — Sir John Simon today warned Britain against "frittering away our energies discussing elaborate plans for a new Europe" while the essential foundation was not yet built for a future in which there would be living room for all, including Germans.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, addressing the National Liberal Club, spoke of the Russian-Finnish treaty, saying that the northern European situation had "developed tragically" in the last few days.

Havelock Hears Red Cross Rally Report

HAVELOCK, March 14—(ENS).—A brief report was presented at the weekly work meeting of the Havelock-Belmont Red Cross on Monday afternoon, by the president, Mrs. A. McLauchlin, who as local representative, attended a special assembly of the Ontario Branch Red Cross last Tuesday, March 5, in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto.

To the local branches, she said, Dr. Routley, National Commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross gave this message: "the success of the undertaking is largely dependent upon a timely word of encouragement and assurance, given at the right moment."

Dr. Routley also gave an inspiring description of the work of the Red Cross in the erection of the Military Hospital at Taplow, England, built according to British war specifications, of steel and concrete, with a capacity for 600 beds; with central heating, good beds, and an operating area fitted with every known facility for the relief of the suffering.

The speaker told the audience of women that they belonged to an army of 100,000 women working in Canada, giving their emotional selves an outlet in service."

The second bale packed ready for shipment during the meeting contained the following articles: 7 dozen pairs army socks, 3 dozen wristlets, 11 sweaters, 10 quilts, 19 suits pajamas, 3 dozen handkerchiefs.

Thirty-five ladies were in attendance, with Mrs. McLauchlin presiding.

At a special meeting of the local executive last week, Major B. Watson, of Toronto, who addressed them said that three million dollars had been collected by the Red Cross last fall. However, instead of a further canvass this spring, the various organizations are being asked to contribute 10 per cent of their funds to the national body. The local branch voiced their approval of this plan, realizing that such items as labels, books of instruction, etc., are all provided free of charge from the central branch.

ZELLER'S LIMITED—RETAILERS TO THRIFTY CANADIANS

Millbrook Rally For Strike Full Of Charges

MILLBROOK, March 14—(ENS).—The opening gun, in the present election, so far as the electors of Millbrook and Cavan are concerned, was fired at a well-attended meeting held in the Town Hall, Millbrook, on Tuesday at 8 p.m., in the interests of National Government and Conservative candidate for Durham, Ross Strike, prominent lawyer of Bowmanville, the guest speaker of the evening being William J. Stewart, O.B.E., M.L.A., former Mayor of Toronto.

The chair was taken by ex-Warden Percy Stinson, in the unavoidable absence of Dr. J. W. Wright, president of the Conservative Association, and variety was added to the program by vocal duets and solos by Messrs. S. Dale and Owen Nicholas, of Bowmanville, with accompaniment at the piano by Mr. Soanes. Frances Tickner also received well-deserved applause for her repetition of "Privileges I Enjoy as a Canadian Citizen," for which she had been awarded top rating at the public speaking contest held here last fall.

During the course of the evening a great hand was given Lloyd Peel, a local boy enlisted in the heavy artillery at Lindsay, who is home on his final leave, and who was invited to a seat on the platform.

William J. Stewart.

Mr. Stewart was introduced by ex-Warden G. H. Hootan, and forcibly and clearly expressed his views on the need of a National Government, and urged the importance of voting, declaring that in the last Federal election "the smallest vote was cast since the World War. The morale of any government is just as high as you vote for; less mud-slinging is needed and more clear thinking. What is needed is not a party victory at the polls on March 26, but a national victory for the country."

"Perhaps we should not call it 'Canada's war effort,' but 'Canada's warped effort,'" the speaker said in criticism of the government's war policy, and he urged remembrance of the fact that the preservation of the parliamentary system of government is at stake and that "throttling the people's parliament is the blackest thing in our country's record."

Explaining why he supported Premier Hepburn's resolution condemning the government's war policy Mr. Stewart declared that from personal knowledge of how men had come to Toronto to enlist, had been accepted, had passed the medical examination and still were walking the streets, sleeping in the parks, without proper food, shoes, or clothing "because we do not need you yet," and finally being taken care of by the Welfare Department; also of many not receiving the dependents' allowance, "I could not say I was satisfied with Canada's war effort."

"I want to say to Mr. King there is a great difference between leaving his luxurious office at Ottawa, and going to his city or country home, and walking the streets of Toronto without the simple necessities of life, not even something to eat. I would like to ask Mr. King, too, what has been done with the $188,000,000 voted for Canadian defence when men are still without uniforms, and what plans Canada has for a united war effort?"

The radio censorship was strongly condemned, and the suggestion that the way the war loan was taken up proved a tribute to Mr. King was refuted, the emphatic declaration being that it was because the people are strongly behind the Mother Country in this war. The 'bogey of conscription' was put aside with the statement that "conscription will never be needed while so many young men are ready to enlist. Dr. Manion is opposed to conscription, and he promises that our boys will go overseas fully equipped with the latest weapons. If this country is worth fighting for, and worth dying for, is it not worth voting for? Dr. Manion offers leadership born of experience; he promises we will get beside the British Empire, not behind her."

In his concluding remarks, Mr. Stewart spoke of the nineteen points of Dr. Manion's platform, of his promise to take into his Cabinet "the best brains of the country, representing all classes of the people," and suggested making a National Guard of veterans of the last war to guard power plants, etc., thus taking men off relief, and "letting the men go with their chins up, and not down," and urged making choice between party loyalty, and national loyalty on March 26.

Ross Strike.

Ex-Warden Milton Elliott, of Bowmanville, introduced the candidate, Ross Strike, who was given an excellent hearing as he dealt with the difficulties attending an election in the winter, declaring "Mr. King has attempted to disenfranchise many who live in rural districts by holding an election at this season." The sixty-five questions of the Opposition which were on the order paper, and which were shut off by the dissolution were mentioned, and two issues dealt with in detail—the freedom of parliament; "our parliamentary system has been weakened, since a precedent has been established in this country, when one man, or one group of men, can close a parliament for one reason or another"; and, the second, "We either have to win this war, or we are going to lose it; we cannot win it unless we stand together as a complete unit, and a complete nation."

"We are not asking you to swap horses in the middle of a stream, but to change jockeys." Dr. Manion's personal record in the last war, and in public services, was stressed, the whispering campaign regarding conscription was condemned, support of the abolition of radio licenses mentioned, and in conclusion Mr. Strike pledged himself as against party government, party patronage, and declared, "I stand squarely behind National Government, and for the best possible government at Ottawa irrespective of party types. We need to mobilize to fight this war and to win it, and if I am elected or not I am going to do this anyway." (Applause).

The singing of the National Anthem, and three hearty cheers for the candidate, concluded the meeting.

"Wizard" Wears Well

An enthusiastic farmer himself, David Lloyd George, England's prime minister during the last war, is pictured as the guest of honor at the recent luncheon of the National Defence Public Interest committee in London. He spoke on food production and agriculture in their relation to national defence.

Asphodel Twp. Couple Wed 56 Years

HASTINGS, March 14 (ENS)—Adam Humphries, ex-reeve of Asphodel and his wife, the former Ellen Richardson, on Tuesday, March 12, celebrated their 56th wedding anniversary.

Mr Humphries, who is 83 years of age, and Mrs. Humphries, 78, are enjoying better health than at this time last winter, and keep well in touch with doings of the world today.

Asked as to the kind of weather 56 years ago, Mr. Humphries stated that it is much colder now than in the March of 1884.

On the evening of their anniversary they were surrounded by their children, Roy, James, Maxwell, Olive (Mrs. J. Davidson), Hazel (Mrs. William Moore), Grace (Mrs. G. Manley), Wilma (Mrs. W. Breckenridge), and Lily, with their families who had prepared the customary fowl dinner in their parents' honor. Two daughters, Mae (Mrs. Thompson of Campbellford- and Blanche (Mrs. McKee of Listowel), were unable to be present.

The honored couple whose anniversary was broadcast over the radio, received congratulations by mail and telephone, from their many friends, also from their minister, the Rev. D. K. Perrie of Hastings, on their long wedded life.

The family presented them with gifts including potted plants and lovely yellow daffodils.

The evening was spent in playing chinese checkers and social chat.

Just Add No Troubles To Our Fight Press Urges Welles As He Leaves

LONDON, March 14—(CP). — On the occasion of hs departure from the United Kingdom, the Daily Mirror presented to Sumner Welles, President Roosevelt's "fact-finding" envoy, the "fact" that Great Britain does not ask any help from the United States "that may conflict with big business" but only that "America should not make our task more difficult."

Said the Mirror: "In bidding Welles good-bye we present him with the following facts:

"Welles is a very charming and discreet man. We like him.

"We have a tremendous task on hand. We are struggling for our lives. We do not wish to be impeded—even by charming people—in that task.

"In fulfilling it, amidst inevitable suffering and anxiety we do not ask help from America—at least not any help that may conflict with big business.

"We ask only that America should not make our task more difficult."

"There are no secrets about British aims in this double war—a war against German domination and against the added barbarisms which Hitler has inculcated in his all-to-ready followers.

"The allied aims are clearly to end these twin dangers and to right the wrongs already done before a halt was called. On these aims Mr. Welles will have found no division of opinion either in Paris or in London."

The Daialy Maial reported that the United States Under-Secretary of State had had "friendly and helpful" talks regarding Anglo-American economic relations and the operation of the British contraband control and the searching of United States mail.

Aiding Britain

A cousin of President Roosevelt does her bit for England in the current conflict. She is Mrs. Fellows-Gordon, of Knockespoch, Aberdeenshire, and is pictured at the wheel of the St. Pancras emergency ambulance which she drives. In addition to being a cousin the president is also her godfather.

Boosters To Write To U.S. Tourists

HASTINGS, March 14—(ENS)—Hastings Boosters' Club, as their initial move for the betterment of Hastings, will have several hundred copies made of a letter to be sent prospective American tourists who annually come to this district in summer months, and who may have been misinformed that there are wartime restrictions regarding tourist traffic. A. V. German told the meeting here Monday night that he had seen an example of a misinformed tourist who refused to believe stories that his car and money might be confiscated. Nelson Hoffstetter, from a small Ohio village, was the first American tourist to appear here this year. He told Mr. German of the whispering campaign intended to keep Americans from spending their money in Canada, and promised to write to some of the papers in his home-town district telling them of the ease with which he entered and left Canada this winter.

J. L. Doherty revealed to the meeting that the annual "Holy Name Society At Home" has been cancelled this year in favor of a dance to be sponsored by the Boosters' club Eighty per cent of the proceeds will be donated to the town as an assistance in paying for renovations to the town hall.

The following committees were appointed to work with the club: Merchants, W. M. Fowlds, chairman; A. V. German, W. McEachnie, J. V. Fuller, C. H. Gillespie, Harry Anderson, A. J. McKenty. Sports: C. M. Baker, chairman; Russel Jones, S. Stevenson, Fred Crate, M. A. O'Shea. Entertainment: J. L. Doherty, chairman; H. Anderson, Eddie Jones, J. V. Findly, Charles Lynch. Public Welfare: H. G. Fairman, chairman; Dr. W. N. Campbell, T. A. Coughlan, C. B. Plant, H. Wilson.

After the meeting had been adjourned, C. B. Plant and J. V. Findly appealed to the business men on behalf of the Salvation Army campaign for funds to aid the soldiers. Two returned men present in the persons of A. J. McKenty and I. Bonds said they had seen actual work done by the Salvation Army in France, the like of which was not equalled. After these two men had given evidence of the fine work done by the Army, the men present gave hearty applause and shouts of "Here, Here."

FRESH YEAST to help digestion
VITAMINS for vitality
BOTH work together*—to help put you back "on your toes"

Even little everyday problems are hard to meet when you're always tired, when minor digestive upsets lessen your vitality.

Try getting help by eating Fleischmann's High-Vitamin Yeast. It is so effective—scientists say because it gives you vitamins with fresh yeast.

The fresh yeast stimulates slow digestion and speeds up the assimilation of food. Laboratory tests have shown this is an action of the yeast itself — entirely distinct from known vitamin action.

The vitamins are needed for steady nerves and vitality. Only in Fleischmann's High-Vitamin Yeast can you get such an abundant supply of the 4 important vitamins, A, B_1, D and G, and all the vitamins of the amazing Vitamin B Complex.

Start eating 2 cakes a day. Give vitamins with fresh yeast a chance to help you feel peppier, stronger.

Let this Fresh Yeast give you double help

PEDEN BROTHERS QUIT RACING TO ENLIST IN CANADIAN ARMY

Had All Glory They Want Torchy Claims

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 14.—(CP)—Torchy Peden, veteran Vancouver six-day bicycle rider, and his brother, Doug, said today they were retiring from the board track and enlisting in the Canadian army.

Torchy told friends: "We are through with six-day races. We are now going to fight for our country.

"I have won 34 races, which is more than any six-day rider in the world. Doug, my brother, has won six races.

"I have had all the glory I want and I think Doug has, too.

"From now on we intend to fight for Canada not for glory in the bicycle saucer."

Ottawa Glebes Beat Sailors In 47-29 Game

MONTREAL, March 14.—(CP)—Close to a dozen teams are still in the running for the Eastern Canadian senior basketball championship and the right to meet the western winners in the Dominion title series.

A set-up similar to last year, when Montreal Nationals and Windsor Alumnae clashed in the eastern final, is possible again this year. Windsor already have earned a berth in the Ontario finals while Nationals will start a 5-game series Monday with Montreal Young Men's Hebrew Association for the Quebec title.

In the Ontario championship, Windsor will play the winner of the Toronto Simpson Grads-Hamilton Dofascos total points series, Toronto won the first game 50-37 Tuesday night and will go to Hamilton Saturday for the return contest.

The Quebec champions' first opponents in interprovincial play will be the Ottawa district winners, either Ottawa Glebe Grads or Morrisburg Sailors. Glebe beat Sailors 47-29 last night to force a deciding game next Saturday in their best-of-three series.

The Ontario champions will play the winner of the Quebec-Ottawa series for the right to meet the Maritime champions in the Eastern final.

Saint John Y.M.C.A. have been declared New Brunswick titleholders but the Nova Scotia crown is still in doubt with the regular schedule of the Halifax City League, from which the champions will be named, not yet completed.

Dalhousie Grads are leading the Halifax League with five victories in six games, followed by Acadia University and Navy.

FIGHT COLDS
by helping nature build up your cold-fighting resistance

If you suffer one cold right after another, here's sensational news! Mrs. Elizabeth Vickery writes: "I used to catch colds very easily. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery helped to strengthen me just splendidly. I eat better, feel more stamina, and I get troubled very little with colds."

This great medicine, formulated by a practicing physician, helps combat colds this way: (1) It stimulates the appetite. (2) It promotes flow of gastric juices. Thus you eat more; your digestion improves; your body gets greater nourishment which helps nature build up your cold-fighting resistance.

So successful has Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery been that over 30,000,000 bottles have already been used. Proof of its remarkable benefits. Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery from your druggist today. Don't suffer unnecessarily from colds.

Checker Contest

The Eastern Ontario checker tournament comprising the counties of Prince Edward, Hastings, Northumberland, Peterborough, Renfrew, and all counties east to the Quebec border, will be held in the Y.M.C.A., Belleville, on Monday, April 8. Playing will begin at 10.30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Contestants may enter the morning or afternoon session, in A or B classes.

The beautiful silver trophy donated by H. S. Colliver, M.P.P., will be played for, and other cash prizes will be awarded.

Greenberg Takes To Tigers' Left Field Job

LAKELAND, Fla., March 14—(AP)—Though the complete returns will not be available until about July 4, it may be said that Hank Greenberg looks surprisingly good in left field for the Detroit Tigers and that he likes his new job better every day he plays it.

Also, it can be reported that the Tigers look like a better ball club now that the big guy is roaming the outfield and Rudy York at last is in possession of first base, the one and only spot he can play really well. Manager Del Baker appears to have solved one of the most vexing problems that ever confronted a big league pilot.

"Honest, I like playing the outfield more than I had any idea I would," said Greenberg as he trotted to the bench. "I'm not missing the first base at all, and I think maybe I'll do all right out there.

"One thing that's helping me a lot is that I can handle ground balls better than a lot of outfielders. I've been stopping grounders all my life, so I'm not afraid to come in and try to trap a lot of balls that the other fellows stay back and take on the bound. If I don't quite reach it on the fly I know it won't get through me."

So, with Greenberg and York in there swinging, one-two every day the Tigers feel they can't help being a little tougher than they were last year. Dick Bartell, obtained from the Cubs during the winter, is playing a scrappy game at shortstop. Frank Croucher, shifted over to second, completes a fair-looking keystone combination. Pinkie Higgins remains at third.

Calder Trophy Awaits Winner

TORONTO, March 14.—(CP)—Voting is in progress for one of the National Hockey League's foremost awards, the Calder Trophy, which goes annually to the rookie adjudged by writers to be the best of the season.

The selections are made for The Canadian Press by hockey writers in N.H.L. cities and the trophy is donated by the league president, Frank Calder.

No player who has participated in so much as one National League game in a previous season is eligible for the prize. That lets out players who are engaged in their first full season in the big time but who played in a game or two in other years, like Goalie Paul Goodman of Chicago or Centre Connie Brown of Detroit.

Won In 1939

Frank Brimsek, Boston's sensational netminder, won the prize in 1939, but no goaltender is eligible this time. Goodman is out because he played a single game with the Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup series of 1938.

But there is no dearth of freshmen. New York Rangers have introduced two sensational forwards in Kilby MacDonald and Alf Pike while Chicago has a big crop of candidates, including Doug Bentley, Johnny Chad, Bob Carse, Les Cunningham and Phil Hergesheimer.

In Wally Stanowski, Toronto has almost the only rookie defenceman to make good this winter in his first attempt. Stanowski, a free-skating Pole from Winnipeg, has made good with a bang. Lex Chisholm has been a determined and consistently strong performer with the same club in his inaugural.

Detroit presents a group of good rookies, headed by Joe Fisher and Byron (Butch) McDonald. Montreal Canadiens' best are Rhys Thompson and Gordon Poirier.

SPORTS—DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

And tomorrow after supper up along the Rue Brock, it'll be Collingwood Shipbuilders versus the Petes in an O.H.A. round-robin clash. The first meeting of this doughty pair this year—in fact, for a great many years. And in all probability the Petes' last home game of the season. On account of it'll take 'em maybe another week to clean up their road games, and another week will bring Easter up on the calendar—and no ice ever grew on the Brock Avenoo after Easter, huh? Anyway, there should be a record crowd out Friday e'en to see this important and, no doubt, thrill-packed playoff contest.

* * * * * *

It occurs to us that there are no soft touches in any of the remaining Petes' playoffs—not by a long shot out of an 8-inch gun. We're through with the Kitchener Greenshirts till we meet 'em in final playoffs—if we do. And our gang gained an edge in their two tilts with the Trappers, getting three out of four points. They broke even with the 'Shirts. Well, now it's Collingwood—and the burly Shipbuilders led the Trappers in their group schedule all season and just about held their own in playoffs. And the other eve, they held Kitchener to an overtime draw. Nope, there are no cream-puffs on the Petes' playoff platter, but they look like champs to us. A win here tomorrow eve will cinch a final O.H.A. playoff spot for them.

* * * * * *

They Broke Even

After their long tiresome trip to the Sound last e'en, the Petes still had enough hustle to keep pace with the dashing Trappers for three full periods and a 10-minute extra heat and earn a 5-5 draw. In fact, they were outplaying the Trappers the last part of the third and all through the overtime. Just lucky for the O.S. outfit to gain a point on the tie. Anyway, the Buckland bunch are in top place now by two points over the 'Shirts.

* * * * * *

Those Trappers, displaying much more bounce to their bodychecks on home ice—before a sympathetic gang of 2,000—were really out to win and keep in the race, and they came pretty close. Worked their heads off and tried to skate the legs from under the visitors. But it was the home crew that was tiring at the finish in an even and heated tussle. Never more than a goal's difference, each club holding the lead at times, and a bottled-in-bond sizzler every minute. It was 2-2 in the first, 4-3 to end the second for the Sound and 5-5 before and after the overtime chukker. Couldn't be closer, eh?

* * * * * *

Red Got Clicking

Red Creighton sparked the homesters' attack with two smart goals, and his first-line buddies were also aces in this game. The defence saw that Referee Mike Rodden wasn't going to worry about little things like penalties, so they got away with a pretty fair amount of—well, just stuff. So did the Petes, for that matter—the local lads not wearing halos, either, as standard equipment for correct puck attire. Don Crowe and Jack Jopling massaged the rival defence in bruising manner all e'en, and the rest did their part. Rodden wasn't so hot this time, though quite impartial, as usual. Art Heal was in on three goals in a fine showing while Bun Kingdon also was in on three, and Honey Tompkins and Jack Gardner two each. The Jopling boys combined for the other two.

* * * * * *

No particular stars, both front lines turning in a fine effort, with the first one clicking best when it came to dunking the disc, but the second showing as much if not more fight in mucking in. Defence went oke, too, with Gardner best on the attack. Harding once more showed fine form in the cage. Goalie Dahmer was some shucks, as well, and the Petes muffed a few super-swelegant setups, especially in the late stages. Just when it hurt. Yet they did well, and deserve a huge crowd Friday for their final home appearance—we expect—this season.

* * * * * *

Glad To Pull Out

After being hit hard financially in their hotel bill—with rates like the Waldorf-Astoria—the locals had to push a couple of their cars up a steep icy hill out of the valley that's known as Owen Sound. On account of it sleeted hard all aft and evening and the roads were like buttered glass most of the long trek home. With a heavy downpour of rain a good—or was it bad?—part of the route. Yeah, quite a trip and we rolled into the office at seven in the a.m. with the game story to knock off and this pillar de piffle to fill up. Oy, oy, and it gets tougher each year, this all-night biz. Guess we've softened up. Anyway, we're groggily slapping the keys to throw these words on a sheet ere trudging bedward for a number of hours. And the hard-working puckists, on the go all night, too, must be even worse off for slumber.

* * * * * *

Girls' City League basketball playoffs commence tomorrow eve in the Y.W.C.A. Westclox and St. John's clash in the first game of the junior playoffs (best in three) at seven; followed at eight by the first of the two-in-three senior finals, Quaker Aces mixing with "Y" Gym. An added attraction on this card was to have been a provincial ladies' playoff between Toronto and the local Orfuns, but now the Orfuns have been told their next opponents would be St. Catharnes' gals—and at this early writing, efforts were being made to get St. Kitts here tomorrow, but we dunno what's what yet. Anyway, 'tis a big hoop attraction and should draw extra well.

Itinerant Golf Profits R.C.G.A.

TORONTO, Mar. 14 — (CP). — Because of the success of the Canadian Open last year at Saint John, N.B., the Royal Canadian Golf Association plans to stage it elsewhere outside of Ontario and Quebec within the next five years.

The 1939 innovation of holding the Dominion's premier golf competition in the Maritimes brought the R.C.G.A. a net profit of $1,538.38, the third highest sum realized in the last five years. The Association plans tentatively to place the tournament in Toronto three times within the next five years, while Montreal has asked for the 1942 event as part of its tercentenary program. It never had been held outside the Toronto-Montreal-Ottawa-Hamilton area until 1939.

Rangers' Hopes In Balance For Final Tilt

(By the Canadian Press.)

New York Rangers' lofty ambitions for the National Hockey League championship, which loomed so large in the middle of the campaign, will be in the balance tonight when they play their last game of the schedule.

The championship sands seem to be running out for the Rangers as they prepare to take on the first-place Boston Bruins at New York. The blueshirts can step into first place by winning, but Boston can go right back into the lead and capture the league championship with a victory over Montreal Canadiens at home Sunday.

Two nights ago in Boston the Bruins stepped over the Rangers 2-1 when Eddie Wiseman scored in the last two minutes of play. That was the acid test and the Rangers just didn't have the punches that had stood them in such good stead during their amazing mid-season winning streak.

Rangers still have the Mr. Icicle among the goaltenders, Dave Kerr, and a contingent of great rushing defencemen, in Art Coulter Ott Heller, Babe Pratt and Muzz Patrick. They have the most prolific goal-getter of the year in Bryan Hextall and 10 other forwards close to his stature.

Against that combination, however, Cooney Weiland pits a Boston team of brilliant individual performers, like Frank Brimsek in goal, Dit Clapper on the defence and the Sauerkraut Line of Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart. In the long run it has been this tendency to individual excellence that has told.

In tonight's other game Toronto Maple Leafs will seek to put their hold on third place beyond all mathematical doubt when they oppose the Canadiens at Montreal. The Leafs will leave Jack Church and Wally Stanowski at home, replacing them with Reg. Hamilton and Bucko McDonald.

Japanese have captured eight cement plants in China during the invasion.

All-Star Team

Following is the 22nd in a Canadian Press series of National Hockey League all-star selections by hockey writers in N.H.L. cities. A consensus will be prepared later.

Collingwood To Tackle Petes Here On Friday

The Collingwood Shipbuilders clash with the Petes here to-morrow (Friday) night at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock Street Arena. It is an O.H.A. Intermediate A round-robin series game and likely the last one to be seen here this winter, as the ice will probably be gone in another week. The biggest crowd of the season, of city and district fans, is expected to jam the rink for this playoff joust as the speedy Petes point toward a provincial championship. The ice is in good shape and no change has been made in the price of admission. Tickets are now on sale.

A grand hockey game may be expected when these classy opponents tangle in such an important melee. The Collingwood crew is on a par with the Trappers—who showed up so well here last game—and the Petes are right at their peak.

The probable Collingwood lineup is: Goal, Nobes; defence, Brophy and Cain; centre, Brodeur; wings, Stewart and Fryer; alternates, Burns, Brock, McCarl, Stoutenburg, Sandell and Young.

Long-Distance Runner Able To Walk Again After Three Years With Fractured Spine

TORONTO, March 14.—(CP)—Frank Chalmers, long-distance running champion of Manitoba, is back in Timmins, Ont., today after a three-year stay in hospital while recovering from a fractured spine.

Chalmers, now 27, suffered the injury in an automobile accident. For months he was confined to a Timmins hospital, hovering between life and death, and finally was removed to Toronto. When he left hospital here recently he was able to walk unaided.

"What a glorious feeling it is to walk again after three years," he said. "It was a hard fight all along. I wasn't defeated because I never gave up."

For two consecutive years Chalmers was long-distance running champion of Manitoba and his record still stands. He was runner-up in a Dominion championship race that preceded the 1938 British Empire games in Australia and was forced from the British games by the motor accident.

He had worked as a chute blaster in a Timmins mine for eight months previous to the accident. He is one of eight brothers.

Scores a Pair

ART HEAL

Playing fine hockey for the Petes last night as they held the Trappers to a 5-5 draw in Owen Sound, Art Heal (above) scored two goals and aided in another.

Tweed Juveniles Wings, Leafs Wallop Leaders

TWEED, March 14.—(ENS). —In the third juvenile series at the local arena on Wednesday night, the two league leading teams were trounced with the Red Wings beating the Rangers in the first game 5-2, while the Leafs walloped the Bruins 7-3 in the second game.

The first game was scrappy throughout. Rashotte took a pass from Baldwin to tally the first count for the Wings, but the Rangers came back to tie the count late in the first period with Meraw bagging the counter. Baldwin received the only penalty of the game in the first period.

The Wings tallied three counters in the second period with Baldwin sifting through for the first two, and Thompson rapping in the rebound for the third counter.

Although hemmed in their own end of the ice for most of the period, the Wings increased the lead to five goals, when Baldwin broke away to bang the rubber behind Fisher. Austin tallied for the Rangers. Only good work in the nets by Baldwin saved the Wings, as this youngster made many brilliant saves. Although losing the game, the Rangers still head the league by three poits, as a result of the by three points, as a result of the second place.

Teams:

Red Wings— Goal, Baldwin; defence, Baldwin, Smith; centre, Barnett; wings, T. Rashotte, Barnett; subs, LaVallee, Gehan, Generaux. Thompson.

Rangers—Goal, Fisher; defence, Connor, Cornell; centre, Meraw; wings, Austin, Donahue; subs, Lajoie, Rashotte, Fobert.

Leafs Take Bruins.

The second game of the night saw the Leafs wade through the Bruins for a 7-3 count. The first period saw Sills sail through the Bruin team to ram home two counters. Leveck went to the box for tripping in this period.

T. Rivers tallied the first of the second period for the Bruins, but the Leafs added three more counters before the end of the period, two by Sills and one by Leveck. Two more counters in the opening minute of play of the last period went to Cassidy and Sills. Baker tallied twice for the Bruins on long high shots which caught the upper corner of the net. The Bruins being short handed were forced to play with only one alternative throughout the game, which left them with little opportunity of throwing new life into the game. Splendid work by Rivers and Baker kept the Leafs partially in check throughout the game, but they were hopelessly outnumbered.

Line-ups:

Leafs — Goal, Jones; defence, Sills, Leveck; centre, Cassidy; wings, Price, Fobert; subs, LaVallee, O'Coin.

Bruins— Goal, Fisher; defence, Baker, Rivers centre, T. Rivers; wings, McRae, Thompson; sub, Courtney.

Referees—Doyle, Wagar.

Local Puckists Tie Owen Sound In Overtime Heat, 5-5 In Redhot Intermediate Playoff

Breaking even with the Trappers in Owen Sound last night in a 5-5 thriller, the Petes took a firmer grip on top place in the O.H.A. Intermediate A round-robin series. Nearly 2,000 fans viewed the redhot overtime playoff and saw the score seesaw with never more than a goal's difference between the well-matched clubs.

Trappers tallied early in the first and then the Buckland band rapped two more, but the homesters got another to end the first heat 2-all. After the Petes scored in the second, the Sound squad counted twice to hold a 4-3 lead when the third opened. The Petes tied it in the last stanza, then Trappers went ahead and, with less than four minutes to go, the visitors sewed it up again. There was no count in the 10-minute overtime chukker.

As in their clash in Peterborough, these fast-stepping teams set a torrid pace from the first faceoff, and maintained it all the way. The puck travelled from end to end on passing plays with the rival net-guardians having a hard evening. Unlike their previous meeting, the opponents bumped each other around a bit, making it a rugged but fairly clean joust. Of the three penalties handed out by Mike Rodden—in very lenient mood—the Petes drew two.

No Soft Ones.

There were no flukes or soft goals scored last evening by either side. Every tally was earned and pretty to watch in a tilt that fairly sparkled from beginning to end. Play was practically as even as the score indicates, though the Petes finished a bit stronger and were pressing the last five minutes of the third and all through the overtime inning. They missed several beautiful chances to grab two points instead of one on the game.

There was little to choose among the local battlers when it came to stars. Both front lines turned in a hard-working, effective showing on the big ice surface. Possibly the Kingdon-Tompkins-Heal trio had more scoring chances, but the J. Jopling-Coughlin-Blewett line, with Burton equally good as extra man, put up a scrappy display that bothered the Sound defence throughout. All checked back well, and the defence blocked and bumped with good effect, Gardner being the best on the attack. Harding proved as steady as ever in a fine net chore.

Red Got Two.

Dahmer was hard to beat in the home cage, and repeatedly kicked out the disc as the locals poured it his way. The defence began bodychecking early and did some effective work on rival rushes. Smith, Creighton and Nicholl were the pick of the forwards, with Campbell looking good in spots. Creighton scored two goals and was dangerous all night.

Within a minute of the opening whistle, Creighton blasted the rubber by Harding in close on Nicholl's pass, having but one defenceman to beat as the Petes went on the attack. It was fast and even then for a time with a Kingdon-Heal rush close and later a Heal-Tompkins try nearly clicking. At the half-way mark, the Petes counted when Heal shoved the black biscuit by Dahmer on nice passing through defence with Kingdon and Gardner. Crowe went off for charging and the Trappers ganged up. But it backfired when Kingdon scored from Gardner on a semi-breakaway, the pair having but one defender and the goalie to fool and doing this with some tricky short passes in close. With Crowe back, it was tight for a space and then Smith split the defence for a picture goal at point-blank range. F. Jopling was gated for boarding and Hutchison and Ellis nearly mixed in a fight before the end.

Play was hot and pretty even in the second, with a bit of rough stuff creeping in at times, and the referee early warning Heal and Creighton for nearly scrapping. The Petes' second line threatened and, when Campbell got the air for tripping, they tore in hard and finally took the lead with a nice angle-shot goal by F. Jopling on J. Jopling's pass. With Campbell back, Creighton teamed up with Blair to tie the count again, Red walking in on Harding when two defencemen went for Blair. Ellis was thefted and later Kingdon got in for a good thrust. Near the end of the heat, Shears took Hutchison's passout on a corner faceoff and golfed it through several players' legs into the twine.

Still Even.

Creighton got through early in the third, but his hot shot was wide and the Petes' second line buzzed around Dahmer for two minutes as play swept up and down fast and quite evenly. Some stiff checking was seen all through this stanza. Tompkins tied up the score once more at close range, with Kingdon and Heal aiding on a nice passing play. Ellis and Kingdon were close again and then Hutchison put the Sound up on Smith's pass around defence. He fell over Hanrding, cutting Ray's nose and the latter took time out for repairs. Four Petes went up on the attack and carried most of the play then, J. Jopling especially looking dangerous a few times. Heal finally sewed it up for the last time on a corner passout from Tompkins with three and a half minutes to go. Both Kingdon and Tompkins came close to winning again before the bell.

Blewett got a neat chance early in overtime and Shears went off injured, after a spill. Kingdon got through but missed the net and the first line kept swarming in, with the Petes' second line also tossing rubber at Dahmer. The latter finally stalled for a time, fixing his pads. Tompkins blasted a hot shot, but it was blocked just before the end of the sizzling extra chapter.

The teams:

Petes — Goal, Harding; defence, Ellis and Gardner; centre, Kingdon; wings, Heal and Tompkins; alternates, F. Jopling, Crowe, Coughlin, J. Jopling, Blewett, and Burton

Trappers — Goal, Dahmer; defence, Blair and McConachie; centre, Smith; wings, Creighton and Nicholl; alternates, Small, Campbell, Hutchinson, Madison, Sutton and Shears.

Referee— Mike Rodden of Toronto.

Farewell Party For Gord. McGee

HASTINGS, March 14—(ENS). — Gordon McGee, youngest son of William McGee of Percy Township, was pleasantly surprised on Friday evening when a jolly house party, attended by many friends and neighbors, was held as a farewell for him. He is leaving to reside on his newly purchased farm near Codrington.

Mr. McGee was presented with a chime clock. Miss Helen Hendy reading an appropriate address and Stewart Hoard making the presentation.

The evening was spent in dancing with music furnished by J. Goscher of Meyersburg and H. Spencer and Petherick of Campbellford.

SUFFER NERVOUS STRAIN

Five hundred bus drivers of Glasgow, Scotland, were reported ill at one time from nervous strain while driving in blackouts.

MORE ABOUT—

Parties Make

Canada.

Premier Hepburn somewhat clarified his attitude towards the election when he said in Toronto he intends to take no part in platform activities during the campaign but reserves the right to criticism when he feels that "criticism is justified."

He said he is "just as free to criticize the King government as my ministers are to praise it" and added that he "doesn't intend to take either side."

The words "National Government" are "merely an election cry—they are applied to a party which is not national and has little chance of forming a government," Justice Minister Lapointe said at Quebec, in a 15-minute election address over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Mr. Lapointe said there was "nothing to justify" Conservative Leader Manion's use of the word "national."

"His so-called party is an attempt to unite the remnants of the Conservative party, already wrecked by dissension, with the odds and ends of no parties at all.

"He would amalgamate them for one purpose only—to march into office upon a platform of reckless and impossible promises.

"We have asked Dr. Manion to say who his supporters and supporting parties will be. We have asked him to give us the names of his brain trust. Perhaps he has delegated the selection of his cabinet to his supporter Colonel Drew (Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Conservative leader)."

The Cabinet Maker?

"Col. Drew is the leader of the provincial opposition," said Mr. Lapointe. "He has not shown sufficient faith in Dr. Manion's causse to offer himself as a candidate. Is he the cabinet maker of the shadow government?"

He asked if "Col. Drew's cabinet" would include "Mr. Hepburn (Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario) who succeeds in devoting the time that might profitably be employed to the affairs of Ontario, to providing the material for the comfort and amusement of German broadcasting stations."

The record of the Federal Department of Transport was defended at Port Arthur in a broadcast address by Transport Minister Howe.

Mr. Howe predicted the return to power of the present government but said that if the result of the voting is otherwise, he will seek an opportunity to work as a dollar-year man in any capacity which might be assigned to him in an effort to aid Canada's war effort.

Canada's errors in the first great war were not rectified until a National government came into power, Dr. Herbert A Bruce, National government candidate for Toronto-Parkdale, said at Toronto.

During the last war when he was inspector-general of Canadian medical services overseas, Dr. Bruce said he recommended complete reorganization of the Canadian medical services "but partisan influences at once intervened and the government found itself handicapped.

"It was my experience during the period in question which helped to create my strong convictions in favor of National government in time of war."

Sold Out the Farmers

The Mackenzie King government will go down in history as the government that "sold out" the farmers, Col. T. L. Kennedy, former Ontario minister of agriculture, said at Murillo, 15 miles west of Fort William.

"Thousands of barrels of the best apples were allowed to rot last year because government men—professional politicians who had never been farmers—sold out the farmers.

"They enforced a ruling that only apples which met export grading could be sold. This meant that apples with a keeping quality of less than four months, which includes the best eating apples produced in Ontario, went to waste.

"The bacon board formed in Ontario did not have a farmer in its membership, yet the processors were represented."

The King administration had enforced "conscription of every hog in the country" by establishing arbitrary prices but feed was not conscripted. The price of feed has advanced 30 per cent since the hog price was established.

"Dr. Manion's policy is not to conscript men, hogs or anything, but to give everyone the advantage of a free market," Col. Kennedy said.

Traces Steps In War

At Ingersoll Defence Minister Rogers traced the Dominion government's step in the war and declared that any business man who "multiplied his business by 10" could not expect the expansion to take place without trouble.

"We caught up with the equipment problem in a sound and sensible way," he said. "We have reached the point where labor and industry are organized so that no problem should occur in the future."

The defence minister said he wished to ask Conservative Leader Manion three questions.

"I would ask him first: 'Was Great Britain prepared in the sense that he says we ought to have been prepared?' And the answer is 'No.'"

Leopold Macaulay, Conservative member of the Ontario Legislature, told a Napanee, Ont., meeting the presumption of Mr. King that the Liberal party alone could unite parliament in the war effort was "a falsehood and an insult."

Trade Minister Euler spoke at Welland and Labor Minister McLarty at St. Catharines.

Wants No Snags in Balkans

Bucharest sources believe that Germany would discourage Russia from any such attempt, at least while the Reich wants Rumania's oil and wheat. Danube river ice, frozen since Dec. 29, began breaking up yesterday at Giurciu, Rumanian oil shipping centre, and river tankers were expected to start moving north as soon as the river is navigable.

A search for the friends in the south was given also as the reason for authoritative reports in Rome that Moscow was beginning trade negotiations with Italy.

It was noted that these reports came almost simultaneously with Germany's agreement to fill part of Italy's coal needs with rail shipments in order to circumvent the allied sea blockade.

The head of a Russian trade commission which has headquarters at Milan, Italy, was said already to have left for Moscow to obtain final instructions for negotiations expected to start shortly in Rome.

Russo-Italian Deal?

COPENHAGEN, March 14—(CP-Havas).—Economical and political pacts between the Soviet Union and Italy, Rumania, and Turkey, are now expected by informed quarters in Berlin, the newspaper Politiken reported today from the German capital.

With Italy, the Germans expect the Soviet Union to sign an economic accord similar to that between the U.S.S.R. and the Reich, the correspondent said.

With Rumania and Turkey the Reich expects Russia to conclude pacts of non-aggression, he added, aiming mainly to turn Turkey from the Allied leanings.

Pledge to Spare Rumania?

BERLIN, March 14—(AP). — The Associated Press reported today that Germany, according to a reliable private source of information, has obtained a pledge from Soviet Russia that Rumania will be spared, come what may in Southeastern Europe.

This assurance apparently has enabled German diplomacy in turn to make Rumania incline toward a Russian-Rumanian non-aggression pact, according to this source.

"The treaty with Finland is a fresh victory for the Stalin policy of peace. We hail our government which proved able to gain its purpose for the sake of the security and protection of our peaceful, constructive labor."

(Russia's population is 50 times as big as Finland's.)

Aside from Russia's territorial gains, it was pointed out that the U.S.S.R. may have won her most important economic corridor to Scandinavia and the Atlantic through extensive transit rights across the Petsamo district to Norway and the agreement to connect the Murmansk railroad with Sweden.

Copper mines go to Russia, it was pointed out, with the territory ceded her near Lake Ladoga and she is expected now to make a successful bid for part of the exports of the nickel mines in the Petsamo area which remain Finnish. They were being developed by the International Nickel Company, a Canadian concern.

Borders Extended

Strategically, the border has been pushed from 20 to 90 miles from Leningrad and from 40 to 75 miles from the Murmansk railroad.

Also, the new peace makes Finland another bulwark in the diplomatic, commercial and military safeguards with which Russia has been surrounding herself. Finnish soil was added to that of western Poland within the expanding Soviet frontier and that of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania as Russia military bases.

All this, as well as the new Russian-German accord and commercial agreements with Bulgaria and Iran, has been engineered or forced in little more than six months.

The remains of the work shop, at Mr. H. H. Pollock's residence, which was destroyed by fire Monday night, is still smoldering. A number of residents who had retired early Monday night were very much surprised the following morning, when they learned of the fire, as this village is not equipped with fire alarms or fire engines, and the alarm was sent out over the phone. The Chemical fire extinguisher arrived from Havelock but was not enough to cope with the blaze.

Two Men Fight Over Horse; Assault Charged

The story of a battle that ensued when William Manafield of Chandos township went to the home of Archie Whitmore, Owenbrook to secure a horse belonging to him was told in police court this morning when Whitmore was charged before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., with having assaulted Mansfield occasioning actual bodily harm.

Whitmore had no counsel and pleaded not guilty to the charge while Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the prosecution.

Mansfield testified that on March 6 he had gone to Whitmore's place to recover a horse that had been loaned to the defendant. He testified that when he went to take the lines from Whitmore in order to take possession of the horse, Whitmore had struck him, thrown him down and choked him. "My throat swelled up and it is still sore."

"I could hardly breathe," witness added.

Cross-examined by Whitmore, Mansfield denied that he had struck at the other man first.

Watched the Fight

James Rosebush, clerk and treasurer of Chandos said that on March 6 Mansfield had come to his place looking for relief and had had dinner there. He had left after dinner to go to Whitmore's to get his horse and seemed to be in good humor and not anticipating any trouble. Shortly after witness said from three yards away he had watched what went on at Whitmore place and he swore that he saw Whitmore make a move toward Mansfield and strike at him. Afterward the accused had thrown the other man down and seemed to be choking him because he was calling for help in a choking voice.

There were black and blue marks on Mansfield's face when he came back from Whitmore's, witness said.

Mrs. Myrtle Rosebush, wife of the previous witness corroborated his evidence and Provincial Constable Silvester testified to seeing injuries on Mansfield's face after the assault.

Defendant Explains

Whitmore's explanation of the affair was that Mansfield had asked him to keep the horse all winter in exchange for its feed. On the day he came to his place, witness said, Mansfield had struck at him first and knocked him back toward the sleigh after which the two had grapped and fallen down. "I have no doubt I hurt him," he said "because I held pretty tight. I wasn't going to let him up until he promised to behave."

"I was holding him for my own good," he explained.

Whitmore admitted to Mr. McElderry that he had worked Mansfield's horse on a number of occasions and that he had received a letter from Provincial Constable Silvester instructing him to return the horse to Mansfield when the latter asked for it.

The case is proceeding.

Col. Drew Active For Militia

Colonel John A. Dewart has pointed out an error in the report of the meeting he addressed on Tuesday night at S.S. No. 3, Otonabee, while speaking in the interest of R. M. Glover and the King Government.

"At the beginning of the report it says that I associated the name of Colonel George Drew with other public men who were silent in peace times about the needs of th Militia," Colonel Dewart said. "I was careful not to mention Colonel Drew because of the fact that he was one of the exceptions during those years when the public was listening to the pacifists. He did point out the lack of support for the Canadian Militia and public apathy toward our military problems, and I don't want to appear in the unfair and ungrateful position of having linked the name of Colonel Drew with those of Mr. Hepburn and Dr. Manion, because he was active in advocating greater appreciation of the needs of the Militia of Canada."

Bowling League Elects Officers

Seventy members of the Mercantile Bowling League attended the annual banquet held this week at the Y.M.C.A. when trophies were presented to winning teams and officers elected for the next bowling season.

William Jeffries was named president with M. Timco as treasurer and Mrs. H. DeWolfe, secretary. Lloyd Raper, retiring president, congratulated the players on the success of the season and paid tribute to the fine spirit which had prevailed in all the games.

Mr. Raper presented Jim Fields, manager of Mason's team with the Duffus trophy emblematic of league supremacy, while the league prizes were presented by William Moorehead of the Agnew-Surpass team. The winning team consisted of Mrs. R. Penrose, R. Penrose, H. Bennisworth, D. Penrose and Jim Fields.

Maher's team won the consolation prize and the team personnel was Helen McFadden, Mrs. H. DeWolfe, C. Barber, W. Clark, T. McArthur, W. Laird and P. DeWolfe. High single honors went to Miss Ruth Ellis, of Pratten's team who scored 297 and Joseph Lynch of Scott's quitet who rolled 377. Miss Hardy of Warne's presented each with a handsome silver cup donated by Warne's.

An auction sale of the stock and implements was in progress at the time, and Mr. Waller went up into the mow to look around the place he had known so well. In some manner he fell backward from the mow to the ground floor. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

OBITUARY

MRS. LEWIS DUNK

CAMPBELLFORD, March 14.—(ENS)—A widely-known resident of Seymour West Mrs. Lewis Dunk, 69, passed away at her home five miles west of here on the English Line yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Dunk took an active part in the life of the community where she spent her entire life and took a particularly keen interest in the work of the English Line Tabernacle Church where she was a prominent member of the Ladies' Aid Society.

A daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Grills, Mrs. Dunk had been ill since the first of the year and though her condition was somewhat improved a month ago when she returned from Belleville Hospital she had since gone down in health.

Surviving her husband are three sons, Wellar, New Liskeard; William and Clarence of Seymour and two daughters, Mrs. Douglas Woof of Codrington and Gwelda at home. Six brothers, Lewis of Straithclair, Man.; William, Warkworth; Joseph, Rawdon; Garnet, Seymour; James, Seymour; Thomas, Castleton; and two sisters, Mrs. William Craighead of Seymour and Mrs. Andrew Haig of Seymour.

The funeral cortege will leave the residence for English Line Tabernacle Church at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon where the service will be conducted by Rev. C. S. Reddick, D.D. Interment will be at the English Line Cemetery.

MORE ABOUT—
65 To 75

King was silent; no wonder the Nazis decided that Canada would not fight for the Empire. Then came the war and Britain's declaration that a state of war existed, and again Mr. King was silent for eight days, and we did not know whether we were in the war or not. Finally when we did get in we did not know for some time whether we were going to send any soldiers. I tell you this man's heart is not in the conflict."

Charging that the King Government had refused on constitutional grounds the request of Great Britain to start an air training scheme here, but had readily agreed to let the United States build a highway through British Columbia to Alaska, Mr. Downer declared that Premier King would rather trust the United States than Great Britain.

"If the Prime Minister had told Great Britain to go ahead with her training scheme when the request was made, there would not be an idle man in Canada to-day, for thousands of airplanes, most of which have now been ordered from outside of Canada, would have been manufactured in Canadian plants," said the speaker.

Different Leadership.

"Where is the enthusiasm of the early days of the last Great War?" asked Mr. Downer. "The difference is that we had different kind of leadership then. If we lose this war we will be like Austria and Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. We need some one in these days to give us inspirational leadership; some one to say that we will put everything we have into this conflict. We have got to stand together on the home front to maintain a united front in France. Can we get that kind of leadership from the present government; ask any soldier what he thinks?"

War Contracts.

Ontario, he said, contained one-third of Canada's population and paid 46 per cent of all the taxes collected in Canada. She was therefore vitally interested in the question of war contracts. "Up to the end of January," said the member for Dufferin-Simcoe, "$37,000,000 in war orders have gone to the province of Quebec, and Ontario in the same period was awarded only $13,000,000; what do you think of that, you working men who have had trouble in getting jobs?"

Claiming that only through a national government could patronage and favoritism be wiped out, Mr. Downer said that Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand all had national governments and yet Mr. King sneered at the idea for Canada.

"I would rather trust my country —and my two sons—to the man who went out and fought for Canada than to the man who ran away to the United States," the speaker said.

"Dr. Manion is candid, loyal and fearless; you can trust him; it is difficult to sneer at a man who has gone out and won a Military Cross for gallantry in action," declared Mr. Downer.

Speaking as a man from a farming community he charged that the King government in its policy in regard to bacon had robbed the farmer of the benefit of his home market. The price for export bacon was set until next October but the farmer might have had the benefit of higher prices at home had it not been for the government. "When it is a case of more money for the farmer the price spreads organization gets in its work," he said.

Addresses Women

Mrs. Cridland addressed her remarks to the women voters and advised them to study the address of Winnifred Kydd who was supporting national government and taking part in a political campaign for the first time in her life.

John R. Corkery, speaking particularly to the young voters who would cast their ballot this time reminded them that they were taking part in a most unusual election. He declared that the record of the King government in peace and war and the absolute need for a national government in a time of nation crisis were the two issues of the campaign.

Gordon K. Fraser told the audience that he would make only one promise and that was to work for the interests of every man, woman and child, regardless of political opinions or creed. "I certainly am not going to make the kind of promise that was made from this very platform by a candidate who declared that if elected the cement plant would be running full blast in two months. And in about two months they were taking the machinery out."

Mr. Fraser said that he had endeavored to carry on a clean campaign and he believed that to be the case with his opponent. In a general criticism of the King government he declared that the administration had done absolutely nothing for the youth of the land and called attention to the fact that a youth program under a minister of youth welfare was included in the national government platform.

Didn't Aim To Kill Only Protest Claims Assassin

LONDON, March 14—(CP)—A 37-year-old British Indian engineer, Mohamed Singh Azad, was arraigned today in heavily guarded Bow Street court, charged with the assassination of Sir Michael O'Dwyer, retired Indian administrator.

The stocky defendant smiled as Detective-Inspector Swain testified that Azad, after the killing last night at Caxton Hall, had said:

"I did not mean to kill him—I just did it to protest."

The prisoner was remanded in custody for a week after he waived questioning the officer.

The assassination overshadowed war news on London's front pages and evoked in one editorial a hint that it might start an "outbreak of Indian terrorism in Great Britain."

The Daily Telegraph indirectly blamed the Indian Nationalist leader Mohandas K. Gandhi, for the gunfire that broke up a meeting of the East Indian Association, killed O'Dwyer and wounded three others.

The newspaper said, in part:

"In India Mr. Gandhi talks of the virtues of passive disobedience but it has often happened in the past that his opposition to the Indian government has been translated into acts of violence by those who profess adherence to his political principles."

Isolated Incident.

Most newspapers, however, regarded the shooting as an isolated incident.

The assassin was overpowered by police before he could escape from the hall when he fired four pistol shots. The former Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab died almost immediately from a wound in the chest.

One bullet grazed Lord Zetland, Secretary of State for India. Others struck the arms of Sir Louis Dane and Lord Lamington, both former British administrators of Indian provinces.

O'Dwyer was Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab when Brigadier-General R. E. H. Dyers' troops on April 13, 1919, fired into a mob at Armitsas, killing 400 persons. O'Dwyer always defended Dyers' order.

O'Dwyer once called Gandhi "the biggest imposter that ever fooled the credulity of a people or frightened a cowardly government."

A.Y.P.A. Of East Emily Hears Talks On Books

EAST EMILY, March 14—(ENS). —The regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. of St. James' Anglican church was held in the Parish hall on Friday night with a good attendance, and the president, Mr. Arthur Boate, presiding.

Mr. Arthur Boate introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. Horace Hill of Omemee, it being literary night under the convenership of Miss Margaret Boate.

Mr. Hill spoke on books in general and outlined the different types and classes of books. Mr. Boate then moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Hill on behalf of the society.

Rev. Mr. Johnson closed the meeting and refreshments were served.

Miss Grace Carew, of Buckhorn, spent this week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Carew.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cullis spent Saturday visiting friends at Cameron.

Mr. Wilfred Howden has sold his store at Fowler's Corners and Mr. Robinson of Peterborough will take possession on Thursday, March 14.

Mrs. Wilbert Clarke is spending this week visiting at her home in Otonabee.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Roger Price in Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, on Saturday, March 9, a son.

Only 3 Omissions At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 14.—(ENS)—There was little cause for complaint in the thorough job done by local enumerators this year. On Tuesday, last day set for names to be added, only three omissions were drawn to the attention of the men who made up the lists. The completed lists showed there were 149 more voters qualified to exercise the franchise here than in the 1935 election when final returns indicated that out of a total of 1,933 eligible voters only 1,606 went to the polls.

The Rambling REPORTERS

WANTED MICKEY MOUSE

Gordon K. Fraser showed a number of moving pictures at his meeting in Lakefield Wednesday night and when he began his speech afterward remarked: "If I had known there would be so many children here I would have brought along a Mickey Mouse; they would have enjoyed that." "So would we," an adult and thirsty voice sounded from the rear of the hall, its owner doubtless thinking of the bottle rather than the film variety of the famous Mickey.—C.

Fire Damages Unused Garage

Fire that originated in an unused garage at 211 Hunter street yesterday afternoon, climbed three stories to the roof and for a time threatened an entire block of buildings.

A stove in the garage, in which a fire was kept burning to prevent water pipes from freezing, was apparently the origin of the outbreak and flames licked their way up the walls, under and across the floor above, breaking out again beneath the stairway to the apartment of Bert Bennato. Occupants there escaped without injury.

The flames continued upwards until they reached the roof, setting it afire. Firemen, bringing the flames under control, had to follow the path of the fire in all its eccentricities, uncovering flooring, exploring walls, making sure no spark remained alive. Damage was estimated at $200.

Highways Bad With Icy Coat

With bodies taut and nerves on edges, motorists came in from the highways leading to Peterborough and told that roads are in their most treacherous mood today.

Treacherous was the word they used most frequently, for they said that just enough snow is lying above glare ice to give a deceptive appearance of safety. They warned against driving on highways today unless it is absolutely necessary.

Transport drivers agreed that it is no day to enjoy a drive, although none had suffered accidents. One, however, said that he had turned up in Peterborough after a run from Toronto, more than four hours late. It had taken him close to seven hours to make the trip.

Peterborough Bus Lines, however, found the going not too bad, the office reported. Early in the morning conditions had been none too good, but as the day progressed drivers had less and less difficulty making their tour of the city, they said.

243 Crossing Crashes

OTTAWA, March 14.— (CP)— There were 243 level crossing accidents during 1939, in which 102 persons were killed and 348 injured, the Board of Transport Commissioners said in its annual report released today. Of these, 149 occurred during the daytime and in 52 instances crossings were protected by watchmen, gates, bells and wigwag signals.

Fontaine Home In Ashburnham To Be Wrecked

An old house that has stood on the south-east corner of Burnham and Hunter street for the last century is slated for the wreckers, and on the property will be built a modern service station, for the Shell Oil Company, with Percy Edwards, coal and wood merchant, as the owner of the property.

The house was owned by Joe Fontaine and known as Chateau Fontaine, a tourist home until a few weeks ago. It is one of the oldest houses in Ashburnham and in the words of one old-timer who is now 75, it was an old house when he was a boy. Fifty years ago it was a plaster house and although not quite so pretentious as it is to-day it was known then as the Ellesworth estate, Sir Joseph Flavelle came courting to this house and later married one of the Ellesworth girls.

David Conroy purchased the property and made extensive improvements, including the bricking of the building and since that time each successive owner has made changes and additions. The second last tenant was Arthur Blade, who sold the property to Joe Fontaine, and moved to Ottawa.

The house will be completely demolished to make way for the service station. Plans have been drawn up and tenders will be called at an early date.

LOS ANGELES, March 14 (AP)—The no-longer Deanless Cubs and the rookie studded White Sox launch with the first exhibition game for Chicago's 1940 city rivalry today each. Dizzy agreed to terms yesterday and is expected to be present Sunday when his mates meet Philadelphia Athletics.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Snagging flies and chasing hits in the outfield are putting a lot of strain on Hank Greenberg's legs these days and the veteran star of the Detroit Tigers admits his muscles are sore. But Hank has set his heart on making the switch from first base successful and in the face of considerable embarrassment keeps trying. Observers are labelling him a "game guy."

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—The Phillies' batting department doesn't look any more robust than last year, but they managed to capture their first exhibition of the Spring yesterday, 5-3, at the expense of Syracuse of the International League. The Phils got only four hits, but benefitted from five Syracuse errors.

BRADENTON, Fla. — St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Bees will be short some of their stars today as they square off for an exhibition tussle. For the Cards Johnny Mize and Buster Adams were on the sick list with colds. Max West bounced a foul off his own foot in a painful mishap that'll probably keep him on the sidelines along with Eddie Miller.

LAKELAND, Fla—Brooklyn Dodgers, who have had some luck with castoffs, are enthusiastic over Tex Carleton, the veteran pitcher whom they reclaimed from the minors. He held the Yanks to one scratch hit yesterday and fanned six in three innings.

Bridgenorth

A pot luck supper was held by the Women's Missionary Society on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Clayton Telford. After the supper the ladies spent the evening playing Chinese checkers.

Miss Blanche McWilliams took charge of the devotional period at the young people's meeting on Friday evening. Mr. Guy Pettersone, citizenship convener, divided the young men and young women into separate groups, and read short biographies of distinguished citizens to them. Each group took turns in guessing the answers, and proved very interesting. The ladies won. Mr. Grenville Trumpour had charge of the recreation.

Mr and Mrs. Wallace Nichols motored to Toronto on Saturday with Mr. Donald Jopling and Miss Elliott.

Miss Shirley Connors spent the week-end with her grandmother, Mrs. Connors, in Peterborough.

Mrs. Arthur Murray returned home with her infant son on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Sisson and son, Myrtle, visited her sister, Mrs. W. J. Robinson on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore had his brother, Mr. Fred Moore, visiting them one day last week.

The Women's Bible Class of the Sunday School met at the home of Mrs. R. Wilson on Tuesday evening. They decided to give a collection each month to the missionary work. They spent a very pleasant evening.

Dog Purse Snatcher

SYRACUSE, N.Y., March 14.—(AP)—Police are on the trail of something new in criminals—a dog purse snatcher. Miss Mary Moran complained that an Irish setter seized her handbag in its teeth, scampering away with a loot that included $18 in cash, spectacles, keys and a compact.

Campbellford Wins

In the hockey tournament at Fenelon Falls last evening Campbellford defeated the Oshawa entry 5-4 and will enter the semi-finals on Saturday night.

Eagles Trounce Providence In 8-2 Battle

(By the Canadian Press.)

New Haven Eagles finally have exploded the "Providence Jinx" that hung over them all season.

Unsuccessful in seven previous attempts to gain a victory over the leaders of the Eastern Division of the International-American Hockey League, the Eagles went out last night at home and trounced Providence 8-2.

The victory lifted the Eagles back into second position in the Int-A. Eastern Section which they had lost Tuesday to Springfield Indians.

Two other games last night brough a shuffle in the standing in the Western section. Cleveland Barons at Pittsburg beat the Hornets 3-1 and climbed over them into second place. At Philadelphia, Hershey Bears defeated Ramblers, last-place Eastern Division team, 3-1, to move into a tie with the Hornets for the third spot in the western section.

Girls' Playoffs In Cage Sport Start Tomorrow

The play-offs in the Ladies' City Basketball League get under way to-morrow evening in the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium when Westclox and St. John's meet in the first game of the junior play-offs, and the "Y" Gym squad tangles with the Quaker Aces in the senior section.

An added feature was to have been the Toronto-Peterborough Orfuns provincial play-off, but now the Orfuns have been told that St. Catharines will be their next opposition. At the time of writing, the locals are trying to get the St. Catharines' girls here for Friday, but it is not signed and sealed as yet.

The junior city league tilt, which is the first of a best of three series, is a 7 p.m., and Westclox are the defending champions, having taken that honor last year. Their opponents, St. John's, were in the senior group last season, but finished out of that division this time, and are slight favorites to win, due to their two wins over the Clockmakers in the regular schedule. However, Westclox are coming along fast now and will be out to keep their trophy.

The senior fray is called for 8 o'clock, with the strong "Y" Gym team lining up against the Quaker Aces. The "Y" girls finished on top in the schedule, led by Ruth Dalliday who has been their chief scorer and play-maker, and backed by a close checking defence. Howie Macdonald's Quaker squad, who are present senior champions, have several dangerous snipers in Dot Weese, "Spud" Alexander, Helen Rutter and Peggy Lawless, and will be making a mighty effort to retain their city title for the second straight year. Their defence is fast and strong, and one of the best play-off series in years is looked for when these two top-notch clubs get together.

The line-ups and officials for the games will be published Friday. Also, the latest information on the Orfuns-St. Catharines hook-up.

Close Races Mark 'Y' Swim Handicap

In the first race for the month and the sixth in a series of handicap swims at the 'Y' Junior Swimming Club workout last night, Ralph Rogow won his second race in a row in a final event which was very closely contested. All four swimmers in the race which was the 40-yard free style, finished close together with Don Pinch, who was fourth, only 3-5 of a second behind Ralph Rogow in first place.

Jim Brown and Len Smith were a dead heat for second place and in the swimoff there was not much to choose between the two with Brown having a slight edge.

This Saturday two of Gord Minty's swimmers will compete at Toronto Central Y at the Island Swimming Club meet in the 40-yard junior novice free style event.

Complete results of the race were as follows:

First Heat—1, J. Brown; 2, L. Smith; 3, Gordon Wallace.

Second Heat—1, Ralph Rogow; 2, D. Pinch; 3, W. Marshall.

Final—1, Ralph Rogow; 2, James Brown; 3, Leonard Smith.

Those "Best Brains" WHERE?

Dr. Manion, at the beginning of the campaign, promised to provide for Canada a "National" Government, representative of the highest genius of all parties.

The genuineness of this spacious enterprise was at once questioned by Prime Minister King and others. Dr. Manion was asked to show the public a sample of his wares.

No such sample has been forthcoming—either in the flesh or in any specific calendar of futurities.

Came Monday—and the official nominations. But of "best brains," alas, not any!

Survey of the list discloses not a single prominent non-Conservative brain nominated as a "National" candidate.

If any fact about the Manionite line-up stands out notably, it is the singularly un-National character of the fabulous "National" grouping. In Quebec only 54 "National" candidates have been nominated for 65 seats; in Saskatchewan only 8 for 21 seats; in Alberta only 10 for 17 seats.

The history of "Nationalism" in Canada seems destined to be written by a Modern Bulfinch in a revised Age of Fable.

Western Friends Honor Former Hastings Couple

HASTINGS, March 14 (ENS)—Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bibbins (nee Ella Beamish, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Beamish), recently celebrated their silver wedding at their home in Assiniboia. The following item appeared in the Regina Times and was sent to Mr. and Mrs. Beamish.

Assiniboia, Sask.

Married at the home of her parents, Hastings, 25 years ago, Mr. and Mrs W. J. Gibbens celebrated their silver wedding here. Sixty-five friends and a delegation from the Leeville Homemakers, of which Mrs. Gibbins is a member, took them by surprise as they gathered at their home here to mark the occasion with fitting celebration. The evening was spent in community singing and a miscellaneous program presented by the guests with Ed. Lumb of Willows, presiding. Feature of the occasion was the presentation of silverware dishes, pyrex platter and silver individual gifts. Mrs Gibbins also receiving a cake plate from the Leeville Homemakers. Reeve Ludlow read the presentation address.

Mr. and Mrs. Gibbins have seven children, three sons and four daughters, Howard, the eldest son, who three years ago spent several months in this community, went overseas with the third contingent. He landed at a Scottish port and then took the train for Aldershot. In writing to his parents, he described his voyage as most enjoyable having sailed in the same boat that Queen Elizabeth and King George sailed in when making their ocean voyage to the Dominion.

Mr and Mrs. Gibbins expect to make a visit to Hastings this summer.

Born in Hastings on Sunday, March 10 to Mr. and Mrs. Alden Barker—a son.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Way and little daughter Joan, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. J. McBride and son of Oshawa were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Way. Mrs. McBride and Douglas remained for a week with her parents.

Bonarlaw

Mr. Ralph Wellman of Bonarlaw and Miss Betty Kerr of Belleville were guests at the Fritz-Orr wedding at Trenton on Friday.

The new refrigeration plant is being installed in the Maple Leaf cheese factory.

Mrs. Fred Fenn of Springbrook spent a few days this week with her daughter, Mrs. Percy Bateman.

Mr. Thomas Hannah has leased his farm at Bonarlaw to Mr. Gerald Broadworth and Mr. Hannah will be moving to Marmora, where he will operate a modern dairy. He will instal a pasteurizer.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Wellman and Clarence and Miss Phyllis Miles spent the week-end in Bancroft.

At St. Mark's Sunday afternoon last Stella Marie, aged three and Shirley Anne, aged one, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William G. McCombe, were baptized by the Rector, Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan B. McComb and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Baker on Monday of this week

Miss Marion Richardson spent the week-end in Toronto.

Game To Finish

Helsinki, March 14 (CP)

RUSSIAN ATTACKS were answered by Finnish counter-attacks today in bitter war-end fighting that continued until the very moment when an 11 o'clock armistice ended the conflict as agreed in Moscow.

The Finnish high command, issuing its "last communique" of the war, reported a few hours after the fighting ended that there had been no cessation until the very last.

"On the morning of March 13 the enemy continued to attack and our troops counterattacked on the isthmus, northeast of Lake Ladoga, and at Kuhmo up to 11 a.m. (4 a.m. EST) when both sides ceased," the communique said.

Ontario Premier Shunning Part In Election

TORONTO, March 14 — (CP). — Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario announced Wednesday that he intends to take no part in platform activity during the Federal election campaign but reserves the right of criticism when he feels that "criticism is justified."

The Premier, who in the Legislature last month sponsored a motion of criticism of the Dominion Government's war effort as "so little," ended long speculation upon his part in the campaign during an interview.

"Whenever I feel that criticism is justified, I will criticize," he said. "I want the people of Canada to judge the Mackenzie King Government's war record when the full fury of the conflict strikes us within the next few months. Let them judge the government a year from now.

"In my opinion there should not be an employable man in Canada on the relief rolls. They should be in the army or working in industry."

The Premier said he is "just as free to criticize the King Government as my Ministers are to praise it."

"I don't expect to take part in any platform activity," he replied in answer to a question. "I intend to criticize where I feel criticism is due, but I don't intend to take either side. My one regret is that I campaigned so extensively in the Dominion election of 1935."

Mr. Hepburn campaigned actively on behalf of the Liberal party in the 1935 election.

Outlining the characteristics of the Finnish people, their origin, and the customs and geography of their country, Mr. R. J. Bolton was heard in a fine address on Finland Wednesday evening at a supper meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club in their George Street Club rooms. Delightful solos were given by Miss Trucie Pearson and Mrs. E. Bennett, with Mrs. R. M. Paris at the piano. Miss Birdie Dawson presided for a brief business meeting, at which Miss A. Davidson made a progress report on the Spring bridge, which is to be held April 3rd. A letter was read from the Local Council of Women, in which it was urged that Ontario apples be used in Peterborough homes at least four times a week for the next ten weeks, thus helping Canadian farms and the exchange situation.

McBride—Hope

CENTRETON, Mar. 14 (ENS). — A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church parsonage on Sunday evening, when Rev. Wendell P. Woodger, B.A., of Cobourg, united in marriage Vera, second daughter of James Hope and the late Mrs. Hope of Centreton, to Jean Dale, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McBride of Centreton.

The young couple were unattended and will reside in Centreton.

FASHIONS

Your crisply ruffled pinafore leads a double life. You can wear it now in the kitchen to protect your dresses. In warm weather, slip it on over your play-suit to dress it up and make you look very dainty and feminine. "Little Miss Muffet" pockets are handy and decorative at the same time. Make it of a gay print or a solid color, and trim it with bright binding. A charmingly young sunbonnet is included in the pattern. You can omit the shoulder ruffles if you prefer.

Style No. 3156 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material, 9 yards binding, for pinafore.

With The Girl Guides

1st and 2nd Companies held a joint meeting, at which Mrs. J. Lynch spoke on St. Vincent's Orphanage, and asked for Girl Guide assistance for the tag day on Saturday. First-aid instruction was given by Mrs. R. Whalon; Mary Waite was awarded her knitting badge, the first to be earned—we hope this will inspire others. 3rd St. George's welcomed a new recruit, Helen Stevens, and the following Guides were enrolled: Dorothy Nokes, Lilian Nokes, Helen and Lilian Curtis. This company has completed several knitted articles which have been turned over to the Red Cross.

Brownies — At last meeting, Brownies were instructed in sewing, on buttons and darning, next week several will try their cooking test. Captain paid a surprise visit and made awards to the Brownies who passed their perfect hand tests over a period of five weeks. This test is to encourage hands without bitten nails and nail varnish — red nail polish being a pet aversion. On Wednesday, March 27, at seven o'clock, the Needlewoman's examination will be held in St. Andrew's basement. Miss B. King, the examiner. No Guide meeting on that night other than candidates for the badge—this is for all Companies.

A meeting of the Mother's Auxiliary was held on Wednesday, with a very poor attendance. Another meeting is to be held on April 15, all mothers, whether members or not, wanted to attend—we need you and your support. Mrs. F. Gray was forced through ill-health to resign—a new president has yet to be appointed. Mrs. Norman Buckley was appointed Badge secretary, and Mrs. Whalon, who has been acting Commissioner for the past three years, was officially appointed to that office. She il, however, also keep her Company warrant until May, when the Guide season ends.

QUESTION: There is a delicious cake using cocoanut and orange rind in the frosting and I think it is called Moss Rose Cake—the lady who served it at a party did not offer me the recipe when I praised it so I did not care to mention it further. If you have such a cake recipe I would like it. I think the cake recipes you print are unusual—I get so tired of plain layer cakes I am trying to make a different cake every week now. Thank you for your help.—N.R.M.

ANSWER: There is a Moss Rose Cake using several different flavors in combination that give it a piquancy that is interesting.

Moss Rose Cake.

One cup milk, ½ teaspoon almond flavoring, 4 eggs, 2 cups sugar, 2 cups cake flour, 2 cups freshly grated or canned moist cocoanut, grated rind, pulp and juice of one medium-sized orange. Scald the milk with the flavorings and let cool but not get cold. Break the eggs over the sugar and beat 12 minutes. Stir the flour into the egg mixture, then add the warm milk slowly. Stir until well mixed (about 3 minutes). Bake in two layer cake tins in two small square tins at 375 degrees Fahr. for 25 minutes.

To frost keep the layers separated cover each with plain white icing (1 1-3 cups icing sugar, 2 tablespoons cream, ½ teaspoon almond flavoring, 1 tablespoon butter).

When the icing is partly set but not hard, have ready the cocoanut mixed with the orange rind, pulp and juice. Pat this mixture into the top of the icing of both layers and put layers together.

We hope this is the cake you refer to and that we may help you again.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, March 15.

Judging by lunar and mutual aspects, this will be a day in which affairs will move at a particularly high tempo, with much force and aggressiveness directed toward major objectives. The energies and faculties will be deep-seated and serious, and profoundly ambitious projects should succeed, especially if promoted by group action of a drastic and even ruthless tension. Refrain from strife and impetuosity. The personal relations may be pleasant and progressive.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which ambitious aims and projects will be accelerated to a high pitch by aggressive and drastic attack. New and daring propositions may count on the support of groups and organizations. Select associates of power and energy but avoid strife, impetuosity and recklessness. There will also be sympathy and support from social, domestic or affectional sources.

A child born on this day may be bold, aggressive, practical and studious, and have highly-creative abilities in many directions. It also may be kindly, sympathetic and cooperative with social groups having humane objectives.

...Flower clusters are much favored this spring, although fruits — particularly cherries and currants—have wide appeal.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Bride Learned To Serve One Menu To Perfection

A little lady once had gone straight to business college out of high school, thence took a position as bookkeeper, then married the sales manager in her office, but never once thought she had a moment to spare to learn how to keep house or cook. But she did have good horse sense when she was faced with the problem of cooking on their return from the wedding trip.

But she vowed "I'll learn how to cook one meal at a time; I'll invite all those to whom I owe hospitality once (one couple at a time) and serve each one the same meal; then when I invite them a second time I'll have to learn a new menu to perfection.

She kept her resolve. After carefull consideration she selected as the basis of her first "perfect" menu Broiled Lamb Chops; Broccoli with real Hollandaise Salad Greens in season, Fresh Fruits in season, Crackers and assorted Cheese, Black Coffee in the living-room. When this meal required embellishment, she added consomme or bouillon, hard rolls, varied her salad dressing.

She sought out her best cook friend to teach her how to broil lamb chops but felt they were overdone, so evolved the following metohd:

Sally's Perfect Broiled Lamb Chops

Choose loin or kidney chops a little less than one-inch thick. Grease broiler rack with some of the fat trimmed from chop. Place under very hot broiler, not more than one-inch away from direct heat, for one minute, then turn, and allow other side to sear, then reduce heat to medium and allow second side to cook 5 minutes, then turn and give first side 5 minutes, turn again for about 5 minutes—lamb chops one-inch thick require 15 minutes including searing heat and medium heat, to make them done all through. Serve on very hot plate garnished with watercress, and pass mint in the form of jelly, sauce or raw.

Sally's Perfect Broccoli with Hollandaise

Personally select fresh broccoli from green grocer. Wash well and trim off only the tough skin at the bottom of stems—leaves are delicious greens and should be left on—they are very pretty too. Have at least 1½ quarts of water in granite jettle, boiling hard, add ¼ teaspoon soda, then add prepared broccoli, and boil uncovered until just tender. Immediately remove from water and serve on hot plates.

Genuine Hollandaise

Sally discovered that one of the secrets of successful Hollandaise is that it must not be served too hot—that is why hotel chefs never put it on a vegetable, they bring it to you in a little silver boat, giving it a few moments to cool, before it touches the hot vegetable which tends to make the butter "separate" out.

One-half cup butter, yolks 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, ¼ teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, 1-3 cup boiling water. Put butter in a bowl, cover with cold water and wash, using a spoon. Divide in 3 pieces; put one piece in a saucepan with yolks of eggs and lemon juice, place saucepan in a larger one containing boiling water, and stir constantly with a wire whisk until butter is melted. Add second piece of butter, and as mixture begins to thicken, third piece. Add the water, cook one minute, and season with salt and cayenne. Remove from heat immediately. (If mixture should curdle add 2 tablespoons heavy cream or 2 tablespoons boiling water which will somewhat retrieve its smoothness.) Pour into Hollandaise or gravy boat to serve.

"Salad Greens in Season"—these could comprise all of the following in combination on a salad plate or any one of them: Watercress, celery hearts, radish roses, lettuce wedges, tomato wedges or slices, cucumber or carrot strips, dill pickle strips, ripe or green olives, etc.

An epicure would want French Dressing with some of these salad greens. Our Sally always made it fresh at the table with a little salad dressing set one of her friends had given her for a wedding gift—by the same token if she had been given a waffle iron she would have made capital of it.

A typical "Fresh Fruits in Season" course might comprise of a fresh pineapple shredded and served in its own halved shell; or chilled Byng cherries; or dessert apples; or tangerines; always accompanied with the inevitable cheese and crackers which 99 out of every 100 guests like.

Her assorted cheese, a good quality cream cheese made from old Canadian Cheddar; one "culture" cheese (liked by most men) and one white cheese such as Swiss or Baumert or occasionally, Oka. The crackers should be crisp and unsweetened.

Coffee in the living room will give even a meal of beans a certain swanky air—create the habit of doing it yourself.

Do You Know?

Kitchen cabinets need frequent wiping down; it is best to use whiting mixed with a little milk or water for this purpose, it will keep the gloss on the enamel.

To make delicious gravy, after removing roast from pan, sprinkle some flour in the hot fat, stir until brown, then pour boiling water on and it will become brown and smooth.

Keep a bottle of linseed oil handy, and whenever you find a white mark caused by hot plates, dishes, etc., rub well with a piece of flannel dipped in oil. The mark disappears and a polish with a soft duster removes the oiliness.

DOROTHY DIX

Employers More Concerned With Ability Than Good Looks. However, Neatness and Cleanliness Are Demanded — Todays Letter Box.

Dear Dorothy Dix—Is it true that a girl must be beautiful before she can get employment? I have just been told by a woman who runs a placement agency that if I were not quite so tall and a bit better looking she would have no trouble in getting me a position because my work was far above the average, but as I am she cannot get me a job. Do all employers feel this way about a girl's looks? If I were hideous or malformed in some way, I could understand why no employer would want to have to look at me, but while I am no movie star, I am as good-looking as the average. In fact, I have been called pretty at times. But if I am not attractive enough to obtain employment, I am certainly not attractive enough to get a husband. Of course, like every other 18-year-old girl, I have always dreamed of love and marriage, and if that is out, there is nothing left for me in life. What about it?

DESPERATELY UNHAPPY

ANSWER:

I think the woman in the employment agency who told you that she could not get you a job because you were not "Miss America" knew very little about her business, because it is not true that the average business man demands that all of his female employees shall have passed a beauty test. Of course, there are certain lines of work, such as modeling in swanky dress shops, photographic modeling for advertisements, being chorus girls or in the movies, where good looks are a requisite, but the ordinary employer doesn't care two bits whether the girl he hires has a pug nose or a Grecian profile or whether she is blonde or brunette.

He wants her, of course, to be neat and clean and suitably dressed so as not to be hard on the eyes, but beyond that all he is concerned with is her ability to do what she is hired to do efficiently and be pleasant to get along with.

Indeed, so far from beauty of a spectacular character being an asset to a girl in business it is a drawback. Leaving aside the very few lecherous employers who pick out their secretaries for their pulchritude and not for their spelling, business men prefer to employ girls whose looks do not call attention to them. It saves jealousy on the part of their wives. It keeps the male employees from wasting their time and the girl's by hanging over her desk. And it prevents flirtatious customers from lingerous around trying to date her.

I once asked a business man why he had replaced a certain very beautiful young secretary he had with an old and homely woman: "I hated to let her go," he said, "because she was fine and intelligent and a good worker, but she put everything she earned on her back and every man who came into the office would give me a nudge and say: 'Who's the little queen?' And that didn't do her or me or the office any good."

So far as getting a job is concerned, your lack of beauty cuts no ice. Go to some other agency and the question will not be raised. Neither will it keep you from getting married. Look about you and see how many of the married women you observe could ever have qualified in a bathing beauty contest. Men are merely theoretical beauty worshippers. When it comes down to really picking out a wife, intelligence, charm, a sweet disposition, a jolly nature all are better bets than just looks.

Don't Wait Too Long

Dear Miss Dix—I am 19. He is 20. We are engaged and for three months he has been begging me to marry him at once and has gone so far as to purchase the engagement ring, but much as I love him I think it best to wait until I am 23 or 24. My reason for waiting this long is because I believe that at the end of that time we will know our own minds better, we would have more acquaintances and would have more money by that time to get started on. Just now we are both working and have enough to get by on, but I feel that we should wait until we have more. What is your suggestion in the matter? A. M. A.

ANSWER:

A girl of 19 and a boy of 20 who are already on their own feet and self-supporting are older than their years. They have had more experience of life and are riper in judgment than the pampered children of the rich are at 25 or 30, so they are ready for marriage earlier.

This being the case, I would suggest that a year or two would be quite long enough for you to wait and test out your feelings toward each other. In another year if you find that your tastes have not altered and that you still look better to each other than anybody else in the world I think you might go on with the wedding in all safety.

Don't forget that romances, when unduly prolonged, wear mighty thin and that you can't drag out a courtship indefinitely without its going flat on you. Marry while you are still young and ardent and work out your life together. There will be hardships in it, but there will be a lot of fun that you will miss if you wait until your hope chest is full of embroidered doilies and you have just so much money saved in the bank.

Bachelor Girl

Dear Miss Dix—Will you settle an argument that has been getting warmer every day for the last month between some friends and me? They insist that the term "bachelor girl" when applied to a woman denotes that she is an unmarried mother. I say that they are entirely wrong and that it is a term of respect assumed by many women who are of the highest character and respectability, but who do not like to be called old maids. Who is right? ONE OF THEM

ANSWER:

You are. Absolutely. The term "bachelor girl" carries with it not the slightest hint of disparagement. Many women who think there is some opprobrium in the appellation "old maid" or "spinster" have adopted it.

However, it has made no general appeal because to most of the successful, independent, intelligent, middle-aged women to whom it might have been applied it seemed a silly camouflagng of a fact that could not be ignored. They were not girls to begin with, and they were single because they wanted to be so, so why dress the situation up?

Step Out Confidently in the Latest Dances

Learn the Conga from Diagrams

In the spotlight—but then you're always in the spotlight on the dance floor! Everyone can see whether you really know smart dances like the Conga or if you're just making a stab at them.

So—if you'd be known as a good dancer, if you'd win lots of partners—practice new steps at home with simple diagrams.

The Conga you dance with body erect and knees relaxed — taking short steps with your feet flat on the floor. Now try our easy diagram for the Side Step.

Count 1—Step to side on left foot, hips sway left. 2—Cross right foot over left, hips sway right. 3—Step to side on left foot, hips sway left. 4—Sideward thrust of hips, twisting right heel to left and turning body slightly to right.

Then to do the Conga Rock — to shine in tricky steps in other smart dances! Our 32-page booklet tells how to do the Conga, Samba, rumba, tango, waltz, fox-trot, Westchester and shag — also the Castle Walk, Waltz and Maxie. Diagrams basic steps, variations and combinations.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO DO THE NEWEST DANCE STEPS AND VARIATIONS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

MAGIC CHOCOLATE FUDGE
3 ounces unsweetened chocolate
1⅓ cups (1 can) Eagle Brand Sweetened Condensed Milk
1½ tablespoons butter
2½ cups sifted icing sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla

Cut up chocolate and melt over hot water in double boiler. Add Eagle Brand. Bring water in under pan to rapid boil and cook mixture with frequent stirring, until a thick smooth mass is formed (about 5 to 7 minutes). Remove from heat and add butter and ½ teaspoon salt. Gradually work in the icing sugar, then vanilla. Spread about 1 inch thick in pan lined with waxed paper. Chill until firm. Cut in squares with sharp knife.

Births Marriages In Memoriam Cards of Thanks Deaths

BORN

DUNLOP. — Mr. and Mrs. D'Arcy Dunlop (nee Katharine Anne Devlin) announce the birth of a daughter, March 11, at Nicholls Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

HEATHER.—In loving memory of Eva J. Nisbett, who entered into rest four years to-day.

Happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet their memory still;
Her death has left a loneliness
That never can be filled.

—Loving memory by Father, Mother and Family.

HEATHER.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Eva Heather, who passed away March 14, 1936.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
Her weary trials and sorrows are past;
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more.

—Lovingly remembered by Husband and daughter Myrtle.

MOORE.—In loving memory of a dear husband and brother, George E. Moore, who passed away in Lakefield, March 14, 1939.

He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-bye to none;
The heavenly gates were opened wide,
A loving voice said "Come."

—Fondly remembered by a loving Wife, Family, and Sisters.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Warren Hall wish to thank the attending doctor and nurses, Rev. Parr, Rev. Sutcliffe and Rev. Robertson of Norwood, also all friends and neighbors who so kindly sent floral tributes, cards, and loaned cars during their recent sad bereavement in the death of their loving mother.

The family of the late Mrs. John Lawrence Kidd wish to thank friends and neighbors for floral tributes and letters of sympathy and all who assisted in any way during our recent sad bereavement of the loss of a loving mother.

ONE FALSE STEP

BY KATHRN BEMIS

CHAPTER XIX

When they returned to the table, began paying attention to the excellent food, now steaming enticingly before them, they drew Janis into their conversation as if nothing special had happened.

Lucinda cut into breast of duck, saying: "I saw a love of a dinner gown, Janis—in a new shop on Wilshire. It was pale rose tissue paper taffeta—elbow sleeves and diagonal folds of——"

"How nice of you to tell me." Janis hoped she sounded thoroughly sarcastic. "I presume you might get a good commission on the sale—but I'm not in the market for any more clothes."

Lucinda's mouth opened and shut in astonishment. "Why—I hope you don't think——"

Rock to be Boss

"No use stalling, Lue," put in Rock. "From now on I'm managing Janis' affairs—and she's cutting down on spending."

Lucinda laid down her fork. If a look could have killed, Rock would have been annihilated on the spot.

She turned to Janis, said levelly cool: "You know, I've really got you bargains, darling. If shopkeepers insist I accept a little something, I can't help it. I gave you my time, the benefit of my experience—introduced you to Abbie Turner——"

"Indeed, you did." Janis said frigidly, wishing that women engaged in free for-all battles the way men did. Nothing would give her greater satisfaction at the moment than to deal Lucinda Hollenbeck a few telling punches in vulnerable spots. Pretending to be a friend—hump!

"Well, then—what more could you ask?" insisted Lucinda.

"I didn't make the grade out at the studio," Janis felt impelled to tell her.

"You poor child."

Janis thought she detected a gleam of satisfaction in Lucinda's hard green eyes. But before she could definitely decide this, her chain of thought was rudely broken by a voice.

"Hi, Conover!"

Janis glanced up quickly. Where had she heard that thin nasal voice before?

She quickly appraised the slim young man standing beside Rock. His snapping black eyes reminded her of an incident which at first she could not place. Even when she did, it didn't seem to make sense that Rock should be so cordial to him. He resembled the man who had got off the train with her and snatched her handbag, not so long ago.

Then she thought: "What absurd ideas I get!"

Rock introduced the man to her as Chick Ranny. Lucinda cried delightedly: "Of all people! Chick! Where have you been keeping yourself all these months?"

The shifty - eyed Mr. Ranny fumbled with his loud purple tie, ran his neck out of his collar. "It's a break finding you here Lue. Come on and dance—we've got to make up for lost time."

And Lucinda was on her feet and away with Chick Ranny, immediately beginning to make up the lost time with a devastating smile.

Rock looked hot and bothered. Janis volunteered: "Have you known Mr. Ranny long, Rock?"

"Yes. We pal around together, off and on."

Conjuring Up Faces

"It's queer—he looks so much like the man who ran away with my handbag. Remember?"

"On the way out here? He couldn't be. I knew him when I was a guard at the prison—but he's been going straight for quite a while. However—he's nobody for Lue to get so hepped up about."

Janis had never seen Rock look so distraught. He ran a hand through his brown hair, rumpled it nervously.

A wave of resentment run through Janis. She asked quickly: "Why should you take such a deep interest in Lucinda's affairs? It's almost as if—as if——" She hadn't the courage to finish. Besides, Rock must not think her jealous.

He pursed his lips thoughtfully. "I don't know why I give her a second thought," he said frankly. "Habit, I suppose. She's the kind of girl who weaves a spell—gets a man muddled—oh, I'm talking nonsense." His laugh sounded hollow.

But Janis knew now how dangerous Lucinda was, and it frightened her. She had a feeling that she was slipping down the face of a cliff, that nothing could stop her.

ROCK reached across the table, took Janis' hand in his.

"You're the only girl I can ever love, Honey. Don't you see that? From now on, I'm going to follow you everywhere. Why—you belong to me — and I've neglected you lately."

His quick change of mood, puzzled Janis. Should she place any confidence in it? She wondered if not knowing what Rock would do or say next was what made him so irresistible. She withdrew her hand from his a little doubtfully.

She deliberately changed the subject. "Now you're in a different line, you won't need to see much of people like Chick Ranny, will you?"

He fastened his piercing brown eyes on her peculiarly.

"Want me to be a snob? Anyway, I can't in this case. Ranny and I have a deal on that will net us plenty."

Janis scowled into her plate which only a few minutes ago she had thought so attractive. Now the white meat of the turkey, the red beets and yellow egg yolks on green romaine were decidedly unappetizing.

"Come on, snap out of it, Hon. Let's go on the floor and show the crowd some real footwork."

Light Feet, Heavy Heart

She rose uncertainly and went with him to the dance space. Her face was somber, pale; she was doing a lot of thinking. She had an urgent desire to get away from all this, away from something that Rock represented which scared her. She thought of Boardman West back in St. Louis; nearly wished she had taken his advice, not come out here. Even now, it might not be too late to get back her old job. No one would know she was married. Somehow that part of her western experience could be forgotten, perhaps remedied.

But in the next instant all this melted away. The haunting melody sent out by the famous orchestra tended to salve over Lucinda's presence on this date, and even Rock's preference for shady company. His cheek firm and warm on hers, their steps coinciding in such perfect accord, made dancing a skimming through the air on a romantic dream-cloud.

So once more Janis lost her inherent balance, thought she believed in Rock Conover and his temperamental lovemaking.

Rock's irritation at Lucinda, however, endured throughout the evening; and Lucinda seemed possessed to add fuel to the fire by continuing her marked attention to the loud and flashy Mr. Ranny. Rock sputtered about the service, the food, the music, the temperature of the champagne, yet seemed unable to get enough of it.

Janis finally took on the obligation of taking care of this misbehaving husband of hers and suggested leaving. Lucinda and Ranny scoffed at the idea, but Rock worn out by his own emotion, said he'd had enough for one night and weaved up from the table.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THINK IT THROUGH

PHYCHIC bids will seldom damage your side if both you and your partner will do some careful thinking. Most of the occasions on which they prove profitable are those on which one opponent of the tricky bidder fails to employ his reasoning powers as well or as thoroughly as he might. There is usually enough of a clue to the situation to enable you to figure out what your rivals are up to and thwart them.

North could see that, with a passing partner, his side had practically no chance to prevent a game for the vulnerable opponents unless he could bamboozle them out of it, hence his crazy opening bid. East passed to see if his opponents would get into trouble at hearts. But, when North passed his partner's spade overcall, East could be virtually certain North's opening was a fake. His bid of hearts, at the range of two when vulnerable, certainly indicated substantial strength.

South's second bid, after scenting his partner's machinations, was mainly to obstruct the opponents. The one unpardonable act of the auction was West's pass. He explained later that he read North as having a bare borderline opening, and East's 2-Hearts as a sort of informative-double type of cue-bid to get him to bid one of the unnamed minor suits. He didn't go far enough to figure that, if East could thus afford to force the bidding into the three level, he must be quite strong. West should have bid 4-Hearts without a qualm.

It was a sad story. South made his 2-Spades, losing two tricks in diamonds, two in clubs and one in hearts, whereas East and West could have made five hearts, losing only one spade and one diamond.

Will Protest Closing Of C.P.R. Line

LINDSAY, March 14—(ENS). — Lindsay council last night formed a committee of Deputy-Reeve J. L. Baker and Aldermen Lorne Jordan and C. E. Ferguson to study the correspondence received regarding the proposed abandonment of the Lindsay-Dranoel line by the C.P.R., also the transfer of the Lindsay-Bobcaygeon line to the C.N.R. If the proposed changes are approved by the Board of Transport Commissioners, Lindsay will be without C.P.R. service of any kind.

Alderman Richard Butler said he was informed there would be an increase of 50 cents per ton for coal in Lindsay if the C.P.R. moved out of the town due to the change in transportation rates. The committee was instructed to attempt to get a guarantee of competitive rates in Lindsay.

Council granted the Citizens' Band the sum of $100, just half the band requested to purchase the uniforms of the now-defunct Oakville Band. The uniforms, 31 of them, can be purchased for $200, and will be used by the local band as their official uniforms until they have enough in the treasury to purchase the kiltie uniforms which they desire.

The number of persons receiving relief in Lindsay during the month of February decreased 45 per cent. from the same month of 1939, the relief report of the Welfare Department shows. The cost to the town for relief in February, 1940, was $483, as compared to $1,391.70 in February, 1939.

The name Cyril Douglas Hughes MacAlpine, that borne by the National Government candidate in Victoria, was too long for the ballot so permission was received from the candidate to put just the initials on the ballots which are being printed at the present time. Had the candidate not consented to the printing of his initials only, it would have presented something of a problem for the ruling of the returning officer. Mr. MacAlpine's opponent, Bruce McNevin, has his name in full on the ballot.

World Thoughts On Finn Peace

BERNE, Switzerland—(AP). — The Swiss, in the words of the newspaper Baseler Nachrichten, "learned with consternation" today of the Russian-Finnish settlement.

Many newspapers asserted that the treaty was "forced" on the Finns.

BERLIN — (A.P.). — German spokesmen expressed satisfaction today over the Russian-Finnish peace.

Its terms, they said, were "in just proportion to the sacrifices made and in just proportion to the needs and necessities which certain states in large 'living spaces' have a right to claim."

ROME—(AP)—Pehr Evind Svinhufvud, former Finnish president, learned of the Finnish-Russian peace treaty when he arrived here today from Berlin but he made no comment.

Italians viewed the Moscow treaty as a compromise which stopped the threat of general warfare spreading through Scandinavia, something both Premier Mussolini and Adolf Hitler are eager to prevent.

Bulgaria Happy.

BUDAPEST—(AP) — Southeastern Europe appeared to react hopefully today to the Russian-Finnish peace.

Authoritative quarters in Hungary bordering both the Soviet Union and Germany, asserted the price exacted of the Finns was "relatively cheap for ending a hopeless war."

Rumanian officials were confident Germany is dissuading Russia from any attempt to regain Bessarabia, at least while Germany wants Rumanian oil and grain.

News of the Finnish peace was received happily in Bulgaria where there is strong pro-Russian feeling.

Yugoslav newspapers described the peace as "a blow for the Allies." The semi-official Vreme of Belgrade said the Allied offer of troops for Finland was "very good but came too late."

TOKYO—(CP-Havas). — Japan will serve advance warning on Moscow, the authoritative Nichi-Nichi reported today against using the Russo-Finnish peace as the signal to stiffen Soviet policy in the Far East.

The newspaper said that Russia, once peace was reached in Scandinavia, might be expected to take a stronger attitude in the Orient.

MOSCOW—(AP).—Today's war communique of the headquarters of the Leningrad military area said merely:

"Nothing of importance at the front."

Toll Of 280,000 In Red Invasion

COPENHAGEN, March 14—(AP) —Foreign military observers to-day estimated the Finnish-Russian war had cost at least 565,000 casualties, half of them dead.

These sources divided the losses this way:

Russia — Approximately 250,000 dead and 250,000 wounded.

Finland— 30,000 dead and 35,000 wounded.

The abnormally high percentage of war dead was attributed to the bitter cold weather in which most of the war was fought. Many deaths were from freezing after wounds which otherwise would not have been fatal.

One Danish newspaper correspondent to-day reported Finnish casualties on the Karelian Isthmus front alone were 30,000, including 2,000 young Finnish officers.

HAD SORE, STIFF JOINTS; STOMACH GAS AND ACIDITY— NOW HE ENDORSES SYNTONA

Describes How It Gave Him Pleasant Relief After Many Years of Suffering With Indigestion, Constipation, Skin Eruptions and Rheumatism.

MR. WELLINGTON WARD

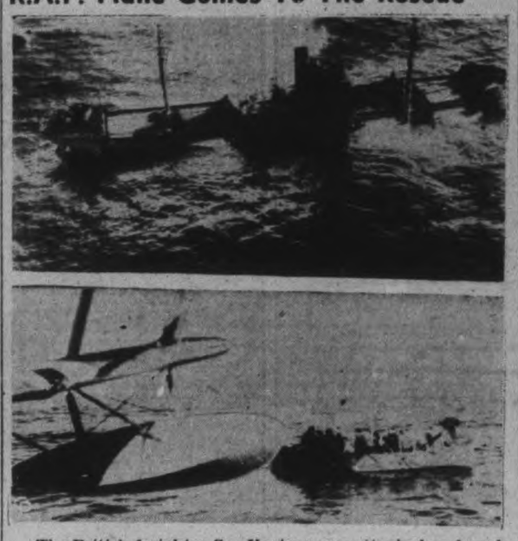
All who suffer from conditions that are caused or aggravated by faulty assimilation and elimination; disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels; toxic poisons and irritating waste matter in the system, should be interested in the splendid results that other local men and women are receiving by taking a treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. Here, for example, is the interesting experience of Mr. Wellington Ward, 169 Main Street, Hamilton, according to his recent report:

"Five years ago my stomach started to give me trouble and everything I ate just seemed to ferment and cause gas, bloating, and constipation. My tongue was coated and sour, burning acids would rise right up into my throat. I was always having periodical attacks of boils and skin eruptions. This trouble began many years ago, and no matter what I used I couldn't get any lasting relief. After I went to bed at night I would suffer with gas pains and my head would swim so I couldn't sleep. Then, lately, rheumatism set into my knees and the joints got so sore and stiff I could hardly get around.

"It was only a few weeks ago that I decided to try Syntona and I am happy to say the first bottle helped my stomach and bowels. Then my skin began to heal and the rheumatism began to clear up. I sleep better now, I enjoy my meals and I feel more healthy and happy than I did in years previously. I would surely say that any person who suffers like I did should get Syntona and take it."

All who suffer are cordially invited to call at Elliott's Drug Store, Peterborough, and find out for themselves about this pure herbal compound that is helping so many people.—(Advt.)

R.A.F. Plane Comes To The Rescue



The British freighter Sea Venture was attacked and sunk by a Nazi U-boat, which fled as an R.A.F. coastal plane appeared on the scene. As the plane appeared the submarine took one last shot which took effect, TOP. The R.A.F. plane stood by the crew of the Sea Venture until a shore lifeboat came out to bring the seamen safely to land.

Over Hundred Canadian Speeches By Tweedsmuir To Go Into Book

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP).—Lady Tweedsmuir, soon to return to her home at Elsfield, Eng., is arranging for the printing of a volume which will contain more than one hundred speeches made by Lord Tweedsmuir during the years he was Governor-General of Canada.

These speeches were made after careful preparation. The volume likely will be printed late in the year after Lord Tweedsmuir's memoirs have been published.

After publication of the memoirs and speeches, Lord Tweedsmuir's last novel, based on some of his experiences in Canada and written around the fictional character, Sir Edward Leithen, will be printed.

It is understood here that Lady Tweedsmuir will devote much of her time at Elsfield to writing, already having published a number of books, some of them for children. One of her best-known works was "The Scene of Water," dealing with the depressed mining areas of Wales. She lived in the mining areas to gather material for the book.

Mrs. L. A. Killick, Lord Tweedsmuir's personal secretary, will remain with Lady Tweedsmuir.

Warsaw

Rev. Mr. Mark, who has led the Presbyterian services on the Warsaw charge for the past five Sundays will likely remain until after Easter. However, he has offered his services to the country and may be called away any time.

Rev. Mr. Walker conducted a splended service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Crowe. The attendance was good.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson preached a very helpful sermon on Christ's Betrayal on Sunday evening. The newly purchased piano was used for the first time.

Mission Meeting Is Enjoyed

WARKWORTH, March 14(ENS)—The W.M.S. meeting of St. Paul's United Church on Thursday evening, March 7, at the home of Mrs. B. Buchanan, was largely attended. The president, Mrs. J. R. R. Cooper was in charge.

During the business period Mrs. W. H. Barringer(supply secretary, reported the sending of the supply box to the Presbyterial secretary. It was also stated that the allocation for the year 1940 was $226.00.

Interesting numbers of the program in charge of Mrs. D. S. Thompson are as follows: Vocal duet by Misses Ona Carr and Lila Nelson; solo by Mrs. Harry Wilson; piano solo by Ferne Wilson.

A drama, portraying the fourth chapter of the study book was presented by Mrs. J. Greenly, Mrs. W. Grant Allen, and Miss Alma Cole. Mrs. W. J. Harper led in prayer.

At the close a contest was enjoyed, after which the hostess served a dainty lunch.

Emily Favors Taking Over Abandoned Line

OMEMEE, March 14.—The Emily council met in the farmers' club rooms, Omemee, on Tuesday. Members present were W. J. Patrick, reeve, in the chair, and Councillors Harold Dick, Paul J. McGuire and Thomas Morrisey.

The following communications were read and laid on the table for further discussion, and action, if necessary:

From Hon. Eric Cross, minister of Public Welfare, advising council that the present scale of relief viz: 40-40-20 would in all probability be maintained in 1940, and outlining conditions under which relief would be granted.

From the chief clerk of municipal roads advising council that a subsidy would be paid on an expenditure of $6,812.30, which was the amount approved by the department.

From the Department of Municipal affairs informing council that the subsidy to municipalities in 1940 would be one mill.

From the chief engineer of municipal roads informing council by-law No. 690 appointing a road superintendent had been approved by the department.

From O. Zealand, Coderre, Saskatchewan, asking for information about the bonus on wire fences.

From F. L. Weldon, enclosing list on old age pensions and those on mother's allowance.

From the registrar, Board of Review, informing council that sittings of the board would be held in Peterborough on March 13 and 14, when representations from council would be heard.

From the postmaster at Lindsay, complaining that that portion of Ops-Emily boundary travelled by the courier on R.R. 5, Lindsay, was at time impassable, and pointing out that it was quite within the power of the department to withdraw the service under such conditions.

School accounts were received from school sections 4, 6 and 7.

A. H. Veals of Cavan introduced a deputation from Emily, Cavan and Manvers asking that a joint effort might be put forth to have the abandoned C.N.R. line from Omemee to Bethany taken over as a public road, pointing out that Manvers township were quite willing to assume that portion which lies in Manvers.

Councillor McGuire, after expressing his entire sympathy with the request, pointed out that some of the conditions which would have to be met before the road could be assumed by the township and assured the deputation of co-operation on his part to assist in any way he could in the matter.

Other members of the council spoke briefly expressing sympathy with the project, and the Reeve assured the deputation of co-operation on his part to assist in any way he could in the matter.

Other members of the council spoke briefly expressing sympathy with the project and the reeve assured the deputation that consideration would be given and some action taken on the matter.

A road account from the County of Peterborough for snowplowing was received and laid over for further consideration.

The road accounts as presented by Walter Herlihey, road superintendent were approved and ordered paid by the treasurer.

Payments

Miscellaneous: Provincial Treasurer, insulin for 3 months, $7.43; Harold Dick, expenses to convention, $10; Paul J. McGuire, expenses to convention, $10; Thomas Morrisey, expenses to convention, $10.

Schools: S. Section No. 4, Joseph Piggott, secretary-treasurer, $300; S. Section No. 6, Vincent Perdue, secretary-treasurer, $100; S. Section No. 7, Frank Crough, secretary-treasurer, $65.

Relief: M. D. Earl, $15.65; George O'Donnell, $1.97.

Motion: That the reeve and Councillor McGuire be a committee to meet the Omemee council or any other interested council in the matter of taking over the abandoned C.N.R. line from Omemee to Bethany as a public road.

A Third Term

London, March 1-4 (CP)

WHILE Sumner Welles was winding up his talks with British leaders today, The London Daily Mail declared that the president's decision on a third term depends on Welles' report.

"If there were a chance of producing a plan for peace parleys in Europe, and eventually a world conference of all nations, President Roosevelt would be ready to throw his weight into the balance and then retire from the White House in the autumn at the end of his second term," the editorial said.

"But should there be no peace loophole revealed by Mr. Sumner Welles' report and the war develops into a fierce European struggle, President Roosevelt will certainly run for a third term."

The newspaper added that the American under - secretary of state, here after talks in Rome, Berlin and Paris, had "so far found no foundation on which the slightest peace plan could be constructed."

OMAHA, Neb., Mar. 14. — (AP).— The Moran boys don't wait around for doctors before making their appearance in this world. A seven-pound son was born to Mrs. Marion J. Moran in an ambulance whose progress en route to a hospital was slowed because of icy roads. Father aided in the delivery and hospital authorities said to-day mother and baby are doing fine. Six years ago the Morans' other son Bob was born before the doctor arrived.

Three Persons Perish In Hotel Fire

Airmen Rescue Three Firemen 29, Score Hurt In Leaps

TORONTO, Mar. 15 — (CP). — Firemen at noon to-day were searching the ruins of the Avonmore Hotel, Jarvis Street, for further victims of a fire that is known to have taken three lives and to have injured a score of persons. Property damage was estimated at $40,000.

The dead are: Mrs. Nellie Gibson, Toronto, James Hart, Toronto, and a man tentatively identified as R. Chester, 50, of Aurora, Ont. He had been previously identified as Donald Chester, Richmond Hill, Ont.

William Gifford, another guest at the 90-year-old hotel, is in hospital in a serious condition. A dozen others are suffering from serious burns or injuries received when they jumped from second or third storey windows.

Arthur Oswald, night clerk, noticed flames in the dining-room shortly after midnight. He dashed upstairs to ring an alarm and then went from room to room to warn guests, at the same time shouting "Fire" loudly enough to warn those on the third floor.

Firemen from seven stations chopped holes in the ice-coated roof to make way for their hose. When the firemen arrived, guests were already leaping from the windows.

Oswald twice ran back into the burning building to give warning to any guests who may not have heard his first shouts. Firemen said Oswald's clothes were on fire when he made his final exit.

"It was just like a puff of smoke at first," he said from the hospital bed where he is being treated for burns. "Then the flames licked like mad along the halls. I could hardly keep ahead of them."

The hotel to-day was little more than a mass of tangled, ice-coated

Find A Battlefield, Make War On Germany Says Growing French Press Criticism

PARIS, March 15—(CP).—As the French Senate gathered for a second day of secret debate on the Allied war strategy, former Premier Leon Blum's newspaper Le Populaire today described the atmosphere in Paris as "a political crisis the consequences of which cannot be gauged."

For three hours yesterday Premier Daladier explained to the Senators the conduct of the war. It is likely a vote will be taken tonight.

"A vote not of an overwhelming or unanimous character like the others since the start of hostilities could be interpreted as censure of government action," commented Le Petit Journal.

The debate covers French reaction to the Russo-Finnish peace. One of the four Senate leaders questioning Daladier yesterday was Pierre Laval, former Premier and a possible successor to Daladier in the case of a government upset:

The general tenor of press criticism is that the Allies "find a battlefield and make war" against Germany. "In other words," says Le Temps, abandon the present war of siege policy."

Blum, writing in Le Populaire, said "The Finnish peace does not expose the Allies to any new danger, or at least to any early danger, but their cause has been damaged."

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., March 15 (CP)—Eleven persons were injured, four of them seriously, when No. 4 Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train from Calgary crashed head-on into a shunting engine early today. The engine tender, mail, baggage and express cars of the passenger train were derailed.

Several hundred feet of track were torn up and the roadbed turned into a semblance of a freshly ploughed field. The mail car and all its contents were burned. The accident occurred at Dennis Siding, 20 miles west of Medicine Hat, southeastern Alberta.

Army In Canada Starts Vote Upon Saturday

OTTAWA, March 15 — (CP). — Elaborate machinery set up to record the vote of the active service electors—soldiers, airmen and sailors in the defence forces—will start rolling tomorrow, when the troops in Canada begin to cast their ballots.

Different units of different services are often composed of men from all sections of Canada, and it took some ingenuity to devise the mechanical means whereby an active service elector's vote will remain secret and yet reach his home constituency safely to be placed to the credit of his chosen candidate.

Special officials have been sent to England to count the ballots of Canada's overseas forces of some 25,000, but a larger corps of checkers and counters is necessary to count the votes of the 60,000 odd men still in Canadian territory.

The voter may appear at his unit's polling station anytime between tomorrow and March 23 to ask for his voting papers.

The active service elector places his name, rank, regimental number and last place of residence in civilian life upon an envelope in a sworn declaration before a commissioned officer, who then hands him a smaller envelope and a ballot form.

This special ballot must be marked with the name of the candidate for whom the vote is intended, folded, and placed in the smaller envelope, which then is sealed, in the presence of the officer, within the outer envelope.

3 Special Officers.

The outer envelope is returned to the voter, who must mail it to the special active service returning officer, of which there are three; one at Halifax for the Maritime provinces, one at Ottawa for Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba, and one at Edmonton for the other western provinces and the Yukon.

As the postman deposits the sacks of ballots with the special returning officer at one of the three centres, the envelopes are sorted and placed in a separate ballot box for each of the 243 constituencies. The vot-

Secret Guarantee Said Given Scandinavia In January Against Red, Nazi Attacks

Britain Mobilizing Empire Resources Bars Nazi Securities

LONDON, Mar. 15 — (CP). — Great Britain brought three new weapons into her economic front line to-day to meet the threat of a German-Russian-Italian bloc aimed at capturing her trade.

Her effort is intended to fortify the British position in the economic struggle by increasing her reserves of foreign exchange for purchases of war supplies, mobilizing the resources of the British and French Colonial Empires, and driving German securities from British money markets.

These measures coincided with reports in Belgrade that Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop of Germany had suggested to Italy the formation of a German-Italian-Russian economic bloc with "all small states between these powers."

As reported in Belgrade, Von Ribbentrop's proposal to the Italian Government would put Europe's small Baltic, Central and Southwestern states in the economic orbit of the three totalitarian powers, with whom some already do most of their trading.

Norse Leaders Reveal Allies Blocked On Germany's Threat

LONDON, March 15 (CP)—The Daily Mail predicted today that Prime Minister Chamberlain will disclose secret assurances said to have been made two months ago to Norway and Sweden of Allied support if, in giving help to Finland, they became involved in war with Soviet Russia or Germany.

The newspaper said Mr. Chamberlain will make the disclosure Tuesday in the House of Commons.

The report of the Daily Mail's diplomatic correspondent followed a broadcast last night in which Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht of Norway laid refusal of a British request for permisison to send troops through Scandinavia to knowledge that "this would have meant our countries would have been involved in a great war."

Demanding a "positive policy" in the Balkans, the Daily Mail editorially declared the Allies have given Rumania a "blank cheque" promise of assistance and added:—

"If she is attacked it must be fulfilled. Failure to help because we could not get there (see Poland and Finland) would be the worst blows the democracies have yet received."

Koht, speaking in Oslo, said French and British overtures had

50,000 Finn Soldiers Killed Or Wounded "In Defence Of West ern Civilization"

HELSINKI, March 15—(AP via Radio).—Vaino Tanner, Finnish Foreign Minister, declared today that the more than 50,000 Finns who fell in the war with Russia died or were wounded "in the defence of Western civilization."

"Their sacrifice was not for Finland alone," he declared.

Tanner, in a broadcast to the Western hemisphere, said "the war has destroyed property worth hundreds of millions of dollars, and although we lose much by the peace terms we lost more in human values."

"Neither the material help we received nor sympathy was sufficient to save us from superior power," he said.

"Only a few thousand brave men had time to join our ranks and although others were ready to come to our aid we could not wait for them but were compelled to come to terms."

He described the destruction caused by air raids, the difficulties of caring for the homeless and the wounded.

"For them we must find a livelihood and a place of shelter. You know how hard it is to leave a place you love. The only consolation they feel is that they still belong to the race for which they fought."

Still, he continued, Finland will continue to fight to build up a nation.

10 Divisions Massed Near Holland

Hitler Said Planning Invasion To Force Allied Peace Talks

AMSTERDAM, March. 15—(CP-Havas)—Ten German motorized divisions under the command of General Johnnes Blaskowitz are concentrated in an area roughly 50 miles east of the Netherlands border, according to frontier reports reaching here today.

General Blaskowitz, head of the Breslau army groups during the Polish invasion, has made his headquarters at the Rhede Castle, near Stadtlohn, across the Netherlands border from Arnhem. His motorized divisions are concentrated west of Muenster, around Bocholt, Borken and Coesfeld.

LONDON, March 15—(CP)—The Havas News Agency said today that according to unconfirmed reports reaching London by way of a neutral country, Adolf Hitler is planning to invade the Netherlands soon in the hope that German occupation of that country will force the Allies to submit to drastic German peace terms.

The German offensive into the lowlands has been set, for an early date, the report said. Hitler would attempt to justify Holland's invasion by claiming that Germany needs air and submarine bases with which to combat the Allied blockade.

However, there are deeper purposes behind Hitler's plan, according to the report. He was described as hoping that Britain and France, faced with the threat of a "lightning" war fro mthe air and undersea would agree to open peace negotiations upon the Nazi leader's promise to withdraw his troops from the Netherlands.

It is reported that Joachim von Ribbentrop asked Premier Mussolini during his recent visit to Rome how Italy would act if the Reich attacked the Netherlands and Belgium.

Billion Dollar Allied-U.S. Plane Deal Off

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP)—Negotiations by the Allies for the purchase of additional thousands of United States warplanes suddenly were suspended today. The move was believed to be connected with the forthcoming congressional inquiry into the sale of airplanes to European belligerents.

Eight days ago a spokesman for the British and French purchasing missions announced in Washington that the anticipated airplane purchases would amount to about $1,000,000,000.

The suspension in conversations was released for export. The Allies have shown marked interest in the purchase of newer-type planes developed for the United States army air corps.

The inquiry into aircraft sales will start next week before subcommittees in both the House and the Senate.

War Measures.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 15 — (AP). —Great Britain, through Lord Lothian, declared to-day that her restrictions on imports of certain United States products were solely war measures and "not in any way intended to cause a permanent diversion of trade."

The assertion was contained in a formal statement by the British Ambassador issued by the British Embassy here.

State Secretary Cordell Hull, at his press conference a little later, said he was glad to be able to say that discussions were continuing with representatives of the British and French Governments to safeguard United States commercial interests.

Hull explained that total American exports to Great Britain, despite the restrictions on certain products, had greatly increased since the war started in September. Those to France have more than doubled, especially during the past two or three months, he said.

CaughtSneaking Along Norway Nazis Fire Ship

LONDON,, March 15—(CP).—The German steamship La Coruna, 7,414 tons, was scuttled at sea on Wednesday when intercepted by a British warship, it was announced officially today.

The warship picked up 60 members of the German crew after the ship was set afire. The warship later finished off the vessel with gunfire to prevent it becoming a menace to navigation.

La Coruna left Rio De Janeiro February 3 and apparently was trying to reach Germany by using Norwegian territorial waters. She was intercepted in "northern waters," the official announcement said.

Look At Finland, Then Jump League Is German Tip To Small Neutrals

BERLIN, March 15—(CP-Havas)—Small neutral states should draw the "obvious conclusion" from the experience of Finland and leave the League of Nations, the Berliner Boersen Zeitung said today in an article signed by Karl Megerle of the German foreign office

The League, Megerle asserted, is presented by the Allies as the basis for the future reorganization of Europe. By retaining membership, he argued, the small states "remain accomplices" in a plan based on the destruction of the third Reich.

"Workable neutrality is not compatible with membership in the League of Nations," he said. "Certain neutral states evidently believed, however, that they could maintain membership in the League despite the fact that this increasingly compromised them in the eyes of Germany and her friends.

"In the first place, two League members (Sweden and Norway) have just experienced in a direct manner the extent of the danger to their countries inherent in their involvement in the League set-up.

"Secondly, another member (Finland) has just realized that the League is just as incapable of assisting it as its Western European directors.

"Thirdly, Germany in this acute case was forced to recognize that the League functions in an exclusively anti-German manner and that certain states, through their connections with it, barely missed being used as passageways for troops of the enemy or as partners in its blockade against the Reich. What was only a threat today can become a reality tomorrow.

"Fourthly, it has been openly stated by the Allies that in the event of their victory the new dispensation in Europe is to be based on the principles of Geneva. Neutral states that still remain in the League, therefore, agree in advance to a realignment that could be constructed only on the ruins of the Reich."

Will Ask Hepburn To Conduct Probe

LONDON, Ont., March 15—(CP).—A. W. Gilleno, proprietor of the former Hollywood Dine-and-Dance Club, which was raided and wrecked by soldiers last fall, said to-day he would communicate with Premier Mitchell Hepburn, requesting a public investigation in view of the recent enquiry at St Thomas.

Through city council, Gilleno asked the Department of National Defence to pay a $1,200 bill for damages, and to conduct a probe. The Department disclaimed responsibility.

Huge Preserved Fruit Deal Likely With U.K.

LONDON, March 15—(CP Cable)—The Ministry of Food, it is understood, plans to purchase large quantities of preserved fruits and vegetables, giving preference to supplies from Canada and other parts of the Empire.

Commenting on last night's Board of Trade order prohibiting imports of canned and bottled fruit except under licence, a spokesman said it is necessary to slow down imports of fruit in order to conserve dollars and other currencies hard to get.

Imports of canned and bottled fruits in recent months have been substantially above the country's normal requirements, a large proportion of the imports coming from the United States.

The new Empire buying program, it was added, likely will have to wait until the situation becomes

Order Merchant Stand Trial In Murder Case

STRATFORD, Ont., March 15 - (CP).—James Crawford, 41, general merchant and service station operator at Prospect Hill, Perth county hamlet, today was committed for trial on a charge of murdering Amber Carter, 39, Blanshard township farmer.

Magistrate J. A. Makins heard five witnesses, one of whom was James McWilliam, Carter's uncle, and who lived with him. McWilliams testified to seeing Crawford fire the fatal shotgun blast. McWilliam's bail of $1,000 as a material witness was renewed.

It is likely that the trial of Crawford will be held in October.

Dr. T. J. McInnes, St. Marys, called to the Carter home, said there were indications of shotgun wounds in the chest. Carter was dead when he arrived. Later Dr. McInnes as-

MONTREAL, March 15.—(CP). — The worst snowstorm of the season and one of the most severe in years played havoc to-day with transportation and communiation facilities in Quebec province. There was no immediate estimate of the damage, but it was expected to be heavy. An improvement in conditions was anticipated during the day.

The telegraph and telephone companies appeared to be the most severely hit as the storm laid a blanket of more than nine inches of snow over a wide area of the province, crippled traffic in Montreal and delayed plane, train and bus schedules. There was no telephone communication between Montreal and Quebec, the Laurentian area north of Montreal was "lost" completely.

JERSEY CITY, N.J., March 15.—(AP).—The body of a man identified by police as Emanuel Eisenberg, 35, New York theatrical agent who fought with an airplane pilot while they flew 2,000 feet above New York Bay, was found to-day near the Bayonne port terminal.

The body lay in a pool of water at low tide. Police said Eisenberg's name was on the inside of a gray overcoat.

The plane in which Eisenberg was a passenger crashed in the bay yesterday after the fight with Pilot Joseph Rosemarin, 38, of Brooklyn. He was rescued by a tugboat and taken to hospital where he was treated for submersion and shock.

Eisenberg's death was recorded by police as simply a case of suicide," but a police guard was placed

Ribbentrop's Half Hour Monologue Fizzles Pope Refuses To Believe In Nazi Victory

VATICAN CITY, March 15. — (CP-Havas).—Authoritative Vatican circles disclosed last night that the German foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop spent more than half of his 65-minute interview with Pope Pius last week-end in an unsuccessful effort to convince the Pontiff of the certainty of a German victory in the war.

These sources said Adolf Hitler sent his foreign minister to the Vatican with the following aims:

1. To impress upon the Holy See the certainty of an impending and crushing German victory.

2. To impress public opinion in neutral countries.

3. To reassure German and Austrian Catholics whose distruct of the pro-Russian German policy is growing daily.

The interview, the same sources said, opened with a 30-minute monologue by Von Ribbentrop, who dwelt at length on what he claimed was the invinicibility of the Reich. He expressed the certainty that German arms would triumph some time this year.

The monologue, it was said, was interrupted finally by the Pope who asked Von Ribbentrop regarding persecutions inflicted by the Nazis on the Catholic clergy in Poland and the general anti-Catholic attitude of the Nazis in German-controlled territories.

Vatican circles said Von Ribbentrop limited himsef to vague promises regarding treatment of the clergy in Poland.

Germans Whip Neighbors Into Line In Desperate Moves For Supplies

Germany, desperately trying to ward off the effects of sea blockade, was reported to-day to be attempting to weld into an economic unit her neighbors to the east, north and south with the sole object of helping her to fight the allies.

At the same time Britain and France further tightened control over the output of their vast colonial empires, funnelling it into channels which will bring it to bear upon defeating Germany.

As March seeped away still without any great clash at arms, the economic side of the conflict came to the forefront in several capitals.

In an effort to draw these diametrically opposite ideas, the Fascist and the Bolshevik, closer together, Berlin exerted pressure on Rome and Moscow to improve their trade relations. Before Russia attacked Finland, Italo-Russian trade negotiations were under way. Germany wants them renewed.

As a bait to Italy in this regard, Berlin claimed yesterday that Russia had given a definite pledge she would never invade Rumania. A Russian move in the Balkans would be a casus belli for Premier Mussolini.

Such a rapprochement, improbable because Rome and Moscow travel different roads, would be the backbone of Foreign Mnister Von Ribbentrop's new idea of the economic bloc in which such countries as Yugoslavia, Rumania, Hungary, Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania would join with Germany, Russia and Italy in closely correlated trading, Germany thereby obtaining the raw materials she must have.

Finn Army Begins Funeral Retreat With 100,000 Dispossesed Civilians

HELSINKI, March 15 (AP)—The Finnish army slogged through the snows today in funeral retreat, beginning its withdrawal from the fronts it so stubbornly defended in 3½ months of war but which now are ceded to Soviet Russia.

Ahead of the soldiers there hurried 100,000 dispossessed civilians. They travelled by automobile, wagon and train or on foot, herding their livestock before them and carrying bundles that were the salvage of personal property.

These 100,000 bring to 460,000 the number who must find new homes. Half a million already are refugees, but 140,000 of them are from battered territories which Finland retains and to which they will be able to return.

While the Red army held its positions, marking time until Finnish troops have fallen back the required seven kilometres (about 4½ miles) in one day, the Finnish withdrawal started at 10 a.m. along a zigzag 226-mile front in the southeast, extending from the Virolahti Archipelago on the Gulf of Finland to the Russian frontier northeast of Lake Ladoga.

These daily marches, on a schedule provided in connection with Tuesday's peace treaty, will continue until the newly-narrowed Finnish frontiers are crossed. The entire Karelian Isthmus and the area north-east of Lake Ladoga must be cleared by March 26. Withdrawal from other ceded areas north of Lieska and in Eastern Finland will begin at 10 a.m. to-morrow.

The garrison from Taipale, eastern end of the Mannerheim Line, will have the longest march—about 100 milometres (62 miles).

Campaign Livens King, Manion Feed Fireworks

(By the Canadian Press.)

With the Government swinging into renewed attacks on Conservative leader Manion's National government plan, the Dominion election campaign gained spirited momentum today.

Lacking Federal sensations, the campaign has been fought chiefly on issues enunciated when it started and once again national government is receiving particular attention.

The Liberals held a large rally in Toronto last night and Prime Minister Mackenzie King took the occasion to oppose national government. He said a combination of all parties to form such a government would mean abandonment of opposition and "we would find ourselves with a class war as well as national war."

The war would be long and terrible and the next parliament would be a "war parliament" in the fullest sense of the word, the prime minister said. From the best information the war would last two or three years "and who can say what part of this world will not be terrorized?"

He felt maximum war effort over a period of years only could be exerted by a united country and the present government was in the best position to keep Canada united.

Manion Denies Tie-Ups

Dr. Manion spoke at Hamilton, Ontario, and denied charges that he owed his leadership to Quebec and now had a "tie-up" with Quebec. "I am subservient to no individual class, group or section. I am my own

Hon. McLarty Here Saturday

Electors of Peterborough West will have a chance Saturday afternoon of hearing an account of the administration of the King government by one of its cabinet ministers, Hon. Norman A. McLarty, Minister of Labor.

This public meeting in the Canadian Legion Hall will probably be the main feature of the concluding stage of R. M. Glover's campaign which is now approaching the last week.

Hon. Mr. McLarty is the representative of West Essex in the House of Commons. His home is in Windsor. He was elected in 1935 and was appointed Postmaster General in January 1939, and then last September succeeded the Hon. Norman Rogers as Minister of Labor.

Fireman of shunting engine S. E. Slansky, Medicine Hat, lacerations and shock.

Fireman of passenger engine W. Newell, Calgary, possible broken leg, possible fractured skull, and lacerated scalp, left ear and jaw, severe shock.

Engineer of passenger engine, O. Sinclair, Calgary, fracture of right kneecap, lacerations of scalp, bruised chest, severe shock.

F. Hokey, Calgary, mail car, lacerations of left hand and scalp.

Porter, name unknown, severe lacerations to head.

Among the passengers injured was W. T. McGrew, Toronto, strained neck muscles.

The pusher engine operated by Engineer A. Foulston and Fireman S. E. Slansky left Medicine Hat for Dennis Siding where it was to remain until the passenger train passed. In some manner the pusher engine was delayed.

One Crew Jumps

When Engineer Foulston saw the headlight of the passenger engine approaching at a speed estimated at nearly 70 miles an hour, he shouted to the fireman to jump. Both leaped clear. The fireman received only minor bruises.

Engineer Sinclair saw the headlight of the oncoming engine and grabbed the emergency brakes but they failed to hold before the collision occurred.

The force of the impact was terrific. The pusher engine was literally telescoped to half its size. It was thrown back more than 200 yards but remained upright on the roadbed.

The passenger engine, after tearing up several hundred feet of track, rolled over on its side in the ditch. The tender was torn loose and stood at right angles to the track.

The mail car which caught fire immediately was propelled front first into the ditch and was followed by the express and baggage cars. The rest of the train which included all the passenger cars remained upright on the tracks. The front wheels of the first passenger coach rested only a few feet from where the rails were torn loose. Another 20 or 30 feet might have caused a heavier toll.

Scattered along the embankment for 300 yards were pieces of metal from the two engines. The wheels under the pilot of the pusher engine were thrown 750 feet from the engine.

A wrecking train was dispatched from Medicine Hat soon after the accident. An auxiliary train was also sent from Calgary.

small countries have seen the ruthlessness with which Germany and Russia follow up the slightest penetration. With the group of countries concerned there are many deep rivalries.

To tie their economic future to the totalitarian states would be to give up hard money, which can be obtained by trading with the Allies. Further, they would have to revamp their domestic production because under the German barter system, the Nazis will accept only the things they want and production of other types of goods would be waste.

The Allies continue to match the enemy's economic moves by drawing the smaller nations—and Italy to some extent—closer into their own ecomic orbit. Trade agreements under which the Allies are buying up surpluses of foodstuffs and raw materials continue to be signed. The latest was between Britain and Norway this week. Moves still are under way to trade large amounts of Welsh coal to Italy in return for manufactured articles — such as munitions.

Colonial co-operation within the Allied empires is reported from London to be approaching the stage in which trade, transport and currency matters are virtually fused into a pool of economic resources. A conference at Paris between the British and French Colonial Secretaries is expected to result in new means of co-operation.

Britain tightened her hold on foreign exchange by placing under licence the importation of canned and bottled fruits and by taking steps to see that no German-held securities work their way onto British financial exchanges by undercover routes.

Norway's Two Reasons

He gave two reasons why Norway and Sweden turned down the Allies' original suggestion, first, that if Germany tried to intercept the Allied forces Scandinavia would be drawn into the war, and, second, the request came "too late."

Koht said 100,000 troops would have been necessary effectively to help Finland and he claimed it would have taken too long to get them and their supplies there. For those reasons, as well as Scandinavia's policy of neutrality, he declared, permission was refused.

"We had reliable knowledge," Koht said, "that if we allowed the two western powers to use Norwegian and Swedish territory for war purposes against Soviet Russia, Germany would regard this as a hostile act and intervene immediately.

"This would have meant our countries would have been involved in a great war. Thereby we would have done Finland harm and would not have helped her since, if Finland had had Germany against her, defeat would have been certain all the same."

Koht called criticism of Norway and Sweden "unjust" and said it came "from those who have done less for Finland than we."

Allied naval patrols this week. On March 10 the 5,600-ton Hanover was intercepted and, after the German crew had failed in an attempt to scuttle her, was taken to Kingston, Jamaica, as a prize of war. Three days later the 3,303-ton Eschersheim was sunk in European water.

La Coruna before the outbreak of war was a passenger liner trading between Hamburg, her home port, and Rio De Janeiro and Santos. Built in 1921, in Hamburg, she was 414 feet long and had a 61-foot beam.

When she slipped away from Rio De Janeiro her declared cargo, which included 30,000 bags of coffee and 2,000 cases of lard and some mica and nickel ore, totalled only 1,600 tons.

A Brazilian source at the time said she was loaded with much coal and there was speculation in Rio that she planned to transfer some of it to other German merchantmen at sea.

ruins. Some guests saved nothing but the clothes they wore. Some fled to the street in bare feet and in night clothes.

Firemen saved some guests with ladders. Others leaped into nets.

Gifford is said to have been burned when he sought to give the warning to other guests. He had ample time to run to safety himself, but chose to rescue others first.

As firemen sought to bring the blaze under control ,most ceilings in the hotel collapsed, their supports burned away. Yet when the fire was over there were still several guest rooms with their curtains intact.

Airmen Fred Hichon and George Vallance were cruising near the hotel on military police duty when the firemen passed them.

They followed and took a leading part in the rescues of three fear-paralyzed women from the top floor of the hotel. The third woman they rescued was hanging from the corner of the building.

The fire alarm was turned in by Tim Holland, a visitor from Northern Ontario, who then helped in wakening the hotel guests. He stopped passing cars to enlist their occupants' aid.

Firemen Carry Out 29

Fire Chief Sinclair said his men carried 29 persons down ladders, with the three women saved by the R.C.A.F. men, rescues totalled 32.

Among the injured now in hospital are: Miss Alice Runnells, 39, maid, suffering burns and shock; Miss Helen Lambe, 37, badly burned; W. J. McFarland, 69, slight injuries; Fred Hugli, slight burns; Don McNaughton, 35, slightly injured; Walter Osterby, George Fitzsimmons and David Ungerman, all suffering slight burns and shock.

Axe still in hand when newspapermen arrived, Airman Hichon modestly minimized the part he played in the rescues. The three women he and his partner saved were half paralyzed with fear and partly overcome by smoke, Hichon said. Firemen declared the women might have perished but for the bravery of the airmen. Civilians ripped off their overcoats, held them like life nets and urged the women to jump. Overcome by fear and half blinded by smoke, they refused and waited for the airmen to rescue them.

"We had an awfully tough time getting them to come down," Hicon remarked. "They were crazy" with fear, and the smoke made thing ten times worse—it was so thick we could hardly see."

"We were cruising around (on military police duty) when he saw the reels going up Jarvis street. We arrived at the fire just as the first reel pulled up. We grabbed a ladder and shoved it against the side of the building. We heard someone screaming, so we climbed up to see who it was. We couldn't see because the smoke was so dense.

People Screaming Everywhere

"We brought one woman down. Someone said: 'There's more up there,' so we went up again. We brought another down. Then we heard another scream and we saw a woman hanging from the corner of the building. Things were popping all around then. The noise was terrific. We got this girl, and that's all we could do."

"There were people in every window shouting and screaming," Holland recalled. "I saw several jumping out on to the roof of the drug store. When I got back from turning in the alarm the whole place was in flames.

"The fire just seemed to burst out in all directions," Holland continued. "I could see the flames shooting through from the bottom to the top ,and a few minutes later the roof was burning.

"I took off my coat along with several other men, and we held them out like nets and shouted to those at the windows to jump, but nobody seemed too anxious to take up the suggestion. They were all shouting, and some would run back into the rooms and then came to the windows again. Several stayed there until firemen were able to get ladders up for them, but I noticed that some who went away from the windows didn't come back. They must have got out some other way."

Inquiry Ordered.

Attorney-General Conant has ordered a public inquiry into the Avonmore Hotel fire that took three lives here to-day. First investigation will be by an inquest and then, if deemed necessary, by a broader public investigation by the Fire Marshal's Department.

Coroner Dr. Julian Loudon, aided by Chief Coroner Dr Smirlie Lawson, will conduct the inquest it was announced after Mr. Conant had conferred with his officials. Preliminary inquiries will be started at once.

"There are important aspects to be considered," said Mr. Conant. Among those to be consulted were the Toronto Fire Department and City Architect's Office, the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, and the Fire Marshal's Department.

If it is determined that a post-inquest investigation is necessary, the scope of the inquest will be narrowed to determination of the cause of deaths.

Men's Store Is Being Opened On Hunter Street

It's a far call from the dingy, ill-lighted tailor shops of fifty years ago to the highly modern men's furnishing stores of today, and local people who visit the new Men's Style Shop on Hunter street, opposite the Regent theatre, will marvel at the beauty of Peterborough's newest tailoring shop.

This new store opens tonight for inspection and on Saturday for business, and its layout is a tribute to the ambition and initiative of two Peterborough boys, Arthur Bacon and Robert Sager. Like all other aggressive young men, these two have counted the days till they could begin business for themselves, selling the type of merchandise they know, and today their dream has come true.

Both P.C.I. Graduates

Arthur Bacon is a graduate of Peterborough Collegiate. He began his career as a merchant with McWilliams spending 11 years in their employ, and ten years as manager, and saw the business changed from a hat and fur business into a gent's furnishing shop. His partner, Robert Sager, also graduated from P.C.I., and for the past several years his 6 feet 2½-inch frame has been a familiar figure on the basketball court at the Y.M.C.A. He was prominent also in church softball. For the past five years he has been assistant manager at McWilliams.

Pooling their resources and their ideas the two young men have a store that is entirely different from the public's idea of a tailoring shop. The old idea of long glass-sided counters has been discarded and in its place are narrow bunks with open ends on which merchandise may be prominently displayed. Open display cases down each side of the store complete the layout.

Not High-Priced

The store front is of vitrolite, chrome and glass with an inlaid marble entrance between the windows. The door itself is framed with insulux glass blocks that enhance its beauty. The interior is of masonite construction finished in soft tones of English brownstone and fern green creating a clean, restful picture. Semi-indirect lighting completes the setup. In the rear is a large fitting room and ample office space.

"We will stock popular-priced merchandise and our policy is to handle a range that the average person can afford to buy," said Mr. Bacon.

The stock of merchandise includes nationally known lines which while rating with the best are still below the high price bracket. They will have a wide assortment of hats, from the medium-priced ranges to Stetson and Brocks. They will sell Shiffer-Hilman made-to-measure clothing, and will carry some ready-made suits. Other well-known lines in stock are Forsyth shirts and pyjamas, Harvey Woods underwear and hosiery, Perrin gloves, Hickok belts and suspenders, Grenfell jackets, raincoats, work pants and sweaters.

Lovely Color Scheme

All suit samples on display for the man who wishes to choose a suit will be twice the size of the ordinary sample so that a person may have a better idea of the cloth and how it would look when made up.

O. J. Hayward had the general contract to renovate the store and materials were purchased from the Peterborough Lumber Company, who also supplied the fixtures. Electrical fixtures were obtained from Lt.-Col. Gordon Hall and Grant and Loucks did the wiring. Frank Lundy and his staff of five experienced painters did the interior decorating and the color scheme will enchant many housewives who as this time of year are thinking of paint and wallpaper.

Everyone is invited to visit the store this evening to look over the new stock of cloths and the many lines of men's toggery in the latest styles and colors.

Army Starts Vote Candidates' Colors Hidden

ALDERSHOT, March 15—(CP Cable)—Men and officers of the First Canadian Division started balloting today in the Dominion general election.

Lists of candidates were posted conspicuously throughout the training area giving their addresses, occupations and constituencies—but not their party affiliations.

The fact party labels are not shown in keeping with parliamentary usage promised to cause difficulty for the troops who have not been able to follow the campaign closely.

Unlike the people at home they have not heard stump speeches. Neither have they had political posters to teach them that "Harry Hansard" is a Liberal and "Bertram Blackrod" his Conservative opponent.

(It was stated in Ottawa last night that the Liberal and Conservative parties have taken steps to make the names of their candidates known to the troops overseas. The Liberals have cabled the list of their candidates and representatives in Britain are planning to distribute the list at Aldershot, possibly by handbills. The Conservatives are making their candidates known largely through agents of the candidates among the soldiers themselves.)

A commissioned officer of each unit of the division has been appointed ballot issuing officer. For at least three hours daily from today until March 23, except Good Friday and Easter Sunday, every member of the division can call at the ballotting office specially set apart to mark his vote.

Generally two or three periods are being set aside daily for recording the khaki vote.

Fliers Vote Too

The same system is being used in the training area many miles away where the first squadron of the Royal Air Force is quartered.

The active service ballot simply bears the words: "I vote for...." with instructions to "write name of candidate—family name last."

The khaki voter is required to make a declaration giving his name and rank, and stating whether he is a British subject, whether he has voted previously at this general election and whether he was ordinarily resident in Canada when he enlisted and giving his place of residence. The declaration is sworn to before a commissioned officer.

The voters are required to mail their ballots themselves to Colonel J. T. C. Thompson, special returning officer, with headquarters in Canada House, London.

Counting of the votes, by six scrutineers appointed by the political parties, will begin at 6 p.m. (1 p.m. EST) March 26 and counting must be completed within six days. When the complete count of the overseas active service electors' vote is made it will be forwarded to Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer for Canada, at Ottawa, who in turn will forward it to the returning officers for the various constituencies concerned.

STATEMEN'S SNAPSHOTS

Integrity. Courage. Ability. The people of Canada have come to associate these words with Norman M. Rogers, Minister of Defence.

Never spectacular, he is not as well known as some of the other big guns in Canada's war Cabinet, but what the people do know of him is found reassuring in a time of war.

There are four boys in the Rogers family, all successful. Arthur is secretary of the Canadian Bankers' Association. Dean is a graduate of the Harvard Business School and is in the pulp and paper business; Norman, who will be 46 next July, has more than once been mentioned as a possible future Prime Minister of Canada, and David, the youngest, is a prominent newspaper executive in Western Canada. Their mother, Grace McLeod Rogers, was also well known. She was the author of "Stories from the Land of Evangeline" and other books. Several years ago she contested the Cumberland riding as a Liberal-Conservative for a seat in the Nova Scotia Legislature.

Norman Rogers earned his way through college by working in a car factory and by selling magazine subscriptions. But he didn't have time to graduate before the war started, and he and his three brothers enlisted in the Sixth Mounted Rifles. He went overseas as a private and was invalided in 1917. "We never did get horses," he says today.

Subsequently he had a brilliant university record, earned a Rhodes Scholarship and for three years studied at University College, Oxford.

He returned to Canada and to his old college, Acadia University, as a Professor History. In 1927 he resigned to become private secretary to Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

But he went back to college once more. In 1929 he accepted the chair of Political Science at Queen's University.

For a quarter of a century the people of the Kingston and Portsmouth riding had elected a Conservative member. When Prof. Rogers accepted the Liberal nomination in 1935 many were surprised. His opponents were more surprised when he was elected with a comfortable majority.

When the Prime Minister named his new Cabinet, the Minister of Labor was Norman M. Rogers. Then, last September 20, he was promoted to the difficult Defence portfolio.

Mr. Rogers is modest, likeable, and has never attempted to look like a political leader. Probably that explains an incident which happened the first day he took over his present post. As he entered the building one of the guards stopped him, not too gently. "What's your name?" he demanded. "Rogers," was the reply. "Wait a minute," said the guard. "You will have to fill out a form stating your business." Mr. Rogers laughed and good naturedly explained why he had a right to be in the building.

HON. NORMAN McLEOD ROGERS

THE ONE YOU HAVE BEEN WAITING FOR FIGHTING, DYNAMIC
COL. GEORGE A. DREW
Will speak in the interest of GORDON K. FRASER, National Government candidate, in the CAPITOL THEATRE
Wednesday, March 20 at 2.30 P.M.

This is the big meeting of the campaign. Col. Drew's clear thinking and hard hitting and his effective marshalling of solid facts have made him a spearhead of the attack upon the government of Mackenzie King and the abuse showered on him by Liberals shows how much they fear him.

Don't miss this opportunity.

New Men's Style Shop Opens

Green vitrolite, chrome metal trimmings and deep plate glass windows gives the new Men's Style Shop on Hunter Street, a smart appearance, and makes it a valuable addition to the business section between George and Water Streets. The new shop opens Saturday and is directly opposite the Regent Theatre. The public is invited to visit and inspect the shop this (Friday) evening when many of the latest styles in men's toggery will be on display.

Fraser Challenges Jamieson Bone To Meet Him On Public Platform

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15—(ENS)—William A. Fraser, Liberal candidate, told his constituents at a meeting here Thursday night that most of the criticism levelle cat the King government had come from irresponsible men in different political quarters in Canada. He said the present election was the most momentous one ever facing the people of Canada and urged the people of Northumberland to return him to Ottawa to support the only leader and government properly equipped to ensure the proper carrying out of this war with Canada at the side of Britain.

It was due to the broad understanding, prospective, moderation and unremitting loyalty of Mr. King that he was able to carry a united Canada into the declaration of war at the side of Britain on September 7th.

"No one, regardless of the criticism, could doubt Mr. King's loyalty to the British Empire. There's no more loyal or understanding statesman in the Empire than Mr. King."

Producing Best Bombers

With reference to charges against Canada's war effort Mr. Fraser said that at present Canada was producing the highest type of bomber of any in the British Empire as well as planes of the Lysander and Fleet type. Canada is also manufacturing a type of fighting and training plane the equal of any produced in either Britain or the United States with the foundations for the production having been laid back in 1936. "We are under the Associated Aircraft set up building planes in six different plants for the British government. You've been told there aren't any modern planes at Trenton, but I've been through the airport there and seen planes of the most modern type including Bolingbroke and twin engined Oxford bombers."

The guns in use in the battery in Cobourg are the very latest type said the speaker claiming it was unfair to say that the armoury was not equipped for training. "When the men leave Cobourg they will have had all the training they require except actually firing the guns."

Assails Bone

He assailed Jamieson Bone, Nationalist candidate, who he charged with dragging "contemptible personal attacks" into the election. He said that though he had no desire to indulge in personalities he wished to protect himself against what he termed was "the filthiest campaign I have ever been connected with." "I'm not ashamed of my personal record," said Mr. Fraser referring to charges against him appearing in the Financial Post, "and I've earned every dollar I have which is more than I can say about somebody else."

Referring to the article in the Post Mr. Fraser stated the paper was published under the personal authority of Mr. Bone, who he challenged to meet him on a public platform, stating that he would be in Brighton on Friday, Wooler on Saturday and in Grafton and Warkworth on Tuesday and Wednesday.

"I challenge Mr. Bone to appear at any of these meetings. He continued saying that the remarks contained in the Post were taken from the court records of 1929 before he was a member of parliament and arose from an action he brought against a man who had stolen money from him.

Mr. Fraser pointed out that both he and Mr. Bone had qualified for the election more than a week ago and when he didn't appear at the nomination meeting held in Warkworth he hadn't "scuttled Northumberland" but merely torpedoed Mr. Bone and his friends. He claimed he had remained away from the meeting there on the advice of his executive.

Interested In Agriculture

In a review of his record and that of the government, Mr. Fraser declared that one of his primary interests had been agriculture and that he himself owned one thousand acres of farm and orchard in the county. It was the Liberal government which enacted legislation giving the farmers a bonus on high scoring cheese and this along had returned the farmers an amount approximately one-third of the total taxation in the township. By this legislation the government was also paying fifty per cent of the cost of installing automatic refrigeration in curing rooms of the cheese factories and this had brought about a considerable increase of revenue to the farmers.

Some of the best apple producing country in Canada is located in the southern part of Northumberland on Lake Ontario and when war broke out apple growers faced a tremendous loss as the export market to Britain was closed. However, owing to the timely action of the government in buying up Nova Scotia and Okanagan Valley apples and by zoning in Ontario province, where farmers were not obliged to sell their product in competition with that of other provinces thousands of dollars were put into the pockets of people in Northumberland county.

Chairman of the meeting was H. N. Carr, Northumberland representative at Queen's Park, who directed his remarks against the formation of a national government, declaring that the type of government which Manion might assemble would not be working in harmony until Hitler was in Canada. Only criticism he had for Mr. King was that he hadn't more completely recognized the abilities of Billy Fraser and made him a member of his cabinet.

Other items on the program included a musical prelude by Clark McKelvie's orchestra and two vocal solos by Mrs. A. G. Watson.

Debate Closing Of Stores On Wednesdays

HASTINGS, March 15—ENS). — Hastings merchants, having formed a merchants' branch of the Boosters' Club, seem intent on going after business in a bigger way according to the general feeling among the merchants at the meeting held in A. J. McKenty's store Thursday. W. M. Fowlds, chosen chairman pro tem previously, was unanimously elected to head this branch. Harry Anderson was chosen secretary and the following were appointed a committee representing every branch of business done in Hastings: C. H. Gillespie, J. V. Fuller, I. Bond, Sr., J. C. Wilson, S. Stevenson, A. S. Spooner, H. Petersiel, Walter Hubbell, Harold Wilson.

Merchants pointed out the fact that Hastings was a tourist town growing in importance and size and that they felt a certain amount of potential business was being lost in summer months by closing on Wednesday afternoons when the tourists were here. It was generally agreed to take up a petition among the merchants and if sufficient majority could be had, council would be asked to rescind Wednesday afternoon closing by-law. It would be understood, the merchants would give their hired help the half-holiday as usual and the employer was free to take his holiday on a different day, without the store being closed.

It was also pointed out that in winter months, the stores remain open three nights each week when there is little business to be had and in some cases operating at a loss after 6 p.m. This matter will be taken up next fall.

A dollar day for Hastings is being planned in the near future and a committee was appointed to gather information on the topic and report to the next meeting.

Message To Daladier

PARIS, March 15—(CP-Havas).—Sumner Welles today handed to Premier Daladier a personal message from President Roosevelt, during a half-hour talk at the premier's office.

The United States under-secretary of State called on M. Daladier almost immediately after his arrival here by plane from London, on his way back to the United States via Rome.

Sweden Thinks It Over

The day after Finland accepted the peace terms of Russia the government of Sweden indicated it was willing to discuss with Finland the formation of a defensive alliance.

The day before and the week and the month before Sweden would not allow troops to cross her borders so they might go to the aid of Finland. So it is quite fair to say that Sweden had much to do with Finland having to accept the terms imposed on her.

Sweden is probably very much aware today that those terms endanger Sweden almost as much as they do Finland, and they also make it uncomfortable enough for Norway. The reason is that Russia has moved west. Russia has new naval and land bases nearer to the sea waters which are vital to the continued existence of the Scandinavian countries.

We do not know what sort of satisfaction there is in computing the costs Russia paid in order to win. A half million men is not reckoned high according to the light of Stalin. He has rid himself and his country of that number in some of his party purges and has had nothing to balance against it.

Russia's move toward the West has been definite. On September 29 Estonia yielded to Russia naval and air bases.

On October 5 Latvia yielded to Russia naval, military and air base concessions.

On October 11 Lithuania yielded and Russia received the city of Vilna.

On March 12 Finland capitulated and Russia receives the most valuable of all concessions, giving her naval supremacy and domination of much new territory in the Baltic as well as in the Arctic. And all of these moves have been toward the West, and no doubt Britain is well aware that all these moves have also been in the general direction of the North Sea.

Sweden wonders today if Russia will follow up with a march to Helsinki as the Germans followed the pact at Munich by a march into Czechoslovakia. Sweden was fearful of breaking her neutrality by aiding Finland, and now she wonders if Russia cares very much about the neutrality of Sweden or the Scandinavian countries in general.

Sweden's trouble is that she began her serious thinking too late in the day. She closed the door through which help could have passed to Finland, and now is ready to talk defence alliance with a subdued Finland instead of with a fighting Finland. By helping Finland, Sweden would have been helping herself. Now it's too late.

How Much Help?

United States recently passed a credit of $20,000,000 to China, and one might look upon that as evidence of plain desire to assist the people of China in their struggle against Japan. Perhaps it might be reasoned that United States at the moment is not on what might be regarded good terms with Japan. Their trade agreement expired and has not been renewed.

It is a strange business this helping another nation by advancing $20,000,000 credit. Japan has been at war with China for several years, and Japan needs much material to keep on fighting. Figures which are readily available show that what Japan buys in United States in order to carry on war against China is very considerable.

Japan buys $30,000,000 worth of crude petroleum from United States each year. During peace time its purchases amounted to $14,000,000.

Japan buys $5,000,000 in pig iron during war years, while in peace years the purchases were about $45,000.

Japan's purchases of copper from the States in war years run to $22,000,000, while during peace time the purchases never reached $8,000,000.

Japan has been buying machinery at the rate of $24,000,000 a year since starting war, while in peace time it was not considered necessary to buy up to total orders of $4,000,000.

In those few lines alone peace time purchases of $26,045,000 have been stepped up to a war-time trade of $81,000,000, and it is China against which Japan wages war. So perhaps you can figure that one for yourself. How much is China going to be aided by $20,000,000 credit in United States?

Toronto And Its Lights

Toronto spends approximately $500,000 for street lighting in a year, and an attempt has been made to reduce the expenditure by $15,000. The method adopted is to turn off street lights on one side of such streets as are not considered main traffic arteries.

Toronto has not at any time the best way of lighting its streets. The way in which street lights are enclosed make them look more like Chinese lanterns than anything else, and if the lights on one side of the street were turned off there would be darkness there.

The plan was started the other evening and the people living on those turned-off streets began to protest. They said it was so dark it would be splendid for thugs to roam about and do their business. It would be certain to increase the number of auto accidents because it decreased the visibility. They argued that the blackouts in Britain had sent the accident death rate to figures never known before, and from that they reason that a partial blackout in their city would have the same result. Our feeling is the lights will be restored because it is taking too great a risk in order to save $15,000.

Apart entirely from that, we have long entertained the belief that Toronto needs more light, not less. When they come to the time of municipal elections they need a great deal more illumination because the issues over which they argue are so diminutive that they could not well be seen with the naked eye after sundown.

Grandson Of 49 Years

Length of years had been granted to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Mabee of Picton, for they had been married for almost 77 years when death parted their union the other day.

People regard a married life of 76 or 77 years as something unusual, and it is, but when reading about it we wondered if that sounded quite as unusual as when reference was made to a grandson of 49 years.

When one speaks of a grandson the mental suggestion is to picture a rather young fellow, perhaps one of those little chaps who climb upon the knee or who get a ride on the foot after one has crossed the legs. We are accustomed often enough to grouping them together and referring to them as grandchildren.

And yet this lady of long years, almost 77 of them in wedlock, when she departed in her 95th year had a grandson of 49. Then it was we started to realize how long she had lived.

There Are Many Opinions

No matter what one may think of the peace concluded between Finland and Russia he can probably find some authoritative opinion to agree with him.

Thus we learn that the opinion of the London Foreign Office is that the declaration of peace has killed off any immediate danger of an out-and-out military alliance between Russia and Germany.

It is held that Germany had little or nothing at all to do with the struggle between those two lands, and that it rendered no aid to Finland and gave nothing to the Russians.

Fortunately one does not have to agree with every opinion expressed, but the view of official London appears to have been all through that its course should be marked in such a way that there would not be reason provided for driving Germany and Russia together in a hard-bound military alliance.

That same view now holds that Russia will not be immediately active as it will need to consolidate its position in new territory and also get its military and economic house in order after the shaking down it has received in the war with Finland. We present that view because it is mentioned frequently in London, and also because we do not believe Hitler trusts Stalin any more than Stalin trusts Hitler.

Recognizing The "C.P."

When readers see the letters "C.P." attached to a news despatch following the date line they possibly pay little or no attention to them. It indicates that "Canadian Press" has furnished that news. It can come from London, Paris, New York, Washington, or any place in our own country and "C.P." will be attached.

The Chief Electoral Officer of the Dominion, Jules Castonguay, has made an appeal to every deputy returning officer, poll clerk and candidate's agent in the Federal election to report returns as soon as they are compiled to the representative of the Canadian Press. We think it right to draw attention to that to show the unique position this organization occupies in the Dominion and the complete reliance which is placed upon its work.

If it were not for the existence of the Canadian Press there would be a long and disagreeable wait after the voting before the returns were made available. The radio would not have the information because the radio stations have to seiure the news from the organization owned and operated by the newspapers.

There may be some outlying polls from which returns will not be immediately available, but in the main this country will be covered from Atlantic to Pacific on election night in its 245 ridings with their 32,000 polling places, and Canadian Press will have the results for the people to such an extent it will be known which party is to be in power before it is time to go to bed. There is no other organization in existence to furnish such service, and it has proved itself so reliable in the past that the Chief Electoral Officer instructs all election officers to give it their full and immediate assistance. It is worth explaining in order that readers may better understand the meaning and significance of those letters "C.P."

Short Of Water

A good many farmers have their water problem. The continued cold weather, the absence of rain or a thaw has put the finishing touch on the supply of water in many districts. We read today of one young man in Western Ontario who has been busy every day for nine weeks drawing water to farmers.

Going along the Port Hope Road an Examiner representative noticed a farm dog urging four horses along a lane, and at the end it opened into a field where there was a well-marked track. The horses were probably going for a drink. A short distance farther a farmer with two horses was heading toward the school house and with him he had a bucket. The horses were going to have a drink.

As a rule we have rain or a thaw by this time of year but so far we have had mostly consistently cold weather. The result is that the "Independent farmers who never have to worry about anything" are wondering in many cases where they are going to get some water. In cities we do that by merely turning a tap.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The man who never made a mistake probably never made anything else either.

Kerensky, short time Russian president, says the country is ripe for another revolution. But we do not see where Kerensky is keen on going in there to furnished the leadership.

New York man weighed a ton of coal on his own scales and found it was 350 pounds short. Most people would have said it was a hard winter on the coal bin and let it go at that.

First Sea Lord of the British Admiralty on a tour of inspection inquired of the man in charge of the trawler what his duties were. The reply was, "I am not allowed to say, sir."

Calf born in Indiana has two tails and is doing well. Whether that is added protection for the fly season or an added annoyance for the milker when that critter grows up is not certain.

There must be a heap of wealth in Britain. A government loan for £300,000,000 went in a matter of hours, and it is recorded that "on the upper floor of the Bank of England the clerks were quite busy during the day."

Chatham men were arrested in St. Thomas where they were loading a five-ton truck with scrap metal. That's nicer for policemen than to have them snooping around alone in the dark trying to steal something small.

There is something mysterious about the finding of a set of 1940 Ohio car markers in a bush on Pelee Island. Our book on "How to Be a Detective" says it is altogether likely some person put them there.

In some places billboards are now being placed upside down so people in planes can read them. When people who pass them every day in the week do not trouble to read them we doubt if people in planes are going to be much more impressed or interested.

TWO WAYS

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My Uncle Eben's tall and trim, in fact he's what you might call slim, his stomach is quite flat; for he has lived with lots of care, and always noticed to beware, to tote no surplus fat.

¶ Some years ago in summer time, when heat was beating on his spine, too heated-up he felt; the man where Eben buys his clothes, saw moisture gathered on his nose, and he advised a belt.

¶ My Uncle Eben first rebelled, the way a belt pulled up and held, he felt it was too tight; but when he shed his coat and vest, and wandered out among the rest, his braces seemed not right.

¶ He never felt quite right I'm sure, he said he didn't seem secure, he feared to run or trot; the safety that his braces gave, was something he would always crave, he hitched up quite a lot.

¶ But then he got to like the thing, it looked as smart as anything, it girded him each day; and yet he liked his braces too, for years he'd found them strong and true, he'd cast them not away.

¶ So Uncle Eben's well equipped, and not a thing has ever slipped, held fast like new-made glue; the belt around his middle's clasped, it seems to hold him tight and fast—and he wears braces too.

Small Nations Stagger Under The War Costs

LONDON.—Belgium, Holland and Switzerland are suffering from a crushing burden of taxation due to the European war and the sinister shadow it casts across their territories.

These three little countries, living in deadly fear that Germany may crash its armies across their soil in a desperate effort to outflank France's mighty Maginot line, are themselves on a virtual war footing. And their peoples are footing the bill.

The Belgians have erected their own Maginot line. Since the outbreak of war, they have mobilized 600,000 men. Their ordinary peacetime army is about 45,000. It is estimated such a mobilization will cost about $320,000,000 a year.

Calling up Belgian's reserves means civil life has lost many skilled technicians and engineers. This has hampered many industries, increased unemployment and added to the burden of the unemployment insurance funds. The British blockade of the seaways has paralyzed the great port of Antwerp, which in ordinary times handles from 12 to 15 million tons of German imports and exports.

Speaking of the tragic position of the country the other day, M. Pierlot, the Belgian premier, said: "By the end of 1940, we will need eight or nine billions of francs for our military necessities. To borrow abroad would be to alienate our independence. So we must raise taxes and issue loans in the country itself or resort to inflation which we resolutely refuse to do."

Following him, M. Goutt, minister of finance, told the Belgian Parliament the Government would attempt to meet the extraordinary military expenses by means of various taxes.

He pointed out in the last World War, with all its horrors for Belgium, there were at least two financial consolations—either Belgium would be given reparations by the conquered Germans or financial help by the Allies. But today Belgium has no enemy and no allies. She is standing by herself, maintaining her neutrality.

The most interesting and novel of the new taxes he proposed to impose was the military tax. It would be a tax on all males, who were not serving with the army, no matter what the reason, because men exempted have a material advantage over young men called to the colors.

LITTLE HOLLAND recently had a bad war scare. As a result 300,000 men were called to the colors. In some places the canals were opened and the land flooded.

It is estimated the mobilization is costing the state 1,250,000 guilders per day. Mobilization has upset business and industry. The sea blockade has interfered with the great carrying trade of Rotterdam and Amsterdam.

Many Dutch ships have been sunk by Nazi mines.

Taxation is, as a result, nearly as high as in England, thanks to the state tax and to the big municipal taxes.

But the Dutch homeland is not the only source of worry. Japan has often cast longing eyes at Holland's tremendously rich empire in the East Indies—Java, Sumatra, etc. Out there now Holland has two 6,000-ton cruisers, a 3,000-ton flotilla leader and several smaller ships. Two more large cruisers, armed with ten six-inch guns and another flotilla leader are now being built and will soon be ready for service in the East Indies.

SWITZERLAND, almost a natural fortress, thanks to her mountains, except where her frontier marches with part of Germany, has mobilized 300,000 of her hardy sons. It is estimated this is costing 4,000,000 Swiss francs per day.

Switzerland ordinarily is thought of as a country where butter and cheese are the main articles prepared for export. But in addition, the country makes some of the finest machines, engines, dyes, chemicals and drugs in the world, as well as its fap-famed watches. This export business has been greatly crippled by the war.

It is hard to give any idea of taxes because each Swiss canton has its own financial autonomy. But in some of the bigger ones the tax on incomes of about $2,500 per year is over eight per cent.

Only last year an internal loan of 230,000,000 francs was raised for purchase of modern armaments, particularly artillery for the mountain posts, and airplanes

HOPEFUL ANYWAY

Every man has his own method of sighting spring. The romantics look for sunshine, singing birds, and babbling brooks. The gardeners wait impatiently for frost to leave the ground. Others are cheered by the appearance of marbles on the sidewalk. The astronomers point with glee to the lengthening hours of daylight. Not all these signs have yet become evident, but there is a growing agreement that spring is definitely on the way.—Halifax Chronicle.

• The Beauty Of An English Village

A BEAUTIFUL description of life in Bures, an English village, was recently broadcast by the village doctor, Thomas Wood.

"I live in a village: its name is Bures. If you look at a large-scale map of England you will find it near the East Coast, inland from Harwich, and on the banks of the River Stour. Maps have always held a fascination for me. When I was a lad I used to lie on the floor with my nose in an atlas, and wonder what they were really like, those places shown by little dots, what the people who lived there talked about, what they ate, and what they did on Saturday afternoons. Well, by now I've been to many of those little dots. Twenty-two countries in all the five continents is the tally, so far. And what I've learnt is this: the more people know about one another, all the world over, the better for the world. This is true in peacetime. It's truer still, in war. So, as a small and personal share in spreading this knowledge, I'm going to tell you about this village and parish of Bures, where I live: I, and seven hundred and forty-three friends of mine; what we talk about, what we eat, and what we do on Saturday afternoons.

"My house stands on a hill which looks across the valley to another hill. Between the two lies Bures, set in orchards and snugged into a hollow. Through the trees you can see a cluster of red roofs round the church, a winding river with a mill in the crook of its arm, and poplars on the skyline. Now they are bare, the leaves dropped; but in spring they change to tall green misty spires, and the water meadows below them turn golden in a night when the buttercups come out—sheets and sheets of gold as far as you can see. There is only one thing lovelier than that of all the things I know, and that is the bluebells in April, when the woods are carpeted thick and blackbirds whistle in the sunshine. The winds turned westerly then, and pile up the sky with mountains of creamy cloud — just as Constable painted them. He lived only a few miles down-river. If you know his pictures you will know this part of England, and if he came back he would find nearly all his old subjects. Here are the same sorts of chestnut horses, the same black-faced sheep, the same lush meadows, and the same rich moist brown earth. The Tudor tiles he loved to paint are still keeping out the weather, and the bells he heard still ring in every square church tower. This countryside has not changed much this last hundred years. In essentials it has not changed this last four hundred. Queen Elizabeth came here in 1567. The house she stayed at is still lived in, still loved. And the room in which I wrote this was built just about the time that Columbus reached America—1482.

"But—you will say — that's all right; very pretty and all that; but it's no good living in the past. What we want is progress. Right. I can report it. We plough with tractors. Nearly every cottage in the village has electric light and a wireless set. And if that is progress, there it is at the front door. But more important are the things of the spirit. The village has its own band and its own dramatic society. You can get practically any book you want from the travelling county library. And an child in Bures school who shows promise can go from there, stage by stage, right up to the university without costing its parents a penny for education.

"And that is progress. It's all part of this new England. Even to an Englishman this is a puzzling land. It is steeped in tradition. So are other countries. They get old. England gets younger. Other countries go in for revolutions every so often to show they are keeping up to date, and they tell the whole world about it. In England there is a revolution going on all the time and nobody says a word. We call it 'peaceful change.' What is true of England is true of this village. I said it has not changed much this hundred years; but it is fairer to say it is changing always, only unchanged in peace and quiet loveliness."

KING CALLED IN MANION

DR. MANION complained in Parliament in January that Mr. King had not called him into consultation about the war, and he has been making the same complaint since. But what encouragement did Mr. King get when, with war in prospect, he did call in Dr. Manion? That happened in March of 1939—just a year ago—and this is what Dr. Manion said about it in the House:

"His (the prime minister's) tactics are to draw a red herring across the trail. That is what he did the other day with regard to this supposedly terribly critical situation—a situation no more critical than it has been for months....He called me in one day and showed me some of the dispatches....I know his tactics; he wanted to be able to stand up in this House and say that on one occasion he called me in. That is his slippery way. I know his tactics, his slippery tactics."

What encouragement was there in an abusive utterance of that kind—what encouragement to continue calling Dr. Manion into conference on war questions? And there is another aspect to it. Dr. Manion and his supporters now claim that the King Government did not prepare for war to a sufficient extent before war was declared. But what preparation would have been made by Dr. Manion himself, when just a year ago he sneered at "this supposedly terrible critical situation — a situation no more terrible than it has been for months and months?" — Toronto Star.

BRITAIN LOOKS AHEAD

WHAT has been called total war, if it comes to Great Britain, could not be expected to spare an object of national pride like the new British liner Queen Elizabeth, for total war is blindly destructive. The decision to bring the Queen Elizabeth across the Atlantic, despite the hazards offered by mines and U-boats, therefore will be taken as a sign that the British expect the war in the air to start in earnest. It may not mean anything of the kind. It may be that laying up the Queen Elizabeth in New York has no such significance at this time.

The Queen Mary and the Mauretania are here; it is natural that the British should keep their newest and most valuable liners out of possible harm's way. These luxury liners have no military value comparable to their value in time of peace. That they are in a safe place may be as good a sign that the British plan for peace as well as for war as it is that the British believe that air raids over British soil are certain to come this spring.—New York Sun.

"BLACKOUTS"

MR. HEPBURN'S "blackout" of Time's nice film is, of course, grotesque, but not nearly as grotesque as Mr. King's "blackout" of Parliament. Mr. Hepburn has merely stopped us seeing Mr. Mackenzie King on the screen with a jaw like Mussolini and barking out war orders with the decisiveness of old "Jackie" Fisher, and stopped us hearing the roar of our warplanes in the skies; Mr. King stopped us finding out whether he was giving the right orders and what sort of warplanes (and how many) were making the noise.—Ottawa Journal.

AIR LIBERTIES

DICTATORSHIP and Democracy are two words bandied about these days too carelessly. "Privileges of the people" is another phrase in the spot light, thanks largely to Premier Hepburn's activities. Says The Amherstburg Echo:

Fears for the liberties of the people possess The Durham Chronicle which argues that almost every day some privilege is taken away. Now, it says, a new scheme is being advocated by the legislation committee of the Ottawa high school teachers. Is it to have the control of them, now with the local boards, transferred to the jurisdiction of the Government? "New" it is, but the less heard of it the better for all concerned teachers, taxpayers and Government. Such a move would surely be disturbing, even more so than the proposal of a two-year municipal term which met opposition from the Ottawa to the Detroit River and was ultimately left in a very unsatisfactory state. A second thought would be better.

IDEA WORTH $10

MORITZ ROSENTHAL, the pianist, gave a benefit recital in Los Angeles, where he met Darryl Zanuck. The 78-year-old pianist was cynical about Zanuck's assertion that he was planning to make biographical films about some of the great men of music Rosenthal has known personally —including Wagner and Liszt. "I'll bet you $10 I can tell right now what such a picture would be like," Rosenthal scoffed. "Don Ameche will be Liszt, and he would be unsuccessful as a composer, until he met Alice Faye. Then she'd happen to hum a tune which gives him the idea for the Hungarian Rhapsody." Zanuck handed a $10 bill to the pianist. "So you admit I was right?" gloated Rosenthal. "No," said Zanuck, "but the idea's worth $10."—Leonard Lyons, in New York Post.

Hard To Believe How Time Flies

MARCH 15

1910 George A. Gillespie is re-elected president of the Peterborough Board of Trade.

Edward Keen who is leaving for the west is presented with a travelling bag by the employees of the Cressman store.

Charles Crane receives suitcase from young people of St. Luke's before leaving for Toronto to live.

The Montgomery Hotel which has been closed for some time for alterations is re-opened.

J. Pilling is elected president of the Park Street baseball club.

1920 A tablet is unveiled in St. George's Church, Hastings in memory of the men who fell in the Great War.

Adam Hall, prominent local manufacturer is dead at the age of 74 years.

Four grocers complain to the Health Board about their stores being quarantined for small pox.

Mrs. Charles L. Binnington, well known Dummer resident dies after short illness.

Charles Grylls, resident of Lakefield for 47 years is dead at the age of 90.

1930 James Handley, Peterborough's oldest resident celebrates his 108th birthday.

Rev. J. Vincent Masterson is ordained into the priesthood.

Motorists storm the police court to protest against the new parking regulations.

Mrs. J. G. Harkness is elected president of the Ladies' Curling Club.

IN WAR TIME

1915 The Examiner states that 1,000 Peterborough men have already enlisted for overseas service.

Letters from Major Mills, Capt. Greer and other officers tell of the first experience of the 2nd Battalion at the front.

The Peterborough Rangers ask for recruits to keep the regiment at strength.

J. E. A. Fitzgerald is elected president of the Peterborough Curling Club.

Jack Hunter, former Peterborough player, asks the O.H.A. to have his suspension raised.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And the Redeemer shall come to Zion and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord. As for me, this is my covenant with them, saith the Lord. My spirit that is upon thee, and my words which I have put in thy mouth, shall not depart out of thy mouth, out of the mouth of thy seed's seed, saith the Lord, from henceforth and for ever.—Isa. lix, 20, 21.

Come let us return unto the Lord ....Then shall we know, if we follow on to know the Lord; his going forth is prepared as the morning; and he shall come unto us as the rain, as the latter and former rain unto the earth.—Hos. vi, 1, 3.

A Peep Outta Him

Wife: "I wonder what's come over Henry this morning. I never saw him so happy before in my life. He was walking downstairs whistling like a bird."

Cook: "It's my fault, ma'am. I cooked him the birdseed instead of oatmeal for breakfast."

Not Used Much

"Has your dress suit been used much?"

"Not much. It has only been to three balls this season."

Undecided

The family planned a picnic for the next day and Bobby was asked by his mother to see what the paper predicted for the weather.

After searching the paper he said: "Well they haven't decided yet. It says here, 'Weather for Wednesday, unsettled.'"

They're Slipping

"So you think the vaunted German ingenuity has fallen down?"

"Well, so far they have not found a way to make British leaflets edible."

Quite A While

He was a new and very nervous recruit, and dropped his rifle while at drill. The sergeant-major's eyes popped out of his head at the horrid sight, and for a few moments he gasped for breath. Then:

"Hey, you!" he roared. "How long have you been in the Army?"

"P-p-please, sir," faltered the miserable youth, "all d-d-day, sir!"

Fate Of Finland Is Warning To Canadians

The fate of Finland was another warning to every Canadian of the gravity of the German menace to our British institutions, Senator Duffus said last night at Centreville, addressing a meeting in the interest of the Liberal candidate, R. M. Glover.

"If it was conceivable that we should fail in this war, all the churches which have built up a great citizenship would be graded to other uses. They would be changed to dance halls and other worldly purposes that we can scarcely imagine. If that could happen, it might not mean so much to us of the adult generation, but we would be unworthy of the great heritage our fathers handed down to us, and of the young generation of Canadians who are now growing up to take our places, and to whom we owe a great obligation."

Senator Duffus said it was deplorable that a political campaign should be conducted in a manner that had the effect of creating distrust throughout the country when the primary need was confidence. He regarded it as wrong and harmful, that men making public addresses should say ridiculous and insulting things before audiences "who read and know the facts just as well as those who undertake the responsibility of public speaking at a time like this."

Dilapidated Defences.

Peterborough's new Senator defended the policies and actions of the King government in its trade and military activities. He said that when the government took office in 1935 the defences of Canada had been so neglected that they were in almost an abandoned condition.

"Our first duty was to expend large sums of money on the restoration of our defences. In our first year we increased our appropriation for military purposes from $20,000,000 to $33,000,000. In the next year Parliament voted another $35,000,000 and in the succeeding year the appropriation was again increased to $60,000,000."

Senator Duffus stated that the officers charged with the administration of the details of military affairs had everything planned and ready for the outbreak of war. They knew the units from which the first overseas division would be recruited, a plan that comprehended equality of representation and also of sacrifice.

"There has been no recruiting in Peterborough yet because Peterborough was not included in the First and Second Divisions." Kingston was one of the active centres, but Belleville was skipped and the next place was Cobourg, and then Oshawa. The same prearrangement also skipped Peterborough and went on to Lindsay.

Senator Duffus contended that public trust and confidence in the militia plans should be encouraged instead of being undermined. When Great Britain was approaching a war crisis at the first of last September, the King government immediately began drafting boards which were promptly made up of public-spirited Canadians who had the experience to handle great affairs and could leave their own businesses behind them. One of the first was the War Supplies Board which was authorized to purchase supplies required for war purposes, and also to organize essential industries.

Chose Men Of Ability.

"Those men were picked for their abilities and because of the confidence the government had in them, and for no other reason. You know what I mean. And so far we have heard not a word of criticism of these men. There was another board to prevent hoarding and profiteering and the exploiting of the common people such as was done in the last war when sugar, for example, went to $28 a hundred."

Contracts had been let to the amount of $100,000,000, and there had been no scandals, "nothing we have to be ashamed of," Senator Duffus said. In regard to the National Government which the Hon. Dr. Manion proposed early in the campaign, Senator Duffus said the official nominations had taken place this week, the names were published, and the electors could see for themselves that Dr. Manion's candidates were just the mill run of people, no matter what they might call themselves.

With the experience of Mackenzie King and the members of his Cabinet, Senator Duffus said the electors could make no mistake in returning them to office to carry on the war work they had begun.

Reeve Fred Barnard was chairman of the meeting. T. J. Carley, K.C., introduced the candidate, R. M. Glover, and the other speaker was Jacob Low.

Mr. Low spoke of the success of the National Housing Act as it was developed by the Liberal administration and also the Home Improvement Plan, two agencies of assisting home owners and builders that had put millions of dollars into the building industry with important results in employment.

Aids Injured Girl

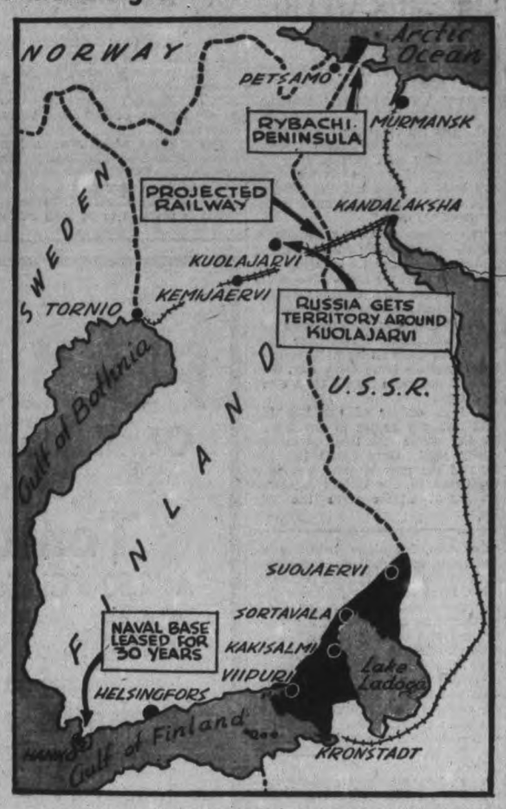
St. Jovite, March 15 (CP).

SKIING EXPERTS discussed today the feat of Hermann Gadner, instructor at Gray Rocks Inn near here, who made a two-mile run down a racing trail on Mont Tremblant in six minutes with an injured Toronto girl on his back.

Gadner accomplished the feat after Eleanor Brown of Toronto suffered a broken ankle while skiing yesterday on the mountain top, 3,400 feet above sea level. Gadner hoisted Miss Brown on his back and raced down the trail, which has a drop of 1,000 feet a mile and is considered one of the fastest in eastern Canada.

Miss Brown is resting comfortably today.

Finland Signs Bitter Peace Pact



After three and a half months of a defence that will go down in history, Finland has signed a peace pact with Soviet Russia, the terms of which are so harsh that Britain refused to transmit them to Finland, when requested to do so several weeks ago. In her stead, Sweden, Finland's neighbor, acted as "postman" for the stiff Russian demands. By the peace pact, Finland lost the whole of the Karelian Isthmus, which includes the Mannerheim Line. She also lost Lake Ladoga and Hanko peninsula will in the future be a Russian naval base. In the north, Russia also gained wide concessions. Russian troops will withdraw from Petsamo, but Russian goods must be allowed duty free entry across Finland to and from Norway. A Soviet railway is also to be built across Finland linking the White Sea to the Gulf of Finland have now become Russian property.

Apsley W.I. Loses Mrs. R. Tucker

APSLEY, March 15—(ENS).—On Thursday evening the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. James Downing with twelve members present. Mrs. Roland Tucker presided. After the opening exercises the roll was called and answered by My Pet Economy, or a potato recipe.

It was decided to hold card parties every week except Holy week. Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. R. Brown were named lunch committee. Moved and seconded that the W.I. give the school boys an evening of games in the library with lunch, to be held in the Easter week. The boys' league have kindly made a table for the library, which is very much appreciated by the ladies and is a great help, both for the card party nights and library nights. A paper of social events is to be edited once a month and sent to local boys overseas—committee, Mrs. C. Smith and Mrs. W. Lean.

The ladies then adjourned to the kitchen, where a demonstration of meat cookery was put on by the leaders, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Tucker, assisted by Mrs. W. Lean, and a crown roast of sausage was served later with the lunch.

Mrs. R. Tucker, president, tendered her resignation, as she will soon be moving farther away from the village and the first vice-president, Mrs. C. Smith, will act for the remainder of this year.

A meat contest was put on by Mrs. Tucker on False and True facts about meat. The prize was won by Mrs. Roy Brown. Several members promised donations of candy etc., for the soldiers boxes to be packed this month. The National Anthem brought the meeting to a close. Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed.

A large crowd turned out on Friday night when a play was put on in the Parish Hall, sponsored by the Apsley United Church, entitled "The Colonel's Maid." The cast was as follows: Colonel Rudd, Mr. Spencer; Bob Rudd, his son, Mr. Davis; Mrs. Carol, Mrs. McMullen; Julia, her daughter, Miss Irwin; Colonel Bird, Mr. Webb; Marjorie, his daughter, Miss Ferguson; Marjorie's fiancee, Mr. Jack Birch; Ching, Colonel Rudd's Chinese cook, Mr. L. Lewis; Mr. Basscomb, lawyer, Mr. F. Spencely. The play was very humorous, sending everyone into gales of laughter. Rev. R. McMullen, pastor of the Apsley United Church, acted as chairman, and introduced the actors and actresses.

The story was a mixup, two colonels being great enemies. The son of Colonel Rudd and daughter of Colonel Bird were lovers, while Colonel Rudd and Mrs. Carol, his aunt wanted Bob to marry Julia Carol. Marjorie Bird came to Colonel Rudd's as their maid while her father was away. He came back and accuses Colonel Rudd of kidnapping her. Ching, the Chinese cook, caused many complications. In the end the old Colonels were reconciled and the two pair of lovers were united, not to mention Mrs. Carol and Colonel Bird, who met after many years. They were sweethearts in their early years.

Mrs. Howard Reid spent Friday evening in Lakefield, where she attended the commencement at the Lakefield High School. Miss Evelyn Reid and Master Greig McMullen also attended.

Bewdley Friends Honor The Gordons

BEWDLEY, March 15—(ENS).—On Monday evening neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Will Gordon met at their home to join with them in celebrating their fifteenth wedding anniversary.

Seven tables of progressive euchre were played. First prizes went to Mrs. Keith Halstead and Mr. Bob Langstaff. Consolations to Mrs. Mervyn Benson and Maurice Cruise.

After lunch music was enjoyed for a while and a very pleasant evening was spent.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Weil Kennedy, Mrs. H. Goss, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bray and Marlyne, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bray, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cruise, Gloria and Maurice, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Manley, Mr. and Mrs. Harold McAllister and Arleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Bert McIntosh, Mrs. H. C. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. George Byers, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bamsey, Mr. and Mrs. Keith Halstead and Eugene, Mrs. M. Wilson, Jack Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Benson.

Interesting Meet Is Held By Bethany W.A.

BETHANY, March 15 (ENS). — The regular meeting of the W.A. was held Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Harold Kyle with twenty-eight members and eight children present. The president, Mrs. A. Driver, was in charge. Scripture reading was given by Mrs. Thorndyke and the "Lesson Thoughts" given by Mrs. Rowland. Rev. Mr. Ferguson led in prayer. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Jean Bigelow, the assistant secretary, called the roll; this was responded to by a verse of scripture containing the words "Faith, hope, Love."

Plans were made for the annual Easter tea to be held on Easter Monday. A committee was named to purchase Easter lilies for the church. It was decided to hold the regular church service in the morning instead of in the evening on Easter Sunday.

Mrs. Rowland, convener of Group three, then took charge of the program: Reading, Mrs. Otto Spencer, "The World has Narrowed"; reading, Mrs. Weatherilt, "The Victory which is Peace"; piano solo by Miss Helen Patton; reading, Mrs. Carr, "Talk Faith"; solo, "Does Jesus Care", Rev. Mr. Ferguson; reading, "The Weavers," Mrs. Rowland. An interesting contest, "My Grandmother's Flower Garden," was conducted by Mrs. Weatherilt.

Lunch was served by the hostess and assists, Mesdames Carr, Rowland, Bigelow, Fallis, Kennedy. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Pife for the use of her home, moved by Mrs. Fallis and seconded by Mrs. Wright.

The April meeting will be in charge of Mr. Fred Thompson and her group.

Mrs. Edwin Veale of St. Catharines is at present the guest of her mother, Mrs. John Porteous.

Mr. Anderson has purchased the home now occupied by Mr. James McKinney, the latter having purchased the brick bungalow owned and erected by Mr. Harold Bigelow on Wilson street south, and now a resident of Millbrook.

Mr. Bill Stark and Miss Nellie are to move to their home on Front street, at present occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kylie and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Evans, having rented his lovely farm property in Cavan to Mr. Karl Porteous.

Mr. Albert White of Cavan is at present the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kennedy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ward entertained St. Mary's A.Y.P.A. at their home on the Eighth Line on Wednesday evening

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN THIRNBECK.

The funeral service of the late Mrs. John W. Thirnbeck, 525 McDonnel street, took place on Monday afternoon. A private service at the residence at 2.30 o'clock was followed by a public service at 3 o'clock at St. John's Anglican church, Rev. Canon W. P. Robertson officiating, assisted by Rev. R. T. F. Brain.

Many friends were gathered at the church to pay their last tribute to the popular woman. Mrs. Thirnbeck died at Nicholls Hospital a few minutes after midnight on Friday night, after a lingering illness which she had borne with great fortitude.

She did not take an active part in outside work, but her whole life was devoted to her home and family. Born in Bluecaster, England, she had lived almost all her life in Peterborough, coming to this city 55 years ago. The many floral tributes and kindnesses shown by friends and neighbors marked the high esteen in which she was held in this community.

Pallbearers were her five sons, Jack, Charlie (Pat), Fred, Whitty, and Robert, all of Peterborough, and her son-in-law, Percy Zealand of Port Hope.

Also surviving are her husband, John W. Thirnbeck, foreman of the Board of Works here, and two daughters, Mrs. P. H. Zealand, of Port Hope, and Miss Isobel Thirnbeck of Peterborough; also two brothers and six sisters.

Interment was made in the family plot in Little Lake cemetery.

White Wrathy Over Equipment Of Hastings Troops, At Havelock Rally

HAVELOCK, Mar. 15 (ENS). — Terming as despicable the manner in which the Mackenzie King administration has treated Ontario, the province which pays fifty per cent. of the total national debt, A. H. (Holly) Acres, Conservative member for Carleton in the Provincial Legislature, scathingly condemned the Federal Government for their inefficiency, as he spoke here last night on behalf of George S. White, National Government candidate for Hastings-Peterborough riding.

Richard Sanderson, president of the Havelock Conservative Association, officiated as chairman for the meeting at which the other speakers were Richard D. Arnott, M.L.A., of Belleville, T. Percy Lancaster of town, and the candidate himself. Others on the platform were John A. Sexsmith, former Federal member for this district, E. J. Leeson, Isaac Anderson, and D. F. Miller.

Principal speaker, "Holly" Acres was introduced to the audience by T. P. Lancaster, who was closely acquainted with the former during his own two terms in the Provincial House. He said that Mr. Acres was a farmer who had represented his county in the Legislature since 1923.

"Yes, certainly there will be another session of Parliament before any general election," Leader R. J. Manion was assured by Mr. King last September, declared Mr. Acres. And rightly so—the Prime Minister called 245 members from their homes throughout the Dominion this January, then opened and closed it within the space of four hours. Is that fair? challenged the speaker. Is there anything closer to Hitlerism than King's action in scuttling Parliament, censorship of radio and press. Election printing orders were released, he said, in Ottawa, five weeks before Parliament was dissolved. The House closed on Thursday and on Saturday the election forms were shipped out to all parts of Canada.

The Hon. T. A. Crerar, appointed by the Federal Government to make a study of British war preparations, visited England for seven days. The only member of the King Cabinet who disfavored the closing down of Parliament, Mr. Crerar, he said, had brought back a 47-page report containing knowledge Canada should have had, yet he wasn't allowed to table it.

Bait for Railroaders.

"Now as part of his election campaign, Mackenzie King is trying to gain the railway employees' vote by saying that if Manion is elected there will be an amalgamation of the railroads." Always, declared Acres, Dr. Manion has favored "competition always, amalgamation never."

"Asked to assume guarding of power plants, the Federal Government's reply to Ontario was to place an 8 per cent. tax on Hydro." Thus money was voted by this province to pay the costs of guarding these utilities, so necessary to keep the wheels of industry moving.

"What we want now," stressed Mr. Acres, in his concluding remarks, "is a National Government, and this we shall have after the 26th day of this month. We can easily enough return to party affiliations after the war."

Richard D. Arnott.

"When war was officially declared, I believed that we should have a national concerted policy down in Ottawa," said Richard D. Arnott of Belleville, as he addressed last night's meeting. "I was heartily in approval of the action taken by Leaders Manion and Woodsworth at that time in saying that it was no time for petty politics, and pledging their full co-operation to the Prime Minister, offered to sit around the table with his Cabinet in the prosecution of this war. Such offer was definitely refused by Mackenzie King.

"I believe," declared Mr. Arnott, "that Dr. Manion is sincere, and that if when elected he will form a National Government. If not, I would not be supporting your candidate here to-night. He is expressing my own sentiments, and I don't wish to let the King administration handle the affairs of this Dominion in the manner he has since 1935."

A grand fight developed at the nomination day meeting in Belleville between a King representative and an Independent Liberal candidate, who had the nerve, avowed Mr. Arnott, to discuss political patronage, and which one was to get it following the election. At the outbreak of the war, Mr. King declared, "no more patronage," and in frequent speeches has said there was none or little before. Yet, said Mr. Arnott, here we have two Liberals squabbling over that same question on nomination day. If such as a sample of Mr. King's policy, are you going to trust him to continue to head your Government?

George S. White.

"It is most unfortunate to have any kind of an election during the winter," said George S. White, National Government candidate for this riding, as he opened his address. Mr. King showed little respect for rural voters, and it is an absolutely disgraceful move while in the midst of war. Already thousands of young men and boys have gone overseas, yet all that has been done at home during the past few weeks is political squabbling. The National Government's main aim is to win the war....the King Government's to maintain national unity in Quebec Province at all costs.

By scuttling Parliament, Mr. King has taken a step along the road of the dictators, and has now also gagged the radio and censored the press. You may recall, said Mr. White, that not a word was published about the airmen's walk-out at St. Thomas until Hepburn stirred it up. Since war began, various boards and commissions have been appointed, with biased Liberal supporters as the appointees, who have taken advantage of their position to flood the country with favorable propaganda.

In Lindsay we have an arsenal, said to be one of the largest on the continent, said Mr. White, which up until a short time ago was employing only 33 men. Another example of inefficiency, he said, a factory capable of employing hundreds of men lying idle despite the large amount of unemployment and the need for war materials.

Referring to a pamphlet issued by Rork Ferguson, Liberal candidate in this riding, he scoffed at his opponent's data concerning persecution of the war, and refuted completely the statements contained therein.

About Equipment.

In my riding alone, more than 500 boys enlisted in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and I can state positively, he said, that when the regiment was mobilized it had absolutely no clothing of any kind. At Madoc, he said, half of the unit drilled outside, some in rubber running shoes, while the others remained inside because they had no shoes at all.

"Then," said Mr. White, "a shipment of boots arrived at last. But," he continued, "it was found that all the boots were size 5, and absolutely useless. Similar trouble was found with the underwear, which arrived in two-piece suits of fleece-lined material, all size 46."

The clothing situation was tragic, Mr. White said, but the arms situation was worse. When our boys left Picton last December for England, they took with them rifles that we brought back from France in 1919. Those same rifles had been stored in armouries in Picton, Trenton and Madoc since then. I saw a soldier in Madoc yesterday wearing a greatcoat which bore the issue number of 1916. It was moth-eaten and rotten, but that soldier told me he had tried for weeks to obtain another and couldn't.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment took four 1914-vintage Lewis guns with them to England in December. Besides being useless they were also dangerous. And 800 men and officers of the same regiment had never seen a Bren machine gun, let alone handling or firing one, and yet there is supposed to be 52 Bren guns in each regiment.

Mr. King tells that he knew this war was coming for two or three years, yet he still adopted his wait-and-see and do-nothing policy.

Mr. White also charged Mr. King with arranging soldiers' leaves so that they would be unable to vote. This was done, he said, because 100 per cent. of the soldiers are against the King Government. This is one of the cheapest political tricks, said Mr. White, that anyone has ever pulled.

T. P. Lancaster spoke briefly outlining Mr. White's record as a soldier in the last war, in which he was enlisted as a buck private throughout the whole four years. He voiced his approval of Mr. White as a man admirably fitted to serve this riding at Ottawa.

Epidemic Of Flu Over In Army

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Mar. 15—(CP-HReuters)—The flu epidemic which swept over the British Expeditionary forces in the early part of this year has now practically gone. It was mild and brief in form but the suddenness of its onslaught earned it the name of "blitzflu."

The epidemic provided experience for the Royal Army Medical Corps under active service conditions. As there is no proper accomodation for an influenza case, Private Thomas Atkins must be evacuated.

At the height of the influenza epidemic, ambulance trains were leaving the casualty clearing stations for base hospitals every other day. Now there is not more than a train every four days.

A high officer of the R.A.M.C. said that the health of the B.E.F. on the whole has been extraordinarily good Only about two per cent of the present force has been evacuated to the United Kingdom because of illness since the war began.

At the Sunday afternoon service at the United Church, Messrs. Gordon Shearer and Harold Van Volkenburg were inducted as the newly-elected members of the session by Rev. A. McLaughlin, assisted by Mr. A. C. Denike, of Havelock United church.

The quilting which was to have taken place for the Junior Red Cross at the school house on Friday was postponed owing to the illness of the teacher, Mr. R. W. Umphrey, but it is planned to be held Friday of this week, March 18. The patches on the blocks were made entirely by the girls of the school who will assist at the quilting supervised by a number of adults.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Lean and family were Friday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Wannamaker and family.

Messrs Keith Thompson and Jim Inkster have returned from a two weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Inkster, of Essex.

Mrs. James Longmuir has returned from spending the week-end at Toronto.

Mrs. Apted and son, Ross, of Toronto were guests Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Ruttan.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Lean and family were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Carruthers, of Campbellford.

ROLLIE GLOVER

The People's Candidate

The Man Who Knows The Needs Of All Classes

Everything He Has Undertaken He Has Done Well

The Boy—

Son of Peter Glover who conducted a meat shop on Mark Street in Ashburnham, Rollie Glover was born in 1878. As a youth he attended public school in Ashburnham and the Peterborough Business College, and like many other boys, sold newspapers and did other work after school hours. Those were long hours for a boy who was fond of sport, but Rollie Glover was made of the right stuff. He never faltered in his efforts to get an education and prepare himself, and finally when the opportunity arose he was ready to accept it. And so it was that at the age of 14 he entered the office of The Peterborough Examiner as stenographer and secretary to the Hon. J. R. Stratton, its publisher. Rollie Glover has had to make his own way in life, and with the sympathetic support of the citizens among whom he has lived and cooperated since his boyhood, these days will bring their reward as Member of Parliament for Peterborough.

The Man—

A friend in need is a friend indeed and no truer words could be written of Rollie Glover, for it has been TO PEOPLE IN NEED THAT ROLLIE GLOVER HAS SHOWN THE MAN THAT IS IN HIM. In 1929, anticipating the depression and the needs of the unfortunate, he organized the Examiner Relief Fund, which continued until 1935. Even long after there was organized relief in the city and district, cases were continually coming to his attention and many are the families who, through his generous spirit and often out of his own pocket, were provided with things to eat, clothing to wear and fuel to keep their homes warm. Yes, even medicine and drugs in cases of illness. Such confidence was placed in the work that Rollie Glover was doing that the Kinsmen club, an organization of young business and professional men, placed all their available club funds at his disposal. In religion Rollie Glover has always been a member of the Presbyterian church.

The Citizen—

Always a booster of Peterborough and district, Rollie Glover has been for years an ACTIVE MEMBER of the Chamber of Commerce and the Horticultural Society. For almost thirty years he has been a DIRECTOR of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, seeing it grow from a small district show until now a four-day exhibition of the 'Class A' group. His interest in the Fair has for years been almost a hobby to him. He has served on many of the committees and for ten years has been in charge of concessions, grandstand attractions and other amusements. HE WAS A DIRECTOR OF THE Y.M.C.A. FOR SIX YEARS AND AN HONORARY DIRECTOR SINCE 1939. Retaining an interest in sport both as a supporter and executive he has been connected with hockey teams for years as secretary-treasurer or president. TWO YEARS AGO HE ASSUMED PRESIDENCY OF THE HOCKEY CLUB for the second time and is still continuing in that position. His executive ability was also recognized by the Kawartha Golf and Country Club and the LAST TWO YEARS HE HAS SERVED AS PRESIDENT OF THIS POPULAR ORGANIZATION.

Support the Winning Candidate of Winning Party

The Sportsman—

Athletics in Peterborough have always found a strong supporter in Rollie Glover. As a young man he played on some of the finest teams Peterborough has produced. In hockey he played in the position of "point." He was a member of the ONTARIO INTERMEDIATE CHAMPIONS in 1901-02 and the ONTARIO INTERMEDIATE CHAMPIONS in 1905-06. But not in hockey alone did Rollie Glover shine as an athlete. In lacrosse his ability was known far and wide and the Petes on numerous occasions reached the finals with Rollie Glover always playing a "bang-up" game. He also played a pretty fair game of tennis and in later years lawn bowling, curling and golf. Here again his ability was recognized, and in the years 1918 and 1919 he was PRESIDENT OF THE O.H.A. AND IS NOW A LIFE MEMBER OF THE ONTARIO HOCKEY ASSOCIATION.

The Alderman—

Rollie Glover was not long out of harness after he sold the Examiner in 1935, for the next year he was elected ALDERMAN of the city. It was his first entry into public life and on this occasion he headed the polls; indeed WAS ACCORDED THE LARGEST ALDERMANIC VOTE EVER GIVEN A CANDIDATE IN PETERBOROUGH. In 1938, he was again returned at the head of the polls. Rollie Glover's knowledge of relief problems and relief gardens made him a valuable member on the city council's relief committee. In other committee work he contributed his share in giving Peterborough a thorough business administration. His years of experience as a publisher gave him a full knowledge of the values of advertising and through him the Examiner's annual Vacation Editions were given a much wider distribution in the United States. He proved a hard working chairman of the manufacturers' committee and his advice offered was always considered in the interests of the citizens.

The Publisher—

Joining the Examiner when still a mere boy Rollie Glover was not long in being recognized by his employer and he soon graduated from the ranks of stenographer and was appointed bookkeeper. This position he retained until he was 25 years old, when he became Canada's youngest General Manager of a newspaper. He continued in this capacity until the death of Mr. Stratton in 1916, when he became co-owner of The Examiner, continuing thus until he sold out his interests in 1935. As a publisher everything that was for the good of Peterborough and district Rollie Glover supported through his newspaper. In 1922 he purchased The Review, which had formerly taken over the Morning Times, leaving Peterborough with one newspaper. His aim through the Examiner was to give the readers unbiased news and constantly to keep up with modern modes. The newspaper thus was a credit to this district, and mindful especially of worthy humanitarian causes. But Rollie Glover's value was recognized in a wider field and he served as PRESIDENT of the Ontario Associated Dailies, PRESIDENT of the Ontario Provincial Dailies and a DIRECTOR of Canadian Press Association

McCarthy Limits Yanks To Six In All-Star Tilt

TAMPA, Fla., March 15.—(AP).—Joe McCarthy has agreed, as a sort of compromise, to use only five or six New York Yankees in his starting line-up against the National Leaguers in the all-star game for the benefit of Finnish relief here Sunday.

Joe could have nominated the entire Yankee line-up, but the manager of the world champs bowed to public opinion to the extent of naming three members of the Boston Red Sox—tentatively—to start the engagement.

Joe's choice, announced last night, include Joe Gordon, Red Rolfe, Charlie Keller, Joe DiMaggio, and Bill Dickey of the regular Yankee line-up. The three Red Sox named were Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams and Joe Cronin. The starting American League flinger might be a Yankee too, Joe said. Either Red Ruffing or Lefty Gomez.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds, has been placed in charge of the National League forces, divided his starting brigade more equitably.

Bill said he woud start Morris Arnovich of the Phillies in left field, followed by Cooky Lavagetto of Brooklyn at third base, Mel Ott of the Giants in right field, John Mize of St. Louis at first base, and so on. In other words, a typical National League all-star line-up.

Remember When—

Frankie Frisch, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, signed a one-year contract a year ago today to broadcast play-by-play descriptions of all home games of Boston Red Sox, during the ensuing season. A loophole was left in the contract that Frisch might resign if given the opportunity to manage a major-league club.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Already the Cincinnati papers are telling the fans not to let those Grape Fruit League beatings get 'em down..Bill Hayes, the millionaire umpire, dropped 35 pounds toiling in the Piedmont League last summer—and won't be back.

One-minute Interview:

Leo Durocher: "Red Evans and Boots Poffenberger are two of God's noble creatures whom I couldn't know how to dislike...They were both alike except in one respect... That was in their arithmetic...If each had 18 beers, Evans would admit 18...But Boots never could remember more than four."

Paavo Nurmi and Taisto Maki don't ride in taxis (to save dough for the Finns) but neither will pass an orange juice stand without stopping for at least two refuels...Jimmy Braddock heads west soon for refereeing dates in Cleveland and Des Moines...Louis vs Galento in Philly during the G.O.P. convention is strictly a fairy tale...Louis fights only three more times this year—against Paychek in the Garden and in the Yankee Stadium in June and September.

Representative Ambrose Kennedy, who blasted boxing in a magazine piece, has been invited to sit in on a meeting of the N.Y. Commission and observe how the game is run here. Haw.... The reason Joey Archibald is giving Harry Jeffra and not Petey Scalzo that featherweight title shot is this: When Archibald and Jeffra mixed in Washington, everybody said it was a phonus bolonus and that Jeffra should have won. Archibald wants to go back down there and show them.

Yanks For Sale But Takers Seem Scarce

NEW YORK, Mar. 15 — (AP). — The New York Yankees, a nice bauble in financial as well as baseball figures, are for sale, but it looks like they will be at the same old stand for the same owners when the American League season opens next month.

Many prospective purchasers have been mentioned in recent months, and there was quite a scurry yesterday over reports Governor Francis P. Murphy of New Hampshire had virtually completed a deal for a syndicate.

The Governor said he had inquired into the possibility of the sale several weeks ago, but denied negotiations were under way or that he had submitted an outright proposition.

So all that the flame-fanning yesterday accomplished was smoking out an admission from the Yankee officials that the club could be had for a satisfactory sum.

Edward G. Barrow, president of the club and one of the trustees of the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, said that two or three legitimate offers had been made within the last year, but that none was under consideration.

George Ruppert, another trustee, said: "The Yankees have not been sold and there is no indication they will be sold for some time to come. When and if the club is sold the deal will require a considerable length of time."

Bill Burford Rolls Single Of 404 In City League

Bill Burford supplied the fireworks in the City League last night when he rolled off a 404 single for Grant's team in the final game. Burford had eight strikes going into the ninth frame when he threw the bad ball with the 100-buck cheque attached. His 835 total topped Fred Martin's 819 of Gordon's for the night's high three. Burford is just hitting his stride, rolling well over 800 last week with a 390 single.

The Gordon squad cracked off another 3767 total as they swamped Jay's 4-0, their fourth successive week in 3700 figures. Duffus and Lock Works staggered through a bad night, the former taking 4 points, while C.G.E. rolled them again for the big count in points as they downed Grafton's 3 to 1.

The Burford-Trowbridge combination was too much for Capitol Grill to beat, Grant's taking a 3 to 1 decision. Scores:

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

By a margin of 14 points the Lindsay curlers won the annual cup game staged between the members of the Lindsay club and members of the Peterborough club.

We are unable to report the personnel of the rinks playing in Lindsay, but have been informed that our boys were down 23 points. The rinks playing in Lindsay were skipped by Dr. J. Green, W. Harvey, W. Widdess and W. A. Pratten.

With five mixed rinks from the club competing at the Toronto Granite club in the annual Brereton-Rawe bonspiel, Ray Best's quartette was the only one to come through with three wins and that entitled his rink to play in the extra series to-day.

There are many nice things regarding this bonspiel, but to our mind the outstanding feature, speaking locally, was the playing of our ladies, who for the first time were playing on artificial ice. They did wonderfully well.

Miss Grace Paterson, who vied for O. McGill's Toronto rink, playing in her first bonspiel, made a real job of it. The playing of Miss L. Lyle, Mrs. M. Rishor, and Mrs. E. Thames was also notable. The other local ladies acquitted themselves in fine style, but playing on the artificial ice was no new experience to them.

Members here will be pulling for Ray's rink to come through, as this 'spiel is the largest of its kind in Canada.

We will hald the usual Saturday bonspiel tomorrow at 1.45 p.m.

SPORTS—DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Sailing into a Peterborough port today, minus a convoy, too—they're that tough!—the Shipbuilders of Collingwood are here for a naval engagement on frozen water tonight in the Brock arena. With the doughty Petes, who have already shot down the R.C.A.F.-ers, forced the Redmen to scuttle themselves, and have a strategic hold on the round-robin playoff series. They are ready to do battle with the Shipmen and folks who pass it up don't care for hockey, thrills, excitement, fun or championshp clubs. Ought to be a jam session in ye olde arena this p.m. and the fans will see another nifty ice duel of O.H.A. intermediate "A" playoff calibre. Likely the last home session of the season, any future home tilts by the Buckaroos maybe being in Oshawa's artificial rink.

* * * * * *

Regardless of games against Port Colborne, the local speedsters are atop the heap now by two points over Kitchener. Then comes Owen Sound, struggling for a playoff spot, and then Collingwood, battling to stave off elimination. The northerners will be practically out of the race if they lose here tonight, whilst a Peterborough win will assure the local gees of the O.H.A. finals. So it's important, and apart from that, will be highly exciting. Collingwood is on a par with the fast Sound squad, and they also held the 'Shirts to a draw last start.

* * * * * *

Defence Bounces 'Em

With two ex-pros aboard, the Shipbuilders—we were told by people in Owen Sound—have fast-skating forwards, a good goalie and a defence that hits ya with everything but a hunk of pig-iron. A smacking pair of blue-line guardians, which should make it interesting when our own bashers get trading torso tosses, eh? Eddie Starr won't be ready to return to the home lineup this tussle, but otherwise the Petes ought to be at full strength and rested up enough to dish up another thrilling display. Ice is okay and it looks like a large evening along the Rue Brock.

* * * * * *

Possibly the writer is too enthusiastic so soon, but we think now that the speedy Petes are about ripe to pick off the O.H.A. titular plum. And a nice juicy morsel it will be. Fans here, also, are getting higher and higher on this homebrew (they're nearly all local boys) outfit the way it keeps rollin' right along. We believe the Petes can mop up on Collingwood, Owen Sound and Port Colborne—and that they can edge out the smart Greenshirts in finals, though that'll be a gruelling series. If the squad goes that far, 'tis doubtful if there'll be enough time left to challenge for the all-Ontario championship, since it'll be around April Fool's Day then. At anyrate, an O.H.A. crown is what the gang is after right now, and a win tonight will put the club in the final series.

* * * * * *

Incos Are Still In

Port Colborne Incos have notified the O.H.A. and the other clubs in the intermediate "A" round-robin that the Incos will stay in the race for the time being, anyhow. So what can ya do except go ahead and play them? The Ports are billed for tonight at Kitchener, and the locals will likely trek to the canal town next Tuesday or Wednesday—though this is not definite as yet. So now we're back in a five-club series, though the Incos might yet fade out ere their trips to Owen Sound and Collingwood and, meantime, the Petes are faced with another lengthy journey. Yowzah, 'tis a tough road, the trail toward a title. Collingwood plays the 'Shirts in Kitchener on Monday. Morning bulletin announces D. A. Houston of Toronto as referee here this e'en.

* * * * * *

An item from the Kitchener Record: "Chances of Greenshirts finishing the round-robin in a tie with Peterborough were enhanced when the Petes were held on even terms 5-5 by Owen Sound. That division of points keeps the 'Shirts within striking distance of the Petes as the locals previously were held to a draw by Collingwood. Kitchener is given the call to beat Port Colborne Friday while Collingwood invades Peterborough, where the current leaders get the nod to mark up their fourth win in six starts. The important game between Collingwood and Kitchener on Monday is the one which will give the locals a chance to pull on even terms with the Peterborough sextet, which will be idle that night. Apparently it's going to be no easy task to send the Shipbuilders home with a loss as Tuesday's encounter indicated, but the 'Shirts are tough to turn back on their home ice."

* * * * * *

St. Kitts' Gals Here

Word was received from St. Catharines that the St. Kitts' girl cagers will be here tomorrow (not today) to play the local Orfuns at 5.30 p.m. in the Y.W. gym in an L.O.B.A. contest. The St. Kitts' crew insisted on playing the tussle on the date set by the provincial body, so 'twill be tomorrow. But there are two local Ladies' Loop playoffs tonight in the Y.W.C.A., and the tickets which have been sold for tonight will be good for both tonight's two tilts and the one tomorrow. Hence hoop fans lose nothing on the deal. St. John's meet Westclox at seven this p.m. in their first final match, and "Y" Gym tangles at eight with Quaker Aces in the opening senior playoff. Both should be lovely jousts to view, and rate a big crowd. Lineups listed elsewhere. Up at the Y.M. tomorrow night at 8.15, a men's City League semi-final is on, Bees mixing with Quakers—and this is one well worth taking in. They play nifty basketball.

* * * * * *

Vice-Prexy Lionel Brown presided over the lacrosse executive meeting the other gloaming when routine matters were dealt with and some discussion of season plans indulged in. Manager Doug Miller and Secretary Bill Saunders were named to attend the O.L.A. convention in Toronto next Friday. Prexy Pete King will likely be back here by then and go to the meeting, too, Pete being on the O.L.A. executive. Present plans are to call another executive meeting on Monday, March 25th, to start right in on the 1940 campaign build-up. Jim Lehane has agreed to aid the club again—after a year's absence—as press relations envoy. Don't shoot, Jim; it's just that we've been reading too much international diplomatic eyewash!

* * * * * *

Dese dem and dose: Dave Leether of this city has been nominated as vice-president and also executive member at the annual O.S.A. meeting Good Friday in Toronto....So has Harry Rollins of Belleville, but we'll bet on Dave....Kingston sheet says five-pin bowlers of that town will enter a tourney in Peterborough next month ere competing in the C.B.A. roll in Toronto....Mrs. E. K. Ward's name was inadvertently left out of the Mason's team lineup—they won the Mercantile Loop here—the other night....Whitby dropped a 4-3 count to Sutton last night to even up their intermediate "B" puck playoffs: Whitby beat our Lock Co. gang previously and Sutton won over Lakefeld....Church hockey playoffs tonight in Lakefield: Mark St. vs. Park St. at eight in the third junior final; All Saints vs. Murray St. at nine in the second senior final; plans are now going ahead for the yearly banquet, likely March 25th at All Saints' Parish Hall....We've just got word that the annual meeting of the senior football club will be held next Wednesday eve at six in the Empress, a dinner meeting, to present reports, elect officers, make plans for the year, etc.; ducats at a buck each may be had from the Empress, Play-mor or executive....Incidentally, why not call the club something else besides Orfuns this semester, as the monicker seems to give the gridders an inferiority complex?....No further arrangements have been made re the Industrial Puck Loop playoffs yet....Bring along a shoe horn this evening to the rink for a tight fit, and for goodness' sake don't sneeze!

Norwood Team Eliminates Stirling Outfit

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 15 (ENS)—Stirling dropped a 6-2 decision here last night to the fast-skating Norwood Terriers in the third game of the playoffs. They had a 3-1 lead at the end of the second, then Alex. Kemp's squad waltzed into the lead as the Puffer-Roger-Hill battery opened fire on Fox and banged in a trio of counters which left the Stirling fans wondering just what had happened.

It was a hard game to lose, particularly in view of the fact that the winner was to go into a three-out-of-five series with Campbellford which would assure them of at least one and possibly two of the biggest gates of the year. But Norwood deserved the win and probably would have taken the Bombers in their game here last Tuesday if they hadn't just wound up an exhausting series with Madoc.

Actually the game didn't get under way till 9.30 and that was how it happened to look for a while at least as though Stirling would be declared the winners.

There was little rough stuff during the evening, but Harry Ingram, sturdy rearguard for the Bombers, was handing out a few heavy body checks which didn't go over too well with the Hornets, and when the last period rolled around Armstrong and Webb were benched for mixing it up in the corner. Both teams looked good with Norwood having a little edge on territorial play while the losers showed better form in their passing attack led by Morton and Armstrong.

Norwood will now meet the Sunocos in the first game of the final playdown here on Friday, and according to present plans a three-out-of-five series is to be played providing the ice holds out.

The teams:

Stirling — Goal, E. Fox; defence, H. Ingram, B. Jones; wings, A. Fraser, R. Walker; centre, M. Armstrong; alternates, J. Walker, Morton, Richardson, D. May, Fraser, B. Bolt.

Norwood — Goal, McMaster; defence, R. Webb, Rothwell; centre, G. Puffer; wings, N. Rogers, F. Hill; alternates, W .Webb, O'Leary, Weir, Brady, Gill.

Petes Are Out To Clinch Finals Tonight

Round-robin standing:

Team	W	L	T	Pts
Petes	3	1	1	7
Kitchener	2	1	1	5
Owen Sound	1	1	1	3
Collingwood	0	1	1	1
Port Colborne	0	2	0	0

It's Collingwood Shipbuilders vs. the Petes at 8.30 tonight in the Brock in a playoff tilt, and a record crowd is expected. Collingwood must win to stay in the running, and a local victory will clinch a final playoff berth for the Petes—now after an O.H.A. title.

Some rousing and tight hockey is expected by the classy locals and the Collingwood bruisers, who held Kitchener to a tie last start. It is liable to be the last hockey seen here this year, as the ice will give out shortly now—so fans should not pass up this fine chance.

Curve Lake Squad Captures Trophy

LAKEFIELD, March 15.—(ENS).—North Dummer played off with Curve Lake for the cup here which was donated by the management of the rink, with Curve Lake winning 6-5. Both teams played hard hockey right from the start and it was anybodys game till on in the third when the pace was too much for North Dummer, and Curve Lake tallied twice to cop the cup. The teams:

North Dummer—Goal, B. Payne; defence, Bower; centre, I. Watts; wings, J. Watts, A. Watts; subs, R. Whetung, Sonny Whetung, Crowe, Ivey

Referee—B. Blewett, Lakefield.

A second game was between Peterborough Watercraft and the Lakefield Bullets. This was a tie, 10-all. Play was fast and even with only a few penalties handed out by Referee Blewett of Lakefield. The teams:

In the International - American brethren aren't careful the tyros of the company, Indianapolis Capitals, will walk off with the league title.

Though it's only their first season in the league, the Capitals clinched the championship of the western division last night by a 3-2 victory over Syracuse Stars.

Hershey Bears too are giving notice that they'll bear watching. In their drive for the playoffs, the Bears beat Pittsburgh Hornet, 2-1, last night for their sixth consecutive victory.

By turning back the Hornets, Hershey hopped into second place in the western section and need to win only one of their two remaining games to make certain of a playoff berth.

Indianapolis beat the last-place Stars by a powerful second-period attack.

The opennig period was scoreless, but the second was less than two minutes old when Les Douglas scored. Only 17 seconds after the first Indianapolis goal, Douglas and Eddie Bush set up a play that brought a second count by Bill Thomson.

Jackie Keating on a passing play with Kilrea and Giesebrecht got the third little more than six minutes after.

Bill Cunningham scored for Syracuse early in the third frame and Maxie Bennett got the Stars' second point with only seven seconds of the game left.

Petes May Play With Grads And Motor City

TORONTO, March 15.— Through the tireless effort of Harvey Brown, president of the West Toronto Senior League, local amateur baseball followers will be presented with a four team setup at Earlscourt Park this coming season and Hamilton will be a new attraction in this circuit.

Elmer Stewart, secretary-treasurer of the league, made it known last evening that Parkdale Derbys, Port Credit, and Hamilton would be in the fold while there are two prospects for a fourth club. The open franchise, caused by the withdrawal of Findlay's, will in all likelihood be taken by a local dairy concern.

A Strong Club.

Advices from Hamilton are to the effect that a powerful team can be gathered to represent the Ambitious City and, while negotiations are not definitely completed, the okay on Hamilton's entry seems a foregone conclusion.

Hamilton officials are enthusiastice over the idea of joining the Toronto group. Plans are under way to install floodlights at Scott Park there where night baseball would be featured.

Riverdale Grads, lone survivor from the Viaduct League, have been approached with an invitation to lineup with the West Toronto League, but when nothing was heard from them, President Brown and his officers decided to drop the Grads from their plans.

It is possible that Grads may line-up with Oshawa and Peterborough in another three-team group.

McCarthy Limits Yanks To Six In All-Star Tilt

TAMPA, Fla., March 15.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy has agreed, as a sort of compromise, to use only five or six New York Yankees in his starting line-up against the National Leaguers in the all-star game for the benefit of Finnish relief here Sunday.

Joe could have nominated the entire Yankee line-up, but the manager of the world champs bowed to public opinion to the extent of naming three members of the Boston Red Sox—tentatively—to start the engagement.

Joe's choice, announced last night, include Joe Gordon, Red Rolfe, Charlie Keller, Joe DiMaggio, and Bill Dickey of the regular Yankee line-up. The three Red Sox named were Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams and Joe Cronin. The starting American League flinger might be a Yankee too, Joe said. Either Red Ruffing or Lefty Gomez.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds, has been placed in charge of the National League forces, divided his starting brigade more equitably.

Bill said he woud start Morris Arnovich of the Phillies in left field, followed by Cooky Lavagetto of Brooklyn at third base, Mel Ott of the Giants in right field, John Mize of St. Louis at first base, and so on. In other words, a typical National League all-star line-up.

Remember When—

Frankie Frisch, former manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, signed a one-year contract a year ago today to broadcast play-by-play descriptions of all home games of Boston Red Sox, during the ensuing season. A loophole was left in the contract that Frisch might resign if given the opportunity to manage a major-league club.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP)—Already the Cincinnati papers are telling the fans not to let those Grape Fruit League beatings get 'em down. Bill Hayes, the millionaire umpire, dropped 35 pounds toiling in the Piedmont League last summer—and won't be back.

One-minute Interview:

Leo Durocher: "Red Evans and Boots Poffenberger are two of God's noble creatures whom I couldn't know how to dislike...They were both alike except in one respect... That was in their arithmetic...If each had 18 beers, Evans would admit 18...But Boots never could remember more than four."

Paavo Nurmi and Taisto Maki don't ride in taxis (to save dough for the Finns) but neither will pass an orange juice stand without stopping for at least two refuels...Jimmy Braddock heads west soon for refereeing dates in Cleveland and Des Moines...Louis vs Galento in Philly during the G.O.P. convention is strictly a fairy tale...Louis fights only three more times this year—against Paychek in the Garden and in the Yankee Stadium in June and September.

Representative Ambrose Kennedy, who blasted boxing in a magazine piece, has been invited to sit in on a meeting of the N.Y. Commission and observe how the game is run here. Haw... The reason Joey Archibald is giving Harry Jeffra and not Petey Scalzo that featherweight title shot is this: When Archibald and Jeffra mixed in Washington, everybody said it was a phonus bolonus and that Jeffra should have won. Archibald wants to go back down there and show them.

Yanks For Sale But Takers Seem Scarce

NEW YORK, Mar. 15 — (AP). — The New York Yankees, a nice bauble in financial as well as baseball figures, are for sale, but it looks like they will be at the same old stand for the same owners when the American League season opens next month.

Many prospective purchasers have been mentioned in recent months, and there was quite a scurry yesterday over reports Governor Francis P. Murphy of New Hampshire had virtually completed a deal for a syndicate.

The Governor said he had inquired into the possibility of the sale several weeks ago, but denied negotiations were under way or that he had submitted an outright proposition.

So all that the flame-fanning yesterday accomplished was smoking out an admission from the Yankee officials that the club could be had for a satisfactory sum.

Edward G. Barrow, president of the club and one of the trustees of the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, said that two or three legitimate offers had been made within the last year, but that none was under consideration.

George Ruppert, another trustee, said: "The Yankees have not been sold and there is no indication they will be sold for some time to come. When and if the club is sold the deal will require a considerable length of time."

Bill Burford Rolls Single Of 404 In City League

Bill Burford supplied the fireworks in the City League last night when he rolled off a 404 single for Grant's team in the final game. Burford had eight strikes going into the ninth frame when he threw the bad ball with the 100-buck cheque attached. His 835 total topped Fred Martin's 819 of Gordon's for the night's high three. Burford is just hitting his stride, rolling well over 800 last week with a 390 single.

The Gordon squad cracked off another 3767 total as they swamped Jay's 4-0, their fourth successive week in 3700 figures. Duffus and Lock Works staggered through a bad night, the former taking 4 points, while C.G.E. rolled them again for the big count in points as they downed Grafton's 3 to 1.

The Burford-Trowbridge combination was too much for Capitol Grill to beat: Grant's taking a 3 to 1 decision. Scores:

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

By a margin of 14 points the Lindsay curlers won the annual cup game staged between the members of the Lindsay club and members of the Peterborough club.

We are unable to report the personnel of the rinks playing in Lindsay, but have been informed that our boys were down 23 points. The rinks playing in Lindsay were skipped by Dr. J. Green, W. Harvey, W. Widdess and W. A. Pratten.

With five mixed rinks from the club competing at the Toronto Granite club in the annual Brereton-Rawe bonspiel, Ray Best's quartette was the only one to come through with three wins and that entitled his rink to play in the extra series to-day.

There are many nice things regarding this bonspiel, but to our mind the outstanding feature, speaking locally, was the playing of our ladies, who for the first time were playing on artificial ice. They did wonderfully well.

Miss Grace Paterson, who vied for O. McGill's Toronto rink, playing in her first bonspiel, made a real job of it. The playing of Miss L. Lyle, Mrs. M. Rishor, and Mrs. E. Thames was also notable. The other local ladies acquitted themselves in fine style, but playing on the artificial ice was no new experience to them.

Members here will be pulling for Ray's rink to come through, as this 'spiel is the largest of its kind in Canada.

We will hald the usual Saturday bonspiel tomorrow at 1.45 p.m.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Sailing into a Peterborough port today, minus a convoy, too—they're that tough!—the Shipbuilders of Collingwood are here for a naval engagement on frozen water tonight in the Brock arena. With the doughty Petes, who have already shot down the R.C.A.F.-ers, forced the Redmen to scuttle themselves, and have a strategic hold on the round-robin playoff series. They are ready to do battle with the Shipmen and folks who pass it up don't care for hockey, thrills, excitement, fun or championship clubs. Ought to be a jam session in ye olde arena this p.m. and the fans will see another nifty ice duel of O.H.A. intermediate "A" playoff calibre. Likely the last home session of the season, any future home tilts by the Buckaroos maybe being in Oshawa's artificial rink.

* * * * * *

Regardless of games against Port Colborne, the local speedsters are atop the heap now by two points over Kitchener. Then comes Owen Sound, struggling for a playoff spot, and then Collingwood, battling to stave off elimination. The northerners will be practically out of the race if they lose here tonight, whilst a Peterborough win will assure the local gees of the O.H.A. finals. So it's important, and apart from that, will be highly exciting. Collingwood is on a par with the fast Sound squad, and they also held the 'Shirts to a draw last start.

* * * * * *

Defence Bounces 'Em

With two ex-pros aboard, the Shipbuilders—we were told by people in Owen Sound—have fast-skating forwards, a good goalie and a defence that hits ya with everything but a hunk of pig-iron. A smacking pair of blue-line guardians, which should make it interesting when our own bashers get trading torso tosses, eh? Eddie Starr won't be ready to return to the home lineup this tussle, but otherwise the Petes ought to be at full strength and rested up enough to dish up another thrilling display. Ice is okay and it looks like a large evening along the Rue Brock.

* * * * * *

Possibly the writer is too enthusiastic so soon, but we think now that the speedy Petes are about ripe to pick off the O.H.A. titular plum. And a nice juicy morsel it will be. Fans here, also, are getting higher and higher on this homebrew (they're nearly all local boys) outfit the way it keeps rollin' right along. We believe the Petes can mop up on Collingwood, Owen Sound and Port Colborne—and that they can edge out the smart Greenshirts in finals, though that'll be a gruelling series. If the squad goes that far, 'tis doubtful if there'll be enough time left to challenge for the all-Ontario championship, since it'll be around April Fool's Day then. At anyrate, an O.H.A. crown is what the gang is after right now, and a win tonight will put the club in the final series.

* * * * * *

Incos Are Still In

Port Colborne Incos have notified the O.H.A. and the other clubs in the intermediate "A" round-robin that the Incos will stay in the race for the time being, anyhow. So what can ya do except go ahead and play them? The Ports are billed for tonight at Kitchener, and the locals will likely trek to the canal town next Tuesday or Wednesday—though this is not definite as yet. So now we're back in a five-club series, though the Incos might yet fade out ere their trips to Owen Sound and Collingwood and, meantime, the Petes are faced with another lengthy journey. Yowzah, 'tis a tough road, the trail toward a title. Collingwood plays the 'Shirts in Kitchener on Monday. Morning bulletin announces D. A. Houston of Toronto as referee here this e'en.

* * * * * *

An item from the Kitchener Record: "Chances of Greenshirts finishing the round-robin in a tie with Peterborough were enhanced when the Petes were held on even terms 5-5 by Owen Sound. That division of points keeps the 'Shirts within striking distance of the Petes as the locals previously were held to a draw by Collingwood. Kitchener is given the call to beat Port Colborne Friday while Collingwood invades Peterborough, where the current leaders get the nod to mark up their fourth win in six starts. The important game between Collingwood and Kitchener on Monday is the one which will give the locals a chance to pull on even terms with the Peterborough sextet, which will be idle that night. Apparently it's going to be no easy task to send the Shipbuilders home with a loss as Tuesday's encounter indicated, but the 'Shirts are tough to turn back on their home ice."

St. Kitts' Gals Here

Word was received from St. Catharines that the St. Kitts' girl cagers will be here tomorrow (not today) to play the local Orfuns at 5.30 p.m. in the Y.W. gym in an L.O.B.A. contest. The St. Kitts' crew insisted on playing the tussle on the date set by the provincial body, so 'twill be tomorrow. But there are two local Ladies' Loop playoffs tonight in the Y.W.C.A., and the tickets which have been sold for tonight will be good for both tonight's two tilts and the one tomorrow. Hence hoop fans lose nothing on the deal. St. John's meet Westclox at seven this p.m. in their first final match, and "Y" Gym tangles at eight with Quaker Aces in the opening senior playoff. Both should be lovely jousts to view, and rate a big crowd. Lineups listed elsewhere. Up at the Y.M. tomorrow night at 8.15, a men's City League semi-final is on. Bees mixing with Quakers—and this is one well worth taking in. They play nifty basketball.

* * * * * *

Vice-Prexy Lionel Brown presided over the lacrosse executive meeting the other gloaming when routine matters were dealt with and some discussion of season plans indulged in. Manager Doug Miller and Secretary Bill Saunders were named to attend the O.L.A. convention in Toronto next Friday. Prexy Pete King will likely be back here by then and go to the meeting, too, Pete being on the O.L.A. executive. Present plans are to call another executive meeting on Monday, March 25th, to start right in on the 1940 campaign build-up. Jim Lehane has agreed to aid the club again—after a year's absence—as press relations envoy. Don't shoot, Jim; it's just that we've been reading too much international diplomatic eyewash!

Dese dem and dose: Dave Leether of this city has been nominated as vice-president and also executive member at the annual O.S.A. meeting Good Friday in Toronto....So has Harry Rollins of Belleville, but we'll bet on Dave....Kingston sheet says five-pin bowlers of that town will enter a tourney in Peterborough next month ere competing in the C.B.A. roll in Toronto....Mrs. E. K. Ward's name was inadvertently left out of the Mason's team lineup—they won the Mercantile Loop here—the other night....Whitby dropped a 4-3 count to Sutton last night to even up their intermediate "B" puck playoffs: Whitby beat our Lock Co. gang previously and Sutton won over Lakefeld....Church hockey playoffs tonight in Lakefield: Mark St. vs. Park St. at eight in the third junior final; All Saints vs. Murray St. at nine in the second senior final; plans are now going ahead for the yearly banquet, likely March 25th at All Saints' Parish Hall....We've just got word that the annual meeting of the senior football club will be held next Wednesday eve at six in the Empress, a dinner meeting, to present reports, elect officers, make plans for the year, etc.; ducats at a buck each may be had from the Empress, Play-mor or executive....Incidentally, why not call the club something else besides Orfuns this semester, as the monicker seems to give the gridders an inferiority complex?....No further arrangements have been made re the Industrial Puck Loop playoffs yet....Bring along a shoe horn this evening to the rink for a tight fit, and for goodness' sake don't sneeze!

Norwood Team Eliminates Stirling Outfit

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 15 (ENS)—Stirling dropped a 6-2 decision here last night to the fast-skating Norwood Terriers in the third game of the playoffs. They had a 3-1 lead at the end of the second, then Alex. Kemp's squad waltzed into the lead as the Puffer-Roger-Hill battery opened fire on Fox and banged in a trio of counters which left the Stirling fans wondering just what had happened.

It was a hard game to lose, particularly in view of the fact that the winner was to go into a three-out-of-five series with Campbellford which would assure them of at least one and possibly two of the biggest gates of the year. But Norwood deserved the win and probably would have taken the Bombers in their game here last Tuesday if they hadn't just wound up an exhausting series with Msdoc.

Actually the game didn't get under way till 9.30 and that was how it happened to look for a while at least as though Stirling would be declared the winners.

There was little rough stuff during the evening, but Harry Ingram, sturdy rearguard for the Bombers, was handing out a few heavy body checks which didn't go over too well with the Hornets, and when the last period rolled around Armstrong and Webb were benched for mixing it up in the corner. Both teams looked good with Norwood having a little edge on territorial play while the losers showed better form in their passing attack led by Morton and Armstrong.

Norwood will now meet the Sunocos in the first game of the final playdown here on Friday, and according to present plans a three-out-of-five series is to be played providing the ice holds out.

The teams:

Stirling — Goal, E. Fox; defence, H. Ingram, B. Jones; wings, A. Fraser, R. Walker; centre, M. Armstrong; alternates, J. Walker, Morton, Richardson, D. May, Fraser, B. Bolt.

Norwood — Goal, McMaster; defence, R. Webb, Rothwell; centre, G. Puffer; wings, N. Rogers, F. Hill; alternates, W. Webb, O'Leary, Weir, Brady, Gill.

Petes Are Out To Clinch Finals Tonight

Round-robin standing:

Team	W	L	T	Pts
Petes	3	1	1	7
Kitchener	2	1	1	5
Owen Sound	1	1	1	3
Collingwood	0	1	1	1
Port Colborne	0	2	0	0

It's Collingwood Shipbuilders vs. the Petes at 8.30 tonight in the Brock in a playoff tilt, and a record crowd is expected. Collingwood must win to stay in the running, and a local victory will clinch a final playoff berth for the Petes—now after an O.H.A. title.

Some rousing and tight hockey is expected by the classy locals and the Collingwood bruisers, who held Kitchener to a tie last start. It is liable to be the last hockey seen here this year, as the ice will give out shortly now—so fans should not pass up this fine chance.

Curve Lake Squad Captures Trophy

LAKEFIELD, March 15.—(ENS).—North Dummer played off with Curve Lake for the cup here which was donated by the management of the rink, with Curve Lake winning 6-5. Both teams played hard hockey right from the start and it was anybodys game till on in the third when the pace was too much for North Dummer, and Curve Lake tallied twice to cop the cup. The teams:

North Dummer—Goal, B. Payne; defence, Bower; centre, I. Watts; wings, J. Watts, A. Watts; subs, R. Whetung, Sonny Whetung, Crowe, Ivey

Referee—B. Blewett, Lakefield.

A second game was between Peterborough Watercraft and the Lakefield Bullets. This was a tie, 10-all. Play was fast and even with only a few penalties handed out by Referee Blewett of Lakefield. The teams:

Watercraft — Goal, Bullied; defence, George Stenner, McCoy; centre, Gilbert; wings, Wilshaw, Boulter; subs, O'Connor, Dineson.

Capitals Take West Title, Beat Stars 3-2

(By the Canadian Press.)

In the International - American brethren aren't careful the tyros of the company, Indianapolis Capitals, will walk off with the league title.

Though it's only their first season in the league, the Capitals clinched the championship of the western division last night by a 3-2 victory over Syracuse Stars.

Hershey Bears too are giving notice that they'll bear watching. In their drive for the playoffs, the Bears beat Pittsburgh Hornet, 2-1, last night for their sixth consecutive victory.

By turning back the Hornets, Hershey hopped into second place in the western section and need to win only one of their two remaining games to make certain of a playoff berth.

Indianapolis beat the last-place Stars by a powerful second-period attack.

The opennig period was scoreless, but the second was less than two minutes old when Les Douglas scored. Only 17 seconds after the first Indianapolis goal, Douglas and Eddie Bush set up a play that brought a second count by Bill Thomson.

Jackie Keating on a passing play with Kilrea and Giesebrecht got the third little more than six minutes after.

Bill Cunningham scored for Syracuse early in the third frame and Maxie Bennett got the Stars' second point with only seven seconds of the game left.

Petes May Play With Grads And Motor City

TORONTO, March 15.— Through the tireless effort of Harvey Brown, president of the West Toronto Senior League, local amateur baseball followers will be presented with a four team setup at Earlscourt Park this coming season and Hamilton will be a new attraction in this circuit.

Elmer Stewart, secretary-treasurer of the league, made it known last evening that Parkdale Derbys, Port Credit, and Hamilton would be in the fold while there are two prospects for a fourth club. The open franchise, caused by the withdrawal of Findlay's, will in all likelihood be taken by a local dairy concern.

A Strong Club.

Advices from Hamilton are to the effect that a powerful team can be gathered to represent the Ambitious City and, while negotiations are not definitely completed, the okay on Hamilton's entry seems a foregone conclusion.

Hamilton officials are enthusiastice over the idea of joining the Toronto group. Plans are under way to install floodlights at Scott Park there where night baseball would be featured.

Riverdale Grads, lone survivor from the Viaduct League, have been approached with an invitation to lineup with the West Toronto League, but when nothing was heard from them, President Brown and his officers decided to drop the Grads from their plans.

It is possible that Grads may line-up with Oshawa and Peterborough in another three-team group.

BOSTON AND RANGERS TIE WHILE LEAFS DEFEAT THE CANADIENS

Leafs Win 8 to 4; Boston Ties Ranger Clan 0-0

(By the Canadian Press.)

Something about the way Boston Bruins go after hockey prizes sets them apart from the run-of-the-mine clubs.

The Bruins needed only a tie against the Rangers at New York last night to capture the National League championship. They got it—a scoreless tie that gave them the league title for the second straight year and the right to open at home when they meet the Rangers again next week in the first round of Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Bruin board of strategy, Manager Art Ross and Coach Jooney Weiland, decided this was a game to be played close to the shoulder. The Bears played it just like that, lying back to let the Blueshirts come at them in waves, and any time a rush got through Frankie Brimsek was as hot as ever in goal.

Dave Kerr

Boston hasn't wasted a lot of excess effort this season. The champions contributed liberally to that streak of successes in which the Rangers went 19 games without defeat, losing four times and tieing once in their first five meetings.

But when the time came the Bruins pulled up their braces. They whipped the Rangers 6-2 when they met them for the sixth time. Then came the seventh collision Tuesday night and Boston came from behind to win 2-1 in the last two minutes, approaching to within a point of the championship.

Brimsek Right On

Through most of last night's test the Rangers poured down in attacks of four and five men, keeping the 12,500 customers on their feet. Through it all the 23-year-old Brimsek outguessed anyone who got near him.

It was the Rangers' last game and it gave Dave Kerr the Georges Vezina trophy as leading goaltender of the campaign. He finished the 48-game schedule with 77 goals against him, compared with 96 for Brimsek and 99 for Turk Broda of Toronto.

Boston has one game to play, with the last-place Montreal Canadiens Sunday, before opening the first cup round.

Toronto Maple Lafs showed again that they are approaching rare form for the playoffs by breaking loose in the third period to defeat the hapless Canadiens 8-4 at Montreal. The victory was Toronto's seventh in 8 starts against the Habitants.

Pep Kelly

The victory marked outstanding sucess for an experiment by Coach Dick Irvin. He tried Robert (Red) Heron at centre-ice on a line between Pep Kelly and Sweeney Schriner and the redhead came through with four goals and an assist, tieing the season's record of four goals achieved by Herbie Cain of Boston.

Heron may be the answer to Irvin's prayer for a centre who can work effectively with the potentially high-scoring Schriner. Though he hadn't played centre since his amateur days, Heron fitted in so well that Schriner got a goal and three assists, while Kelly drew four assists.

Sylvanus Apps scored twice for Toronto and Hank Goldup once. Smiley Meronek got two goals for the Canadiens and Tony Demers and George Mantha one each.

Barefoot Boy Getting Great Results

"Shoeless" Johnny Wilson, University of Southern California high jump ace, who cleared 6 feet 6 inches against Occidental College recently, always removes his right shoe after the bar goes up to six feet two. He claims that without the weight of the spike the foot seems easier to lift over the bar. He takes off with the left foot. His theory is bringing great results.

Training Camp Briefs

By The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif., March 15—(AP) Sammy Chapman appears headed for a big year with Philadelphia Athletics. In his first look at major league pitching yesterday against Pittsburg Pirates he turned defeat into victory, hitting a homer with two on in the sixth, driving in two runs with a triple in the seventh and getting one of three walks in the 14th.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Camp-followers of Detroit Tigers are about sold now on Dick Bartell, the pepper-pot shortstop obtained from Chicago Cubs in exchange for Willie Rogell. So far Bartell has been an improvement afield and his fiery spirit has livened the club. The Tigers, going great in the Grapefruit League, had a date with the fluttering St. Louis Cardinals today. The Redbirds have lost five straight.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Robert Virgil Swift, aged 25, says St. Louis Browns can stop worrying about the holdout of Joe Glenn, because Swift will be their No. 1 catcher this season.

Although he batted only .263 in the Texas League last year, Swift was tops behind the plate, he led the league in assists and threw out 63 of 112 base-stealers.

TAMPA, Fla.—Paul Derringer and his Cincinnati teamamtes, after failing again to stop the world champion Yankees, may get some consolation from a declaration by Charley Keller, hero of the last world series, that "Derringer was th toughest pitcher we faced all season." Keller's bit of praise came yesterday after the Bombers had blasted the Reds 5-3.

Woodruff Grabs 2 Indoor Marks

HANOVER, N.H., Mar. 15 — (AP). — After being denied admission to trackdom's select circle of record-breakers for five years, John Woodruff, the great negro Olympic champion, gloated over two indoor marks to-day and the world hailed him as the fastest half-miler in history.

The long-striding Columbia graduate student dominated last night's third Dartmouth record-breaking carnival by racing 880 yards against a handicapped field in 1.47.7. That time was 1:5 seconds faster than the fastest half-mile ever run outdoors, for which England's Syd Wooderson has been awaiting official credit for two years.

While erasing the half-mile record of 1.49.8 chalked up on this remarkable six and two-thirds laps track by John Borican last year, Woodruff was caught in 1.47 flat at the 800-metre point. That clocking wiped out Borican's 1.49.2 record for the metric distance.

Sydney Snatches Maritime Cup From Eagles

(By the Canadian Press.)

Two sectional champions have been declared as Canada's senior amateur hockey clubs battle down the stretch towards the Allan Cup.

Sydney Millionaires, touted as the best team the far east has turned out since the lush cup-winning days of Moncton Hawks, captured the Maritimes title last night by brushing aside Moncton Eagles 12-6, taking the best-of-three round in two straight games. Sydney's all-star pack won the first contest 11-2.

Hull Volants took the Ottawa and District championship with a 4-2 victory over Smiths Falls at Ottawa in the deciding game of a best-of-three round. Hull and Sydney will meet in the first round of playdowns.

The veteran Bill Dickey guards Sydneys goal and acquisitions this year include Tony Graboski, from Hershey's old eastern United States league team, Doug Fritz, from the London Michigan-Ontario club. Albert and Jules Cholette, scoring stars of the Ottawa Valley, are leaders of the strong Hull contenders.

Most In Finals

Across the rest of the Dominion most divisions have reached the finals and some have only a game or two before declaring winners. There seems every indication the intersectional fight will be as hot as last year, when Port Arthur came east to lick Montreal Royals for the dominion laurels.

Quebec lags a little The Royals, strong favorites again, have reached the final in the Quebec Senior league but are awaiting the survivor of a round involving Montreal Concordia and Verdun, who play their deciding game tomorrow. Sherbrooke and Lachine will meet for the provincial league championship, as a result of Lachine's 8-0 triumph over the Olympics at Boston last night, and the winner will play Quebec's intermediate champions for the right to meet the Q.S.H.L. champions.

Devils Beat Porkies

Toronto Goodyears, eliminated by Montreal Royals in a terrific 1939 set, are two games up on St. Catharines after two starts in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A finals. The probable opponents for Toronto or St. Catharines are the mighty Blue Devils of Kirkland Lake, who scored their second straight win in the second game of their Northern Ontario best-of-five title round with South Porcupine, 5-4, at Timmins last night.

Kirkland Lake has three members of the Trail, B.C., team that won the world's amateur championship last year—Mel Snowden, Johnny McCreedy and Dick Kowcinak—as well as an all-star cast of holdovers from 1938-39.

Port Arthur's Dominion champions and Port Frances Maple Leafs start a best-of-three round for the Thunder Bay championship Saturday. The Bearcats had to overcome a big obstacle from Geraldton, Ont., to gain the final Winnipeg Cruisers rallied last night to defeat Rifles 4-1, levelling the best of three Manitoba finals at a game apiece. The winners will oppose the Thunder Bay survivors.

Fighting In West

Saskatchewan will turn a powerful contender on the team which takes the Manitoba-Thunder Bay playoff. Moose Jaw Millers and Regina Vic-Aces are to play a best of five round for the Saskatchewan championship and the right to enter Western semi-finals.

Nelson Maple Leafs are refusing to concede Trail an advantage in the Kootenay finals, being played on a best of five basis. The winner will meet Alberta's champions, who are favored in many quarters to gain the Allan cup finals. Marty Burke, the former professional star, has his Calgary Stampeders in the Alberta finals with Turner Valley, whom they beat 3-1 last night to tie the best of five round at one game each.

Filling in at either defence or up front, Les Burton (above) is one of the steady players on the Petes' roster all season. He will see action here tonight against Collingwood.

Plainfield Wins Welsh Cup, Ousts Bees 5-3

TWEED, March 15 — (ENS). — Supported by a large following from the south, Plainfield captured the Dr. Welsh trophy in the Tweed Rural League on Thursday night by defeating the Farnsworth Bees 5-3 in a closely contested game. Play was late in commencing due to lack of equipment being on hand for the visiting team. However, the gathering witnessed a hotly contested game, in which the final decision was not reached until the final bell.

The Farnsworth Bees opened the scoring in the first five seconds of play, when L. Meraw lobbed a back mand flip into the upper corner of the net. However, Denyes came back for the Plainfield team, and drove in a low shot to tie the count after only two minutes. Rivers and Parks were chased to the bench for tripping in this frame.

Considerable argument developed over a shot which went to the blue line, when Simms worked in on Mouck in the Bees nets, and the goal judge was a bit hasty in turning on the light. No count was allowed. Simms increased the count to a one goal lead late in the period. While ganging up on the Bees, Plainfield were caught up outside their blue line, and Marsh broke to score in the second.

The Bees gained a one goal lead when in the opening minutes of play in the last frame, Meraw took a pass from brother Harold to drive in a shot from four feet in front of the Plainfield nets. However, with R. Palmateer serving a penalty, Simms, the Zion Hill star, tied the count and then sifted through the Bees defence to give the visitors from the south a one goal lead. Pressing hard in the last four minutes of play to tie the count, the Bees were caught flat footed when Simms broke away to sew up the game, making the final count 5-3.

Simms for the Plainfield team was the best man on the ice, and only for his good and clever playing, the southerners would have been hard pressed to eke out a decision over the Bees, who had injected two old timers from the vanquished Trent Valley league into their line up.

The teams:

Farnswosth: Goal, Mouck; defence, R. Palmateer, L. Meraw; centre, Marsh; wings, Rivers, H. Meraw; subs, D. Palmateer, Prout, Baker, N. Thompson.

Plainfield: Goal, Gifford; defence, Parks, Dickey; centre, G. Denyes; wings, Platt, Carelton; subs, Simms, H. Carelton, Emerson, Gray, Hancock, D. Denyes.

Shore's $500 Gesture for Red Dutton Shocks Broadway Boulevardiers

NEW YORK March 15 — (CP). — The Broadway boulevardiers, accustomed to the more callous in matters pertaining to money among the New York sporting fraternity, were surprised, if not chocked, at the $500 gesture Eddie Shore made to Red Dutton last week.

The situation, it will be recalled, was this: Shore, who promised to play at least once in each International-American Hockey League city, had the choice of showing in Providence with Springfield Indians, the club he owns, or playing with New York Americans, who own him. The once-around-the-circuit was part of the agreement under which Eddie obtained his release from Boston to sign with Dutton's Americans.

Through some mix-up, never explained fully, Shore believed he had been released from the Providence date to play for the Americans in a game against Montreal Canadiens that, at the time, had an important bearing on the Amerks' National Hockey League playoff chances. At the last minute he was notified the International - American League would fine him $500 if he failed to play with the Indians.

Why He Did It

And out of gratitude to Dutton, the great defenceman with a false reputation as a penny-pincher, threw in his lot with the Americans. It may seem strange that Shore should feel under obligation to Dutton—some folk thought it should be the other way around—but let Shore explain it:

"Dutton has done plenty for me. First he took a great weight off my mind when he got me out of that jam with Boston. Second he has loaned me players for the Indians. Third, he has made it possible for me to play with my own club.

"My playing with the Indians has meant $15,000 to me at Springfield. If Art Ross (Boston manager) had shown me the same consideration at the beginning of the season it would have meant $25,000. Five hundred or 5,000, no fine could have kept me out of that Canadien game—not when the Americans' playoff chances might have been decided that night."

With Shore feeling that way, the score is about even because there's no doubt he is the main reason for the Americans' improvement since the turn of the year. In his 10 games with them, they've won five, lost four and tied one. They shaped up just about twice as nice as they did without him.

Lambs Advance, Calves, Hogs Firmer On Week

TORONTO, March 15.—(CP)—Cattle trade opened the week strong on the Toronto livestock market but eased off a little toward the close, especially on common grades of steers and butcher cattle, and cows. The calf market recovered last week's decline. Hog prices were a little firmer. Lambs were sharply higher, with sheep holding firm.

Cattle trade opened active, prices on all grades being steady to strong but they were easier toward the close of the week's trading. A fair cleanup was effected. Good weighty steers sold at $7-$7.25 with a few choice at $7.50 early in the week. Medium quality heavies sold downward to $6.50. Good butcher steers and heifers made $7-$7.25 with a few up to $7.35 on Monday.

Medium quality and common butchers sold from $6-$6.75 and closed easier. Good cows opened strong but eased toward the close with good making $5.25-$5.50, a few reaching $5.75. Common butcher cows sold downward to $4.25. Canners and cutters were steady, selling from $3.25-$4. Good butcher bulls brought $5.25-$5.50 with odd choice light butcher bulls up to $6. Bolognas sold between $4.50-$5. Fed calves were steady at $7 for plain up to $8.50 for good with a few making $9. The supply of stockers was light, a few plain selling from $5.50-$6, with good making $6.50. Milkers and springers were in only fair demand, with tops maknig $70-$75.

Veal Goes Up.

Veal calf prices opened higher, recovering last week's decline. Best vealers sold at $10.50-$11, with odd choice up to $11.50. Medium grades sold from $8-$9.50 and common light vealers sold downward to $6.

Sales of hogs were about evenly divided between the live and dressed basis. Live sales were made at $9.10 off-trucks for bacons. On Monday dressedweight sales were made from $12.15-$12.25, but at the close sales were made at $12 to mostly $12.15 for basic grade.

The lamb run included 1,200 Western lambs. This section of the market opened sharply higher, remaining steady to the close. Good Western lambs brought $10.85. Good native fed lambs made $10.50 to mostly $10.75. Sheep were firm at $5.50-$6.00 for good ewes. Good bucks sold around $5 and cull sheep downward to $3. A few light Western ewes sold from $6.50-$7.00.

24 Die In Crash

McALEEN, Texas, Mar. 15—(AP)—Twenty-three fruit pickers, mostly of Mexican extraction, were killed to-day in their truck which was struck at a grade crossing by a Missouri-Pacific passenger train. Seventeen other pickers were injured.

It was the most disastrous wreck in Texas history.

The train carried the vehicle for about 600 yards. Bodies were scattered along the tracks.

master and will remain so in or out of power."

Concerning former Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec, Dr. Manion said he had no arrangement with him of any kind.

The Toronto Liberal meeting also heard Justice Minister Lapointe, Defence Minister Rogers, Provincial Secretary Nixon of Ontario and Sir William Mulock, 96-year-old former Chief Justice of Ontario and long-time friend of Mr. King.

Mr. Lapointe said he would "stand or fall with Mackenzie King, but fall we shall not." Mr. Rogers said a united national effort has been the constant concern of the government and "it will continue to be our purpose day and night until the final victory has been won."

Nixon Remarks Stand

Only Ontario cabinet minister on the Toronto platform, Mr. Nixon said his return to the Hepburn cabinet after resigning in protest against the premier's criticism of the war effort involved "no withdrawal or modification" of remarks made by him when he left the cabinet. Because the issue was federal and had not been discussed in cabinet he had agreed to remain as provincial secretary.

Sir William said it would be "madness" for Canada to change governments at this time.

At another Toronto meeting, Conservative Leader Drew of Ontario charged that defence department order were received from 1936-1938 inclusive by a lumber partnership at Kingston, Ont., in which the "main interest" was held by Grant MacLachlan, private secretary to Mr. Rogers.

Stating that during all this time Mr. MacLachlan was Mr. Rogers' secretary, Col. Drew said: "The last order received by Mr. McLachlan and his partners was awarded through the war supply board on Nov. 24, 1939, for lumber. That tells just how the war supply board has been able to stop patronage and favoritism."

Proposes Resignation

"If Mr. Mackenzie King is at all concerned about public confidence in the direction of our war effort, he should ask for Mr. Rogers' resignation immediately," Col. Drew said. "And on this occasion he should not ease the blow by appointing him to some other department.

Col. Drew said that on August 17, 1936, Mr. MacLachlan formed a partnership with his wife and C. C. Wyatt of Kingston known as "MacLachlan Lumber and Woodworking Company." On August 15, 1939, Wyatt left the partnership and new partners were A. G. MacLachlan, Sara E. MacLachlan, his wife; Alexander MacLachlan, his father; and Ian MacLachlan, his brother.

Col. Drew asked whether Mr. Rogers would "suggest for one moment that he was unaware of these orders from the Department of National Defence given to a business in which his private secretary had the main interest.

"Does Mr. Rogers suggest for one moment that he is so ignorant of orders given in his own riding of Kingston that he did not know that 10 orders had been given to the MacLachlan Lumber and Woodworking Company during the time that Mr. MacLachlan was his private secretary?"

Howe Denies Contracts

The war effort of the Mackenzie King administration was defended by Transport Minister Howe, at Geraldton, 175 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

"Never in my life have I had a cost-plus contract with the government," he said in referring to a statement made in Cornwall, Ont., recently by Dr. Manion.

He also denied a charge by Col. Drew, that his desk was piled high with war purchase contracts which Mr. Howe could not make up his mind to sign.

"Not one of those contracts lingers in my desk," he said. "After reading them over they are promptly signed and passed along to Privy Council for approval. I would say that the average time of a contract at my desk as Minister of the War Supply Board is 10 minutes."

Rogers Strikes Back

Defence Minister Rogers hit out at Toronto in a half-hour address over a network of Ontario radio stations Thursday at the use of "general terms" in criticizing the Dominion government's war effort.

He accused Dr. Manion and Col. Drew and Premier Hepburn of using "very general terms" in accusations against the administration.

"Sometimes, in order to give them the appearance of authority, they are introduced by such phrases as : 'I have this from military authorities themselves,' or 'a general told me this,' or 'this statement is made on the authority of the highest officers who took the First Divisions overseas,'" Mr. Rogers said. "When all else fails, the charge may be introduced by that masterpiece of cagueness, 'everybody knows'."

Dr. Manion, Col. Drew and Mr. Hepburn, with Maurice Duplessis, former Premier of Quebec, "possibly lurking in the background," were willing "in their desire to gain power" to "create doubt, distrust and suspicion in the minds of the Canadian people.' They hope to "discredit our carefully considered long-range plan, which has been designed to achieve unity in the accomplishment of Canada's maximum war effort."

Canada's old parties are trying to slide into power on a wave of war enthusiasm, J. S. Woodsworth, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leader, said at Regina.

"I don't think that's enough,' Mr. Woodsworth said. "I don't think any government should be returned to power without telling what it intends to do about domestic conditions."

Sen. Cairine Wilson.

At Vancouver Senator Cairine Wilson said it was "curious if Denton Massey as taking credit for originality" in the 12-point program for curing the problems of youth and unemployment he outlined here last Tuesday "because 11 of the points are in the program of the Liberal Government."

She referred to a speech in which the National Government candidate for Toronto Greenwood outlined the National Government party's plan to ameliorate those problems through conservation, training, development of industries and other measures.

Senator Wilson said the 12th point on Mr. Massey's program—unemployment insurance — would be brought down by the Liberal Government when the necessary co-operation was obtained from the provinces for a constitutional amendment.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. National chairman, at London, Ont., said Mr. King deliberately has prevented Canadians from learning what his government has done since war started. He criticized the Prime Minister for calling an election and forestalling parliamentary debate on the war effort.

At Montreal Works Minister Cardin defended Canada's entry into the war because it was a crusade to preserve liberty and freedom. Trade Minister Euler spoke at Paris, Ont.

Whitfield Home Is Destroyed

Loss estimated at $5,000 resulted yesterday when the brick home of William Whitfield in North Monaghan Township, three miles southwest of Peterborough, burned to the ground between five and six o'clock in the afternoon. All furniture was saved from the burning home and loss was partially covered by insurance, it was reported.

Absence of a close supply of water hindered the work of the Peterborough Fire Department. A city pumper and five men rushed to the scene of the fire on request, only to find that the nearest large supply of water was the Otonabee River, half a mile distant.

During the time that elapsed before they had obtained enough hose to stretch that distance, the flames had become out of control and the building was totally destroyed, only the walls remaining erect.

Eighty - one - year - old William Whitfield, ill in bed when the fire broke out, was carried from the burning dwelling by his sons and removed to a son's home.

Mr. Whitfield's sons had cleaned the stove pipes in the large home and started to burn the soot from the chimney when sparks started the fire, Fire Chief George Gimblett said today. He warned householders against this method of cleaning chimneys and pointed to the result in this case.

With a staff of five men Chief Gimblett attempted to save the building, laying 1800 feet of hose across fields and fighting the blaze in a driving snowstorm. The men did not return to Peterborough until 10.30 last night.

Farmers from all the surrounding district assisted in battling the fire and succeeded in removing the furniture from the building.

BRITISH SHIP SINKS WITH CARGO OF KRUSCHEN

Canada bound with 50,000 bottles

A grave interruption in Kruschen supplies for Canada occurred recently when a special shipment of 50,000 Kruschen Giant Packages was sent to the bottom. The balance of the supply of Kruschen Packages, sent on other ships, has been landed and distributed thinly across the country. Special concern was felt because this particular shipment was of the Giant (Free Trial) size which contains the regular package plus the free trial package offered at the regular price. Your local druggist still has a supply — but act immediately! We urge regular Kruschen users to get their packages at once to avoid disappointment. If you suffer from rheumatic pains, frequent headaches, lassitude, blotchy complexion and other ailments frequently caused by constipation, just you try Kruschen Salts.

whether to finance the war by voluntary or compulsory saving .

These were the three measures:—

1. To tighten its hold on foreign exchange, the government banned private importation of canned and bottle fruits, beginning next Tuesday.

Only the ministry of food will be permitted to buy these products abroad but the effect on British supplies is not expected to be felt immediately since large stocks have been accumulated recently. Fruit juices, jam and marmalade are exempt.

The United States has been Britain's chief provider of canned and bottled fruits, principally peaches, pears, apricots, grapefruit and fruit salad. In 1938 more than $14,000,000 worth was imported from the United States.

2. To organize Anglo-French colonial cooperation in order to utilize all of both empires' resources for the war effort, it was learned, Malcolm Macdonald, colonial secretary, will confer in Paris soon with Georges Mandel, French minister of colonies.

Besides production, their discussions are expected to include intra-colonial trade, transport, broadcasting, aviation and foreign currency restrictions. Colonial collaboration, it is believed, will supplement the economic agreement of last November by which the Allies pooled their economic resources and will make the colonies largely self-supporting.

3. Large-scale selling in Britain of securities, chiefly negotiable bonds on behalf of German interests, was disclosed in a stock exchange warning to members to "exercise greatest caution in accepting and executing orders, the real source of which they are not able to verify beyond all reasonable doubt."

Penalties For Trading.

Such sales are subject both to stock exchange disciplinary action and stringent penalties under the law forbidding trade with the enemy.

The Financial Times explained that delivery of a "tainted" security passes no title to the purchaser and that "the seller thus is at the risk of having to make a second delivery if, as the result of an enemy interest, the securities comprised in the first delivery are claimed by the custodian of enemy property."

Lord Beaverbrook, in a signed editorial in the Daily Express, voiced the opinion that the Russo-Finnish peace would not result in an increase in Scandinavia's trade with Germany.

"Scandinavia must sell to Britain," he wrote. "Cash is the necessary condition of their lives. And it is only in Britain that they can collect it.

"A long purse makes a short war."

Some sources expressed belief Italy may double her purchases of British coal as a result of Britain's release of 13 Italian colliers laden with German coal and the Rome government's agreement to transport no more German coal by sea during the war.

The Daily Herald saw reports of an impending Russo-Italian rapprochement as a prelude to two other moves—"a big Balkan drive—an attempt to cajole or coerce Rumania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria into the Berlin-Rome-Moscow system" and "a big peace move, Russia and Italy saying, 'Why not call it off?'"

England At War Is Described To Kiwanis Club

Kiwanians to-day heard at first hand the story of England at war, told by an Englishman just come to Canada. He was Alan Austin, who came from London, in the heart of the war, to instal new specialized machinery at the Canadian General Electric plant here.

They listened with keen attention as he unfolded the story of the change from peace to war in England, and told intimate, homey details of the way in which the people of that land accepted the change, in much the same way that one would expect Canadians to accept such a change—with grumbling at small hardships, calm acceptance of the grave sacrifices they were called on to make.

His story was of the everyday man faced with new facts of living—blackouts, rationed food, rationed gasoline, evacuation of his children. He told of their grumbling, of the good humor, of their pathos. His was the story of a sane people transferred into an insane world and holding firm their sanity.

There was the story of city children faced with Nature for the first time and amazed at its crudity; of mothers drifting back to danger zones after being bored in new, unfamiliar surroundings, only to be shuttled off again; of patriots offering their services to their country only to be turned away because there was no need for them as yet; of men driven out of employment by new restrictions such as rationing of petrol; of A.R.P. scandals that had to be cleaned up in the face of public anger.

It was a full, intimate picture of a country at war that Mr. Austin brought to Kiwanians, a story whose equal has yet to be matched in Peterborough for convincing quality. He was introduced to the club by Kiwanian Stan Longhurst and Kiwanian Charles Saunders moved a vote of thanks.

A SNOWMAN

Doubtless believing that there was no use in having a winter election without using winter propaganda a group of Simcoe street youths toiled in Thursday night's snowstorm for a couple of hours and the result of their labors greeted folk going to work this morning. It was a realistic eight-foot snowman with a face carefully painted on it and a big sign "Vote for Gordon Fraser." This new type of election propaganda is located on Simcoe street between Bethune and Stewart streets.

Girls' Game Off

The girls' provincial basketball playoff, scheduled for here to-morrow afternoon, between St. Catharines and the Peterborough Orfuns, has been postponed. Evidently a mixup by the L.O.B.A. executive caused the confusion, both clubs being ready for the contest when notified this afternoon it would not be held for at least a week.

Y's Men's Club Celebrates 13th Birthday

All thirteen presidents of the Peterborough Y's Men's Club of the Y.M.C.A. were on hand last night for the celebration of the organization's 13th birthday.

Every past president of the club since its formation in 1927, and this year's president, Jack Nichols, was on hand and each gave a few of the highlights of his year of office. It was an interesting and significant cavalcade of worthwhile work well done, accompanied by a good fellowship and fun, that came to the attention of other members.

The club has been fortunate in its leadership and has proved an invaluable aid in the work of the local association. Messages of congratulation were read by Don Crawford from Henry Grimes, International Secretary, and other prominent Y's Men officials.

President Jack Nichols presided during the early part of the program and turned the gavel over to Harry Tudhope, the senior active past president. The club adjourned after the meeting to continue the celebration at the home of their social committee chairman, George Moore.

Four Gladioli Bulbs Auctioned For $3.95

Four gladioli bulbs of new varieties, auctioned at last night's meeting of the Horticultural Society, brought $3.95 to the treasury. One of them sold at $1.75, a high price acording to the estimation of the average man who may regard such varities as Picardy good enough for his flower garden, but as a matter of fact it was considered quite a bargain. The bulb was said to be worth $4.

The four bulbs were a gift from Alex Downey of Long Branch who gave an illustrated talk on gladioli, especially showing some of the new varieties, including Palmer seedlings.

Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt presided. Three plans presented by George Biddle were distributed as door prizes, the winners being George Benton, Nelson King and Fred Storey. It wa sannounced that Dick the Gardener from Hamilton will visit the Society again this year, and will speak in the Sunday School of Knox Church about the end of April.

Rev. Mr. Zufelt and W. C. Wilks, delegates to the convention of the Ontario Horticultural Society, gave a report of its main features. Mr. Wilks suggested that one of the women of the local society should be a delegate next year. Ther are now 245 active societies in affiliation with the Ontario association. Mr. Wilks said that Charles Lane of Valentia was re-elected superintendent. The district show has been invited to Millbrook on August 7, and it is likely that Peterborough will be chosen for the district meeting in May.

MORE DAYLIGHT.

Thursday, March 14, was the first day of the year when we had twelve hours of daylight. The sun rose at hours of sunlight. The sun rose at 6.33 in the morning and set at 6.32 in the evening.

AN EARLY BIRD.

Jay Knox of Stoney Lake reports that a groundhog has been sitting at the mouth of his burrow on the hillside of Hetherington's farm near Nassau. Several motorists have noticed the animal sunning himself on a bare spot with plenty of snow all around.

LADIES IN CHARGE.

On March 28 a Kinsmen Club meeting will be held at the Kawartha Club and the wives of Kinsmen will have charge. Mrs. J. Wharry will preside. Another event which is of interest to Kinsmen is a concert to be held in Marmora on March 27-29 by the new Kinsmen Club of Marmora and several local Kinsmen are expected to attend.

NO POLICE COURT

The Peterborough police department must have known that Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., had a busy agenda for police court in Campbellford this afternoon. At all events they had nothing whatever on the cards for His Worship.

ENTERTAIN AUDIENCE

An enjoyable musical program was provided at the National Government rally in the Canadian Legon Hall Thursday night by a trio consisting of Stan Northrop, pianist, George Gatfield, violinist and Harold McFarlane, saxophonist. Miss Gwen Parnell contributed a humorous reading that was much appreciated.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE

Two motor cars were damaged to the extent of around $90 Thursday night when they came into collision near the C.P.R. station. James Teneycke, 2 Gladstone avenue, was driving north and making a turn into the station when his car and that of K. A. Jones, Albertus street, collided. Both cars suffered badly from the impact but no one was injured.

AN INGENIOUS PAIR

Yesterday's snowstorm prevented Bob Doherty and Virgil Ralph, two Carlisle Avenue youngsters from enjoying a skate at the Quaker Rink, so they turned their attention to other pleasures. They offered to shovel the snow from the street in front of Cliff Jackson's barber shop in East City and when he accepted their offer ,they picked up a sidewalk sign board and using it as a scraper did the job in record time, and collected their pay. Then they hurried home, shouldered two snowshovels and went to work on a cooperative basis. In less than two hours they had earned 48 cents.

SNOW IS WELCOME

Yesterday's heavy fall of snow was welcomed by the farmers who claim it will relieve the water situation considerably if mild weather follows. They point out that the first snow of the winter is still on the fields and there has not been a bare spot all winter. This has prevented ice from forming around the fall wheat, has provided a protective blanked and when the thaw comes there will be plenty of water in the wells.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Directed by A. E. Paterson, the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra is presenting is annual concert in the Collegiate Friday evening, assisted by Mrs. James Goldie and George Coleman. The program has been carefully selected and throughout will have a popular appeal. There are 36 members in the orchestra now with a wide range of instrumentation. Of timely interest is the playing of Valse Triste, by Jean Sibeluis, the noted Finnish composer, as the number is generally regarded as a tribute to Finland.

Tourist Dollars Can Help Canada Defeat Naziism Kinsmen Told

Advertising by various agencies across Canada is having the desired effect in counteracting Nazi propaganda in the United States, Austin Peters, District Governor of Kinsmen Clubs in District 6 told the local Kinsmen club at a meeting in the Empress Hotel Thursday evening.

He urged every Kinsmen in Peterborough to write at lease one letter to friends, relatives or acquaintances in the States explaining that there are no war restrictions in force in Canada and that tourists may travel back and forth across the border with the same ease as in peace time. "I am not suggesting this as a national effort for Kinsmen clubs but I feel it is your duty as good citizens to do your share in fighting this insidious propaganda which still is having a bad effect in some parts of the States. The tourist dollars from the United States can help us defeat Naziism by supplying much needed foreign exchange and it is my information that the majority of Americans are anxious to help in this way," he said.

Traffic Reduced

He explained that when the war broke out, traffic across the Thousand Islands bridge fell off very noticeably but records now show an increase in traffic from the States during the first two months of this year.

Mr. Peters said it was imperative that local service work not be neglected during the war even though each man might be called on for other assistance. "This service work is even more important in war time than in times of peace, and although I would not want one member to dodge any personal responsibility in contributing to other causes, each must realize that the local service work must go ahead also."

His talk was entitled "Kinship" and he summarized the activities of the various clubs in this part of Ontario, paying particular tribute to the new club at Marmora. He told of a gala night held last Monday at Belleville attended by 105 Kinsmen, and held in honor of the Marmora club which has thirty-five members on its charter, from Marmora, Deloro and Cordova Mines. The charter would be presented at a meeting to be held soon, he said, and he suggested that Peterborough club send a big contingent to the meeting.

Planning Convention

At North Bay the members are busy with plans for the convention this year, and at Noranda another club is in a healthy condition. He said this club had difficulty finding service work to do, as the three centres of population, Noranda, Rouyn and Kirkland Lake were prosperous with very few on relief. At Christmas time the members packed baskets and delivered them by dog team to settlers way out in the bushland, who were badly in need of assistance.

The speaker was introduced by Vern Selkirk, president, who also voiced the thanks of the club for the interesting talk. There was an exceptionally good turnout of members.

Prior to the address, an entertaining item was introduced with Clifford Cruikshanks, singing two songs, Miss Berniece Flynn was the accompanist, and a vote of thanks was voiced by Dr. Mark Crough.

Recruiting Officer Well Satisfied

Highly satisfied with the results of the first day's recruiting in Peterborough, Col. R. H. Waddell, recruiting officer for Military District No. 3, expects to have 150 men by next Friday, he said this morning.

He declined to say how many had been accepted already, but said that the number was highly encouraging and that the applicants received so far have been of the best possible type.

The recruiting, first for World War II to be done in this city, is for Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Recruits who are accepted will report to headquarters at Picton before being issued uniforms and will leave from day to day, not waiting until their number is complete, Col. Waddell said.

The recruiting office in the Armouries is open morning, afternoon and evening each day for the next week. Yesterday afternoon and last night and again today there was a line-up of applicants waiting to be examined.

Young Woman Suffers Injuries To Face

Florence Marshall, R.R. 1, Port Hope, was taken to Port Hope General Hospital, suffering from facial injuries following a traffic accident near Rosamount on Highway 28 Thursday night.

Poor visibility as a result of the blinding snow storm is blamed for the accident.

Miss Marshall was a passenger in a north bound car driven by Robert Thorne, R.R. 1 Port Hope which came into collision with a southbound coal truck owned by The Pittsburgh Coal Company and driven by Gordon H. Walsh, Port Hope.

Vehicles were damaged but Miss Marshall was the only person hurt. Provincial Traffic Officer Gordon E. Broughton investigated the accident which occurred about 7.15 o'clock.

Bowhey Death Is Found To Be Accident

A coroner's jury investigating the death of James Bowhey, C.N.R. trainman on Wednesday, last night returned a verdict of accidental death after hearing fourteen witnesses.

The jury came to the conclusion that Bowhey had slipped and fallen between two cars to the tracks below while walking along the tops of the freight cars, and attached no blame.

Direct evidence of this fact came from Bowhey's own lips, according to one witness. Joseph Cook, 471 Sherbrooke street, related that he had given first aid to Bowhey and had accompanied him to the hospital in an ambulance. Conscious all the while, Bowhey had told him the lights at the intersection of Charlotte and Bethune streets had dazzled him and that he had missed his footing, falling between two cars. Bowhey said he had tried to catch hold of something to stop his fall but had been unable to do so, he said.

Dr. R. K. Magee told the jury, sitting under Coroner Dr. E. P. Snider, that the injured man had died from surgical shock—shock that resulted from the terrible injuries he received under the wheels of the train.

Eye-Witness Called

Only eye-witness to Bowhey's fall was a 13-year-old girl, Theresa Crowe, who told the jury she nad watched the train go by her on Bethune street between Simcoe and Charlotte streets and had noticed a man on top of the cars. She remembered thinking that his job was a dangerous one when she suddenly saw him fall between two cars

Robert Hall was waiting at the corner of Charlotte and Bethune streets for the train to pass when "All of a sudden I saw the form of a man appear from underneath the train." He ran over to him and, fearing Bowhey was going to fall back under the wheels of the train, he held him on the ground until all the cars had passed. He called medical assistance and returned to Bowhey, who he said was conscious all the time.

Dragged 65 Feet

Evidence that Bowhey had fallen under the train some 65 feet back along the track and that he had been carried for the remainder of the distance lay in the fact that one badly torn rubber shoe, which was produced as evidence, was found that distance away.

The sole of the shoe was worn smooth and the train's brakeman, F. H. Gordon, said the day had been particularly difficult for walking on the tops of the cars.

Other witnesses called included Eugene Young, train operator; E. J. Roche, conduct; Harry Dawkins, fireman; Stafford Sullivan, Kenneth Hanley, Ed. Copperthwaite, Constables C. McGillen and P. Sexsmith and E. J. Roach.

Members of the jury were Victor Tully, foreman, Felix Courneya, Sanford Harris, Frank Saunders, and A. E. Allen.

Dominion Woollens Expects Advance

TORONTO, March 15.—Dominion Woollens and Worsteds expects that the improvement in volume of business and trading conditions that was felt in 1939 will continue during the current year, Henry Barrett, managing director, told shareholders at the annual meeting Thursday. Unfilled orders are greatly in excess of this time last year, Mr. Barrett added. He stated that the company's improved condition is partially due to economies resulting from the consolidation of its plants.

The actual value of shipments during 1939 amounted to $3,490,000, an increase of 37½ per cent. over 1938, and total for the current year is expected to be considerably higher, due to the increased prices prevailing for raw materials and other cost items. While the volume fabrics produced for military, air force and naval purposes during 1939 represented a very small percentage of total output, at present 50 per cent of the company's output of cloth is directed to these groups. Although capital expenditures were kept down to only $33,000 in 1939, a considerably larger amount will have to be expended during the current year for capital replacements due to this increased volume of production for military business.

Supplies of wool for the company's use seem fairly well assured, as most of the major problems in connection with the Empire wool control scheme seem to have been solved. The present price of wool is approximately 70 per cent above pre-war levels, and is based on the British wool control fixed prices for the present rationing period, which will end at July 1, 1940.

The board of directors was re-elected, the appointment of W. G. Hanson, Montreal, made on Feb. 1 last, being confirmed. Mr. Barrett replaced W K. Trower as vice-president.

Swimming Meet Is Planned

A school swimming meet, first of its kind to be held in Peterborough, will take place at the Y.M.C.A. here on April 5, it was announced last night at the monthly meeting of the Y's Boys' committee at the home of Dr. H. M. Yelland.

Every school, public and separate, will be represented by a team of its most expert swimmers and a handsome trophy will be donated to the winners. Plans for the coming meet were outlined last night by Ham. Gosse, president, who reported that success of the meet assured judging by the eager response which its beginnings have met. Two training periods at the Y.M.C.A. swimming pool will be given each school in order that each may pick its fastest swimmers for the contest.

Four members of the Y.M.C.A. board of directors were present at the meeting, including President Charles Lacheur, and a good attendance of members of the boys' committee was marked. Mr. Gosse reported for the month's activities, a highlight of which was the presence of 45 boys from the Ashburnham boys' club in the Y gymnasium on Tuesday night of this week.

Pontypool Man Is Proclaimed PotatoChampion

H. Blakely of Pontypool was declared champion of the potato section of the Quinte Seed Fair at Port Hope on Thursday. He is one of the Manvers Township growers who often bring their products to the Peterborough market. Gordon Hancock of Peterborough took first prize in the early oats class; G. Rickard of Bowmanville was first with late oats. T. Watt & Son of Foxboro first with barley, and Colonel Vanderwater of Foxboro first with registered wheat.

Erle Tully of Smith was second to Mr. Blakely in the Irish Cobbler potato class.

Some of the awards of local interest were:

Gordon Hancock first and Clarence Mann fourth with registered early oats.

Robert Armstrong of Cavan first and Gordon Hancock of Smith second in the class of seventeen entries of winter wheat.

Robert Armstrong of Ida first in field peas in which there was only one entry.

Registered winter wheat; R. Vanderwater, G. Hancock, R. Armstrong.

Costs Of Court Exceed Sum In Dispute

COBOURG, Ont., March 15 (CP)—Court costs have already exceeded the $1,176 in dispute between the Wooler School Board and the counties of Northumberland and Durham, it was said today.

The school board claims from the counties the cost of transporting pupils to the Wooler school. The counties claim that the Wooler school is a public school and has no statutory rights to transport continuation school pupils at the expense of the counties.

Action for the $1,176 was begun in 1937. The Supreme Court of Ontario upheld the counties. The appeal court reversed this finding. Now the counties plan an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Men Also Like New Hats

Men as well as women will adore the new Spring hats, according to G. Howard Hodge, famous designer . . . particularly the sassy small brim sailors . . . the dainty disc silhouette . . . the nose-gay fashion . . . the coachman style . . . the quaint little open crown hats . . . trimmed high with rosettes of handmade braid . . . the flowing scarfs of colorful jersey used on spectator sports models . . . the thick edge cymbal beret brims . . . and the crowns, some volcanic in height . . . some practically crownless . . . the waistline crown and many others . . . but all soft, pliable and flattering.

What a romance in gorgeous, soft Spring colors! The colors are divine, and so are the names . . . Heaven Pink, Bluesky, Dawn Green (Aqua cast), Moonlight (Chartreuse family), Jewel Gold, Daring Red . . . even navy (leading color is named undersea Blue, and even white this season is Porcelain White.

You will see the most beautiful hats you have ever viewed this coming season! The trend is towards marked femininity.

Sport Clothes Gaining In Popularity

Nineteen forty promises to be a Canadian year as far as sportswear is concerned. With conditions abroad uncertain and delivery of designs and fabrics dependent on the whims of such boats as are running, designers are rallying to their opportunity to at last come into their own.

Hollywood and the West Coast have long been recognized as the style center for not only American but foreign sportswear and the colors and designs originated there and in Florida will be seen throughout the country this year even more than usual.

Slack Suit Leads

The slack suit which proved so popular last year will definitely be in the forefront of sports styles again in 1940. Advance reports indicate that there will be a variety of patterns, especially small shepherd and gun-club checks. There will be over-plaids and Glen Urquharts in sharkskin or tropical worsteds. Stripes, widely spaced of either chalk or pin type will be seen.

Designers have improved on many of last year's models. In some cases shirt-coats and trousers are of different colors. At lease one manufacturer is offering suits in three pieces, two shirt-coats with one pair of trousers. The shirts themselves are often in gay designs or the trousers may be of solid colors.

Color Predominant

Many of the slack ensembles come in light blues and tans with green, which led last year, falling back to third place. Marine blue denims are coming in not only for slack suits, but also for short jackets.

Shirt-coats, incidentally, will generally be worn over instead of inside the trousers and to complete the costume most men use one of the soft cotton or silk neckerchiefs in place of a tie.

Lucky Horseshoe Foils Bombs

The Latvian steamer Tautmila is shown in a British east coast port with a member of her crew looking out through one of the gaping holes left by a German bomb. The craft was attacked and hit by 10 bombs in the North Sea but they failed to sink her. The horseshoe on the funnel may have had a charm all its own to account for her almost-miraculous escape.

Big Pockets "Big News" In Spring Coat Fashions

Definitely the "big news" in Spring coat fashions is "big pockets!" And the bigger they are, the smarter, for these huge "cash and carry" pockets are placed prominently on the hiplines of fitted coats and often low at each side of swagger models. Designed to carry all the feminine essentials for the season, they are often bag-shaped and either gathered, as in the "kangaroo" pockets, or envelope shaped with immense buttons and top flaps. Sometimes whole tiers of these pockets take up the entire front of a fitted coat.

Back swing swaggers, rippling from high shoulder yokes, or falling in loose unpressed pleats, are also smart for Spring. Fitted models may have slim skirts or flare in wide ripples that begin at the hip-bone. The semi-fitted box coat with low rippling fullness is another Spring favorite.

"Ripple Reefers" New

Full-skirted reefer coats look young and Spring-like, with their princess fitted lines and fullswinging skirts. Made in the new twill weaves or pastel wools, they have interesting dressmaker details, high tiny lapels or collars, and amusing pockets. A few of these emphasize soft front fullness with Dutch pockets and front tie or leather belts. Others have simple straight fitting fronts and ripples toward the side and back.

"Motor Coats" with immense low-placed pockets are new in casual coats, and Spring reversibles are again popular with gaily flecked tweeds and neutral gabardines combined. Other casual coats are shown in slim box lines, semi-fitting at the bustline.

Lacy tweeds, mesh weaves, spongy woollens soft in the hand, and many interesting "shadow plaids" or checks are shown in casual coats. Dressy models prefer the new twill weaves and flat woollens that tailor beautifully yet are soft enough for dressmaker details such as high shirred fullness, smocking, tuckings, and trapunto work.

Military Shoulders

Smartly squared, yet roundly padded, the new shoulders on coats are less extreme and more feminine than those worn last Spring. New treatments, such as braided epaulettes give opportunity for soft gathers in the sleeve tops, thus making an otherwise masculine military trend more feminine and wearable. Other new treatments include high yoked shoulders, with sleeves set in with darts or short unpressed pleats to give top softness. Bell sleeves are liked in many coats, but tailored styles show the simple straightline sleeve.

Capes swing gracefully from an occasional Spring coat, looking very jaunty and youthful. Short, to-the-elbow-capes are split in back for arm movement, and hang snugly over the sleeve tops with military precision and smart simplicity. Tiny band collars or small bows or bow-buttons are used at necklines.

Empire-lines in new coats look very chic because of their soft dressmakery effect. Achieved by high double-pleat darts, that give bust softness, while allowing the slim stem-like waistline of the popular princess coats. The wide waistline continues in other styles, thus cinching in the waistline and giving the desired long midriff.

military influence so prevalent this Spring is evident in coats and suits. You'll see shining brass buttons, double-breasted closings, gay military capes—and these styles are often referred to as "soldier boy" fashions. The double-breasted jacket is a Spring star—with buttons arranged in narrow file or flaring out to achieve shoulder width for the military touch. Soft herringbone tweeds, nubs or herringbone weaves as well as pastels in solid and two-tone effect are especially smart. Small plaids and pastel checks and "neutrality colors" such as beige, grey and young blue are also headed for Spring success.

Cotton Crops Up In New Frocks

Put your little girl in cottons for Easter—they're far and away top fashion favorites with the youngsters. Adorably styled with snug waists and full flared skirts, they boast shirrings, tucks, bright button trims and bowback sashes for added charm. The pinafore pops up this Spring as one of the most delightful fashions for youngsters and you'll be seeing lots of them. Full flared princess frocks, Dutch pocket frocks and dirndls continue in popularity and take to new trims for fashion interest. "Flower-fresh" prints on white or pastel grounds, striped seersuckers, lively polka dots, striped florals and the new "little girl" pastels are just a few of the New Spring cotton crop. And besides being so pretty, cottons are wonderfully practical. They keep their lovely colors after repeated launderings, they're easy to iron—and in most cases, cottons shrink very little.

Fashion Details

Youngsters love to dress like "mummy" and "big sister" and designers show adaptations of Spring's smartest fashions in miniature. The

Shirt-waists Appear In New Version

Borrowing grandmother's balloon-sleeve blouses and daughter's full swing skirts, Spring fashions give us the newest version of the shirtwaist trend. Sheer fabrics and exquisite hand-work further the old-fashioned beauty of many of these shirtwaists, and the new soft woollens give extra swing and supple beauty to the skirts.

Tiny little-girl collars, amusing baby yokes, be-ruffled bibs and leg-o-mutton sleeves are all as new as new today! Gay-ninety stripes and bow-ties look very amusing when worn with wide leather belts and plain dark skirts. Print blouses subscribe to the quaint calico and chintz-type prints that are also borrowed from the last century.

Navy-and-White Popular!

Following this same trend to the shirtwaist modes of the last century, navy skirts with white blouses are again popular. Or navy is combined with gay red-and-white striped shirtwaise, or prim little-boy blouses of white pique. Everything is very very tailored, but all the blouses have some charming detail that gives them the air of femininity essential to this Spring.

Skirts this Spring will be cut on the bias in soft grey and blue flannels, conservative light weight tweeds in subtle contrast to the frilly blouses. Colors will range from solid sombre greys, blues and browns to the lighter, more gay, pastels.

Little Girls Like New In Pianafores

Remember when you studied the McGuffey reader and went to school in a pinafore? Well, the modern child may have turned from McGuffey to the Lone Ranger, but she's back in pinafores and she loves them! The most attractive of the new Spring wash dresses for little girls up to 12 are either in separate dress and pinafore styling or they simulate a pinafore effect with shoulder ruffles and fabric contrast.

Not only are old-fashioned styles in new fashion again, but fabric favorites of many decades ago have returned for new laurels in children's dresses. Chambrays in lovely iridescent colorings and stripes are the most popular and ginghams have an "old-new" charm in pastel plaids that blend with tweeds of new coats. As for trimmings, what could be more "gay 90's" than Broiderie Anglaise, which you may recognize more readily under the name of "petticoat" embroideries. To make some of her Winter frocks look spring-like, buy her a few separate lawn or dimity pinafores ruffled with this embroidery.

DRESSMAKER DETAILS

A pocket here, a pocket there—buttons and still more buttons on which to play the game of "Rich man, poor man" ad infinitum—the Spring costume in its entirety is not a white more important than its infinitesimal yet devastating details.

GLASS SLIPPERS NEXT

NEW YORK — (CP) —Glass heels have marched into New York fashion centres as a feature of spring wardrobes. Some are clear and others are in a range of colors which can be matched or contrasted with that of the shoe.

New Footwear Styles Are In Vogue For Madam

Stepping smartly along in the Easter parade will be a whole gamut of new-looking shoes in "reptile prints," real reptile leathers, softly draped gabardine slippers, quilted patent leather and many other distinctly new shoes materials which are now featured in Peterborough shops. Open-toed shoes will step along as smartly as the new sleeky closed models, and color contrasts will add gaiety to the footwear mode, in tan-and-beige, navy-and-tan, and other combinations.

"Afternoon elegance" for Spring is seen in shoes of fabric, motre and very soft kid and light-weight leathers which are made in new dressmaker styles. Unique effects include elasticized leathers snugly fitting, and interesting new "platform" effects. The real platform shoes will continue popular in sports or evening styles, especially with the young crowd.

Step-ins vie with pumps for popularity, and many smartly cut-out models have tiny open toes in harmony with the design of the shoe. No extreme types are shown in smart footwear, but rather a neat small cut-out at the toe which has become part of the design beauty of the shoe. Entire cut-out sides are seen, with straps about the top to keep the shoe snugly on the foot. Pretty bows lined up in rows at front or side are seen. "Bulldog" toes with contrasting leather in the vamp or insert collar of the shoe, look new and smart.

Men's Clothes Have Gone To College This Year

Mum's not the word. It's dad.

So comfortable and so colorful are men's spring clothes that the wife isn't going to see one thin dime for her new Easter outfit until you've done yourself up—not brown, but blue or gray.

Maybe you never went to college, but your new suit did. The snappy plaids so popular with undergraduates have come off the campus to out-distance the ever-popular chalk-stripe. Trick designs appear everywhere, from plaid-within-plaid on sports jackets to herringbone on even the most conservative business suits.

War Economy

If you'll remember that there's a war on and that materials may therefore become scarce, you'll understand the swing this year to single-breasted suits. It's tough if you're thin, but is somewhat offset by longer-than-usual suits coats.

Economy again rears its ugly head in trousers, which are narrower; in overcoats, which are two to three inches shorter; and in the appearance of many two-piece instead of three-piece suits.

There are, Allah be praised, practically no fads in suits. Most backs are plain—no belts, no pleats. Shetlands and Saxonies are particularly popular for suits, while tweeds get the call in topcoats.

Outstanding topcoat model is very short—just below the knees. Single-breasted, with fly-front, it is slightly fitted, but loose enough for comfort.

Plenty of Color

Most accessories look like a plot to make men, unused to matching many varied hues, buy color charts.

There is plenty of color in accessories, and in order to look well, the hues should be carefully harmonized. Wool socks are smartest. Wool ties are coming up fast. There are even some wool suspenders this year, in extra wide sizes.

The suspender people, incidentally, have introduced a trick two-color brace. The halves nearest the tie are one color and design to match the tie, while the outside halves are another color and pattern to match the shirt.

Shirts will be a man's only conservative stitch, if the experts have their way. Solid colors—blues and whites—easily win out over stripes here. With buttondowns in the height of fashion, you perennial collar-pin losers can save wear and tear on your vocabularies.

One word of warning: accessories are accents, not motives. Gay accessories are swell for simple solid suits. But—this is Easter, and if you're in plaid from head to foot, you'll sound like the First of July.

New Ideas In Make-up

The new yellows, ranging from butter and banana to mustard and gold, require rouge and lipstick with yellow rather than blue undertones. Yellowish red make-up will take an important place beside clear, bright reds, and the rust shades are sure to become popular.

The rusts will be red with brown undertones. This doesn't mean that orange shades will be revived. Seldom are they subtle enough to be flattering to the average complexion.

Most shades of yellow are naturally becoming to the dark-haired woman with dark eyes and white skin. If she is slightly sallow, however, her makeup must compensate for the fact that yellows usually further accentuate sallow tones.

Greenish Yellows

Greenish yellows, like chartreuse, are best for the woman whose coloring is distinct — either absolutely blond or absolutely brunet. It takes a lot of skillful making up to enable the brown-haired woman whose coloring is neither quite blond nor quite brunet to wear chartereuse.

Clear, bright yellows, as well as scarlet, royal blue, charp green and black with stark white accents, are colors which the woman with vivid coloring might well consider. The dramatic coloring of one whose eyes are almost black, skin pearly white and hair dark, often makes muted, misty tones in clothes seem wishy-washy.

On the other hand, pale, soft colors may, by contrast, make the girl whose coloring is not vivid seem to be so.

Feminity In Furs

Fur jackets for Spring are on a more feminine line than those of yesteryear. A new fitted jacket, with moderately flared peplum, is grand to wear with full skirted frocks, while finger tip jackets with an extreme flare are very smart.

Mink and Kolinsky are snugly fitted for Spring jackets in short bolero style with bracelet or elbow length sleeves, or in a new silhouette molded in front and flared in the back. The tuxedo front jacket is very good, and is made with front plastrons extending in "tuxedo" fashion past the width of the shoulders and down to form space for the hands to slip in. And by the way, pockets are in the fur fashion news as everywhere else this year, either as purely decorative or built in as part of the silhouette.

War Brings QuickPut-ons

LONDON, March 15 — (CP). — Wars change fashions in curious ways and this one promises to prove no exception.

So far it has popularized clothes that can be quickly put on. "Siren suits"—loose trousers and matching blouses cut on the style of windbreakers—are an example. The need for their use in air raids has not arisen but women are finding them comfortable and useful for house wear.

It is quite possible the army's simplified battle dress will outlive the war to be taken up by civilians. It would be suitable for sports wear, golf and hiking for instance, if not for everyday business wear.

Air raids in the last war were not sufficiently widespread to produce a fashion but the need for quick change afer a day's work away from home led women in the Services to take up the slip-on frock. The fashion developed and stayed. Hair bobbing was another child of the last war.

Many other present day fashions had their origins in wars. Jackboots, for instance, were first designed to guard cavalrymen's feet from sword cuts. Napoleon's Egyptian campaign brought the turban and other oriental styles to Paris and later to the rest of the civilized world.

Children's Suits Now Made For Every Age

This will go down in fashion history as the Easter when every age girl could be "suit-ed." From the little toddler's ensemble of sheer cotton frock, linen coat and matching hat to the teens sophisticated tailleurs, this is to be the biggest suit season in children's wear on record.

Let's list a few of the suits that deserve your consideration. The least expensive are the unlined tweed or flannel jackets with matching or contrasting skirts—each piece bought as a separate unit and ensembled according to your own taste. These sports suits are made in small sizes from three up this year, as well a in teen sizes in which they have been so popular. They make grand school outfits and they fit comfortably under coats.

The cape suit is new on the list and especially appealing to girls in the 3 to 6 and 7 to 14 range.

Britons Rush to Aid of British Lion

The base of Nelson's column in Trafalgar Square was used for posters urging citizens to buy defence bonds. Guarded by the immobile figure of a lion the posters are shown ABOVE in this phonephoto. A "run" was staged on London banks when the £300,000,000 "on to victory" loan went on sale, as subscribers formed long lines outside the banks to wait their turn in buying the three per cent. bonds which mature in 15 and 19 years.

Jackets, Skirts Team Up Well

In the past seasons jackets and skirts were considered "Fall" fashions for children, but Spring, 1940, claims them for her own by creating them in summery pastel woollens and rainbow pastel checks and plaids. Smart teen age girls will buy four pieces—a patterned jacket, a skirt, a harmonizing monotone jacket and a matching monotone skirt. With them she will create endless variations, complemented by new sweaters and blouses.

Skirts this Spring have built up waistlines that call for separate leather belts. For the little girl they have detachable suspenders, in case waistlines are not yet sufficiently defined to do a holding-up job on their own. Unpressed pleats are the newest means of producing fullness, but, of course, the popular bias out flare and the all around pleated styles go on.

For very little folk the sports-wear combination is overalls, skirt and jacket. Formerly these were considered a strictly utilitarian outfit, designed to withstand the most strenuous play. This Spring they are also designed to make the toddler look his or her best. They come in luscious pastel gabardines, in light colored corduroys and in the new rayon suitings. The little basque shirts in cotton knit come in wonderful stripings which may be perfectly matched with socks. Children certainly get the ensemble habit early these days!

DRESSMAKER SUITS ARE TAKING THE LEAD IN EASTER PARADE

Many "Blues" Featured In Spring Suit Costumes

Blue for its calm beauty, blue for its eternally fresh look in the Spring! Blue, in a wide range from misty "horizon blue" to the thrilling new Royal Air Force blue, will be the great color favorite this season. Purple and pale mauve, khaki and many grays, all brightened with dashes of red or yellow, bring a gay color variety to the Easter fashion parade.

Olive, drab, warm and "cool" beige tones, and deep warm brown are also among the Spring suit costume colors with which are worn the gayest of flowered hats. Blouses in sunny yellow, crisp white, expensive-looking champagne, and delightful icy pastels, give color contrast with many suits.

"Cafe Rico"

Among the more delectable colors for Spring are Cafe Rico, a lovely new dark brown, and Banana Meat, a cool yellowish beige. Combined in both dresses and costume ensembles, these new colors are found to be especially flattering when set off with a dash of yellow or blue in the brightly veiled or be-ribboned hat.

Lime, orchid and petunia shades are seen m sparkling new prints worn under neutral coats, or suits of navy or brown. Coral and cactus green give lovely color to other prints, and are also seen in blouses and scarfs. Coral tones range from the new rosy lipstick shades, to rich deep hues seen in sheer spun rayons or woollens. Black and navy ground prints are delightful with tiny florals in these new colors.

Khaki Worn With Gold

Among the newer color combinations are khaki with gold, and many variations of these two colors are seen in prints as well as in suit costumes of sheer wool. The new "American khaki" is more flattering than that worn by the soldiers, and will be smart and new looking as a foundation color for any wardrobe.

Scarlet is another color worn with dashing contrast to khaki, and usually seen in a neck scarf or bright flower against a khaki suit or coat. Chamois yellow or creamy white are used in blouses and neckwear with khaki, olive drab or brown.

All Types To Be "Suited"

This is one Spring when every woman, no matter what her figure, can walk down the avenue in a suit. For jackets vary from the new, semi-fitted bolero ones for the very small to thigh length tunic jackets which are intended for the very tall. And there is such variety of fitted jackets in between these extremes that figures of varying widths as well as heights can be appropriately tailored.

There is a trim but very feminine look to most of the suits with just an occasional military type to lend interest. The revival of twill, often satin bound in little fitted jackets or longer, 1910 single-link styles for mature women, cries for frilly lingerie blouses. And since the recent Paris openings emphasized this feminine appeal, in a restrained well-bred way, you'll be sure to make no mistake if you choose satin-bound twill and frills. This is most effective in black and is even more exciting with a red carnation or a red touch to a black hat.

After navy and black, you will find more grey than any other color. This looks extremely new, especially with white as an accent. Often the jackets of such suits are grey and white stripes, while the shirts are solid grey, and with a white pique blouse, white gloves and a white pique band on a grey felt hat, you will present a very crisp appearance. These greys occur in flannel frequently, but tweed and soft dressmaker woollens are seen too.

One of the Fifth avenue shops, which is promoting a new color, "burnished brown," has suits in this color too which seem a little out of the ordinary in the Spring and are an answer to the women who would rather wear brown than any color, no matter what's in fashion.

There is no dearth of pockets on the new suits. Often they are patched affairs, calling attention to themselves by the addition of metal buttons. Sometimes they appear on the skirts only, which hang beneath brief jackets. Other times they are embroidered on the jacket in a rather peasant fashion, as in the case of a grey flannel with plaid hat and bag.

Skirts are slim or slightly flared, seldom so full, however, as those of last year.

Stripes run diagonally and vertically, which is good news to those with figure problems, and you will find occasional checks, especially in black and white, but much bigger than the shepherd size.

If you choose a grey suit, you'll find that felt and fabric hats look best, but with blue or navy twills and woollens, straw or kidskin sailors or bretons seem ideal.

TAILORED CHIC

By ALICE ALDEN

HERE'S English tailoring at an unbelievable price, the designer hailing from London. Shoulder seams are where they should be, the jacket fastens neatly but not tightly, and sleeves are slim without pulling. Look out for all of these points when purchasing the tailored, which likely as not must serve a couple of seasons. This suit is made of a lightweight wool crepe, comfortable for travel this summer as well as for wear now. The dusty blue skirt is matched in color in the printed blouse and topped by a corn yellow jacket. A dandelion or cornflower might be the boutonniere.

Dashing Colors For Daytime In Plaids, Pastels, Checks

Colors with a gallant air strike smart trimming notes on the new American khaki, Legion blue, and navy, which are the foundation colors of Spring suit costumes. Royal blue and purple, a deep rich blue called "blackout" and black are other favorites, while sunny yellows and misty fog blues and rose hues give delightful color to many Spring prints and dresses worn under these costume coats.

Fresh and new looking, the Spring range of colors has inspired American designers with ideas for new trimming effects, such as braidings on sheer wool costume ensembles. Trapunto work giving soft elaboration to sleeves and collars, lively flowers of royal or red posed on neutral coat or dress lapels, brightly shining patent belts against simple tailored frocks of flannel gray or navy. Blouses, too, are used in lovely contrasting colors, such as yellow with gray flannel suits, and scarfs are shown with almost all untrimmed coats to add that sparkling note of color about the throat.

Brightens Fashions

In a mode that is so strongly influenced by military fashions, ingenious ways are discovered to use tiny pipings, slit pockets, double pockets, brightly lined shoulder capes, and buttons, buttons, buttons! All with an eye to color smartly posed against the flattering neutrals that are so popular this year.

American khaki is more flattering than that khaki worn by the soldiers, having a soft greenish cast that is stunning with a dash of red. "Alert" blue is a new grayed blue that is more flattering than gray and soft enough to be worn by almost any woman. Brighter blue, dashing red, or even yellow may be worn with it effectively.

Very pale misty hues are seen in more elaborate costume ensembles, often with delicately dyed fox to match. And untrimmed costume ensembles with matching dresses are seen in misty blues, warm new beige tones, "champagne" yellow and gray.

Prints are becoming gayer too. All-over florals, even in the quaint tiny patterns loved by most women, are worn in gay flower-garden colors. Some of these are so colorful they might have come right out of grandmother's garden. Newer are the larger florals, spaced against soft pastel grounds or white. And black or navy grounds are popular with monotone effects in white scroll or geometric designs. A few gay floral stripes are seen, made in interesting ways. And some of the Spring coats have stripes in muted colors deftly worked to give long slenderizing lines in fitted or boxy coats. Checks and shadow plaids are liked also, especially in untrimmed coats and suit costumes.

Clever Spring Matches

Versatility hits a new high in Spring sports clothes. Colors are so perfectly coordinated in plaids, checks, stripes and monotone pastels, that they blend beautifully with each other. We see lovely cross-bar plaid jackets paired with pastel skirts dyed to match exactly in really pretty pastels. And fashion offers a wide choice of cardigan, double breasted, rever and button-up jackets for Spring 1940. Skirts take to multigores, pleats, front fulness and new pocket tricks for added chic. Blouses tell a smart story in gay dressmaker shirts in amusing prints, dancing polka dots, bold stripes and pastels. Dressmaker tailored, these "soft" sports clothes are worn everywhere smartly by Miss and Mrs. America, the best dressed ladies in the land.

Longer Hip Effect In Corsets

Beginning a new trend in fashions, Spring 1940 corsets will be "easier" in line, a little looser and softer in silhouette. But tiny waistlines and fitted hips that extend to a low line, still prevail.

Designed to be worn with comfort under the new wrappy coats and snugly fitted basque suits or frocks, the new corsets allow for a rounded hip-line that is held firm to a low line. High but softly held bust-line gives the feminine look desired under this year's softer frocks and costumes generally.

Molded waistlines have a "concave" look, yet corsets are so cleverly seamed that the body appears supple and youthful in movement. Panels, seams and godets cleverly contrive to taper the body up to a high bust-line, and down to a long sheath-like hip-line. New softness is achieved, however, by means of darts and intricate cut.

Color comes into its own in foundation garments this season, with lovely new pastels as well as rosy nudes and dramatic black. Evening corsets or girdles are frequently chosen in the same delightful shade as the frock, with matching lace and elastic insets.

A patchwork quilt evening skirt shows graduated squares in green, yellow, red and purple. The tight bodice is purple. Pockets are used profusely.

WHITE GLOVES

More white gloves will be worn this Summer than for some time. Colored gloves continue in favor. They appear in the new sun colors, such as Goya yellow and sunset red. Flower tints are also stressed for warm days, especially forget-me-not blues. There's a whole series of lovely new beiges. Pig, seal and peccary are the smartest skins for sports gloves. Suede, reindeer and antelope are liked for evening. To accompany Spring tailleurs, Ilda is making gay hand-knitted Scotch plaid gloves in mercerized cotton or fine wool.

Enormous, pale pink hearts are appliqued on the slip to be worn under a full-skirted, tight-waisted gown of black organdy.

Children's Coat Styles Offer Two Alternatives

Two alternatives are offered when you buy the children's coats this season. Navy with red and brass buttons in the regimental manner or pastel tweeds tailored with Bond Street precision are awaiting your choice—and they are equally smart.

The military trend brings with it the fashion for bright red linings, for swagger shoulder capes (removable in case you tire of them), for little "officers" collars and stripings of bright gold braid. While you might prefer navy (and it always spells "Spring" in children's coats), the West Point blues and the gray mixtures look newer. Smooth fabrics look their best in these military coats—so ask for twills, for coverts and for flannels.

The sensible outfit for an early Easter is the three-piece suit, made for girls of every age, even as small as the 3 to 6's. Instead of combining a plain and patterned fabric, these three-piece outfits combine two patterns—such as a big and little check. Collarless jackets, gored skirts and either a swagger coat or cape become the most versatile outfits.

Buy them in new "baby" pastel plaids or in a girl's wardrobe houndstooth checks.

Even the English type tweed coat introduces new features this Spring. Waistlines are more fitted — skirts are more flared. Sometimes there are as many as six narrow gores down the back of the coat to achieve this swinging silhouette. While there are still plenty of velveteen collars, the newest trimmings of tweeds are stitched satin and stitched capeskin leather. Coats up to six years have self fabric hats trimmed to match. Beyond that it's smarter to match or contrast a felt or straw hat.

New Colors In Hosiery

Three color groups are among the most popular hosiery for Spring, as seen on smart women. A "wine group" of colors blend beautifully with wine or navy or print frocks or costumes having the rosy colors popular this year. Ranging from a pale light rosy cast, to a deeper and more neutral tone, these are designed to blend with costumes or prints of this color group.

Apricoty and coppery colored hosiery, in a "sunny" group, are worn with short sporty costumes, giving the sun-bronzed appearance to the legs always popular after the resort season. These colors are worn with brown, beige or black.

SPRING HATS ARE GAY WITH HIGH COLORS AND VEILS

TOPPING OFF YOUR SPRING WARDROBE

American-designed for any woman: Lingerie-rimmed felt.

Paris original, rough straw, sulphur-toned sailor.

By ALICE ALDEN

HITTING the high spots in spring's hats, promises made in December seem to be coming true. We can't any longer depend on an excuse for a hat—or, in other words, a twist of this fabric or that with perhaps a gold spike struck in a knot. Crowns are real, lines definite, heads fitted. Snoods are sliding out of the picture, giving way to drapery and bows or to that old favorite, the elastic cord. Just as many hats are tilted forward as backward, making many a pretense of covering one eye. American designers' collections are superb, as usual, but several Paris milliners have tossed their ideas in with ours. Result: A hat for every mood and, what's more important, every purse. The linger-rimmed black felt hat shown is as eye-catching as the sleek flap-jack compact in hand, a new accessory in jewel tones which is thin enough to carry in your pocket. The rough straw sailor, trimmed with French blue velvet ribbon, is as smart with a tweed suit as a printed frock. It's French and looks it.

Coiffure Is Link To Hat Success

How smart you'll look in your chic Spring bonnet will depend most definitely upon the head on which it is placed. More than for seasons past, there must be close collusion between the well-groomed woman and her coiffure—and she who is wise will entrust her locks to the skilled manipulation of one who is a master of his craft.

The new deep-crowned turbans and helmets are a bit trying for all but those fortunate ones who are faultlessly featured. To wear them confidently, soft bags or a light pompadour over the brow are imperative. You may scoff at the suggestion, but scoffing will change to enthusiasm at the flattering result.

Deep, shadowy waves are coming back into their own this Spring—the gleaming undulations which remind one of water-wave days. And how becoming they are—these new hair-dos which brush the hair up and back from the ears in soft waves, and leave it long, really long in the back—a charming coiffure to compliment Spring's most captivating bonnets.

Or if you prefer short locks—have your hair chopped off really short—but still brushed off your ears and worn high atop your head in mirror-bright curls. These are the two outstanding hair-styles of the new season—the coiffures which can only achieve perfection if they have that well-cared for, soignee look which is the result of brilliantine and brushing and the skill of an artist among coiffures.

Gay Jewelry Matches Spring Mood

With the deceptively simple frocks of Spring, costume jewelry becomes more than ever important in every smart womans wardrobe.

Outstandingly new, and especially suited to the lovely new greys, is the gunmetal and grey jewelry shown in such an infinite variety of pins, necklets and bracelets, which promise to be premier rivals of the glittering gold which still holds high fashion place.

To blend with the new Spring-time pastels, there is exquisite coloring in the delicate star sapphire, the moonstone pink and star ruby shades shown in necklets and bracelets. The same trend to muted tones is followed in the plastic costume jewelry so popular for Spring—the gay necklets and bracelets of bud and blossom, leaf and bubble, which are to be found in colorings to match every ensemble or form clever contrast with black.

Seed pearl brooches are among the loveliest of the ornaments for Spring, and for coat lapels and sweater or dress novelties there are gadget and glamour pins galore, all the way from flowers, gay toy soldiers to Disney birds and beasts, fascinating frivolities to delight all and sundry who are gadget-minded.

New Topcoats Feature Freedom

Topcoat sleeves are looser and shoulders are built on the raglan and bal-macan ideas to give freedom to arm movements. Most topcoats this spring combine a mixture of modified colors while gray and brown lead as usual. Many of the fabrics have interwoven stripes and plaids introducing blue, green and, in some cases, dark red.

Design in topcoats is important. Many are in herringbone, some in plaids and others in small interwoven designs that are attractive.

A group of American designers who were recently questioned are in agreement that the American man wants a coat that fits him. He no longer wants to be bound by convention. He is looking for comfort and style and the variety of models shown this spring proves that these designers are right.

Covert Cloth Popular

[illegible] in topcoats and is often combined with tweed in the reversible models which have become a standard item of apparel in many communities. These retail at a reasonable price and are generally fancied by young men.

Like most topcoats this spring, the reversible models are generally single-breasted with a four-button fly front that is enjoying a wide popularity.

Men have demanded a topcoat that can do the impossible. They wanted a coat that was adaptable to the weather—warm during the cooler days of spring; light enough for the sunny days. This year American men can choose woven fleece and worsted coats that really do this job surprisingly well. Of course the removable lining coats are "tailor made" for the weather, but all new models contain just the amount of woollen or hair piling to result in a similar effect. Whether you choose a tweed, a camel's hair, a cashmere, a llama . . . you can be certain of the best in style and comfort . . . in a genuine American tradition.

Spring Hats May Make Women Dizzy

NEW YORK, March 15—(CP).—Hats affect masculine hearts, proposals and the marriage rate, says one of America's leading hat designers. So give special thought to your Leap Year Easter bonnet, for it may help you to get your man.

"A young man matrimonially inclined can be attracted by a pretty hat," says Howard Hodge, milliner expert. "But he can be frightened away by a flighty crazy one that veers off at a dizzy angle. Reason: he is apt to think the girl is as dizzy as her hats and not the one to found the best home and happiness. When hats are extreme and eccentric, fewer men propose.

(For your information, mesdemoiselles, statistics don't quarrel with him. In New York, the year after the crazy-hat epidemic, the marriage rate fell several per cent. So did it the year after the Empress Eugenie episode—though a few other things, like the depression, may have had something to do with it, too.)

For your information, these are the things I have learned men like in hats: Brims (both large and small), color (not too loud), flowers, simplicity and designs that make a becoming frame for your face.

To complete your education, these [illegible] in Leap Year's Easter bonnets:

About Brims

Biggest news is in brims. Those that have made the latest splash and are most talked of right now stand off the face, but there are still a number that pitch forward over the eye.

Another important piece of spring hat news concerns big roll-brimmed felt chapeaux with wide sides and fairly shallow backs and fronts. Some of these roll back from the face, others up on each side.

Color is a news note in the 1940 Easter chapeaux. Navy blue and black hats are splashed with scarlet or apple green, white hats (numerous) are touched with navy blue. There are also a number of colored hats—dusty pinks, misty blues, soft yellows and greens—and some plaid taffeta sailors.

Flowers, fruit and bird wings, liberally used, add to the vogue for color. Toques are covered with pastel flowers, white blossoms or red currants and misted with a colorful veil film. Wings trim sailors or nest in flower toques.

All in all, the new Easter bonnets are chapeaux to which the men might well propose.

Furs For Spring Are Launched On Gala Start

Furs for Spring were launched on a gala start at the Paris openings, when short, wrist-length top coats of fur with sleeves full and [illegible] were shown, and elbow and finger length capes were displayed in grey Persian lamb and silver fox.

These fur capes are going to be ever so good this season. There's a military note about them, inspired by those worn by the French gendarmes and the English guard that is very smart. Paris designers have fashioned them slightly flared at the shoulder and straight in front and back, and they vary in length from very long dress length styles to tiny shoulder capes.

Fur herald of Spring is, of course, the small fur—the chokers and scarfs that are being shown with such success with the new dressmaker suits and tiny feminine flowered hats. Classics in these Spring accents are multiple-skin baum martin, Kolinsky, mink, squirrel, and Hudson Bay sable. These all the new greys, and with the new Spring brown and plaid costume combinations.

Fox continues to shine high as a starring Spring fur, and in addition to the flattering shimmering silvers, there are the greys and beiges, and the whole gamut of colored foxes—lynx-dyed red fox, red fox, natural blue and a new deep cherry color. Capes, animal scarfs, chubby jackets and stoles are all very lovely in the flattery of fox.

Yes, furs are on the style map as never before, and the shining beauty of a quality fur fashioned by an established and reliable furrier will make a gallant and good-looking escort for your every Spring costume.

Corset Wardrobe Practical Economy

It is a practical and, in the long run, economical idea for every woman to have a corset wardrobe. This simply means choosing foundation garments as she does dresses or suits—with an eye to suitability.

For instance, the smart lover of the shirtwaist type of dress wouldn't dream of buying six cotton shirtwaist dresses to wear at every hour of the day throughout a season.

She buys perhaps two cotton shirtwaists for morning or for golf or for country week-ends, probably two simple silk ones for luncheons, shopping or general, casual afternoon wear, and, of course, two much more dressy types for dress-up occasions.

Because she is chic and practical, too, she has at least one sturdy although light and comfortable foundation garment to wear under the morning dress. It might be a pantie-girdle. Anyway, it allows her plenty of freedom from bending over to dust under a chair or to reach the top shelf of the linen closet, yet it does support her figure properly.

For afternoon and semi-formal day functions, she has some kind of girdle or all-in-one that may not allow for quite as much vigorous bending and stretching but which is essentially comfortable. It probably is a little prettier than the morning garment.

For evening, she has a fine corset in which she can dance without getting tired and go on to have scrambled eggs at four in the morning without wishing to goodness she could go home and take off her girdle.

Her corset wardrobe is perfect if she can have two foundations of the first type mentioned, two of the second and one of the third. [illegible] cellent service is to wash it after every six days of wearing, then put it away for six days of rest. Frequent washing, providing rinsing is thorough and the water is squeezed—not wrung—out; with rest periods between washings, will prolong the life of any foundation.

Nazi Women In Uniform

ROTTERDAM, March 15—(CP)—According to the Berlin correspondent of the "Nieuwe Courant" it will not be long now until the Third Reich has Gretchen and her mother in uniform dress.

The new gown is to be made in three colors—black, red and brown—and if Gretchen prefers a dress which matches her cornflower blue eyes—too bad!

"The model chosen is one of Hitlerian simplicity, not only to save cloth, but also thread, which is becoming more and more difficult to obtain. One does not know yet if this measure has been taken to aid the clothing industry which has been suffering greatly since women have only been allowed one dress a year. Accordingly they save up their clothing coupons and buy one of good quality, leaving the cheaper goods on the shelves, the cheap ready-made clothing on the racks."

The new measure has a double aim—economize cotton by imposing a uniform dress and improve the sale of cheap "ready-mades" because the new gown may be had without coupons or for a very few.

Men do not escape the new restrictions either. It is forbidden to make vests which cross with two rows of buttons because it takes too much material; cuffs on trousers are also forbidden and a man may not buy a new overcoat with the regular clothing card. He must have a special card which is generally not delivered until he has presented his old coat to be examined and decided by the experts not to be sufficient protection against the cold. As Goering says, "the exterior aspect of a garment is of little importance if it covers the body."

"To complete the measure the clothing of babies and children is to be submitted to the same control next month also. One cannot buy except with a special card and garments must be made keeping in mind the growth of the child so they may last as long as possible.

Covert Cloth Popular For Trousers

Covert cloth, which sprang into popularity several seasons ago as an ideal material for topcoats and, in some cases, for suits as well, is now generally seen as a favorite material for slacks. It has, in many localities, even replaced gray flannel, and its lightness and closely woven texture are ideal.

This year will see an increase in shorts as a favorite sports item in the wardrobes of American men. Doeskin is used in many of these garments although other materials, particularly flannel and, in some cases, linen are now making their appearance. Shorts should come to approximately three inches above the knee and well-made ones look exceedingly well for country as well as sports wear.

FUR JACKETS

Coveted of every capricious maiden are the little furs which go on into Spring. Sable for daytime or evening preoccupations, ermine casually luxurious after dark, mink for milady's adornment—what daughter of Eve does not thrill to their beauty?

Navy is highlighted in the Paris fashion showings. But mustard and black is the outstanding color combination.

Contrasting Prints Match Wools

"Pretty prints," reminiscent of Civil War fashions, are matched to dark wools in the smartest of Spring ensembles. Brightly contrasting colors, such as orange, green and beige, flame red with black and white, bright sun yellow with black and white, rose and blue on navy and other lovely combinations given these Spring ensembles a fresh, Spring-like appearance. The dark grounds or neutral grey or beige backgrounds are perfectly matched to the wool coats worn over these print frocks, and coats are often lined in the print with wide lapels or short collars showing the print on the coat.

Contrasting with these small old-fashioned prints are the distinctive modern stripes and geometrics used in other prints. Again, lovely shades are used in soft muted tones, or daring combinations. Dull rose is combined with blue and gold, soft grey is brightened with green and navy, beige is smartly accented with black and deep rich rust tones. And straight boxy coats or softly flared "dressmaker" coats are worn over the prints to complete the ensemble.

A few high-fashion costumes are noted in pastel ground prints, looking very dressy for an early Easter. These are chiefly in lovely new blues and rosy hues, or warm beige tones or the favored grey.

Nubby wools or the smart Spring twills are used in the coats, and there are smart flat crepes that look especially nice in the new dressmaker coat styles. Bows and sashes, flowers and jewelry are used to add gaiety to these costumes.

FASHION FLASHES

Suzy is doing much with a lightweight taffeta called Onionskin, both for entire hats and for big ruches covering the hair at back, instead of the earlier snood.

Lemonnier makes chignon effects at the back of hats, as a paillasson suggesting a knot of hair with two big pins thrust through.

Agnes is showning strawcloth turbans and also toques entirely composed of bowknots of moire ribbon in several colors.

The country's designers are masters at giving that elusive quality to fashions they create for you, and they are frank to credit (the Salon of Alice T. Williams) with these costume complements.

A SEASON OF SUPERB SIMPLICITY—Soft shades and soft trimmings. Daytime dresses, delightfully varied. Yokes, pockets, peplems and lingerie touches. Jackets all lengths everywhere. Significantly spring are the flowered prints, with fluid grace that the new silhouette demands.

EVENING DRESSES of exquisite feminity. Wide skirted, crisp taffeta, chiffons and fresh-as-the-Spring cottons!

SUITS—Tailored or Dressmaker type accented by scarf, flowers or pique facings.

COATS for every occasion, practical, yet smart and flattering enough for an interesting date at noon or after five o'clock. The favored colors shown for dresses are West Point blue, airways blue, navy, grey, copper penny, Maytime, hot pink, mint green, dragon red—and of course black.

Varty—Robertson

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15 (ENS)—A quiet wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon at St. John's parsonage when Beatrice Robertson, third daughter of Mrs. Robertson and the late John Robertson became the bride of Edison Varty, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Varty of Havelock. Rev. G. N. Maxwell officiated.

The bride who was attended by her sister, Mrs. Roy Varty wore royal blue crepe with matching accessories. Mr. Roy Varty of Havelock assisted the groom.

Following the ceremony a delightful wedding supper was served to about thirty guests at the home of Mrs. Robertson. Latter Mr. and Mrs. Varty left on a short wedding trip.

Miss Dorothy Mitchell
Bible Class Hostess

The Easter meeting of Knox Junior Volunteer Bible Class was held at the home of Miss Dorothy Mitchell, Bolivar street, with the president, Miss Betty Jary presiding. The meeting opened with each member reading a prayer from the Chain of Prayers, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The Easter story was read by Miss Eloise Milburn. A story, "The Garden of Gethsemane" was presented by Mrs. Lewis, class teacher. Miss Connie Lewis and Miss Betty Jary sang the beautiful sacred hymn "In the Garden." A detailed account of Easter customs throughout the ages was given by Miss Betty Allen. In answer to the roll call, each member read a verse of scripture.

During the business period it was decided that the class play, "A Perfect Holiday," taken from the book, "Little Women," would be presented at the Mother and Daughter banquet on May 5th. Miss Eloise Milburn offered her home for the April meeting. A quizz contest closed the program.

Mrs. Mitchell and Miss Dorothy Mitchell served a delicious lunch.

Plan Gift For Lady Tweedsmuir

In appreciation for Lady Tweedsmuir's work and inspiring leadership to Canadian endeavor, women across the Dominion propose to say farewell with a gift of Canadian furs on Her Excellency's return to England this month.

Headed by Mrs. Ernest Lapointe, wife of the Minister of Justice, and Mrs. T. A. Crerar, wife of the Minister of Mines and Resources, a committee of Ottawa women have been making arrangements for receiving contributions.

Local branches of national organizations are the channels through which individual donations may be forwarded. In order that as many Peterborough women as possible may have a share in making the gift, a special meeting of the Local Council of Women is being held on Thursday, March 21st, and all women of the city are urged to attend. At this meeting a collection will be taken for the gift of Canadian furs.

Mrs. F. T. Miller of Hamilton is to be guest speaker at the meeting, and Mrs. Charles Renaud will sing.

A farewell broadcast to the Canadian people is to be made by Lady Tweedsmuir on Sunday, March 17.

DOROTHY DIX

Mother Gives You Picture of What Your Girl Will Be. Daughters After Marriage Grow Into What Mothers Were Before Them.

A young man asks me if it is safe to judge a young girl by her mother. Generally speaking, yes. Ninety-five times out of a hundred the best tip that a youth can get on a maiden is to size up her mother and study her past performances. The way Mother looks at 50 is pretty likely to be the way that Mabel will look at middle age. The kind of a housekeeper Mother is, is more than likely to be the way that Mabel will keep house. Mother's point of view is about the way that Mabel will look at things. For you see, son, Mabel is the result of both heredity and environment, and the chances are that Mother has not only bequeathed to her daughter her own beauty or homeliness, and her own brains or stupidity, but she has formed the girl's character and the ideals that will make her code of conduct as long as she lives. Of course, every man thinks that he is going to make over his wife according to his own taste, and he never doubts, when he marries a young girl, that she will be as plastic as dough in his hands. But before he is through with his honeymoon he has found out his error. He has discovered that Mother had been on the job some eighteen or twenty years before him and that, strive as he will, he cannot undo her work.

Therefore, son, I should take a very long and careful look at Mother before I popped the question to Mabel, for the old adage, "like mother, like daughter," is only too likely to be true. If Mother, for instance, is one of those ladies who habitually deceive their husbands about the bills and all family matters, and whose favorite motto is, "What a man doesn't know, doesn't hurt him," I should leave Mabel for some more optimistic suitor, for I should want my wife and the mother of my children a woman who would play the game squarely with me and who had honor and honesty bred into her very bones.

If Mother has kept Father's nose to the grindstone all of his life trying to pay for extravagances, I would never let myself in for a lifetime of slavery by marrying her daughter, for I should want a wife who would be a helpmate instead of a millstone around my neck.

If Mother s a poor housekeeper where nothing is ever done on time, where the meals are a menace to life and where there is no order or system or management, I would not endanger my stomach and my happiness by putting them in Mabel's hands, for I would know that she did not even have a standard of good housekeeping, nor know the first principle about making a comfortable home.

Nor would I marry Mabel if her mother is a shrewish, tyrannical, overbearing woman of whom her husband stands in cowering fear. I should reflect that Mabel might have inherited Mamma's temper, and that, anyway, I did not want a wife who had been reared in an atmosphere in which men and women do not exercise a decent self-control over their tongues.

But if Mother at 50 is more interesting and better company than most girls; if she is large-minded and intelligent and humorous and sympathetic; if her husband still adores her, and her grown children make of her a pal; if her household runs as if on skids; if she has been a real partner to her husband in her marriage and the prop and stay of her family, then I should implore Mabel to marry me, for I should know that not once in a thousand times does that kind of a woman raise up a daughter who makes a bad wife.

Speaking by and large, as the mother is, so is the daughter, but there is no rule without its exceptions and now and then an old hen hatches out a swan. Sometimes the fool woman has a clever daughter. Sometimes a weak woman has a strong daughter. Sometimes a frivolous mother has a serious-minded daughter.

And sometimes a girl is so disgusted with her mother's way of doing things that she takes the opposite tack and goes to the other extreme. Sometimes the girl who has been brought up in a house like a pigsty becomes a monomaniac on cleanliness. She who has known in her youth the dread knock of the bill collector forever pounding on the door, turns into almost a miser, and she who has been brought up in an atmosphere of strife becomes a -peace-at-any-price wife.

But these changes do not often occur. Most women are what mother made them, and so it is safe to judge them by their mothers.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — Is it lack of judgment, lack of sales resistance or just plain bad luck that makes some women always make unfortunate marriages? I have a daughter who is intelligent, who has high principles and ideals, and a fine, sweet and noble nature. She has always been much admired by men and had plenty of opportunities to get a good husband, yet her two marriages have been tragedies and she is contemplating a third now that will be little less than suicidal. Her first husband was an invalid whom she had to support and who was cross and surly and abusive in his treatment of her and never showed the slightest appreciation of what she did for him. Fortunately for her, he died and we all hoped that she had learned something about men from him. But, no, her second choice was a drunkard who also had to be supported and who finally eloped with a rich widow who, he probably thought, could buy him champagne instead of beer.

The present prospect is even more hopeless than his predecessors because he is an unappreciated genius, too temperamental to earn his living by any honest work, and who spends his time weeping on my daughter's shoulder and borrowing her money while he rails at a heartless world that doesn't acclaim him a genius. Of course, I don't suppose anything can be done to change my daughter, but I just wonder about her taste in men.

DISGUSTED MOTHER.

ANSWER:

I once had an old cook who used to say, "You can't tell where your love falls," and I guess that explains as well as anything else who women marry the way they do. You can't attribute it to any known cause, because you see women making the most incongruous choice of husbands, making marriages that even a moron baby would know were bound to end in disaster.

Probably it is not lack of gumption but an excess of femininity that makes girls marry these human derelicts. They are sloshing over with the maternal spirit and they can't resist the temptation to marry a man who they can mother and pity and pet and take care of. Strong men don't appeal to them. It is the weaklings that they can't turn out into a cold, hard world where they will have to shift for themselves.

And, of course, the women who make a habit of marrying drunkards and gamblers and roues do so for the fun of reforming them. And experience teaches them nothing. Even when they have had to divorce a sinner who refused to give up his sin they are ready to take on another rotter.

DOROTHY DIX.

Capacity Audience Lauds Annual Irish Play Of St. Peter's Dramatic Club

Chuckles of appreciation rippled through a capacity crowd in St. Alphonsus Lyceum Thursday night when the annual 17th of March play, a comedy-drama, was presented by an able cast under the experienced and efficient direction of George Lynch, assisted by Dick Simons and J. McCabe, stage manager.

Well-known Irish tunes by a skilful orchestra kept toes tapping before the curtain rose, and specialty number between acts were well received by an appreciative audience. Mrs. D. Campanaro's beautiful voice was heard in the Irish ballads, "The Song That Reached an Irish Heart," and "Michael's Flute"; Miss Catherine Corkery played two violin solos, "Believe Me Of All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Danny Boy"; and Master Jack Flagler sang "Norah" and "Ireland Must Be Heaven 'Cause My Mother Came From There." Miss Doris Strickland was music director, and Miss Margaret McCabe was also at the Piano.

"Maytime in Erin," a comedy-drama that scintillated with Irish wit, lost none of its humor through its presentation. With the exception of Gerald Grady, who gave a fine performance as Harlow Zenzar, the magistrate, the players have all had considerable experience, and in no sense of the word could be called amateurs. Top honors, perhaps, went to Clement Galvin, who, as Miles O'David, a handsome, romantic young Irishman, carried off his role with a naturalness that was delightful; Mrs. William Prindible as Molly Flynn, a fine Irish maiden with a rich brogue; Alice Collins as Mrs. Lucy Murray, a pretty, raven-haired colleen whose coquettish ways drew many a laugh—she was inclined to gush and giggle, and never overlooked anything that resembled a man.

Elmer Donoghue gave an amusing performance as John Nolan, a young doctor with an imagined (but not for long) aversion to women; William O'Toole, in a loud checked suit of not-very-subdued green, was downright funny as the typical rustice of a small Irish town; Nora Moher quite captivated the audience as prety Patricia O'Neil, a little Irish girl who was "beautiful in an untamed way"; William Collins was Shaw O'Neil, Pat's father, a convict because of an unfair counterfeit charge—his make-up cleverly indicated prison pallor, and his trembling voice and manner, due to years in prison, was evidence of excellent acting ability.

Lines were spoken in clear, audible voices; stage settings were effective, and in the last scene, where a dress ball was in progress, old-fashioned costumes were beautiful and luxurious.

Because the play is to presented again tonight, it would not be quite fair to give away the secret of the plot, but mention must be made of the opening scene, in which Molly, who has a lovely voice, sings a lilting tune as she moves about the roses in Miles O'Dowd's home at Ballybane, Kilkenny County, Ireland, and the last act, when a graceful minuet takes place during the party.

In spite of rather cramped stage conditions, the performance was carried out with a smoothness that is a credit to the directors as well as those taking part. The humor, evident throughout the play, was not for a moment forced, and was supplied by the "Bachelor's Hall" of three musketeers, who had earnestly vowed to "live and die single," but were forced to welcome the ladies after all—not without a struggle on behalf of the bachelors—if any of the others were about!

The play was presented in Lindsay Town Hall Tuesday night before a large audience. Miss Anne Schiarizza was prompter. Mem- Agnes Maycok, Marion Downer (piano); Catherine Corkery, Francis Strano, Gladys Perdue, Cyril Fontaine, Menzies McLaren, Francis Doran, Fred Garvey, George Clarke (violins); Edward Geraghty, Joseph Coss, Bernard Traviss (guitars); John Seehan ('cello); John Wade (traps).

Easter Fashion Revue Heralds Coming Of Spring

Outside sleet beat with icy fingertips against the windows—inside there was warmth of color and beauty that foretold of sunny days, of buds unfolding, of flowers blossoming, of gay Easter parades, and of balmy summer evenings.

Into this happy atmosphere went crowds of women Wednesday evening. It was the special spring preview of Levine's Ladies' Wear, held in the Y.W.C.A. Recreation and Club rooms under the auspices of the '38 Club, a group of enthusiastic and energetic young business girls. Fifty tables of bridge were played prior to the style show—one of the smartest yet to be presented. Welcoming the many guests were the Club president, Miss Grace Sargent, and the girls' work secretary of the Y.W.C.A., Miss Christine Gardiner. Miss Margaret Johnston was tea convener, and girls of the Club assisted to serve. The pretty young models, also members of the Club, were Miss Jean Walters, Miss Muriel Stenson, Miss Bernice Wert, Miss Leona McMillan and Miss Ada Spencely. Miss Frances Wand, in a period gown of pink net, its skirt a series of ruffles, displayed signs indicating the names of shops from which accessories came. Soft piano music was played throughout the show by Mrs. George Nicholls.

A Spring that is essentially romantic and rosy is forecast by this showing, with its utterly feminine clothes in all the heavenly new rosy tints—swooning pinks, baby blues, hydrangea and wistaria, shadow blue, skipper navy—soft, endearing colors that are perfect for the new lady-like fashions.

From a platform in front of the fireplace the models stepped down to the runway to show how lovely they must look in the days to come—not with the gay "little girl" appearance that beguiled their escorts last season, but with a new sophistication.

The "blouse" silhouette brought a soft, gentle effect to many of the lovely ensembles, making the waist appealingly small, and the hips incredibly slender. It was noted that the fitted and flared princess line still flourishes, young as youth.

Suits led the parade, a trim navy, its twin fox scarves adding elegance, a grey with a pink blouse spilling its frothy jabot down the front, worn with a bevelled sailor sporting bows of pink grosgrain ribbon, black patent accessories; a dressmaker model of gaiety blue, also alluringly combined with pink, and pliable suede accessories. There was an exhilarating choice in coats, flared with fullness back or front, pleats all 'round that played up the "lengthened torso" look; soft blousing to flatter waist and hip, graceful Princess lines that made a coat look just like a dress; loose coats hanging slim and straight from the shoulder, of wool interwoven with colorful stripes. Other materials included poiret twill, tricotine, double poiret twill. Redingotes brought rounds of applause—of navy or black, of delightful pastels over matching frocks. Dresses combined dainty feminine details, and again there was a subtle blending of flower shades—blue frocks with pink accessories, pink with blue, petal-skin beige with lime green.

Bags that hold everything were of efficient, shining patent leather or soft suede; baubles seemed picked right out of the sky to deck a number of frocks, bubble and dew-drop necklaces, floral pins to deck suit or coat lapel. Hats shown were interesting, saner and prettier than for many a moon, nearly all with veils—one a sailor displaying the military influence by its scarlet ornament of knitting needles thrust through a ball of wool. Coiffures were designed to flatter the Spring hats, with deep soft waves and loose or moulded curls at the back.

Bringing the show to a graceful conclusion was the bride and her maids, the bride in an unforgettable gown of white satin striped net, its shirred bodice buttoned to the neck, its long train flowing gracefully from the moulded hipline. There was a finger-tip tulle veil, and she carried a nosegay of fragrant pink carnations. A delicate pastel check over pink satin, with tiny waistline and huge puff sleeves, fashioned one of the bridesmaid's gowns; a second was of blue satin striped net with very full skirt, a third was in a similar style, but of delicate pink, a fourth, worn by the "junior bride", was pure white—the chiffon skirt inset with insertion—with it was worn a tiny hat composed entirely of white flowers held on with black ribbon hands. Disks of net, heart-shaped and edged with velvet flowers, tied with enormous, filmy veiling bows, were worn by the bridesmaids, in shades to match their frocks, all carried nosegays of living flowers.

We Noticed

....That success is predicted for taffeta and faille jacket dresses this Spring. Stiff fabrics are showing definite fashion prestige.

....Faille for jacket dresses comes in plain and duco prints, taffeta is in plain dark colors for jackets and suits, and in small checks and plaids for dresses.

....Black silk faille or taffeta suits with an expensive-looking, hand-made lingerie blouse (with a frou-frou jabot or bow at the neckline) are good choices for afternoon.

....Elegant fabrics and excellent tailoring are used in basic dresses, designed as backgrounds for the season's new jewellery.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 16.

Particularly lively and sudden events may be expected on this day, with many development of a surprising character. These will be attended by much doubt and perplexity because of side issues that are treacherous, subtle and even sinister. Be alert to all sorts of schemes, plots, illicit involvements and snares as well as open hostility or attack. There might be accidents, fires, theft or disaster. The private life is also afflicted, but over all are factors for progress and definite gain and good fortune.

Those whose birthday it is have a rather complicated year with which to cope. While there is augury of positive success, progress and increased possessions and finances, won by enterprise, ability, originality and cretative genius, there also are pitfalls and plots of malicious and sinister intent. Beware of deception, subtle and open hostility, fraudulent entanglements and also sudden physical dangers. Be careful with the signature and all writings.

A child born on this day may have much versatility, originality and creative ability, with aggressiveness and ingenuity, but it may be carried away by temperamental and emotional excesses.

FASHIONS

For a sleek figure, choose this distinguished button-front frock with its slenderizing princess lines. The unusual cut gives you flattering fullness over the bust. The lapels are cut in one with the dress; for a fresh touch of spring, baste a crisp white collar over them, and edge it with ruffles for face-flattery. This is "that little dark dress" you'll wear and wear....right for any occasion....shopping, luncheons and afternoon teas.

Style No. 2613 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 39-inch material, ½ yard 39-inch contrasting for separate collar.

The Masculine Note

Masculinity is the latest note in women's gloves this Spring. Smart women will be seen wearing mannish, hand-stitched, wrist-high pigskins. The gloves that will be worn with the new sportswear will be just this side of pure masculine, rescued only by a loose-fitting effect around the wrist.

OUTFITS WITH NINE LIVES

The color and gaiety of the smart jackets and skirts promises many a fashion trick for Easter paraders! Not only do they typify the new season, but with a little ingenuity you can give them the proverbial "nine lives"! They'll go along to the office to daytime dates and to sports events . . . feeling at home wherever they are.

SOFT SUITS

That misleading simplified look—how the wily fashionwise will welcome it! Suits with skirts childishly buttoned onto blouse — suits with flattering folds opening over virginal white—soft, sophisticated, deceptively simple, are these triumphs of Spring dressmaking.

New Gloves Are Short

Short and sweet are the gloves you'll wear with your new Spring suit. Crisp and ever so young, they are tremendously smart in the new lightweight suede-fabrics. New and expensive-looking style details are quickly evident in self or contrasting hand-stitching, clever button buckle accents. Even the popular one-button shortie shoes new stitching details. However, fashion goes to the other extreme when it comes to short-sleeved costumes and sponsors the new longer six or eight button fabric glove with dressmaker detail in clever back shirring. Best of all, all types of Spring gloves come in spotless white as well as the new pretty pastels.

ONE FALSE STEP

BY KATHRN BEMIS

"Don't forget tomorrow, Rock. I'll expect to see you." Chuck Ranny's voice sounded ominously prophetic.

Janis was frightened, but she knew this was no time to ask Rock questions."

Home Again

Rock managed to drive his powerful new car through the nearly deserted city streets without mishap. But it was more good fortune than good driving, and by the time they reached Beverly Hills, her nerves were jumpy.

He parked the car on her driveway, followed her into the house, saying: "I'll stay here tonight. Anyway, I like this address—I'm moving in permanently."

"Oh But how can you manage it, Rock? The studio——"

"Damn the studio! We're married, aren't we? It's a cinch no studio hams can tell a married man where to head in!"

Janis had a feeling that she should make some sort of protest, but she couldn't decide it now. She wondered why she wasn't gloriously happy over Rock's decision. But everything in her consciousness was a blur now—love, marriage, Lucinda, that man Ranny. Perhaps it would be wiser if Mr. and Mrs. Conover announced their marriage to the world, took a chance on the world

But by morning Janis realized with a sinking heart that Rock did not intend to do this. It would send Max Doyle up in the air and dampen the ardor of his women fans, he said, if they knew he was married. His career, he declared, came first. If he didn't put his career first, how could he support a wife Besides, he had a headache, and this was no time to bawl him out about marriage, and if she didn't like being married, she could get a divorce.

In Tight Spot

By the time Janis got him calmed down she was as jittery as she had ever been in her life. Fear clutched her from all sides. Her worst problem was what to do about other women—all those thoughtless women who flung their admiration at a too susceptible man. She tried to tell herself that she had a narrow-minded viewpoint. The wife of a motion-picture actor had to overlook much—or else——

The whites of Maud's big eyes widened, but otherwise she gave no sign, when her mistress brought a haggard looking man to the breakfast table. Seeing that he needed bracing up. Maud exerted her culinary skill to the utmost, and after delicious wheat cakes, bacon and coffee, Rock was nearly his old braggadocio self again.

On a full stomach he could smile expansively now. He leaned back in his chair, lit a cigarette.

"That was a swell feed, honey—thanks."

He poked a finger playfully through the canary's cage beside him, then turned soberly back to Janis.

"I hate to worry you—but I guess we'll have to mull over my situation."

"Situation."

"Yeah. I'm in a tight spot—I'm sorry for your sake."

Janis in frilly peach breakfast coat, stared at him incredulously. Jams, tight spots, situations—was Rock never to be free of them? What had he been doing now? Could he never sincerely turn over a new leaf, be the man he should be? Or—was she borrowing trouble?

"What do you mean, Rock?" she asked, resigned to hear the worst.

"Notice the parting shot Ranny fired at me last night? That he'd expect to see me? He's a great one he is, trying to pull that kind of gag on me!"

Rock Demands More Money

For a moment Janis was silent, trying to straighten out things in her mind. Rock involved with a man like Chuck Ranny.

Finally, she said: "You'd better tell me all about it, Rock."

"Chuck claims I owe him four grand. He wants it for our mining stock racket.

"Racket?"

"Oh, you know what I mean! Don't be so technical!"

"But you can't—you haven't four thousand, Rock."

"Guess I'll have to get it—Ranny will collect. He's funny that way."

"He's nothing but a crook!" flared Janis.

"Wait — a minute. You don't know what you're talking about. The deal's on the level — honest, hon. We'll make a million out of it.

"You could give him some of your salary, now and then. It's the only way I see to——"

"Chuck won't take it in little chunks—he'd get nasty about it. Now, if I could borrow say—from my wife——"

"If I let you have $4000, Rock, it will mean giving you the last cent I have—believe it or not," she told him tearfully.

He crushed his cigarette on the ashtray beside him, as if seriously considering this. She saw his lowered brown head, the whole vital magnetism of him with an ache in her heart, and wondered how to treat so unpredictable a man.

"If I don't pay up—I'll be—a little outside the law. You wouldn't want that to happen, would you?"

He lifted his head his brown eyes held her in their spell for a fleeting instant.

Janis Gives In

She tore away her gaze, looked at the sunny out-of-doors. She saw roses undefiled in their saintly whiteness, the thick carpet of green grass, bluejays splashing gayly in the fountain—beauty and purity and joy so near—and here was Rock Conover asking her to save him—and unavoidably herself, his wife—from actual scandal

"What do you say, darling?"

His voice was tenderly entreating, swaying and tossing her reason as mercilessly as moss on a foam-capped wave.

"We've got to live, Rock. If I give you all my money——"

"That's easily managed. The rent on this house is paid away ahead—I'll take care of the groceries and so on."

"Very well. But I insist we announce our marriage. Otherwise, what would people think?"

"There you go again—acting as if a marriage was anybody's business but our own! But if it will make you feel better, we'll explain to a few friends—swear them to secrecy. Will that make it right, darling?"

A reluctant "yes" came from the disturbed Janis. She was about to gamble her all on Rock's veracity. Dear God—would he come through?

CHAPTER XX

Rock left the house that morning whistling merrily. Janis' check for $4000 safely in his wallet. And Janis hurried to the kitchen to tell Maud that she was now working for Mr. and Mrs. Rock Conover.

"Lan' sakes, Mis' Sheldon—ain't that grand!

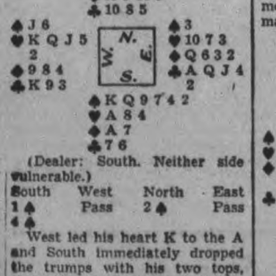
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

PLAY IT SAFE, TOO

TRYING for extra tricks above your contract is highly commendable, especially in match-play duplicate games, but sometimes you have a choice between the right and wrong way to do it. One course may produce the over-trick if it works, but cause defeat of the contract if it fails. The other alternative may involve no risk of the contract whatever, and still give you a good chance for your additional trick. As between these there is, of course, no argument. With one you stand to gain or lose, whereas with the other you have a chance to gain and no chance to lose.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	2♠	Pass
4♠

West led his heart K to the A and South immediately dropped the trumps with his two tops, then studied the hand a bit—but only a bit. He saw that making four-odd was easy enough, with the loss of just two clubs and one heart. Then he saw that he could get an extra trick by discarding a club on a diamond if the diamond finesse would work. He tried it. East won with the diamond Q, took two clubs and switched to a heart, defeating the contract.

After the opening heart trick, two spades and the diamond A, South should have played to the diamond K, thus making sure he would lose no diamond tricks, then should have led the diamond J. If East ducked, he should have discarded a club on it. Then, if West had the diamond Q the contract was safe. If East had it, an overtrick was in the bag. Of course, if East covered the diamond J, South could ruff, then go to the dummy and lead the diamond 10, discarding a club and making five.

Series Of Mistakes Is Charged To Premier King By Macaulay

"With your industrial setup here there should not be a man out of work in Peterborough," declared Hon. Leopold Macaulay in addressing a meeting in the interest of Gordon K. Fraser in the Canadian Legion Hall Thursday night. The member for South York in the Ontario Legislature charged that the King Government had failed Peterborough in the matter of war orders.

"When a firm like the Canadian General Electric Company loses a contract because some outfit without a plant at all puts in a bid at a cent a unit lower, that is something for the King candidate in this riding to dig into," Mr. Macaulay declared.

Alderman Herbert Bradburn was chairman; the guest speaker was introduced by J. F. Strickland, K.C., and other speakers were Mrs. Ed. Wand; L. C. Farley, president of the Young Peterborough Conservative Association; E. A. Peck, K.C.; Lieut.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, and the National Government candidate G. K. Fraser.

Stressing the seriousness of the war situation, Mr. Macaulay declared that he had noticed that a great many people, especially in the C.C.F. movement, had arrived at the conclusion that this was not time for arguments over economic policies but rather a time to close up the ranks at home in order to present a united front in France.

At War, or Are We?

"We are at war—or are we?" he said. "We must be since they have opened a recruiting office in Peterborough. We are at war and upon the determination of that war depends whether or not we are to be allowed to continue in accordance with the principles of British democracy that is our heritage. In this struggle against the forces of despotism our front line is along the Rhine or where ever else the battle may rage."

Mr. Macaulay stressed the need of national government to meet the peril. "That is where Mr. Mackenzie King made his cardinal mistake," he said, "when he failed to establish a national government at the beginning of the war."

From The Daily Star in 1917, the speaker quoted an editorial strongly in favor of national government. No government, The Star pointed out at that time, could effectively carry on a war effort with a political party hanging to its back."

"I don't think I could find a better text upon which to base my argument in favor of national government," said Mr. Macaulay.

"Mr. King has been asking the people of Canada to return him to power," he continued, "because he says that experience is necessary to run the war. Why Bob Manion was the first Canadian in France, and as for Mr. King, what war experience has he ever had? His experience is best illustrated by that popular song of the moment, "South of the Border, Down Mexico Way."

A Series of Mistakes

"The scuttling of Parliament by Mr. King," said the speaker, "was one of a series of mistakes all starting from that first one of failing to establish a national government. The captain of the Graf Spee made a good job of scuttling his ship, but he left enough of it to be sold as junk. On the other hand when Mr. King got through with parliament there wasn't even a committee left. He broke his pledged word because he had said there would be a session of parliament before an election. Is that the kind of thing we should expect from a leader of this country. "Away with that bauble," Cromwell said. And a year and a half afterward they abolished Cromwell. We are going to abolish King in a week and a half."

Not satisfied with abolishing parliament, he charged, the King Government proceeded to make it difficult to acquaint the people with the true facts. The broadcasting of political meetings was forbidden, and thus the country was deprived of the chance to get the inspiration and guidance that could be obtained from such broadcasts. "I would rather have one political meeting broadcast," he said, "than a dozen canned speeches from some radio studio."

Political speeches on the air, said Mr. Macaulay, were censored and in the case of one speech by Col. Drew a thousand words had been cut out.

The Germans Know

"We are told that we should not criticize because the enemy will get hold of it," said the speaker. "Why bless me the Germans know far better than we do how inadequately our first division was equipped. We are not telling them anything. And isn't it better to point out the weaknesses and have them corrected than go along making the same mistakes. The only way to get rid of a wrong condition is to expose it." In that connection he recommended the statement of Winston Churchill that criticism in parliament was as necessary as was pain in the human body, to the attention of those who said that the government should not be criticized in war time.

Mr. King, he said, after scuttling parliament and gagging the radio had now reached the low level of trying to rob the soldier of his vote. He explained that many soldiers would be on leave during the period in which the voting took place in their units, and they would be disenfranchised. "They have loaded the dice against the soldier," he charged.

A Liberal War

Apparently Mr. King was determined to run this war as a Liberal war, rather than a Canadian war. That slogan, "Forward With Mackenzie King," he said, "is enough to make the angels weep. Forward to where? Mr. King is trying to sloganize himself back into office. You remember those slogans of other elections. You recall "King or Chaos," and people voted for King and got chaos. You remember the other one about a united Liberal Canada to solve your problems. The Liberal Canada came along all right, but there were more problems unsolved than ever."

Mr. Macaulay quoted a speech made at Kingston by Mr. King during the 1935 election campaign, in which he assailed Mr. Bennett for spending too much money on drill halls and armouries, and declared that the building up of a military force was the sign of a dictator. "That speech helped to elect Norman Rogers in 1935," he said, and it is going to help to defeat him on March 26. It illustrates the type of mind of the man who asks us to return him to power to carry on Canada's war effort."

Few War Orders

In his opening remarks, Alderman Herb. Bradburn charged that the "do-nothing King Government" had given Peterborough little in the way of war orders. A survey had been made by the City Council last year of Peterborough's industries and their ability to carry out war orders and it had been supplied to the government, but nothing had come of it. Peterborough firms had obtained a few small orders, and that was all that had come this way.

E. A. Peck, K.C., said Gordon K. Fraser would make an admirable representative for this riding. He had energy and ability, business training, and was in a position to give all his time to the job of representing West Peterborough. Discussing the campaign issues, Mr. Peck said that a national government would come sooner or later to carry on a vigorous prosecution of the war. To re-elect Mr. King, he said, would be only to prolong the agony. "You will never have a better opportunity than right now of electing a national government," he said; "Mr. King has given us the chance and we might as well take advantage of it."

Appeals To Youth

L. C. Farley, president of the Young Conservative Association, regretted the lack of interest among young Canadians generally in politics, and appealed to the parents and friends of the young voters to enlist them in the fight for national government. Youth was demanding action, and in this connection he outlined Dr. Manion's youth program, with its specific promise of the launching of a scheme for youth training and development.

The speaker had a word to say about the Liberal slogan. "Forward with Mackenzie King." He said "If we adopted that advice and followed the example he set in the last war we would all be heading across the border."

Lieut. Col. C. H. Ackermon said that while he had no regrets for having supported the Reconstruction cause in the last election, he was back in the fold because he was a firm believer in the British Empire and in Bob Manion as a leader who would supply the proper direction for Canada's war effort. Lieut.-Col. Ackerman assailed the remarks made by Premier King at Kingston in the last election in regard to military expenditures. He was satisfied, he said, that if Dr. Manion had been in Premier King's place when war broke out, his first thought would not have been in regard to political advantage; it would have been to get on with the war.

Mrs. Ed. Wand, emphasizing the fact that she was speaking as an individual and not as a representative of the Local Council of Women, said she was a voluntary worker for Gordon K. Fraser because she believed in the necessity of national government. "I have made the prediction from several platforms," Gordon K. Fraser said, "that a recruiting office would be opened here before the election in the hope that some of you might be led to accept it as a sign of action. They opened one today, but I don't think many of you will be fooled."

Mr. Fraser explained the system under which soldiers are being given furlough at the time when voting takes place at their units, and declared that many of these men would be unable to poll their votes.

"I am only going to make you one promise, and that is to work for the best interest of all of you," he declared.

In introducing Hon. Leopold Macaulay, J. F. Strickland replied to a speech made by Col. J. A. Dewart the other night, suggesting that the period in which Mr. Bennett held office was a much different time than the last five years. Disarmament was the favorite topic around the world during the Bennett regime, but Mr. King had failed to prepare when it was inevitable that war should come.

Omemee

The regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. was held in the basement of the church on Monday evening, March 11. After business discussion the meeting was left in the hands of the devotional convener, the Rector, Rev. G. H. Johnson, who gave a very interesting talk on The Church and Modern Culture.

Social and Personal

Mr. Ted Marsh, of Omemee, is spending this week with Mr. and Mrs. George Morton, Kingston.

Mr. R. J. Moore, principal of Omemee High School, was rushed to Nicholls Hospital Sunday morning, where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. Friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Mr. Bert Weir, 45th Field Battery, Lindsay, is spending two weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Weir, Omemee.

Miss Evelyn Bigelow, Marmora, spent the week-end with her grandmother, Mrs. Richard Howden.

Miss Evelyn Morcombe, Peterborough, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Morcombe.

The Omemee Black Hawks journeyed to Fenelon Falls on Saturday, March 9, and played an exhibition game of hockey. Saturday, March 16, the Omemee Black Hawks are driving to Haliburton for another game.

The Misses Jean Fee and Gladys Laidley, spent the week-end with their parents.

Miss Agatha Ireland, Peterborough, spent the week-end in Omemee visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry McQuade and Mr. Arnold McQuade visited friends in Peterborough Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Weston Reid visited the latter's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Darling, Peterborough.

War Supply Ministry Under Fire

Graft And Inefficiency Are Charged By British Laborite

LONDON, March 16 (CP Cable)—A political storm arising out of criticism of the ministry of supply increased sharply today with a charge by a dismissed ministry official that he had been "sacrificed" by Supply Minister Leslie Burgin.

Robert Behar, one of three ministry officials dismissed March 5 without explanation, issued a statement charging that Mr. Burgin, "embarrassed by attacks on his department and by questions in the house of commons, sacrificed me in a miscalculated political manoeuvre."

"Mr. Burgin's action," charged Behar, "was in violation of every principle of natural justice."

Behar's brother David, one of the three dismissed, yesterday demanded his (David's) "rehabilitation" or a plain declaration of the reasons for his dismissal. Mr. Burgin has refused to give these reasons to the house of commons.

The matter was brought up again in the house of commons yesterday, by Herbert Morrison, Labor.

The minister, Leslie Burgin, admitted during yesterday's debate that an "atmosphere of suspicion" had been created by the activities of "unscrupulous individuals" but said measures are being worked out which will make it a crime for an individual to try to obtain commissions by giving the impression he can influence civil servants or government services.

In leading the attack on the ministry, Mr. Morrison charged certain businessmen claimed that through their influence on government departments they could obtain orders for manufacturers in return for a commission. Among these men he mentioned Captain V. R. Ullman, M.C., who served in the first Great War with the Canadian Army, 21st

Ticket Collector

A South Coast Port, England, March 16 (CP Cable).

A SERGEANT returning from France on leave and rushing to his train handed his leave voucher book to the ticket collector.

The collector tore out the green pass, and returned the book. The sergeant took it, and the collector smiled pleasantly.

Then the sergeant, amazement written over his face, snapped to attention.

The collector was King George. His Majesty, who had been watching officers and men landing from France, "filled in" for a while as a ticket collector to see how the routine was carried out.

North Sea Blast Sinks Ship; 18 Britons Lost

AMSTERDAM, March 16.—(CP Havas) — The 1,589-ton British steamship Melrose sank last night in the North sea after an explosion. Eighteen members of the crew are missing.

The captain and four men picked up by the Dutch vessels Nettia and Catharina were landed at Zeebrugge. Unconfirmed reports said four other sailors were rescued by the Netherlands freighter Kortenaer.

"I was in the chart room when I heard a loud explosion which took place near hold No. 2, the captain of the Melrose said at Zeebrugge. "When I left the room the vessel was already partly under the water. A number of the men tried to swim away, two were picked up by the Catharina and two by the Nettia."

The Melrose, owned by G. Gibson and Co. Leith, Scotland, has been in regular service between Rotterdam and British ports.

Carol Balks At Adolf's Price For Peace Shies Off Hungarian, Red Pledges; Finland Reorganizes Weary Troops

Western Civilization Still In Danger Says Finn Premier

HELSINKI, March 16. — (AP) — Finland will begin immediately to fortify her newly-narrowed frontiers and to reorganize her battered army following her peace treaty with Soviet Russia, informed quarters declared today.

There will be no general demobilization of the army, except for certain classes which will be released to help with civil reconstruction work, these sources said.

The Finnish government's attitude toward the future was suggested by Premier Risto Ryti, who told the Diet last night that the nation would go forward "with a sword in one hand and a trowel in the other."

Finland's proposal for a defence alliance with Sweden and Norway is another part of her determination to be strong.

All of western civilization remains in the greatest danger, and only the future can show whether Finland acted wisely in making her hard peace with Russia, Ryti said.

Addressing the Finnish Diet just before it approved the treaty by a vote of 145 to 3 last night, the Premier declared:

"In the same way as we waged war alone, we concluded peace alone. Only the future can show whether we acted wisely and rightly.

U.K. Textiles Fears Of Shortage In Labor Eased As Reservation Age Is Lowered

LONDON, March 16 (CP)—The British textile industry, which had expressed fears of a possible shortage of skilled and semi-skilled labor because of conscription, today had its anxieties allayed by a government order lowering the "reservation age" in 39 sections of the textile and allied trades from 30 to 25 years.

The reservation age is that above which employees in the so-called reserved occupations are exempt from compulsory military service.

In a number of more specialized occupations connected with the textile trades, the ministry of labor lowered the reservation age from 25 to 23 years.

In two categories of scrap metal workers the age was lowered from 30 to 25.

These amendments, the ministry said, are not retroactive in their effect and do not involve the release of men in the forces or of those who have already received enlistment notices.

Want No Iron Guards Says Rumania; Will Not Demobilize

BUCHAREST, Mar. 16— (AP).—Sources close to King Carol declared to-day that Rumania cannot pay Germany's price for a "security" offer.

They described the terms for proposed Hungarian and Russian border guarantees as "intolerable and impossible of acceptance" and said the plan is doomed unless Germany modifies it greatly.

Stiff opposition rose in high government quarters against every concession asked of Rumania—political, economic and military. The king's advisers were said to feel that any Rumanian attempt to give Germany the virtual monopoly of exports she seeks would disrupt the country's economy almost as badly as war itself.

A Rumanian military mission in Berlin, it was reported reliably, has been told Russia could be persuaded to sign a 25-year non-aggression pact with Rumania and that Hungary would pledge not to press territorial revision demands for 10 years.

No German Army Changes French Report

PARIS, March 16 (AP)—Sinking of two German submarines was reported by French naval sources today with the comment that Germany apparently is dispatching a new wave of U-boats to prey upon shipping.

There are indications, naval men said, that the submarines which had been at sea since February were returning to their bases and that others were taking their places.

One submarine was sunk by an armed British trawler, the French informants said. (Such a sinking was reported by British seamen Thursday; it was not clear whether the French and British versions referred to the same incident.)

Friday passed on the western front without the slightest evidence of action, and another day of bad weather hindered aviation.

This mornin's French communique said "nothing to report."

Two cabinet members, War Minister Juho Nioukanen and Education Minister Uno Hannula, resigned Wednesday in protest against the peace with Soviet Russia.

Paasikivi was a member of the Finnish delegation that negotiated the peace treaty with Russia in Moscow last Tuesday and headed the delegation that went to Moscow before the outbreak of the war Nov. 30 to discuss Russian territorial demands upon Finland.

Blame Engineer In Rail Crash

CALGARY, March 16 (CP) — A Canadian Pacific railway statement concerning the Dermis siding main line crash between a passenger train and a pusher engine 20 miles west of Medicine Hat early yesterday stated an "investigation indicates responsibility rests with the engineer of the pusher engine." Five passengers were injured.

The statement by E. D. Cotterell of Calgary, general superintendent of the railway's Alberta district, follows:

"The investigation conducted on the ground indicates that the responsibility rests with the engineer of the pusher engine for his failure to take the passing track at Bowell (six miles east of Dennis siding) for No. 4." The passenger train was listed as No. 4.

Railway officials earlier stated that A. Foulston of Medicine Hat was the engineer of the pusher engine.

Of the passengers injured only J. R. Milne of Winnipeg, who suffered from knee and back injuries and shock, remained in Medicine Hat hospital.

Woman's Strategy Foils Holdup

LONDON, Ont., March 16—(CP).—Two bandits, one of them holding what appeared to be a revolver, fled from the grocery store of Mrs. D. J. Ross, Hamilton Road, last night when she cried "Come on in and help" to an imaginary person in the living room adjoining the store.

Mrs. Ross said the men came into her store late last night and one of them asked for cigarettes. As she turned to get the cigarettes, she was told the visit was a holdup. She then made her outcry and the men turned and fled.

Both bandits, unmasked, were described as of medium height and wore dark overcoats and masks.

Police believe the pair were the men who have been sought for a holdup a few blocks away.

Last Minute News Flashes

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia — (CP-Havas). — Two Austrian refugees and a Yugoslav priest were believed to-day to have been slain by German Gestapo agents on the Yugoslav-Reich border near Maribor on Wednesday night. Earlier reports had said only one man was killed in the affray, which occurred when a Nazi spy lured the three men within rifle range of German territory.

Tip To Capture Or Sinking Of Nazi War Vessel Brings Reward Of $4,450

LONDON, March 16 (CP)—Britain will pay rewards up to £1,000 ($4,450) for "accurate information" leading to the "capture or destruction of an enemy war vessel."

Other rewards offered to "non-service personnel afloat or ashore" including £50 for the movements of enemy war vessels, including minelayers, £5 for the position of mines, and £1 for the first report of a mine washed ashore or £5 if it is a "specially interesting mine."

Also Against Italy

MOSCOW (AP)—Izvestia, Soviet government newspaper, said today that British and French troops concentrations in the near east and diplomatic activity in the Balkans were attempts "to harness the population of colonial and dependent countries to the Allied war chariot."

The paper claimed that Allied efforts were directed not only against Germany but Italy as well.

French Arms Wizard Dautry Races Time To Be Ready For Great Spring Drive

PARIS, March 16—(AP)—"Little man with the big brain" trots into the Ministry of Munitions every dawn, racing against spring and the chance of a big western front offensive.

His hurried look comes from the fact that it costs $2,000 a minute to put a French infantry regiment into attack, and he is responsible for keeping France's munition factories at the 24-hour-a-day pace producing the gunpowder and shells that make up much of the $2,000

It is the same hurried look with which he crammed an 18-month railroad construction job into three months for the Allies 1818 big push, and to-day Armament Minister Raoul Dautry, 59-year-old bundle of energy, is stil lrated as one of the best organizers on the scene.

French leaders say he is getting results despite years of labor troubles, political bonfires which sapped industrial output and the short time he has been at the job

Western Ontario Sap Running

OTTAWA, March 16—(CP). — Sap's runnin' in Western Ontario and soon in other parts of Central and Eastern Canada the maple bushes will echo to the shouts of workers as they tap trees to make syrup and maple sugar.

The Dominion Agriculture Department said to-day that there are prospects of a good yield this year and estimate that 3,000,000 gallons of syrup will be turned out. Last year the crop amounted to 2,502,000 gallons, valued at $3,443,800 to the farmers.

It takes 40 gallons of sap to make a gallon of syrup and 80 per cent of the syrup comes from Quebec province.

The demand is expected to be particularly good for syrup and sugar this year, the Department said, and as there is very little export trade, the crop will not be affected materially by war-time trade restrictions.

Finnish Volunteers Paid Off In Toronto

TORONTO, March 16 — (CP). — Kingsley Graham, Finnish Consul here, announced that Canadian volunteers for the Finnish War, now ended, were being paid off to-day and furnished transportation to their homes. Arrangements had been made to send 2,000 volunteers to help the Finns.

Toronto was the gathering point for volunteers, many of Finnish extraction, from all over Canada.

It was not announced whether the airmen who first volunteered for Finland and now have volunteered to join the French Flying Corps were included in those paid off.

Room In Canada?

Ottawa, March 16 (CP)

THE POSSIBILITY of settling dispossessed Finnish peasant farmers in Canada has been discussed in the immigration branch of the mines and resources department, it was learned reliably here Friday.

Officials have considered many problems connected with bringing these farmers, who lost their land and homes during the Russian invasion and the subsequent peace, to this Dominion but no definite decisions have been reached. The government itself has not discussed the question yet.

Parties Run Shy Of New Bombs, Repeat Charges

(By the Canadian Press.)

This wartime Dominion election campaign is providing more repetition of a multitude of arguments and controversies than any in Canadian history, political veterans in Ottawa maintain.

All parties seem to be running short of high-powered ammunition and pound away at the original issues, but electoral bombshells might explode before the majority of voters cast their ballots March 26. The active service vote starts in Canada today.

Conservative leader Manion addressed a London, Ont., rally and denounced a "despicable whispering campaign" which he said was being carried on in all parts of Canada by "low, back-door slanderers."

RAF Bombers Again Scout Poland

Coast Patrol Crews Fail To Corner German Raider

LONDON, March 16—(CP).—The British and German air forces exchanged raids within the past 24 hours, the Air Ministry announced today, with the Royal Air Force making an "extensive" flight over Poland and a German bomber clashing with a British coastal patrol in a running fight.

A Ministry communique said that air activities of the last 24 hours included "an extensive night flight over Polish territory by aircraft of the bomber command and an engagement between aircraft of the coastal command and an enemy bomber."

"During a running fight in which the enemy repeatedly attacked, damage was seen to be inflicted," the communique continued. "The enemy aircraft finally escaped in the clouds."

Official sources today were without information confirming a German claim one British patrol vessel had been sunk and another damaged.

The Admiralty announced today that the British naval trawler Peridot struck a German mine and sank yesterday with no loss of life.

Shipping Halted.

AMSTERDAM, March 16 — (CP-Havas).—The newspaper De Telegraaf reported today that the naval general staff has ordered Netherlands shipping companies to suspend all navigation until further notice.

The order, De Telegraaf said, was due to the dangers threatening shipping.

Nazi Ship Losses Exceed British For Week

LONDON, March 16—(CP)—Germany lost 16,317 tons of merchant shipping in the week ending March 15 as against 10,798 lost by Great Britain due to enemy action.

The 7,414-ton German liner La Coruna was scuttled in Northern waters when intercepted by Allied patrols. The 3,303-ton Eschersheim was sunk in European water, while the 5,600-ton Hannover was captured by the Royal Navy after her crew had failed in an attempt to scuttle her.

In addition to the 10,798 tons lost by Britain due to enemy action, two ships totalling 7,678 tons were lost in ordinary marine accidents, bringing the week's total diminuation of the Empire's 20,000,000-ton merchant fleet to 18,476 tons.

When the captured Hannover is added to Britain's tonnage, however,

See Milk Price Rise To Meet High Feed Cost

OTTAWA, Mar. 16 — (Staff). — If the price of fluid milk is not to be sharply increased in the cities, action will have to be taken to keep down the price of mill feeds to the farmers, the Live Stock Feedstuffs Committee of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was told yesterday by a deputation which represented the producers section of the National Dairy Council and the Standing Joint Dairy Breeds Committee.

Since the war, it was explained, the mill feeds that farmers now buy to provide a properly balanced diet for their cows, have risen sharply in price, but there has been no change in the amount of money the farmers receive for their milk.

In order to keep the price of flour down, it was stated, the burden was passed on to the farmers through increased costs of bran and

Nazis Working Atheism On Pole Priests

VATICAN CITY, March 16.—(CP)—Imprisonment of 45 Polish, Czech and Austrian priests in German concentration camps has been reported to Pope Pius, the Polish Embassy to the Holy See announced today.

The Pope received the report before his conference last week-end with Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop of Germany and the Embassy believes the Pope referred to it.

August Cardinal Hlond, Primate of Poland, in another report says Soviet authorities in Russian-occupied Poland have discouraged the killing of priests in favor of more subtle and "scientific" methods of instilling atheism.

Some violence still exists, the statement said, but most instances are to the excesses of local communists, lasting only until the secret police take control.

Hold Hired Man After Attack On Aged Farmer

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., March 16—(CP).—William Hayes, 70, Newcastle district farmer, was still unconscious at hospital here today, where he was brought yesterday following a fight on his farm. His condition was described as critical.

Budd Eddy, 25, farmhand, was taken into custody for questioning and then to the hospital for treatment for frozen feet. Police said they understood there was a fight between Eddy and Hayes.

Hayes was found, covered with blood and semi-conscious, on his kitchen floor, a short time after his hired man, Harold Eddy, 25, staggered barefoot across the snow to George Graham's home, two miles away, and told an incoherent story of a quarrel with his employer.

Graham became suspicous and drove to the Hayes home, picking up

German Victory Dooms Scandinavia Says Sinclair Scoring War Stand

MANCHESTER, March 16.—(CP).—Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, in a speech here to-day said that if Winston Churchill had been First Lord of the Admiralty "a few months earlier when we were loudly demanding it, that fine ship the Royal Oak and her gallant crew would never have been lost in Scapa Flow."

Recalling that Mr. Churchill and Anthony Eden, Dominions secretary, were "only admitted to the government on the day war was declared," Sir Archibald said: "Six months of Mr. Churchill before the war would have been six nails in Hitler's coffin. But he was not a yes-man, so they would not have him until they were forced to have him."

The battleship Royal Oak was sunk Oct. 14 with a loss of 786 men when a German submarine penetrated the defences of the Scapa Flow sea naval base off Northern Scotland.

The Liberal Leader criticized the attitude of Sweden and Norway during the Finnish-Soviet war, but said:

"The Swedish Government behaved much as our Government did at Munich, but we Liberals are entitled to record our condemnation of this fresh betrayal of democracy.

"The freedom and independence of Sweden and Norway are bound up with the fortunes of France and Great Britain."

If Germany defeats the Allies, he said, Scandinavia will either be divided between Germany and the Soviet Union or will become the theatre of a merciless war between them. International law, treaties, pacts of non-aggression and neutrality, he said, will have no validity for Sweden and Norway if Germany wins.

Irish Airs To Liven French Towns As War Units Honor St. Patrick

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, March 16 — (CP-Reuters). — Many Irishmen who are out here in the British Expeditionary Force—including the Commander-in-Chief, General Viscount Gort, and the next senior officer, Lieut.-General Sir John Dill—celebrate St. Patrick's Day to-morrow.

Most of them will be wearing the shamrocks sent out especially from their own country. In three all-Irish units—the Royal Irish Fusiliers, the Royal Ulster Rifles, and the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers — there will be special parades at which shamrock will be handed every man.

The exigencies of the war have to be considered, but the Irish Fusiliers have drawn up a full program for to-morrow's celebration. It begins at seven o'clock in the morning, when St. Patrick's Day will be heralded by Irish pipers. They will march around the billets of the village in which this battalion is at present accommodated, playing traditional airs.

Normally there would be drummers as well as pipers for this cheerful reveille. But there will be no drummers to-morrow.

Out of regard for the French civilian population, it has been decided that drums would be too noisy for Palm Sunday.

At five minutes past 10 the battalion will parade, and Sir John Dill will travel from his corps headquarters and arrive on the parade ground for the purpose of giving away shamrocks.

At 10.45 there will be a Mass in the open air. Battalion drums will be piled to form an altar.

War Supply Ministry Under Fire

Graft And Inefficiency Are Charged By British Laborite

LONDON, March 16 (CP Cable)—A political storm arising out of criticism of the ministry of supply increased sharply today with a charge by a dismissed ministry official that he had been "sacrificed" by Supply Minister Leslie Burgin.

Robert Behar, one of three ministry officials dismissed March 5 without explanation, issued a statement charging that Mr. Burgin, "embarrassed by attacks on his department and by questions in the house of commons, sacrificed me in a miscalculated politcial manoeuvre."

"Mr. Burgin's action," charged Behar, "was in violation of every principle of natural justice."

Behar's brother David, one of the three dismissed, yesterday demanded his (David's) "rehabilitation" or the plain declaration of the reasons for his dismissal. Mr. Burgin has refused to give these reasons to the house of commons.

The matter was brought up again in the house of commons yesterday, by Herbert Morrison, Labor.

The minister, Leslie Burgin, admitted during yesterday's debate that an "atmosphere of suspicion" had been created by the activities of "unscrupulous individuals" but said measures are being worked out which will make it a crime for an individual to try to obtain commissions by giving the impression he can influence civil servants or government services.

In leading the attack on the ministry, Mr. Morrison charged certain businessmen claimed that through their influence on government departments they could obtain orders for manufacturers in return for a commission. Among these men he mentioned Captain V. R. Ullman, M.C., who served in the first Great War with the Canadian Army, 21st

Ticket Collector

A South Coast Port, England, March 16 (CP Cable).

A SERGEANT returning from France on leave and rushing to his train handed his leave voucher book to the ticket collector.

The collector tore out the green pass, and returned the book. The sergeant took it, and the collector smiled pleasantly.

Then the sergeant, amazement written over his face, snapped to attention.

The collector was King George.

His Majesty, who had been watching officers and men landing from France, "filled in" for a while as a ticket collector to see how the routine was carried out.

North Sea Blast Sinks Ship; 18 Britons Lost

AMSTERDAM, March 16.—(CP Havas) — The 1,589-ton British steamship Melrose sank last night in the North sea after an explosion. Eighteen members of the crew are missing.

The captain and four men picked up by the Dutch vessels Nettia and Catharina were landed at Zeeburgge. Unconfirmed reports said four other sailors were rescued by the Netherlands freighter Kortenaer.

"I was in the chart room when I heard a loud explosion which took place near hold No. 2, the captain of the Melrose said at Zeebrugge. "When I left the room the vessel was already partly under the water. A number of the men tried to swim away, two were picked up by the Catharina and two by the Nettia."

The Melrose, owned by G. Gibson and Co. Leith, Scotland, has been in regular service between Rotterdam and British ports.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16—(AP)—Globe wireless said it had intercepted an SOS from the Australian steamship Kahika that she had gone on the rocks in a pass between the tip of Australia and Tasmania and was "sinking fast."

Carol Balks At Adolf's Price For Peace Shies Off Hungarian, Red Pledges; Finland Reorganizes Weary Troops

Western Civilization Still In Danger Says Finn Premier

HELSINKI, March 16. — (AP) — Finland will begin immediately to fortify her newly-narrowed frontiers and to reorganize her battered army following her peace treaty with Soviet Russia, informed quarters declared today.

There will be no general demobilization of the army, except for certain classes which will be released to help with civil reconstruction work, these sources said.

The Finnish government's attitude toward the future was suggested by Premier Risto Ryti, who told the Diet last night that the nation would go forward "with a sword in one hand and a trowel in the other."

Finland's proposal for a defence alliance with Sweden and Norway is another part of her determination to be strong.

All of western civilization remains in the greatest danger, and only the future can show whether Finland acted wisely in making her hard peace with Russia, Ryti said.

Addressing the Finnish Diet just before it approved the treaty by a vote of 145 to 3 last night, the Premier declared:

"In the same way as we waged war alone, we concluded peace alone. Only the future can show whether we acted wisely and rightly.

"Our country, like the whole of

Blame Engineer In Rail Crash

CALGARY, March 16 (CP) — A Canadian Pacific railway statement concerning the Dennis siding main line crash between a passenger train and a pusher engine 20 miles west of Medicine Hat early yesterday stated an "investigation indicates responsibility rests with the engineer of the pusher engine." Five passengers were injured.

The statement by E. D. Cotterell of Calgary, general superintendent of the railway's Alberta district, follows:

"The investigation conducted on the ground indicates that the responsibility rests with the engineer of the pusher engine for his failure to take the passing track at Bowell (six miles east of Dennis siding) for No. 4." The passenger train was listed as No. 4.

Railway officials earlier stated that A. Foulston of Medicine Hat was the engineer of the pusher engine.

Of the passengers injured only J. R. Milne of Winnipeg, who suffered from knee and back injuries and shock, remained in Medicine Hat hospital.

U.K. Textiles Fears Of Shortage In Labor Eased As Reservation Age Is Lowered

LONDON, March 16 (CP)—The British textile industry, which had expressed fears of a possible shortage of skilled and semi-skilled labor because of conscription, today had its anxieties allayed by a government order lowering the "reservation age" in 39 sections of the textile and allied trades from 30 to 26 years.

The reservation age is that above which employees in the so-called reserved occupations are exempt from compulsory military service.

In a number of more specialized occupations connected with the textile trades, the ministry of labor lowered the reservation age from 25 to 23 years.

In two categories of scrap metal workers the age was lowered from 30 to 25.

These amendments, the ministry said, are not retroactive in their effect and do not involve the release of men in the forces or of those who have already received enlistment notices.

No German Army Changes French Report

PARIS, March 16 (AP)—Sinking of two German submarines was reported by French naval sources today with the comment that Germany apparently is dispatching a new wave of U-boats to prey upon shipping.

There are indications, naval men said, that the submarines which had been at sea since February were returning to their bases and that others were taking their places.

One submarine was sunk by an armed British trawler, the French informants said. (Such a sinking was reported by British seamen Thursday; it was not clear whether the French and British versions referred to the same incident.)

Friday passed on the western front without the slightest evidence of action, and another day of bad weather hindered aviation.

This mornin's French communique said "nothing to report."

Third And Fourth Finnish Ministers Quit

LONDON, March 16.—(CP).—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Stockholm to-day reported the resignation of two more members of the Finnish government, Juhu Paasikivi, minister without portfolio, and R. Von Pleandt, Minister of Public Works.

Two cabinet members, War Minister Juho Niioukanen and Education Minister Uno Hannula, resigned Wednesday in protest against the peace with Soviet Russia.

Paasikivi was a member of the Finnish delegation that negotiated the peace treaty with Russia in Moscow last Tuesday and headed the delegation that went to Moscow before the outbreak of the war Nov. 30 to discuss Russian territorial demands upon Finland.

Tip To Capture Or Sinking Of Nazi War Vessel Brings Reward Of $4,450

LONDON, March 16 (CP)—Britain will pay rewards up to £1,000 ($4,450) for "accurate information" leading to the "capture or destruction of an enemy war vessel."

Other rewards offered to "non-service personnel afloat or ashore" including £50 for the movements of enemy war vessels, including minelayers, £5 for the position of mines, and £1 for the first report of a mine washed ashore or £5 if it is a "specially interesting mine."

Also Against Italy

MOSCOW (AP)—Izvestia, Soviet government newspaper, said today that British and French troops concentrations in the near east and diplomatic activity in the Balkans were attempts "to harness the population of colonial and dependent countries to the Allied war chariot."

The paper claimed that Allied efforts were directed not only against Germany but Italy as well.

Air Force Busy

Friday Not Meatless.

PARIS — (AP). — Catholic authorities to-day gave French congregations permission to dispense with meatless Fridays, beginning at Easter. The dispensation followed Government orders restricting the sale and consumption of meats on Sundays. Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays of each week.

Government restrictions, effective on March 25, will supersede the existing meatless days — Mondays, Tuesdays, and Fridays. The church's permission to have meat on Fridays will continue until the end of the war.

Want No Iron Guards Says Rumania; Will Not Demobilize

BUCHAREST, Mar. 16— (AP).—Sources close to King Carol declared to-day that Rumania cannot pay Germany's price for a "security" offer.

They described the terms for proposed Hungarian and Russian border guarantees as "intolerable and impossible of acceptance" and said the plan is doomed unless Germany modifies it greatly.

Stiff opposition rose in high government quarters against every concession asked of Rumania—political, economic and military. The king's advisers were said to feel that any Rumanian attempt to give Germany the virtual monopoly of exports she seeks would disrupt the country's economy almost as badly as war itself.

A Rumanian military mission in Berlin, it was reported reliably, has been told Russia could be persuaded to sign a 25-year non-aggression pact with Rumania and that Hungary would pledge not to press territorial revision demands for 10 years.

Western Ontario Sap Running

OTTAWA, March 16—(CP). — Sap's runnin' in Western Ontario and soon in other parts of Central and Eastern Canada the maple bushes will echo to the shouts of workers as they tap trees to make syrup and maple sugar.

The Dominion Agriculture Department said to-day that there are prospects of a good yield this year and estimate that 3,000,000 gallons of syrup will be turned out. Last year the crop amounted to 2,502,000 gallons, valued at $3,443,800 to the farmers.

It takes 40 gallons of sap to make a gallon of syrup and 80 per cent of the syrup comes from Quebec province.

The demand is expected to be particularly good for syrup and sugar this year, the Department said, and as there is very little export trade, the crop will not be affected materially by war-time trade restrictions.

Finnish Volunteers Paid Off In Toronto

TORONTO, March 16 — (CP). — Kingsley Graham, Finnish Consul here, announced that Canadian volunteers for the Finnish War, now ended, were being paid off to-day and furnished transportation to their homes. Arrangements had been made to send 2,000 volunteers to help the Finns.

Toronto was the gathering point for volunteers, many of Finnish extraction, from all over Canada.

It was not announced whether the airmen who first volunteered for Finland and now have volunteered to join the French Flying Corps were included in those paid off.

Room In Canada?

Ottawa, March 16 (CP)

THE POSSIBILITY of settling dispossessed Finnish peasant farmers in Canada has been discussed in the immigration branch of the mines and resources department, it was learned reliably here Friday.

Officials have considered many problems connected with bringing these farmers, who lost their land and homes during the Russian invasion and the subsequent peace, to this Dominion but no definite decisions have been reached. The government itself has not discussed the question yet.

Parties Run Shy Of New Bombs, Repeat Charges

(By the Canadian Press.)

This wartime Dominion election campaign is providing more repetition of a multitude of arguments and controversies than any in Canadian history, political veterans in Ottawa maintain.

All parties seem to be running short of high-powered ammunition and pound away at the original issues, but electoral bombshells might explode before the majority of voters cast their ballots March 26. The active service vote starts in Canada today.

Conservative leader Manion addressed a London, Ont., rally and denounced a "despicable whispering campaign" which he said was being carried on in all parts of Canada by "low, back-door slanderers."

RAF Bombers Again Scout Poland

Coast Patrol Crews Fail To Corner German Raider

LONDON, March 16—(CP).—The British and German air forces exchanged raids within the past 24 hours, the Air Ministry announced today, with the Royal Air Force making an "extensive" flight over Poland and a German bomber clashing with a British coastal patrol in a running fight.

A Ministry communique said that air activities of the last 24 hours included "an extensive night flight over Polish territory by aircraft of the bomber command and an engagement between aircraft of the coastal command and an enemy bomber."

"During a running fight in which the enemy repeatedly attacked, damage was seen to be inflicted," the communique continued. "The enemy aircraft finally escaped in the clouds."

Official sources today were without information confirming a German claim one British patrol vessel had been sunk and another damaged.

The Admiralty announced today that the British naval trawler Peridot struck a German mine and sank yesterday with no loss of life.

Shipping Halted.

AMSTERDAM, March 16 — (CP-Havas).—The newspaper De Telegraaf reported today that the naval general staff has ordered Netherlands shipping companies to suspend all navigation until further notice.

The order, De Telegraaf said, was due to the dangers threatening shipping.

Nazis Working Atheism On Pole Priests

VATICAN CITY, March 16.—(CP)—Imprisonment of 45 Polish, Czech and Austrian priests in German concentration camps has been reported to Pope Pius, the Polish Embassy to the Holy See announced today.

The Pope received the report before his conference last week-end with Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop of Germany and the Embassy believes the Pope referred to it.

August Cardinal Hlond, Primate of Poland, in another report says Soviet authorities in Russian-occupied Poland have discouraged the killing of priests in favor of more subtle and "scientific" methods of instilling atheism.

Some violence still exists, the statement said, but most instances are to the excesses of local communists, lasting only until the secret police take control.

Hold Hired Man After Attack On Aged Farmer

BOWMANVILLE, Ont., March 16—(CP).—William Hayes, 70, Newcastle district farmer, was still unconscious at hospital here today, where he was brought yesterday following a fight on his farm. His condition was described as critical.

Budd Eddy, 25, farmhand, was taken into custody for questioning and then to the hospital for treatment for frozen feet. Police said they understood there was a fight between Eddy and Hayes.

Hayes was found, covered with blood and semi-conscious, on his kitchen floor, a short time after his hired man, Harold Eddy, 25, staggered barefoot across the snow to George Graham's home, two miles away, and told an incoherent story of a quarrel with his employer.

Graham became suspicous and drove to the Hayes home, picking up

Woman's Strategy Foils Holdup

LONDON, Ont., March 16—(CP).—Two bandits, one of them holding what appeared to be a revolver, fled from the grocery store of Mrs. D. J. Ross, Hamilton Road, last night when she cried "Come on in and help" to an imaginary person in the living room adjoining the store.

Mrs. Ross said the men came into her store late last night and one of them asked for cigarettes. As she turned to get the cigarettes, she was told the visit was a holdup. She then made her outcry and the men turned and fled.

Both bandits, unmasked, were described as of medium height and wore dark overcoats and masks.

Police believe the pair were the men who have been sought for a holdup a few blocks away.

Last Minute News Flashes

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia — (CP-Havas). — Two Austrian refugees and a Yugoslav priest were believed to-day to have been slain by German Gestapo agents on the Yugoslav-Reich border near Maribor on Wednesday night. Earlier reports had said only one man was killed in the affray, which occurred when a Nazi spy lured the three men within rifle range of German territory.

French Arms Wizard Dautry Races Time To Be Ready For Great Spring Drive

PARIS, March 16—(AP)—"Little man with the big brain" trots into the Ministry of Munitions every dawn, racing against spring and the chance of a big western front offensive.

His hurried look comes from the fact that it costs $2,000 a minute to put a French infantry regiment into attack, and he is responsible for keeping France's munition factories at the 24-hour-a-day pace producing the gunpowder and shells that make up much of the $2,000

It is the same hurried look with which he crammed an 18-month railroad construction job into three months for the Allies 1818 big push, and to-day Armament Minister Raoul Dautry, 59-year-old bundle of energy, is stil lrated as one of the best organizers on the scene.

French leaders say he is getting results despite years of labor troubles, political bonfires which sapped industrial output and the short time he has been at the job

Irish Airs To Liven French Towns As War Units Honor St. Patrick

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, March 16 — (CP-Reuters). — Many Irishmen who are out here in the British Expeditionary Force—including the Commander-in-Chief, General Viscount Gort, and the next senior officer, Lieut.-General Sir John Dill—celebrate St. Patrick's Day to-morrow.

Most of them will be wearing the shamrocks sent out especially from their own country. In three all-Irish units—the Royal Irish Fusiliers, the Royal Ulster Rifles, and the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers — there will be special parades at which shamrock will be handed every man.

The exigencies of the war have to be considered, but the Irish Fusiliers have drawn up a full program for to-morrow's celebration. It begins at seven o'clock in the morning, when St. Patrick's Day will be heralded by Irish pipers. They will march around the billets of the village in which this battalion is at present accommodated, playing traditional airs.

Normally there would be drummers as well as pipers for this cheerful reveille. But there will be no drummers to-morrow.

Out of regard for the French civilian population, it has been decided that drums would be too noisy for Palm Sunday.

At five minutes past 10 the battalion will parade, and Sir John Dill will travel from his corps headquarters and arrive on the parade ground for the purpose of giving away shamrocks.

At 10.45 there will be a Mass in the open air. Battalion drums will be piled to form an altar.

One pint of beer will be given to

Nazi Ship Losses Exceed British For Week

LONDON, March 16—(CP)—Germany lost 16,317 tons of merchant shipping in the week ending March 15 as against 10,798 lost by Great Britain due to enemy action.

The 7,414-ton German liner La Coruna was scuttled in Northern waters when intercepted by Allied patrols. The 3,303-ton Eschersheim was sunk in European water, while the 5,600-ton Hannover was captured by the Royal Navy after her crew had failed in an attempt to scuttle her.

In addition to the 10,798 tons lost by Britain due to enemy action, two ships totalling 7,678 tons were lost in ordinary marine accidents, bringing the week's total diminuation of the Empire's 20,000,000-ton merchant fleet to 18,476 tons.

When the captured Hannover is added to Britain's tonnage, however,

See Milk Price Rise To Meet High Feed Cost

OTTAWA, Mar. 16 — (Staff). — If the price of fluid milk is not to be sharply increased in the cities, action will have to be taken to keep down the price of mill feeds to the farmers, the Live Stock Feedstuffs Committee of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board was told yesterday by a deputation which represented the producers section of the National Dairy Council and the Standing Joint Dairy Breeds Committee.

Since the war, it was explained, the mill feeds that farmers now buy to provide a properly balanced diet for their cows, have risen sharply in price, but there has been no change in the amount of money the farmers receive for their milk.

In order to keep the price of flour down, it was stated, the burden was passed on to the farmers through increased costs of bran and

German Victory Dooms Scandinavia Says Sinclair Scoring War Stand

MANCHESTER, March 16.—(CP).—Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, in a speech here to-day said that if Winston Churchill had been First Lord of the Admiralty "a few months earlier when we were loudly demanding it, that fine ship the Royal Oak and her gallant crew would never have been lost in Scapa Flow."

Recalling that Mr. Churchill and Anthony Eden, Dominions secretary, were "only admitted to the government on the day war was declared," Sir Archibald said: "Six months of Mr. Churchill before the war would have been six nails in Hitler's coffin. But he was not a yes-man, so they would not have him until they were forced to have him."

The battleship Royal Oak was sunk Oct. 14 with a loss of 786 men when a German submarine penetrated the defences of the Scapa Flow sea naval base off Northern Scotland.

The Liberal Leader criticized the attitude of Sweden and Norway during the Finnish-Soviet war, but said:

"The Swedish Government behaved much as our Government did at Munich, but we Liberals are entitled to record our condemnation of this fresh betrayal of democracy.

"The freedom and independence of Sweden and Norway are bound up with the fortunes of France and Great Britain."

If Germany defeats the Allies, he said, Scandinavia will either be divided between Germany and the Soviet Union or will become the theatre of a merciless war between them. International law, treaties, pacts of non-aggression and neutrality, he said, will have no validity for Sweden and Norway if Germany wins.

Rogers Denies Aide Profited By Patronage

LINDSAY, March 16.—There was not a shadow of truth in charges of Col. George Drew that Hon. Norman Rogers' private secretary, A. G. MacLachlan, had profited at patronage, the Defence Minister declared last night in a statement read to a Liberal meeting here

Mr. Rogers' statement follows:

"Last week I stated at Saint John, N.B, that Dr. Manion had not yet provided a single specific instance of patronage and profiteering since the outbreak of war Referring to that statement in a speech in Toronto last night, Colonel Drew charged that a War Supply Board contract for lumber for the Defense Department had been let as recently as Nov. 24, 1939, to a firm in Kingston in which the chief interest was held by my private secretary. Mr A. G MacLachlan. Colonel Drew described this as evidence of patronage and profiteering in the war effort of Canada. This statement of Colonel Drew is as deliberately misleading as other charges he has made in the course of the present campaign.

'In the first place, the contract for lumber could only be described as patronage or favoritism if I, as Minister of National Defense, had used my official position to obtain the contract for the MacLachlan firm. There is not a shadow of truth in any such suggestion I have never intervened, at any time, to obtain business for this firm. It is equally true that Mr. MacLachlan has never used his official position to obtain business for this firm.

Said on Competitive Basis.

"The particular contract to which Colonel Drew refers was placed by the War Supply Board, which is a non-partisan agency having no connection with the Department of National Defense The War Supply Board in purchasing lumber for the Kingston area followed its usual practice of calling for tenders without regard for any political considerations. The particular contract obtained by the MacLachlan firm was received on a strictly competitive basis with other firms. It is nothing less than a wilful perversion of truth to imply, as Colonel Drew does, that there is even the slightest suggestion of patronage or profiteering in such a transaction.

"When Mr. MacLachlan joined me as secretary in October, 1935, he withdrew from active direction of the lumber company though his savings were invested in the business"

"Subsequently, and up to the outbreak of war, I am informed that any orders obtained by the firm from the Dominion Government were secured on a competitive basis or in accordance with the procedure normally followed by the Department of National Defence under both Conservative and Liberal Administrations in the purchase of lumber for the Kingston area. I have never intervened in its behalf, nor would it ever enter my mind to do so. Furthermore, Colonel Drew has not said, although he must have been fully aware of the fact, that the MacLachlan firm was formed in 1927 and was actively engaged in business from that time forward. It did not come into existence, as Colonel Drew implies, when the present Government came into power in 1935.

"I challenge Dr. Manion, or Colonel Drew, again to provide a single specific case where there has been patronage or profitering in the Canadian war effort."

The possibility of Premier Hepburn and Col. Drew being selected by Dr. Manion as members of the Cabinet in his National Government "with Maurice Duplessis lurking in the background" was suggested by Mr. Rogers, who spoke in the interests of Bruce McNevin, Victoria and Haliburton candidate.

In this connection, the Minister charged that Dr. Manion's organization in Quebec was being assisted by former Duplessis followers.

Declaring that the National Government was a "leap in the dark," Mr. Rogers stated that "the Liberal Party puts to you the alternative which is going to mean far more than any makeshift imitation of National Government in the fullest sense of the word.

"Our one concern has been and will continue to be to make this war effort entirely worthy of the Canadian people, a task which we approach with the greatest sense of national responsibility," he added.

Canada entered the war united, Mr. Rogers asserted, contrasting this situation with the bitterness in South Africa where division of opinion on participation in the war was rife, and declaring that this was accomplished by the understanding and tolerance of the Liberal Party exemplified by Prime Minister King and Rt. Hon. Ernest Lapointe.

Canadian industrial production has just completed one of the longest uninterrupted advances in history. For the past eleven months, industrial output has increased sharply to a level which, in January, was the highest level on record with the exception of January, 1929, and 23 per cent. above a year ago.

This high level of industrial activity is a result of only preliminary adjustments from a peace-time to a war-time basis. As yet actual war contracts have been small in comparison with orders placed in the previous war period. Total Canadian war contracts issued to date are not much in excess of $100 million, whereas in the previous war the Imperial Munitions Board alone purchased $1,000 millions of munitions in Canada. When the adjustment of Canadian industry from peace to war conditions is completed and our war efforts are finally accelerated, these industrial gains, which now appear of substantial portions, will be far surpassed.

In the recent past, Canadian industrial output has been a reflection of American conditions. The sharp decline of 1937-1938 in United States industrial output found its counterpart in a decline in Canadian industrial activity.

This relationship no longer exists. The Canadian economy is now on an independent war basis. Canadian industry is now expanding not only to meet the insatiable demands of war, but also to provide for that part of the domestic market which has been cut off from its former sources of supply.

This potential demand defies statistical analysis. However, the prospects of this potential expansion are indicated by the fact that the Canadian industrial machine, in 1915-1917, then about one-third its present size, more than doubled the value of its output. The munitions business alone added $1 billion to the national income.

The Canadian industrial problem has changed from one of finding markets for our goods to one of increasing industrial plant and equipment to provide for the Dominion's gigantic war effort. The swings of the American business cycle, long the predominant factor in our industrial output, can now only have a minor effect, and just as the previous war period saw the birth of Canada as an industrial nation, so it is likely that the current war period will change Canada from a young industrial nation to one of the leading industrial nations of the world.

Battalion.

Captain Ullman, who lives on an island at Thames Ditton, had been "very active" in obtaining orders and placing business in the Midlands area, the Labor member charged. He said he was informed Captain Ullman had stated he had considerable influence with the ministry of supply, that he could get "inquiries" whereas other persons could not.

Captain Ullman, speaking to newsmen last night, denied Mr. Morrison's charges. "I have consulted my solicitor regarding the matter," he said. "I cannot imagine the source of Mr. Morrison's information. This is a terrific blow to me but I have nothing to fear. I have done nothing wrong, nothing whatever."

Those 3 Dismissals

The debate began when Mr. Morrison challenged Mr. Burgin to state publicly his reasons for dismissal of three ministry employees, released without explanation March 5. The men were Captain Cecil Davis, former Mayor of Deal, and David and Robert Behar, brothers. The Behars last night demanded that they be given a "plain declaration of the reasons" for their dismissal.

Of Captain Ullman, who is contract manager for the Anglo-British Electric Company, Mr. Burgin said he knew him as a man of undoubted integrity. Captain Ullman had performed some service for the ministry by bringing attention to matters not remotely connected with matters the members were discussing.

The minister said Captain Ullman had visited the ministry two or three times since the outbreak of war but not as an intermediary for any manufacturer or firm. He had called on behalf of a well-known firm which had been negotiating with the ministry for a contract to supply trench mortar munitions wanted in considerable numbers.

Mr. Burgin said he phoned Woolwich arsenal and gave Captain Ullman his visiting card, authorizing him to attend an exhibition of a trench mortar bomb at Savoy Hill House, which houses the ministry. The minister also telephoned the officer in charge.

He had not seen Captain Ullman since that date, Mr. Burgin declared. So far as he knew, the contract for trench mortar munitions did not go through the firm in question. If Captain Ullman had been engaged as an intermediary in the Midlands, as Mr. Morrison charged, claiming to have influence with the ministry, Captain Ullman had been doing something improper, something not recognized by the ministry. Captain Ullman had not influence with the ministry whatever and no authority to do what Mr. Morrison alleged.

Carry Business.

The House would see how warily the Ministry had to walk. Mr. Burgin did not want to have anything to do with anybody who was undesirable. He wanted to extend production in the greatest possible decree at the fastest possible rate.

A member interjected: "Why is it if the visiting card given Ullman gave him access to the exhibition it should say he should have access to the Ministry?"

Mr. Burgin replied: "I cannot tell. My recollection is what I put on the card was for the express purpose of securing what was very desirable—that Ullman should have access to see an article of which we were in need. I do not recollect the actual words. They were written in blue pencil on the back."

Mr. Morrison said: "My information is that the message on the back of the card is that he was to have access to the Minister. The Minister is not quite clear of what he wrote on the back of the card. May I put this—that the Ministers have certain spheres of action and officers of the Department have another.

"It is for officers of the Departments to carry out executive orders. Does Mr. Burgin not think it would be better if the gentleman is to have authority to visit a certain place that he should do it on an official document and not on a visiting card of a Ministerial head."

"Does not the Minister think it exceedingly dangerous that people who may be engaged on business for outside departments should be able to carry about a visiting card of a Minister?" Mr. Morrison continued.

"I think I do," replied Mr. Burgin. "I think it is a great pity, but I was dealing with a man whom I have known for a long time and whom I believed to be in every way reputable and with whom I was dealing as a representative of his own employers. "Perhaps it was careless to have given him my visiting card.

"My idea was that the card should have been handed, I think, to Major Scrutton, who was in charge of the exhibition at the other end. Mr. Morrison has debited to this man activities quite unknown to me and quite foreign to anything I know of him. I have known the man for a long period of years. I believe him to be of absolute and undoubted integrity."

London's morning newspapers criticized the Ministry sharply. The Daily Telegraph said it was "essential that the Ministry should not only be free from irregularity in methods but should be above suspicion in the public mind."

The Daily Mirror called on Mr. Burgin's resignation, saying: "When mistakes of this order are discovered the better thing to do for the Minister who failed to discover them is to resign."

The News Chronicle attacked the "vicious system that tends to wide-scale corruption and to undermine public confidence in the whole war administration."

Next came a big chance. Foch wanted a strategic railway built to aid a huge allied push in 1918. Foch asked the army engineers. They said it would take 18 months.

Foch asked Dautry. "I can do better than that," he said, and did. The railway was ready in three months. Foch decorated the organizer at the front in July, 1918

The Kahika asked any ship available to "render immediate assistance." Globe said the nearest ship was 90 miles away.

Lloyd's register lists the Kahika as a vessel of 1,172 gross tons, 230 feet long.

The message was intercepted at 6.10 a.m. E.S.T.

An SOS asking for immediate assistance was picked up by the Matson passenger liner Monterey, enroute from Auckland, N.Z., to Sydney, Australia, and relayed to Globe wireless.

There was no information immediately available on how many persons were aboard the Kahika or if it carried any passengers.

Civic Defence Body.

STOCKHOLM — (CP-Havas). — Lieut.-General O. G. Thornell, Chief of the Swedish General Staff, to-day proposed to the government that a civic defence organization be created here to prevent the enemy dropping parachutists behind the lines, either for a rear attack or for espionage, as was done in Finland.

Norway Protests

OSLO — (AP). — Norway protested to Germany to-day against the sinking of the Norwegian steamship Nidarholm off Ireland on February 12 "without examination and without permitting the ship's papers to be taken into security."

The protest asked that steps be taken against the submarine commander and reserved the right to claim compensation.

No German

With spring only a few days off, the general arrangement of German troops remains what it was at the end of last autumn, according to French military sources.

During the intervening three months German training centres have been busy and new divisions have been created in central Germany. A few of these divisions moved forward to take their place behind the German forces which have not changed their location.

Practically the same number of large units are stationed behind the Belgian and Netherlands frontiers as spent the winter there. Also there is no change in the strength of the forces facing Switzerland or those manning the westwall.

Freed To Wed, Girl Missing

SUDBURY, March 16 — (CP). — Chief L. S. Evans asked for a remand until Monday in the case of Lillian Murphy, 18-year-old Ottawa girl, in police court Friday, when she failed to appear to answer a charge of vagrancy preferred last Friday.

The charge was laid when the girl was apprehended by police as she wandered around an Elm Street business block after 5 o'clock in the morning, ostensibly with the intention of seeking lodgings.

In court she said she was planning to be married to a miner at Creighton Mine and asked for the leniency of the court to keep the appointment.

Magistrate J. S. McKessock remanded her for one week to appear in court with a marriage certificate He told her a marriage license would not be sufficient proof of an intention to wed. Chief Evans asked for the remand to give the police an opportunity to find the vagrant or the bride.

Bone Rally Is Held In Roseneath Hall

ROSENEATH, March 16—(ENS). —A meeting in the interest of Jamieson Bone, National candidate in Northumberland, was held in Thursday night in the Orange Hall.

With Mr. Bone on the platform were Roy Wilmot and Fred Richardson of Cobourg; Herman Morrow of Murray township, Warden of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham; Roy Dodge, reeve of Cobourg and president of the Conservative party for the riding, and Wilbert Davey, Conservative organizer for Hamilton township. James Webb, president of Alnwick Conservative Association, presided.

Beavers Orchestra supplied musical numbers before the speeches, and afterward furnished music for dancing when the political gathering merged into a social gathering. Refreshments were served by the ladies.

Secretary of State in the German Transport Ministry, was announced officially to-day. The German news agency said the resignation was connected with "changes of an internal nature and measures for reorganization of the Ministry of Communications and Transport."

(The Berlin correspondent of the Swiss newspaper Neue Zurcher Zeitung last week forecast the resignation of Dr. Julius Dorpmueller, German trans ort minister, as result of chaos in the German railway system since the war began.)

Koenigs had been in the Transport Ministry 10 years.

Nickel Heads Silent

NEW YORK, March 16—(CP).—Officials of the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., today refused to comment on the future of their property in Northern Finland now that the Russian-Finnish hostilities have ceased.

(A report from Moscow today said Russia is expected now to make a successful bid for part of the exports of the nickel mines in the Petsamo area which remains Finnish under the Russian-Finnish peace terms).

New Canadian

HALIFAX, March 16 — (CP). — County Court Judge H. W. Sangster said at a naturalization hearing yesterday he would recommend "with pleasure" that the application of Hans Gustav Plath, 40-year-old member of the German navy in the first Great War, be granted.

Plath, a native of Kiel, came to Canada in 1926 and settled in Halifax county. His parents, two sisters and a brother, still live in Germany but he has not heard from them for nearly three years.

Speeder Fined $10

CAMPBELLFORD, March 16. — Only one traffic case was dealt with by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., of Peterborough, who presided here Friday. Charge with exceeding the speed limit on No. 30 Highway, Owen Hawkey was found guilty on his written plea and assessed $10 and $4.20 costs.

A domestic relations case slated for hearing was adjourned for two weeks.

THE BIGGEST LAUGH

Hon. Leopold Macaulay got the biggest laught of the evening Thursday night at the National Government rally when he turned to Lt.-Col. Ackerman, seated behind him on the platform and suddenly asked him "And what did you call your gang, Charlie?" The speaker had been developing the point that third party groups were concentrating on the war rather than on economic arguments in this election and he named the CCF, Social Creditors and other groups before he shot his question at Col. Ackerman who was, of course, the Reconstruction candidate here in the 1935 election.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM JOHN PICKENS

HASTINGS, March 16—(ENS)— The death of William John Pickens occurred at Cleveland, Ohio on Thursday. The late Mr. Pickens who was in his 80th year was born in Percy township. In 1896 he left for Cleveland where he has since resided. During that time he had made many visits to his old home where his chief delight was to always meet his old friends and relatives.

Surviving him are his brother, Joseph Pickens of Hastings and his sister, Mrs. Lucy Richardson of Laurel, Ontario.

The funeral will be held on Monday, March 18th, the remains arriving from Cleveland on the early morning train. Interment will be in the Trent Valley cemetery.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins By Rev. E. R. James

THE KING'S VISIT TO HIS CAPITAL.

"Jesus beheld the city and wept over it. Now they are hid from thine eyes."—St. Luke 19, 40, 42.

Every instructed Christian is familiar with this story. The King is on His triumphal entry into His City, the Holy City, with multitudes crying, "Blessed is the King that cometh in the Name of the Lord."

"Jesus beheld the City"; looked upon it with piercing eye is the meaning the Greek word. It is the City of His people. The City which had the highest of all privileges to be the centre of the divine revelation that Jehovah is the one, only, living God. This was the great deposit the Jews received and their contribution to the world.

Further in due time, after centuries of preparation, He sent His only begotten Son to visit His people. He became Man that He might sympathize and understand man. But above all He came to show men what God is like. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father," is His constant claim. But they did not recognize Him. "He came unto His own and His own received Him not." A few simple and devout souls are thrilled and gripped by His sweetness, gentleness and sympathy. They loved Him. He made His human appeal to them and they responded. But the mass of the teachers and leaders rejected Him.

"He wept over the City." It was a loud lamentation characteristic of the Jew. How the people must have marvelled. Then with prophetic vision He foretells the awful disaster and calamity which must come upon the City and the people because of their spiritual blindness.

"Now they are hid from thine eyes" is His own verdict which He uttered with breaking heart, for He loved His people. Did He not say to the Samaritan woman, "Salvation is of the Jews?" It was impossible for them to see and understand and recognize Him. The religious leaders had their own mental image of God. It filled their imaginations that when they saw Him they despised Him. They beheld the only begotten of the Father, the express image of God, the perfect likeness of God, and they did not recognize Him. And they were deeply religious. So they went to their own place because of their spiritual blindness.

Are we in a similar danger? Spiritual eyes are given to see spiritual things. If we do not use them they will die of non-use—a physical and spiritual law.

A master of the subject reminds us that the light will not force itself on our consciousness. It stimulates the nervous tissues, but if you will not open your eyes the light will not enter. Light needs your co-operation.

This light comes to every man. There is no "secret school of wisdom" in the Christian religion. To have fellowship with the light is the common birthright of every man or woman. The humblest can rise to great heights in the knowledge of the truth by the revealing power of the Holy Spirit. They can reproduce Christ in their lives so that their friends and neighbors can bear witness. They will see something of His sweetness, unselfishness, patience and beauty and will testify that God hath done great things for them.

Are you strengthening and developing your spiritual life by prayer, meditation, and study of the Word of God? Are you praying that the Holy Spirit may open your eyes so that you may testify that the Holy Spirit has taken of the things of Christ and shown them to you? It must be your own personal experience that the Spirit of truth has glorified the Christ to you. It is the proof to your own soul that "These things are not hid from your eyes."

WE BEHELD HIS GLORY, THE GLORY AS OF THE ONLY BEGOTTEN OF THE FATHER, FULL OF GRACE AND TRUTH.

Irish Concert Is Success At Lakefield

LAKEFIELD, March 16—(ENS)—A real Irish atmosphere pervaded the Sunday school room of the Lakefield United Church Tuesday evening when Group B of the Women's Association presented their annual St. Patrick's concert.

The curtains were gaily decorated with St. Patrick's motifs and crepe paper. The curtain attendants, Kenneth Carveth and Jamie Hull, each looked the part of St. Patrick with green ties, a shamrock in the lapel of their frock coats and the added caster hat.

The orchestra, composed of Mrs. Dora MacMillan, autoharp; Mrs. H. C. Moore, piano; John Carveth, guitar; Rev. G. F. Kelly, cornet; Kenneth Carveth, harmonica and G. W. Payne, violin, rendered a medley of old time music.

Miss Jean Spence and Master David Grylls, delighted the audience with their piano duet, "Mardi."

A group of Mission Band girls composed of Muereta Hull, Joan Pue, Audrey Patterson Jean Miller, Betty Lake, Lillian Calberry, Pauline Butcher and Joan Kelly gave a ribbon drill. Each girl was dressed in white with sashes of orange and yellow. The accompanist on the piano was Doreen Kelly.

"Erin" and "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" were two much appreciated solos given by Mrs. J. R. Hull. Jean Miller's reading "In the Usual Way" was given in Jean' own inimitable manner.

Rev. G. F. Kelly gave as his number two appropriate solos "The Trumpeter" and "The Little Irish Girl." Both he and Mrs. Hull were accompanied by Mrs. H. E. Moore.

A pleasing piano duet was played by the Misses Lois Yale and Helen Kelly, "King of the Forest" by Liebling was the title of their number. A guitar duet by Wellie Garbutt and John Carveth brought an encore.

The male chorus, with Rev. G. F. Kelly and Morley Crowe, Robert Spence, Clayton Bullock, Donald Hendren, Ralph Jackman, Harry Spence, Arnold Jackman, Bob McCracken, Don. Fry and Geo. Tanner sang "Heroes and Gentlemen." Mrs. C. S. Tanner played for this number. A group of songs were sung by Miss Cora Charlton and much enjoyed. Accompanist was Mis Mary McKercher. A selection by the orchestra brought this part of the program to a close.

Rev. G. F. Kelly tendered all those who made the program so successful a hearty vote of thanks. While the players were preparing for their play a short sing-song was enjoyed.

An Irish Play

"Boosting Bridget" was the title of the one-act comedy with all parts well taken by Mrs. W. J. Charlton, Mrs. J. R. Hull. Miss Marion Payne, Mrs. Herbert Kemp, Mrs. Cutter Hastings, Mrs. Theo Crawford, Mrs. George Spence and Mrs. C. S. Tanner.

The story of making Bridget, an Irish maid, into and up and coming society lady, the difficulties experienced especially when two callers upset a friendly afternoon tea brought forth much laughter from the attentive audience.

The success of the evening was due to the untiring efforts of the leaders of the group, Mesdames C. S. Tanner, J. R. Hull and George Spence.

Prison Worker To Visit Peterboro

The citizens of Peterborough are to be given the privilege of seeing and hearing a man with a very interesting and varied personality. Arrangements have been completed for a three day visit to Peterborough of Envoy J. Stanley Sheppard, who is attached to the prison work of the Salvation Army in New York city. He has been for many years, attached to Sing Sing prison and is known throughout the entire United States as an outstanding lecturer on men and boys social welfare. He is also an outstanding musician having been solo cornetist for many years in the National Staff Band. His coming to Peterborough will be of great interest to the many service clubs who will be glad of hearing this man of authority speak from his volumes of experience. Envoy Sheppard's visit to Peterborough is being sponsored by the Temple Band and during the course of his visit will preside at their annual Spring musical festival.

Highlights Of S.S. Lesson

CALVARY—TRIUMPH THROUGH SACRIFICE

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 17 is Matthew 26:57-27:56, the Golden Text being Isaiah 53:3, "He was despised, and rejected of men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief.")

AFTER JUDAS' betrayal of Jesus in Gethsemane, the Lord was bound and taken first to Annas, the high priest, Caiaphas' father-in-law. There is no account in the gospels of what transpired there. Then He was taken to Caiaphas. This man was head of the Sanhedrin, the highest court in Israel, composed of 70 Jewish men, all over 40 years of age, all scholarly in their attainments and of unblemished reputation.

These men were resolved that Christ should die, but they made a semblance of trying Him, producing false witnesses, one of whom said Jesus had said, "I am able to destroy the temple of God, and to build it in three days," a thing Jesus had not said.

The high priest asked Jesus if this were true and He held His peace, so Caiaphas asked Him, "I abjure thee, by the Living God, that thou tell us whether thou be the Christ, the Son of God." Jesus answered, "Thou hast said: nevertheless, I say unto you, Hereafter shall ye see the Son of man sitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven."

Guilty of Death

Then the high priest rent his clothes, saying, "He hath spoken blasphemy; what further need have we of witnesses? behold, ye have heard His blasphemy." The others answered, "He is guilty of death." These men then spit in His face and buffeted Him, the story says, others smiting Him with palms of their hands. It was at this time that someone asked Peter if he was not on of Christ's companions and he denied it. Three time was he asked this question, and thrice did he deny his Lord, and at the third denial the cock crowed as Jesus had said.

The next morning they took the Master to Pontius Pilate, the governor, because only he could condemn to death. In the meantime, Judas had repented of his betrayal of his Lord. He had not spent the 30 pieces of silver, so he took them to the high priests and offered them back, saying, "I have sinned in that I have betrayed the innocent blood." But they answered, "What is that to us?" and refused to take it. Judas thereupon threw the money down and went out and hanged himself. The priests did not know what to do with his blood money, and finally used it to buy a "potter's field"—a place where the very poor could be buried. To this day the burial place of the outcast is called "potter's field."

Pilate questioned Jesus, and at last admitted that he could find no fault with Him. At the feast of the passover, it was the custom for the governor to release a prisoner. Now there was a prisoner named Barrabas, a criminal, and Pilate asked the people if they wanted Jesus released or Barrabas, for he found Jesus innocent of any crime, and wanted to release Him, but feared to anger the people. They cared nothing for Barrabas, and demanded that Jesus be crucified.

Pilate's Wife Has Dream

Pilate's wife sent word to him that he should have nothing to do with condemning Jesus, as He was righteous, as she had been warned in a dream. But even with this warning, Pilate had not the courage to release Him. All he did was to publicly wash his hands to signify that he would have nothing to do with the death of this innocent person. "I am innocent of the blood of this just person, see to it," he said. And the multitude roared, "His blood be on us, and on our children."

So Jesus was led away and beaten. The soldiers of the governor took His clothes away and mockingly dressed Him in a scarlet robe, platted a crown of thorns which they put on His head, and a reed in His right hand, bowing before Him in derision, they cried, "Hail, King of the Jews," and they beat Him and otherwise abused our Lord. Taking away the scarlet robe, they gave Him His own clothes and led Him away to be crucified.

It is almost more than we can bear to think of these last hours of Jesus, the cruelty which He bore patiently for our sakes; the agony of that dreadful death which He suffered as a man, His disciples all had forsaken Him, when He asked for water they gave Him vinegar mingled with gall. Over His head on the cross was nailed the legend, "This is Jesus the King of the Jews," in mockery, of course. They taunted Him for not saving Himself, but after His death, when the earth grew dark and there was an earthquake, they became afraid and ran away, for they thought "Truly this was the Son of God."

None of the apostles seems to have been preesnt at the crucifixion, but Jesus' mother, Mary Magdalen and Mary, mother of James and Joseph, were there, grieving, and they were the first at the tomb in the morning, for the evening after Jesus' death a rich man, named Joseph, took the body, wrapped it in clean linen, and put it in his own newly-made tomb, rolling a rock against the opening.

Morning Prayer

Dear Lord, 'tis morning, and I pray
Just for Thy keeping all the day,
So may Thy love my whole life fill
That I to none shall render ill;
And I to help may ready be
Whene'er a needy one I see.
So guard my lips that they may speak
Words that are true and pure and meek,
Yet in my heart set up Thy throne
That boldly I Thy name may own.
All day, while various things I see,
Still may my heart be following Thee;
While hand and thought are busy here,
Still keep my vision pure and clear.
Lord, it is morning, keep, I pray,
—Jean Jackson.

Calvary—Triumph Through Sacrifice ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 26:57-27:56

The morning after Jesus was betrayed by Judas, the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Him to put Him to death, and they bound Him and delivered Him to Pontius Pilate, the governor.

In the meantime Judas, when he saw Christ condemned, repented, brought the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and elders, confessing, "I have sinned," and then went out and hanged himself.

Pilate questioned the Lord but could find no fault with Him, and told the populace, but they cried, "Crucify Him, crucify Him!" Pilate then washed his hands before them to show that he was innocent of His death.

The soldiers then took Jesus, put a scarlet robe on Him, a crown of thorns on His head and a reed in His hand, and mocked Him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!"

An Unbroken People

Cabled reports from Finland give evidence of grief, but not of despair. They admit conference-table defeat, but at once they speak of their ability now or any time in the future to defend themselves.

One reads of a calm and well-ordered view which sees the problems of the immediate present taking precedence over the wailings of lost lands.

Finland has to draw in her boundaries. They were not large before; they will be less in future. There are 460,000 people for whom new homes must be found, and a good deal of the surface of Finland is rock bound. Those 460,000 people will move because they do not desire to remain in the territory which will in future come directly and entirely under the control of Russia.

For the first time in 105 nights Helsinki had the lights turned, automobiles were allowed to run with their head-lights going; there were lights in the store windows, and people were staying out later than usual.

What it will cost Finland to repair the damage of war cannot be estimated. If there had been justice as well as force in the terms of peace the bill would have been sent to Russia for payment, but Russia will pay nothing.

In all the comment which appears in Finland there is that same unbroken spirit which kept itself so gloriously to the front during the dark days of war. They are a hard-pressed and a battered people, and so many of them are homeless. But their spirit has not been broken. If there are funds in existence which were raised for the assistance of Finland in war they might well now be devoted to the serious business of giving Finland another start. We doubt if contributors would desire to have their money returned because the war is over.

They Were All Adults

On February 15 a motor car drove into the side of a railway train at a level crossing. One man of 30 years was killed and so was another of 33, and as usual where there is an accident connected with a railway the coroner conducted an inquest to determine the cause.

There were two other men in the car, one 50, the other 45, and they were able to give evidence and tell a good deal about the fatal trip.

There was something else in the car, a 26-ounce bottle of whiskey, three-quarters emptied. That too played its part in the evidence.

There was no difficulty in establishing what had taken place. The report speaks of it as having been a drinking party in which all four participated, including the man who drove the car. They were not wild youths out for the night, but men of 30, 33, 45 and 50; all of them adults who knew what they were about. It was their own selection regarding how to go about having a good time. They were all of them old enough to know several pertinent facts:

(1) That it is against the law to have a bottle of whiskey opened in a car, or to be drinking in a car;

(2) It is against the law for the driver of a car to partake of liquor while driving;

(3) They would have seen reports in papers dozens of times telling of what happened to other people who mixed their drinking and car driving.

The whole thing was so deliberate that one can correctly come to the conclusion that the party had deliberately set out looking for trouble.

An Acre Of Land

An acre of land varies in value depending on where it is located. In the cities of Ontario there are 70,522 acres within the various boundary lines, and the total assessment is placed at $679,476,592, and that in turn gives an average value of $9,634.95 for the acre of land which happens to be within the city limits. The figure is undoubtedly driven up by the extremely high value of business property in the congested areas of some of our larger cities.

When your acre of land happens to be situated in a town the price of it comes down. Quite decidedly so. It runs from $408 to $629, and the average for the province is $498.

When the acre happens to find itself in villages the assessed value takes another drop and brings the village average to $204 per acre.

And then when the acre finds itself located in the country, where nearly all of our acres are located, the value goes down very rapidly and finds resting place at $21.

In Toronto there are 50.1 persons on each assessed acre of ground, and although it is difficult to explain that .1 individual we must respect it because the official records make it read that way. Ottawa has almost the same density of population with 49.8 persons per acre. In Peterborough we have 10.4. But the most outstanding feature is the difference in the price of an acre of land —from $21 in counties and districts to $9,634.95 in cities.

The Record Of Two Cities

St. Catharines has a tax rate of 37 mills for 1940, and that is a reduction of 6½ mills during the last two years. The St. Catharines Standard considers that to be about the best advertisement the city could receive, and we are not inclined to dispute the point, but it indicates that two years ago the tax rate was 43½ mills. The Standard is not inclined to make wide comparisons, but confines its rejoicing to the general statement that "there isn't a municipality in Ontario in sounder or stronger financial position than is this city."

The Department of Municipal Affairs issues each year a complete statement of the affairs of municipalities; in fact we regard it as the most complete government report issued and the easiest to understand. St. Catharines is given a population of 27,647, while Peterborough is given 23,984. Our present population is higher than that, but the government review is based on the year 1938. Possibly St. Catharines is also larger today than the given figures indicate.

By way of assessment there is some similarity as shown in these figures:

Land—
St. Catharines	$7,031,826
Peterborough	5,573,093
Buildings—
St. Catharines	$14,195,331
Peterborough	13,474,020
Business—
St. Catharines	$2,439,069
Peterborough	2,495,425

Per capita assessment in St. Catharines is $858 and in Peterborough $903. The total tax levy in St. Catharines on a per capita basis is given as $42.15, while in Peterborough it is $36.20.

The percentage of population on relief in St. Catharines is placed at 10.3 per cent., while in Peterborough the figure is given as 6.9 per cent. The payment of taxes gives St. Catharines a rating of 86.3 per cent. on the 1938 levy, while in Peterborough the figure used is 90.7. Per capita tax arrears in St. Catharines were 13.86, and in Peterborough 8.02. Property acquired at tax sales in St. Catharines is given as $257,619, and in Peterborough $11,356. Reserves against nonpayment of taxes in St. Catharines amount to $8,649, while in Peterborough the corresponding figure is $64,410.

Peterborough has not been able to make a spectacular showing by dropping its tax rate as much as 6½ mills in the course of two years. Here the process has been gradual and the decrease between 1930 and 1940 has amounted to 6.2 mills. It has come about this way:

1930	39.2	1936	37.4
1931	39.0	1937	36.4
1932	37.6	1938	35.0
1933	37.6	1939	34.5
1934	37.6	1940	33.0
1935	37.5

It was not easy to keep the tax rate from increasing in the years when relief expenditure was at its peak. These three years show what relief was actually costing the city; not the total cost of relief but the 40 per cent. which the city paid without including the cost of administration:

1933	$69,708
1934	62,127
1935	69,837

In each of those years the relief expenditure was running from 3 to 3½ mills of the tax rate, but then and each year since the cost of relief has been paid out of the tax levy. Not for a moment do we question the excellent financial standing of St. Catharines, but there is a situation in Peterborough which will bear the closest scrutiny and be pronounced excellent.

In Days Of Millinery

The writing of a report of a millinery opening has become a lost art principally because there is no place to work at it. We recall that in the village of years ago it was an annual event in the weekly newspaper office. The young lady who was to be in charge of millinery at the general store arrived before the robins. Within a few hours people knew where she was going to board, had formed an idea of her age, and when she walked down to work she was readily identified.

The general store was the largest advertiser in the paper, and on that account there was three-quarters of a column devoted to the millinery opening, and the boss was supposed to write it. As a rule he was pretty good on getting a fair enough showing of personal items. Each time another year passed and he came to the anniversary of his ownership he always wrote an editorial in which he mentioned that he could and would if occasion demanded wield a trenchant pen in the interests of right living and morality. Some person had explained to him about hog cholera and he wrote a couple of articles on that. He could copy prize lists at the fall fair, and as a rule could read his own writing. But doing a millinery opening was beyond him; he didn't know a bonnet from a fireman's helmet.

In the printing office we knew the day the boss was going to tackle the millinery opening. He'd have on his best suit and his whiskers would be trimmed with unusual severity; the bushy appearance went from them, and there was about him the general air of a man bent on conquest.

He would be presented to the milliner and then it was he turned on the heat. He had heard of her before she came, and life in the village had already felt a bit of uplift from her presence. Then came the serious business of inspecting the various hats for the season, and hats at that time were built, erected, constructed, engineered, manufactured. Mass production has not descended upon them.

Warming to the subject all the time, and keeping well covered the painful but stubborn fact that he never could write that story himself, the boss played well his approach shots. The charming young lady was so thoroughly the master of this exquisite art that it would seem like presumption for the boss to try and cope with her explanatory skill. He lacked that delicate feminine touch and the true artistic feeling which could properly present this great event to the expectant readers of the paper. Think what it would mean to the milliner to have the opportunity to tell her own story in her own way; it might be the stepping stone to greater attainment; it might develop a certain literary style which she had never suspected she possessed.

Like playing with loaded dice, the boss always won. Later in the day he would put the story on the hook and the handwriting would be dainty and foreign. He would settle back once more to the writing of personals and little notices about people paying for their papers. The bushy look would return to the whiskers. The millinery opening story had been written, and all was well.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Mussolini, for reasons quite well known to the community, has changed his coal dealer.

The Chatham News says the silent vote may win this election, but that is not what we are hearing at the moment from the hustings.

Thirty-five years ago, according to the Brantford Expositor, the salaries being paid to mayors of some Ontario cities were: Brantford $500 per year, St. Catharines $300, Windsor $600, Peterborough $400, Belleville $200 and Guelph $300.

Canadian Chamber of Agriculture says greater income is needed for Canadian farmers. The truth of that statement cannot be doubted, but the problem is to shove it along so that it gets past the point of being just a statement.

The Ontario cabinet is loyal to Hepburn and can also be loyal to King, although as Ontario ministers they censured Mr. King. Perhaps with the coming of warmer weather we may be able to get the matter straight but at the moment there is frost on the hinges.

The Aberhart party in Alberta is going into the provincial election again under the name of Social Credit. There is not any more actual Social Credit in Alberta today than when Mr. Aberhart began, but perhaps it would be difficult and dangerous to select another name.

SPARROWS

(By A.R.K.)

¶ When robins come the poets sing, and write about the merry spring, of flowers and bees and stuff; the robins seem to be preferred, they always get the welcome word, which seems a trifle tough.

¶ Poetic folk leave sparrows out, don't seem to know that they're about, they pen no line for them; they wait until the robins come, then they begin to sing and hum, that they are here again.

¶ The sparrow's tough I grant you that, to him the farmers say just scat, the sparrow has no friends; so I will write a line for him, I think it time I should begin, and try to make amends.

¶ When it goes twenty down below, when landscape's blurred with ice and snow, and wind is hard to face; the sparrow sticks around each day, he never packs and goes away, to find a warmer place.

¶ There's no goloshes on his feet, nor scarf to give his neck some heat, I figure he'd get numb; and yet he sticks around my yard, in days when living's mighty hard, seems thankful for a crumb.

¶ In zero nights he stays outdoors, can't draw some blankets from his stores, just takes it on the chin; that's why I'm moved to write a word, about this much-neglected bird—a bit of praise for him.

United States Losing No Boats During the War

AN American view of existing war conditions sees advantage for United States in having so framed its Neutrality Law that American shipping had to remain out of the war zone waters. In that way no U.S. vessels have been destroyed, and it is suggested that the sinking of U.S. boats would be the one thing most likely to drive United States into the war. The survey:

It is getting harder and harder to remain neutral in this war, and the European neutrals are finding the cost very heavy. In the first six months of hostilities they had nearly two-thirds as many ships sunk as the belligerents.

Neutrals are supposed to be outside of the war, but most European neutrals are in it to the extent of losing numerous merchant ships, and even an occasional war vessel.

Here are the amazing statistics, compiled by the Associated Press, of belligerent and neutral ships, both merchant and naval vessels, sunk by various means since the war started. They show how little this is being confined to belligerents.

Great Britain lost 201 ships, France 19, Germany 38, Finland 11, Russia 1, Japan 1. So much for the belligerents, with a total of 271.

Here come the neutrals. Norway lost 52, Sweden 35, Denmark 22, Greece 18, Netherlands 16, Estonia 6, Belgium 6, Italy 5, Lithuania 3, Rumania 1, Yugoslavia 1, Latvia 1, Spain 1. This gives a total, for neutrals, of 167. The neutrals have lost considerably more than half as many ships as the belligerents—about 63 per cent as many, to be precise.

Almost all these ships, except the German ones, were lost by German action, by means of submarines, mines, or bombing from the air.

This is not because the Germans are fonder of sinking ships than anybody else, but because the only way Germany can prevent supplies from getting to its enemies is to sink the ships that carry them. Germany cannot, like Great Britain and France, take ships into convenient ports to search them and seize what is considered contraband.

The effect of this German activity is inevitably to force the neutrals into the camp of the Allies. The neutrals become angry when the Allies seize and search their ships but they are much more displeased when Germany sinks them.

EVEN MORE striking than anything contained in the above list of sinkings is the absence of one neutral nation from the list — the most important neutral.

While European neutrals have watched scores of their ships go down, the United States has not lost a single bottom.

The reason is that the United States, by means of its Neutrality Law, has forbidden ships flying its flag to proceed into war zones. It has gained exemption from sinkings by abandoning insistence on its right at sea.

There were many Americans who opposed the adoption of the Neutrality Act. Congress was slow to enact it. There are citizens of the United States who think it was an inglorious, or even cowardly move, to reverse the traditional American its traditional defense of the right of neutrals to trade at sea in time of war.

But there is hardly an American who is not grateful that the long list of sinkings does not include an American ship. Had it not been for the Neutrality Act, the United States would be in that list, and there would probably be a goodly number of American ships included in the total of neutral losses.

Public sentiment and majority opinion in the United States is favorable to the cause of the Allies. The Neutrality Act was adopted in the full consciousness that it would operate to the advantage of the Allies.

In other respects, the United States, although a nonbelligerent, is something less than neutral. Its loans to China and to Finland indicate a willingness to aid such Nations as are attacked by an aggressor.

But Americans still hope they can stay out of war. Nothing would drive them into war more quickly than sinking of their ships at sea.

WORK OF ONE MAN!

THANKS to Premier Hepburn we haven't yet seen the March of Time feature, "Canada at War." But we hope millions of Americans and peoples of other nations see it. If it's as good propaganda as Mr. Hepburn says it is, it should do a fine job in merchandising Canada to the world at large, thereby boosting our national stock (and our tourist trade).

Mr. Hepburn's action was, no doubt, foolish. But it was invited by those who attempted to use the film for election purposes.

Here is the text of an advertisement published in large space in Vancouver newspapers:

"Capitol Theatre. You have heard the politicians talk on Canada's War Effort. March of Time, an independent and accurate news reel now showing, gives a complete picture of Canada's War Effort.

"Every Canadian should see this picture and realize that the accomplishment is the work of one man, Ian Mackenzie."

Whoever inserted that advertisement was as guilty of indiscretion and of playing politics with the film as Mr. Hepburn.—Financial Post.

• Plenty of Political Grandsons

A GRANDSON of the late Sir Sam Hughes has taken the platform and is upholding the former minister's record in the last war. Young Sam is not a candidate for the House of Commons, but if we are to have brought into this election campaign all grandsires who drew a stout bow at Hastings there are many candidates who can claim distinguished ancestry.

Col. William Pate Mulock, K.C., candidate in North York, is grandson of Sir William Mulock, former postmaster-general of Canada and later Chief Justice of Ontario. James S. Woodsworth, C.C.F., leader, is grandson of Richard Woodsworth, one of the pioneers of Toronto. "Tommy" Church's ancestors settled in Toronto from Sligo, Ireland in 1849.

Cameron Rosa McIntosh of North Battleford sets forth in the Parliamentary Guide that he "belongs to the Camerons of Grey, Bruce and York, and McIntoshes of Glengarry and Grey." J. A. Bradette of Cochrane is "descended from one of the first families to settle in Canada under the French regime." Hon. T. A. Crerar's paternal ancestors came from Scotland in the early forties.

Among the Quebec men, Georges Bouchard has an ancestor who came from Normandy to Quebec before 1680; Dr. Hermas Deslauriers of Montreal claims ancestors from Limoges, France; Jean-Francois Pouliot's grandfather was a member of Quebec Assembly and the House of Commons, and Sylvestre Armand's grandfather was a Legislative Councillor in Quebec.

F. D. Mackenzie of Neepawa, Manitoba, has no objection to it being known that his grandfather was a political prisoner in 1837. He is fortified, no doubt, by knowledge that the prime minister of Canada, candidate in Prince Albert, had a grandparent in the same position.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

• Our Airmen Released By U.S.

THE RULING of the State Department of the United States that two Royal Canadian Air Force men, who made a forced landing at Alexandria Bay, are not to be interned is a friendly and sensible one. It is also one that may, by its sound sense, become a precedent in international law in spite of the fact that the Americans specified that it is not to be considered as a precedent.

In Europe, apparently, military airmen of belligerent countries who land on neutral soil are usually interned. This procedure is understandable, says Kingston Whig-Standard, since the airmen there are probably invariably engaged in strictly belligerent undertakings when they fall or are forced to land on neutral territory. It is nevertheless a procedure that is not consistent with international law in the case of warships. The latter, if in distress or in need of supplies, are usually accorded the privilege of putting into a neutral port for a specified number of hours. The Graf Spee, for example, was permitted to make itself seaworthy although it was not allowed to repair damage to its armaments.

The Canadian plane was certainly in distress, it was damaged in landing, and its occupants were both slightly injured (Pilot Officer Cannon is now in District Military Hospital at Kingston). It was not on a belligerent mission, although it would have to be admitted that a training flight was a military mission. If the Graf Spee deserved and got a chance to depart from Montevideo, the Westland-Lysander and its crew were reasonably entitled to a chance to leave Alexandria Bay—even though the plane had to leave on a truck.

In any case, whatever the international law in the matter, all Canadians will be grateful that the incident has turned out as it has from an official point of view, and they will remember with a glow of pleasure that the airmen were treated as honored guests rather than as prisoners while their status was in doubt.

THEY KNOW NOT FEAR

WILLIAM RICHARD TAYLOR. Remember that name.

He was captain of a Glasgow collier, the Yewdale. Nazi planes attacked her.

They dropped bombs. They swept the decks with machine gun fire.

Captain Taylor did not budge from the wheel, even when he had been hit by a bullet.

He brought his ship into harbor, and as they went to bring him ashore he died.

How shall we honor such men? Far too many of us still take for granted their heroic service to the nation, even though the coming of the bomber has immeasurably increased the perils of their work. —London Daily Herald.

Wisdom crieth without; she uttereth her voice in the streets....My son, forget not my law; but let thine heart keep my commandments.... Let not mercy and truth forsake thee: bind them about thy neck; write them upon the table of thine heart: so shalt thou find favour and good understanding in the sight of God and man.

Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths. Be not wise in thine own eyes.—Prov. i, 20; iii, 1, 3-7.

THINK AND VOTE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I see where J. H. Burnham has made up his mind how he is going to vote. I have always taken an active part when the exercise of the franchise is required, and for half a century have never failed to poll my vote when qualified.

Right now we need to do what Mr. Burnham has been doing. I am not telling or suggesting to any one how to vote, but above all else people ought to do their own thinking now; they should pay no attention to the personalities which are being put into this campaign, nor should they be impressed by the dog fights which are going on in some of the ridings around us. Think and then vote.

Arrest Governor Before Crowd In Office Tiff

MACON, Ga., March 16—(AP)—Barely escaping a night in jail, Governor E. D. Rivers conferred until near dawn today with his Attorney General concerning his Federal contempt conviction over the military lockout of evicted Highway Chairman W. L. Miller.

The Georgia governor was arrested near midnight on the stage of the municipal auditorium in which thousands of Georgia school teachers had acclaimed him the "greatest friend of education" in the state's history.

The arrest was based on a writ by Judge Bascom Deaver finding the governor guilty of ignoring a previous order that he cease military interference with Miller's efforts to regain the office taken from him December 2.

Judge Deaver told the governor he arose from bed to grant the midnight hearing only to have him a night in jail and exacted a promise that Rivers would appear in court next Friday to show cause why he should not be permanently adjudged in contempt of court.

The highway chairman was removed on Rivers' executive order, charging he used the post to build up his political position in order to run for the governorship of the state at the next election. He instituted suit aimed at restoration and entered federal court on an appeal that his constitutional rights had been violated.

We regret one mistake in the reports last week and would ask the score card markers to add up the scores correctly.

After winning one game each in the President Cup game, the Fire-eaters had to rush away; the wanderers also beating it to attend the hockey game at the Brock.

This game will be continued tonight, Saturday, in the Legion Hall at 7 p.m. sharpe. The game will continue from point it was halted: St. George's 2, PFD 0; seven ends to go.

It is expected that a meeting for picking prize committees, discuss banquet, etc., will be held during Easter week, and we would urge all executive and skips to hold themselves in readiness for same.

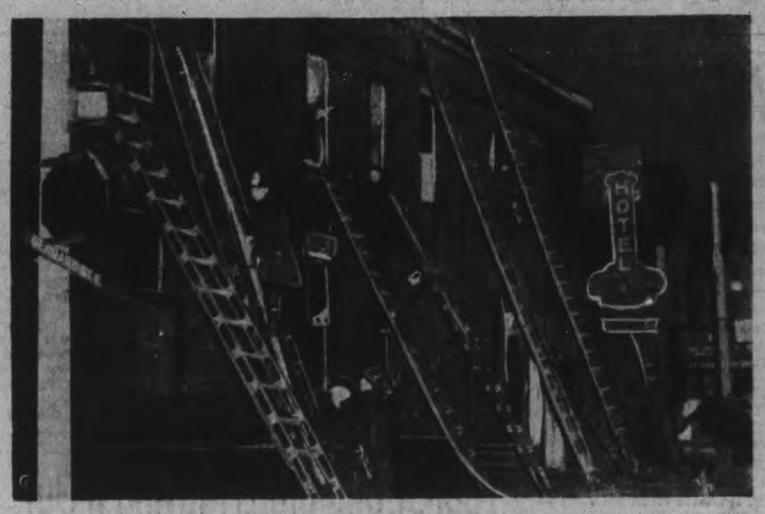
Notice of Motions

Any member having suggestions that they feel will prove a benefit of the league should put the same down in writing and hand same to the secretary before the season ends. Put it down while it is fresh in your mind.

Two Cup games this week. We are wondering who will be left. Should any member who has been chosen to officiate at those games find it impossible to attend, please phone the secretary that another man might be notified to take the vacancy.

There are just three men who have not paid the dues. Let us get this matter cleared up before the end of the month.

Three Perish, Six Injured When Flames Destroy Toronto Hotel



Three lives were known to have been lost as firemen continued searching the ruins of the fire which swept the Avonmore Hotel in Toronto. Six other persons are in the hospital suffering from burns and injuries received as they jumped from the windows of the blazing hotel. Firemen carried 29 persons down ladders, as the main floor and stairways were a blazing inferno when the firemen were summoned to the hotel. One fireman was removed to the hospital slightly injured. Firemen are shown, ABOVE, mounting ladders to rescue hotel guests. Several of the rescued were overcome and had to be given first aid treatment by the firemen, RIGHT, before being removed to the hospital.

Strong American League Line-up Awaits National League In Finnish Relief Game

TAMPA, Fla., March 16—(AP)—Barring a reprieve because of rain or other fortuitous circumstances, the long-suffering National Leaguers are due to take another lambasting from their American League tormentors in tomorrow's all-star baseball game.

The American League has summoned perhaps the most wicked line-up it ever has thrown into an all-star contest. The Nationals look weaker than in any previous game. The Nationals at least will have the consolation of knowing they stuck their necks out for a fine cause, the Finnish Relief Fund. All they need now is some relief from the American League.

With five New York Yankees and three Boston Red Sox as starters, Manager Joe McCarthy has a stronger American lineup that ever before because of the addition of two slugging sophomores, Charley Keller from the Yankees and Ted Williams of Boston.

Manager Bill McKechnie of the National won't have a really high-class left-hander available for duty. The most likely National starter is Bucky Walter of Cincinnati.

At least, the Nationals will not have to look at Red Ruffing and probably Bob Grove. But that is slight comfort with men like Bob Feller, Buck Newsom, Dutch Leonard, Tom Bridges and Vernon Gomez ready to fire at them.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Mar. 16 — (AP).—The books have made Bobby Jones a 24-1 shot in the Augusta Masters' tournament....Buddy Baer, the fighter, weighed 13 pounds at birth, and has been growing ever since.... Mike Tresh, White Sox catcher, has succumbed to the California weather and will buy a home and move his family out there....Welby Van Horn, who may be on top of the tennis heap before you know it, will confide in a magazine piece soon that he hates to watch tennis—"too dull and uninteresting."

Campbellford

Miss Mary Kerr of Trenton, who has been with friends in Hastings this week, visited in Campbellford on Wednesday.

Horace Reddick of the Bank of Commerce staff in Schumacher is holidaying with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Reddick, Rear Street.

Misses Irene aand Nellie Davidson and Mrs. Robert Lockwood, all of Toronto, spent the week-end as guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davidson.

Stuart Haig is visiting his aunt, Mrs. G. C. Bonnycastle, Bowmanville.

Lawrence Merriott of Tweed spent the week-end with relatives in town.

Miss Thelma Menzies, nurse-in-training at Belleville Hospital, is spending a few days with her father, F. Menzies, Inkerman Street.

Miss Ethel Bedford, Queen Street, is visiting her sister, Mrs. F. E. Smith, of Seymour Township.

Getting Ready

HULL, Que., March 16—(CP). — Henri Clouthier, 38, of Maniwaki, Que., charged with stealing ballot forms which were to be used in three Gatineau County polls in the Quebec election last October 25, was remanded a week in court here yesterday without pleading. Judge Honore Achim fixed bail at $300.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Hats off and congratulations to Mrs. Reg. Turner, Miss Helen Munro, Alex. Archibald and Ray Best, winners of the Brereton-Raw Trophy at the Granite Club, Toronto. To this quartette goes all honor and glory for having come through to final victory after having met and defeated the cream of mixed rinks from all parts of the province.

Commencing play on Thursday morning they won three games, which entitled them to enter the play-off series on Friday, and on Friday morning they moved up to the semi-finals when they defeated the Smith rink from Sarnia.

In the semi-final it was a tight fight, the local curlers only winning out by one point over Charlie Bulley of Toronto Granites, and, by the way, this same Charlie has skipped more Ontario Tankard rinks to victory than anybody we can recall. Then in the final game they met Ken Miles of High Park, late of Lindsay, and came through with a two-point margin to win the cup.

When you take into consideration the local curlers have no chance to play on artificial ice, it makes the victory more outstanding.

With an entry of 64 rinks, this year's spiel was the largest in the history of the Cup and incidentally it is the second time the trophy has been lifted by an outside rink. Last year a rink from Hamilton turned the trick.

And after many years' skipping in the Toronto bonspiel, and playing in many other series held in Toronto, having been runner-up on many occasions, it is the first time Ray ever won a trophy there. Is it any wonder we're all happy about the whole thing?

We had the pleasure of seeing this rink curl on Thursday and it was a real treat. Mrs. R. Turner, playing lead, made a real job of it. Alex. as second stone was great, and Miss H. Munro as vice did all that was expected of her, and then Ray just finished off the whole thing with wonderful skipping and some real playing. And once again we offer our heartiest congratulations.

The vice-skips' bonspiel reached the finals last night, and this game will be played on Monday evening between C. Williams and C. Southeran.

QUAKER ACES AND ST. JOHN'S COP GIRLS' BASKETBALL PLAYOFFS

Win First Frays Over Gym And Clock Crews

Quaker Aces and St. John's are up in their respective ladies league championship series, by virtue of their pair of convincing victories in a play-off double-header at the Y.W.C.A. Friday night. A good crowd saw the Aces subdue 'Y' Gym 31-15 in the opener of the senior title finals, while St. John's bested Westclox 21-9. Both best two-out-of-three series.

Quaker Aces pulled somewhat of a surprise by besting the favorite 'Y' Gym outfit by virtue of a strong last period drive and have a one-hand grip on the senior title. After building up a 14-10 lead shortly before the end of the initial half, Aces began to click in great style and held a big edge in the last period. With R. Rutter tallying 14 of her 18 points the winners left little doubt in this half. Y Gym who dropped but two games all year and bested the Aces in all their encounters, failed badly around the hoop and could not cope with the second-place squad's more formidable offense. Aces passed well and shot in effective style around the basket, while they did a good defensive job in holding the losers' ace scorer, R. Dalliday, to 8 points.

H. Rutter, D. Weese and J. Fowler were prominent for the winners and R. Dalliday, B. Flynn and S. Florence best for Y Gym.

The Aces made one of their five free throws and the losers also one in five attempts. The teams:

Quaker Aces (31—D. Weese (7), P. Lawless (2), J. Fowler, S. Alexander, V. Wood, H. Rutter (18), M. Hooten, M. Duncan (2), E. Kirn (2), A. Grady.

Y Gym 15—R. Dalliday (8), I. Young, S. Florence, B. De Maio (1), B. Flynn (4), F. Craig, R. Sullivan, E. Zakos (2), B. Pomeroy, S. Zakos.

Referees—W. Thirnbeck and Joe Cooper.

Strong Near End

Playing strong defensive basketball in the first half and turning it on on the attack in the last, St. John's outplayed Westclox to take a one-game lead in the junior title trails' end. The winners held the Alarm Maidens to a single field goal in the first half to lead 5-2 at the rest period. From that point on they turned on the offensive power to run up a 16-7 scoring edge and cop a decisive victory. The winners finished slightly ahead of Westclox in third place in the league schedule. The St. John's lasses had superior team work and better sharp shooting to lead over most of the route. They were never in serious trouble after the opening minutes as Westclox failed to put forth any kind of a sustained scoring effort. The winners sank 3 out of 7 chances from the free throw line as Westclox counted only one of their eight tries in a poor showing. E. Clarke with 7 points, A. Bowler and T. Laws were outstanding for the winners with B. Saunders, A. Flynn and C. Metcalfe best for Westclox. The teams:

Westclox 9—B. Saunders (5), C. Metcalfe, A. Flynn, M. Goldie (2), M. McFadden, J. Crowe (2), P. Wolstenholme.

St. John's 21—A. Bowler (6), E. Clarke (7), T. Laws (2), H. Harte-Maxwell (4), H. Douglas (2), E. Foster, D. Groombridge, E. Harte-Maxwell, F. Gynane, E. Gynane.

Referees—H. Smith and J. Cooper.

Double Rations

LONDON, March 16—(CP)—The Ministry of Suppy announced today that the butter ration will be doubled beginning March 25, increasing the weekly allowance for each Briton from four to eight ounces. The increase was granted because of the "favorable supply situation," it was stated.

Norwood Drops First Game To Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 16. — (ENS)—Though Campbellford met some tough opposition when they met Norwood in the finals, of the Trent Valley League here last night they managed to cash in on a final 6 to 3 verdict after 60 minutes of the most gruelling hockey seen in this section for many a year.

Norwood Took Lead

The locals haven't lost a game in their last 11 starts but the Terriers offered plenty of resistance during the early part of the game and lead by a 3 to 2 score until just before the half way mark in the second period when things began to break better for the Sunocos who managed to get their plays clicking. Both teams set a torrid pace with many end to end rushes which ended in the corners due to effective defense work. Actually the Sunocos readguards of Wilkes, Hendy looked much better than the Webb-Rothwell combination and aided by a slightly faster front line the Sunocos were able to dominate the territorial play.

The home crew were awarded the only penalty shot of the game early in the first frame when the visitors were leading 1 to 0. One of the Norwood players held the puck during a scramble in front of the net but Hendy, who forms the chief bulwark of the Campbellford defense as well as being one of the most colorful players in the league failed to repeat the performance he gave in Norwood three weeks ago when he scored to give his team victory by a one goal margin.

G. Puffer, tricky Norwood centre notched the opening counter of the game on a well timed pass from Hill. Their passing attack missing fire the homesters failed to tally until the 15-minute mark when Robinson slapped home Hendy's rebound from close range.

The visitors stepped into the lead again in the second period when Webb bulged the twine as Hill centred out from the rear of the Sunocos net. Weir who was a constant threat to the locals made a breakaway which sent Turner down on the ice to recover then Blake tore up the ice at lightning speed to register on a clean shot into the corner of the net. The visitors went out in front again as Puffer cruised in alone to slap one into the rigging and when he was waved away for upsetting Robinson the score was once again tied up as the homesters rained in on McMaster and Robinson poked it into the net as McIlrath centred out.

The winners camped on Norwood's doorstep during much of the remaining portion of the period, peppering McMaster from all angles but were unable to widen their lead 'till Robinson again scored on a lovely pass in which he was joined by Kelly and Hendy. Free was waved away for holding and was still in the cooler at the opening of the third frame when the locals clinched their victory with a pair of goals. Stu McIlrath potted the first on a well laid pass from Hendy who collected three assists during the evening and Ernie Wilkes hard working Sunoco rear guard drilled home the final counter to climax one of his best performances of the season.

The locals will play their return game in Norwood on Monday evening returning for the third of the series here next Wednesday.

Summary:

First Period

1—Norwood—Puffer (Hill) 3.10
2—Campbellford—Robinson, (Hendy) 15.00

Niagara Falls Looks Good In Basketball

TORONTO, Mar. 16 — (CP). — Remaining basketball district winners of the Central Ontario Secondary School Association conclude their quest for the association's four titles in the final round of the two-day annual tournament here to-day.

At the end of the semi-final round last night, teams from Meaford, Belleville, Niagara Falls, and Owen Sound, joined Bowmanville, Cobourg and Peterborough — the teams which drew byes—in the final brackets.

Possibility arose that Niagara Falls might grab two of the championships when two of their three teams swept past semi-final obstacles. The senior girls, displaying a fast and accurate passing style of play, trounced Midland High School 47-22 and the junior boys, unbeaten this year, licked Orillia Collegiate Institute 37-12.

The girls now face Cobourg and the boys Peterborough. Owen Sound's junior girls eliminated the Falls' other entry with a hard-fought 26-18 victory which sent them into the final against Bowmanville.

In the senior boys' division, Meaford and Belleville snatched one-point victories to enter the final round. Ralph Bumstead sparked Meaford to their 37-36 win over St. Catharines, sinking six field goals and two foul shots for 14 points.

Belleville edged out Bowmanville 31-30 with Bill Pigden, Max Vechter and Ross Clare leading the attack.

Scores 27 Points.

Midland's inability to keep track of pretty Lucy Joinette, whose spectacular shooting accounted for 27 points, enabled Niagara Falls to give the red and white clad Falls' team a 4-0 lead and after Doreen Rowe pulled Midland level with two baskets she ran wild, sinking 10 more field goals and three foul shots.

Niagara led 17-12 at half-time. Helen Giesenhoff with six, Zorka Yankoff with four, and Jean Walker with 10 scored the other Falls' points. Esther May and Doreen Rowe acted as the spearheads of the Midland attack, scoring eight and seven points respectively.

In the boys' game the Falls' team forged into an early lead and at the half-time whistle led 13-10. Johnny Murphy of Niagara Falls topped the scorers with 14 points and was followed closely by his teammate, Jimmy Greenwood, who scored 13.

Jacqueline McCullough of Owen Sound captured scoring honors in the junior girls' game with 12 points. Niagara Falls' Adeline Smillie and Owen Sound's Eileen Lageer picked up 10 points each to follow Miss McCullough.

Hawks Defeat Red Wings 4-3

DETROIT, Mar. 16 — (CP). — At one time New York Americans had the slogan "Keep punching," but as things stand now Chicago Black Hawks seemed to have usurped it—and in a literal manner.

Whatever fault Manager Paul Thompson may be able to find with his Hawks, he'll never have to complain about their lack of fight. This was demonstrated recently in two wild week-end games against Toronto Maple Leafs, and it was shown again last night as the Hawks defeated Detroit Red Wings 4-3 in the only National Hockey League game scheduled.

It wasn't quite so bitter as the two Toronto-Chicago battles, but it was still scrappy enough to bring down 16 penalties. Eleven of the penalties came in the last period, during which a melee broke out that involved all the players except the goalies.

The Hawks got all their goals in succession, before the Wings put on a spurt that threatened for a time to tie the score.

Joe Cooper, Doug Bentley, Johnny Chad and Bob Carse scored for Chicago, with Syd Howe, Alex Motter, and Mud Bruneteau netting the Detroit goals.

Cobourg Team Is Thrown Out

CAMPBELLFORD, March 16. — (ENS)—Owen Hendy's Juveniles, who were eliminated by winners of the Cobourg Church League in the second game of their play-downs, have just received notice from the secretary of the O.J.H.A. that they are to meet the winners of the Kingston-Port Perry play-offs for Eastern Ontario championship.

According to the information, Cobourg were thrown out of the play-downs for using three players who were not signed up when the locals played their return game with them. The local juveniles will now begin with a home-and-home series with the Kingston-Port Perry winners who will be declared on Monday.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

Next week, we are liable to hear more about senior baseball re-organization around Toronto, brightening up the rather black picture painted around and about some few weeks ago. Right now it looks like the Petes will be back in a senior setup again, but a little time will elapse before the opposition is known. There is talk now of Hamilton, Port Credit and two Toronto teams—one being Parkdale—in a senior group; whilst another possible grouping mentions Peterborough and Oshawa in with the Riverdale Grads of Toronto. However, the locals would much sooner have a six-or seven-club loop than one with three teams like the last year of the old C.O.B.L. We trust the cesifers here make efforts, at the proper time, to arrange some sort of interlocking schedule between the two groups, if there are two separate setups.

* * * * * *

Tely columnist remarks: "Hurrah, here's a hockey league that will not stage any playoffs this year. It is the eastern amateur league and, if it would drop the 'amateur' part of the title, it would make it complete. However, too much credit must not be given the league, because the after-season merry-go-round was abandoned because ice could not be secured at New York, Boston or Washington. The circuit has 61 games, of which 54 have been been played and Baltimore has a margin over New York of six points." Leading loop scorer is Collings of Rovers with 92. Bill Calladine tops the Orioles with 79, being third in loop points, but leading scorer with 43 goals. Nice going, Willie.

* * * * * *

Well, that's another one for the local puckists, that 8-4 win here last night over Collingwood. They would have had a final playoff berth cinched only for the fact that Port Colborne reconsidered and are back in the round-robin playof series. So the locals need one more win, but they're practically in there now. We hope. A crowd of 2,000 redhot fans saw a swell game on good ice, fast and exciting all the way, with the Buckaroos putting the peanut in the bag in a wide-open third period. Up till then, it was closer than flies on sticking paper—as far as the score goes, but the Petes had an edge in the second after an even first heat.

* * * * * *

Folks here can't kick about their hockey season at all. The junior Colts were just so-so at times, but some good games were dished up in a large and lively group. And the intermediate "A" Petes—or senior "B" if ya wish, since they're stronger than last year—gave the cash customers a lot of fine hockey. The group was only fair, but a coupla swelegant exhibition tilts with the Goodyears and Generals helped, and the playoffs in the group were okay. And every round-robin tilt has been a nifty. We thought the Port Colborne game was swell, and then rated Kitchener as the best fray here this year. Then Owen Sound put up a lovely fight. And last night's game was a dandy. All good, but probably the Greenshirts were the best, in our opinion.

* * * * * *

Play last night was plenty fast all through and clean, with the Petes—after an even first stanza—definitely looking superior. They were going fine, both up and down, with both front lines clicking well and the defence and goalie playing dandy hockey. The first line again proved the better opportunists with their work in around the net, and they should have had a few more in the middle heat, too. Honey Tompkins, Bun Kingdon and Art Heal were really flying and working their heads off to rack up a few notchers. Which they did, though it took 'em two periods to strut their real stuff. And the other forwards also went good, barging in all the time. By the noise of the fans, we gather that the crowd was quite well pleased with what is probably the last puck tussle here this year.

* * * * * *

First Line Clicks

Some folks went after Referee Houston for too many whistles, but he is a good arbiter and very impartial. The Shipbuilders never quit trying but didn't look as dangerous as the Owen Sound gang, we believe. Their goalie was steady and Brophy (No. 2) on defence looked pretty fair—though it's a few years since he saw N.H.L. service with Canadiens and Detroit. Their first line kept battling all the time, and got in for some steaming thrusts at Harding, but on the whole the Collingwood crew didn't bother the Petes too much. Not that the locals loafed any—not a bit, suh; they didn't dare—but the home squad this time had an edge most of the route. Yep, it was a nice fast tussle to view all the way, with the right side ankling out on top. They were a tickled bunch later in the dressing-room, and if they keep this pace up, they'll be harder to stop in their titular march than an elephant on a rampage.

* * * * * *

Church Puck Loop finished playoffs last night in Lakefield, Murray St. winning the senior championship 9-4 in two straight o'er All Saints, and Mark St. copping the junior title in the third game 8-2 from Park St. In the latter game, a scrap busted loose and saw fans, players and officials tangled up plenty for a time. Mark St. drew away toward the end with better teamwork by Carl Ferguson's pack, which won juvenile honors in '38 and '39. The rugged Murray St. seniors earned their victory, too, with Dundas, Padgett and Hawkes going best, as McDougall shone for All Saints. Thus endeth a good hockey season in this large minor league. The circuit officers appreciate courtesy of the Lakefield rink management in allowing 'em time for regulation periods at most reasonable rent.

* * * * * *

Quaker Aces pulled a bit of an upset in ladies' cage-playoffs at the Y.W. last night when they took "Y" Gym into camp 31-15 in the first senior fray; it is a two-in-three series. In the first junior final, St. John's sailed through for a 21-3 decision against Westclox lasses. Next games will be next week. Local Orfuns are plenty peeved at the screwball way the L.O.B.A. is running provincial playdowns, their scheduled tilt with St. Kitts' gals here today being postponed. Orfuns dropped out of the City League when ordered to play Belleville. They won this series and—after a billed series with Toronto was called off by the L.O.B.A., and now the St. Catharines' setup postponed—it looks like Orfuns might have to loaf around for two weeks. This squad has plenty of class and stands a pretty fair chance of winning an Ontario championship this spring.

Yankees Offered For Sale For $4,000,000 But Best Offer Has Been $2,000,000

NEW YORK, March 16—(AP).—The New York Yankees, owned by the heirs of Colonel Jacob Ruppert, have been "hawked" in Wall Street for some time with a $4,000,000 price tag, well informed financial circles told the Associated Press today.

So far, however, these sources said, the best offer has been $2,000,000, with financiers admitting they might be willing to go a trifle higher for baseball's leading ball club. It was not indicated whether the $2,000,000 was the price for just the Yankees or the entire farm system, which some have evaluated as high as $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Madison Square Garden Corporation for one is said to be interested in the purchase of the club but has no definite offer. Another source said Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Great Britain, sent out several feelers on his recent visit here but no definite action was taken. A new English syndicate, including governor Francis Murphy of New Hampshire, was said to be connected with Kennedy.

Meanwhile, Byron Clark, Jr., attorney for the late Jacob Ruppert's estate, returned to St. Petersburg, Fla., from a yachting trip and denied the Yankees had been sold to Gov. Murphy or that any negotiations with other individuals were pending.

"There is absolutely nothing to it," Clark said.

Four Strong Clubs Playing It Out In Manitoba Junior League

(By the Canadian Press.)

Word of another great crop of contenders in Manitoba, the home of the Dominion Junior hockey champions of 1937 and 1938, is going the rounds as the fight narrows down again in Memorial Cup playoffs.

The Winnipeg district missed the boat last year when Edmonton Athletic club went east to play—and lost to—Oshawa Generals in the Dominion Junior finals. In the two years before that Winnipeg Monarchs and St. Boniface Seals had captured the title.

Now four strong clubs, reputedly containing professional timber, are fighting for the Manitoba laurels. Winnipeg and Kenora Thistles open a best-of-three southern division final at Kenora tonight, while Winnipeg Elmwood Maple Leafs and Winnipeg St. James Canadians are tied at a game apiece in their best-of-three northern division playoff.

Still looming large, however, are the '39 finalists. Oshawa has gained a one-game lead over Toronto Marlboros for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" title and has just as strong a lineup as last year, even though lacking an individual standout like Billy Taylor. Edmonton has put together a team strong enough to lick Trail 11-1 in the first contest of their Alberta-British Columbia best-of-three series.

Port Arthur Wins

Edmonton or Trail will oppose the Saskatchewan champions and the Manitoba winners will play Port Arthur in the western semi-finals. Port Arthur took the Thunder Bay throne last night in a 7-4 victory over Fort William.

Perth will oppose Charlottetown in an eastern intersectional playoff. The Ontario team stopped Cornwall 9-2 last night to gain the Ottawa and district junior title again, while Charlottetown captured the Maritimes championship by downing Truro 7-4, taking the total-goals round by the impressive total of 22-5.

The Perth-Charlottetown survivor will play Quebec champions, who are a long way from being declared. Verdun Maple Leafs are to meet the winner of a game between Sherbrooke and Thetford mines in one Quebec semi-final. Quebec aces swept past Three Rivers, 8-5 and 24-1 in a total-goals round, to earn the right to meet Verdun Bulldogs or Lachine in the other semi-final.

Sudbury Frood Tiger Juniors and South Porcupine will begin a best-of-three round Tuesday for the Northern Ontario championship and the right to oppose Oshawa or the Marlboros.

Training Camp Briefs

By The Associated Press

LAKELAND, Fla., March 16 (AP)—Manager Del Baker got back into harness today for Detroit Tigers' game with Brooklyn Dodgers after a 24-hour layoff with a cold. This was Brooklyn's third appearance in Lakeland, making the Dodgers virtually commuters.

LOS ANGELES—While Chicago Cubs' fans keep their fingers crossed, Clay Bryant prepared to test his pitching arm today against the White Sox in the third game of their city series. Each team has won one game and a total of 42 runs have been scored, showing it's about time for some pitcher to test his arm.

SEBRING, Fla. — Cleveland Indians are blossoming out as a defensive ball club. In their exhibition against Washington Senators yesterday the Indians benefitted from two double plays and the airtight pitching of Bill Zuber. Harry Eisenstat and Johnny Humphreys.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—No gazelle in the field, rookie Johnny Rucker is making Manager Bill Terry of New York Giants take notice of his hitting. He batted "five for five" against the world champion Yankees yesterday until Spud Chandler stopped him in the seventh.

Murray St. Won Church Title Over All Saints'

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 16— (ENS)—Murray Street won the senior church championship by defeating All Saints 9-4 in a very hectic battle here last night. Both teams played good hockey throughout and kept it fairly clean. A scrap was stopped in the first when Meredith and Hawkes tangled. Goal-getters for Murray Street were Padgett, Watkins, Dundas, Mowry, and Hoporoft, while McDougall, Reid and Abraham counted for All Saints. Watkins and Lacy both played a fine game in the nets, Padgett, Hawkes and Dundas played good hockey for Murray Street in helping to capture the championship, while Abraham and McDougall looked best for All Saints. Two referees were used this game—J. Dunkerley as official referee and R. Pearson as linesman.

The teams:

Murray Street — Goal, Albert Watkins; defence, Mow[illegible] Fuller; centre, Art Watkins; wings, Padgett, Hawkes; subs., Dundas, Hopcroft.

All Saints — Goal, Lacy; defence, King, D. Abraham; centre, Reid; wings, L. Abraham, Langdon; subs., Meredith, McDougall.

Referee—J. Dunkerley, Peterborough. Linesman — R. Pearson, Lakefield.

Remember When—

Leading scorer in the National Hockey League 17 years ago today was Babe Dye, of Toronto, who during the season scored 26 goals and 11 assists. His record compared with 24 goals and 23 assists made by "Toe" Blake of Montreal Canadiens who led the League scoring in 1938-1939.

PETES STICK IN TOP PLACE WITH VICTORY OVER COLLINGWOOD

Homesters Click In Third Period To Gain An 8 to 4 Win In Fast Game Before Large Crowd

The Petes consolidated their position on top of the heap here last night with an 8-4 victory over Collingwood Shipbuilders before 1,700 excited fans. It was the locals' fourth win in the O.H.A. intermediate "A" round-robin series in six starts, another game being a tie. The win practically clinches a final playoff berth.

As in previous playoff tilts here, the crowd viewed a lively fray, both sides turning on the heat throughout. It was fast, thrilling and clean, with the home crew having an edge the last two periods. The score was 2-2 in the first and 4-3 for the Buckland band going into the third. In the last session, the Petes cashed in on chances and looked considerably better than their opponents.

From the start, the homesters looked a bit better, but it was pretty even in the initial inning. Both sides were skating fast and checking well. All through the second, the Petes stormed the Collingwood goal but missed numerous chances. They clicked a bit better in the third and earned their margin. Poor shooting cost the victors several goals when players were right inside but missed the net. The losers kept battling right to the finish and at no time looked much inferior.

First Trio Stars

The Petes' first line sparkled throughout, being in on most of the scores. Honey Tompkins again turned in a cool, efficient job and was in on five of the goals. Bun Kingdon, always a heady player, figured in on four, and the hard-working Art Heal was in on three. Joe Blewett of the battling second line helped on two goals and his buddies also turned in a neat effort. The defence checked well most of the way, and Ray Harding batted aside a lot of hot shots.

The first line of the Shipbuilders also looked good, Brodeur and Wilson being in on a pair each and Stewart going good. The goalie was steady and had little chance on any that beat him, all goals being earned. He had a fair defence in front of him, Brophy especially showing nice form in spots, but the Petes' superior speed spelled the difference in the game's result. Both sides stuck to hockey and played a clean tilt.

Even In First

Right from the first faceoff, the Petes tore in hard and showed an edge. The game was less than two minutes old when Tompkins scored from Kingdon, going in around defence and getting away a good shot. Wilson came close for Collingwood and then Brodeur evened the count when he raced in after his own rebound and banged it home. Coughlin nearly got one, then Gardner went off for cross-checking. It cost a goal as Brodeur rapped one into the twine on Wilson's pass on a neat power play. With all back, the home second line pressed and Blewett scored from Crowe in close when the latter set up the pas sand body-checked the defenceman out of the way. Cain was chased for charging but the Petes' power play didn't click and he was back and play was even at the gong.

All through the second, the Petes were swarming in on passing plays but missing out around the net. Early in the heat, Kingdon slapped in Tompkins' rebound after a nice rush and a Blewett-J. Jopling try was close. They kept the speed up with first Stewart and then Kingdon getting away hot thrusts. Gardner tore down hard to test the goalie and, when Young was waved off for tripping, the Petes did everything but score. Coughlin hit the post, but all were back when a Kingdon-Tompkins rush almost got one. Later Heal and Tompkins got in as the homesters kept driving and their speed enabled them to check back on rival rushes. Burns evened it again in close from Brock as the locals lapsed momentarily in their own zone with both sides chasing the puck around. A Coughlin-Burton drive was dangerous and Heal later got in close. Just before the end, Kingdon's shot dribbled in off the goalie in close, with Heal and Tompkins aiding.

Petes Cash In

Early in the third, the local first line pressed but play was stopped a minute when a lady was hit by a puck and helped off over the ice. Young made a nifty rush in the fast going and, when Brock got the air for tripping, the Petes ganged up hard. Harding came out to the blue line to frustrate a breakaway and Tompkins scored on Heal's pass at point-blank range, Honey doing a bit of stickwork to pull the goalie out. With all back, Burton and J. Jopling came close but Stewart counted for the visitors on Wilson's neat pass in close. Tompkins got it back shortly on Heal's pass with both tearing in fast, around defence. Ellis was gated for boarding and Harding had to be good to hold them off. J. Jopling followed Ellis shortly for tripping (though he got the puck on the play) and the Petes performed heroics to hold Collingwood out till both were back. J. Jopling got the next counter on a neat passing play through defence with Blewett and Coughlin. With five Collingwood players up near the end pressing, Kingdon broke away to score the final goal.

The teams:

Collingwood: Goal, Nobes; defence, Brophy and Cain; centre, Brodeuh; wings, Stewart and Wilson; alternates, Young, Sandell, Brock, Stoutenbourg and Burns.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Gardner and Ellis; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Heal; alternates, F. Jopling, Crowe, J. Jopling, Coughlin, Blewett and Burton.

Referee—D. A. Houston, Toronto.

HONEY TOMPKINS

Playing fine hockey here last night, Honey Tompkins (above) led the locals in their 8-4 win over Collingwood, being in on five goals.

Elgin Squad Cops Tedford Cup; Ousts Trent 8-3

HAVELOCK, Mar. 16 (ENS). — In a rather one-sided tilt, Elgin scored an 8-3 victory over a disorganized Trent River squad at Norwood Arena, to clinch top hoonrs in the annaul Tedford Cup tournament. This proved quite an upset in rural hockey circles, Trent River having been rated about the strongest team during the regular E.P. R.L. season, while the Elgin squad finished on the bottom of the list. Elgin, however, had been gradually strengthening their outfit throughout the schedule, and were becoming quite a threat by playoff time. They reached their peak form in the Tedford series and after first disposing of the Havelock Albions in the semi-finals, went on to dust off the Trent Riverites to cop the coveted rural trophy.

Led by "Red" Lobb, who gave a sparkling performance in the cage, the winners held a decided edge over their opponents for the sixty minutes of fast hockey. The losers, except for a few minutes in the third, failed to show anything of their usual aggressiveness, and skilful playing.

Scott fired the opening goal for Elgin, early in the initial period, and before this session had ended Lumsden, McCoy, and Petticrew had added tallies to make the count 4-0, in their favor.

Chaplin, the most effective member of Trent River's lineup, chalked up their first goal shortly after the start of the middle frame. Chaplin counted this one unassisted, when he practically fought his way out of the corner to cross in front of the Elgin net and fire from close range. Elgin were still pressing, however, and came back with another three markers by Petticrew, Metcalfe and Radford.

A penalty to McCoy gave Trent River a momentary advantage early in the third, and it was then that they scored their other two goals, Chaplin and Jamieson being the marksmen. Lumsden notched the concluding counter for Elgin, making the final score 8-3.

McCoy's penalty was the lone penalty of a clean, fast tilt. Every member of the winners turned in a nice game, with Lobb perhaps outstanding in th nets. For the losers, Chaplin, Jamieson, and McLaughlin were best.

Trent River—Goal, Hill; defence, McLaughlin, A. Brown; centre, G. Brown; wings, J. Brown, Parcells; alternates, Hamilton, Jamieson, Chaplin, VanVolkenburg, and Ruttan.

Elgin—Goal, Lobb; defence, Scott, McCoy; centre, Metcalfe; wings, Lumsden, J. Preston; alternates, Wilson, Petticrew, Radford, and Boyle.

Referee—Paul Voyer, Havelock.

Millbrook Group Sponsors St. Patrick Tea

MILLBROOK, Mar. 16 (ENS). — The basement of Grace Presbyterian Church presented a very attractive appearance on Wednesday evening, when the Ladies Aid Society held its annual St. Patrick's Day supper. Two long tables, well laden with tempting viands, emphasized the appropriate atmosphere with runners of fluted green paper, green candles burning in silver holders, pots of shamrock, and serviettes with designs in keeping with the "wearin' o' the green."

Among those assisting with the service were Mrs. H. A. Kerr, Mrs. Earle Armstrong, Mrs. J. M. Armstrong, Mrs. S. E. Eakins, Mrs. A. S. Hall, Mrs. T. C. Ingram, Mrs. A. Coyte, Miss Agnes Johnston, Miss Mina Gibson, Miss Gladys Coyte, Miss Colleen Blair . Others who had a part in the work connected with the abundant supper, which had hot potatoes, dressed pork, jellies and salads in green tints, pie, etc., as appropriate items on the abundant menu of an Irish supper, were Mrs. H. C. Lord, Mrs. J. Peers, Mrs. H. Blair, Mrs. E. Weatherup, and Mrs. F. Whyte.

H. A. Kerr was cashier, and the minister and his wife, Rev. A. Raeburn-Gibson, and Mrs. Gibson, had the pleasant task of welcoming the large number of incoming guests. The president of the L.A., Mrs. J. R. Thompson, was unfortunately prevented by illness from being present.

St. Andrew's W. M. S.

Mrs. H. W. Johnston occupied the chair for the March meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Church, held on Wednesday afternoon, in the absence owing to illness, of the president, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, the worship theme being "Into all the world." The leader gave the prayer topics, and all joined in silent petition after each one, Mrs. Edmund Ball offering the opening general prayer.

The secretary, Mrs. Ross Edmunds, reported a total of $7.50 taken in at the February meeting, including fees, offering, etc., and Mrs. J. McKnight offered the dedicatory prayer after the day's collection had been received. The budget planned for the year at a recent executive meeting was given to the meeting, each group being responsible for raising thirty dollars in order that the allocation may be reached; group leaders are also asked to secure all fees during the initial three months.

The presiding officer reported a handsome quilt, completely finished, and left at the parsonage by Mrs. H. A. Earle, which is for sale, while two others are ready for the annual quilting in May, same to go in the annual bale.

The Easter responsive service, "Christ the Light," was in charge of Mrs. M. McDowell, those assisting being Mrs. H. R. Edmunds, Mrs. Unitt, and Miss E. L. Hetherington, who offered the concluding prayer. Mrs. J. H. George took up the final chapter of the study book dealing with "Facing the Test," and including the Christian approach to India.

The benediction in unison closed an interesting and profitable gathering.

Roseneath In Line For Red Cross

ROSENEATH, March 16—(ENS). —Major Watson, organizer from Toronto for the provincial division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, addressed a meeting in the town hall on Wednesday night. The meeting was called by the township council for the purpose of organizing a Red Cross branch in the township of Alnwick.

Silas Sherwin, township clerk, presided and introduced Major Watson. On the platform also were Reeve James Timlin and township treasurer George Turner, each of whom spoke briefly, and urged everyone to get behind the organization and the Empire.

Major Watson in his opening remarks announced that the organization of a branch in Alnwick would complete the organization of the county of Northumberland. In his address Major Watson explained the purpose of the organizataion, its relation to the army and the Dominion and the history of its organization on the British plan as an auxiliary to the Canadian Army Medical Service. Its two divisions of work, overseas and at home, were enlarged on also.

Following Major Watson's address it wa sdecided, on motion, to organize a township branch, and appoint a nominating committee.

The committee as appointed is: George Turner, Mrs. L. Tucker, Mrs. A. Nill, Mrs L Sherwin, Miss Ruby Blodgett, Reeve James Timlin, Silas Sherwin, A J. Campbell and Fred Lewis.

The nominating committee will meet on Saturday night in the town hall.

Canadian Coast Defences Prepared

Although Canada's border with the United States is renowned for being the longest unfortified frontier in the world, her coastlines are a different matter, as these pictures, taken from the latest "March of Time" film, "Canada at War," show. The guns are long range weapons used for coastal defence and are stationed at undisclosed points on Canada's coastlines. The film from which these "stills" were taken has been banned in Ontario by Premier Hepburn.

Canadian Government Controls War Export Of All Minerals

COPPER CLIFF, Ont., March 16. —Canada's control of its mineral production, and the active co-operation of mineral producers, were revealed by Robert C. Stanley, president of The International Nickel Company of Canada, Limited, during the course of his annual report on that company's operations during 1939.

No exports of the company's nickel, copper or platinum is being made to any destinations outside the British Empire without government sanction, Mr. Stanley stated, and consumers of nickel in export markets are being supplied through a system control permits.

In the course of his statement, which revealed that 11,745 persons are employed by the company in Canada and 3,754 in Great Britain, Mr. Stanley stated:

"With the outbreak of war in September, our company was faced with many problems arising from market restrictions, currency and price controls by governmental authority, and a general readjustment of all activities to conform with wartime conditions. The first consideration was to render all possible assistance to His Majesty's governments in Canada and Great Britain by promptly furnishing supplies of nickel, copper and platinum metals required in their respective national programs.

"Government authorities have been extremely co-operative and through a system control permits consumers of nickel in export markets have been adequately supplied. No exports of any of the company's nickel, copper or platinum metals are being made to any destination outside the British Empire without governmental sanction."

Press Loving Cup

NEW YORK, March 16—(AP).—The Des Moines Register and Tribune was named to-day winner of Editor and Publisher's silver loving cup for all around newspaper promotion pre-eminence during 1939.

The Minneapolis Star-Journal won the second award for the best all around promotion. The two papers are owned by the Cowles family of Des Moines.

Millbrook Packs 90 Pair Socks And 13 Sweaters

MILLBROK, Mar. 16 (ENS).—A number of Red Cross workers gathered at the home of Mrs. R. A. Ford, convener of the wool supply, on Tuesday afternoon and packed ninety pairs of socks, three balaclava caps, thirteen sweaters, fourteen scarves, and thirty pairs of wristlets for sending on to headquarters at Toronto.

Just one month previously a somewhat similar large shipment of soldiers' supplies had been sent on to the head office.

According to word received from the delegates to the recent Red Cross convention in Toronto, Misses B. M. Turner and Josie Sutton, supplies of socks, sweaters, etc., are needed in ever increasing quantities, and local workers in the village and countryside are urged to continue their efforts so the Red Cross branch with headquarters at Millbrook may be able to carry on with its share of this worth-while work.

Ex-Warden W. T. Wood has been confined to bed for the past week, suffering with an attack of lumbago.

Dr. C. W. Walsh and Mrs. Walsh, of Vancouver, who have been visiting his brother, G. B. Walsh, K.C., of Toronto, owing to the illness of their mother, Mrs. Charlotte Walsh, were in the village on Tuesday, and were guests of Reeve W. E. and Mrs. Ball, calling also on Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Armstrong of Bailleboro and a number of other friends. Mrs. Walsh's sisters, Mrs. Dawson and Miss Florence Patterson, Reg. N., of Port Hope, accompanied them.

Among local Oddfellows who motored to Peterborough on Tuesday evening, and enjoyed a friendly series of carpetball games with the club at Knox United Church were Reeve W. E. Ball, W. A. Barringer, Wilfrid Elson, C. B. Sutton, E. L. Morden, Harold Tate, Roy Greer, Sandy Braithwaite, Leslie Unitt, Fred Elliott, T. W. Belch, and H. Elliott.

Harwood W.I. Honors Its Grandmothers

HARWOOD, March 16 — (ENS). The Grandmothers of the community were guests of honor at the March meeting of the W.I., which was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Glen Hogg. The president, Mrs. A. Lawton, presided.

The roll call was answered by "Something Grandmother Missed." In the business period the various committees reported on Red Cross work. It was decided to purchase another supply of wool and material to finish the Water Lily quilt which is being made, to raise Red Cross funds. The pyjamas were also distributed to be made up for soldiers.

The W.I. have planned a euchre and pie social to be held in the hall on Thursday, April 4. This will be in place of the annual open meeting.

The program consisted of a piano solo by Miss Marjorie McCulloch, and the paper was "What We Owe to Our Grandmothers," given by Mrs. R. MacLean. Mrs. Jack Robson sang a pleasing solo, "Little Old Lady," and Miss Dora O'Connel gave a reading, "Grandma's Glasses."

Mrs. McCulloch conducted a contest for the grandmothers. Each one in turn stood before a mirror and put beans in a jar on top of their head with a teaspoon, Mrs. L. R. Isaac being the winner. Another contest was won by Mrs. E. Drope and Dora O'Connell.

A pleasing part in the program was the presenting each honored guest with a picture, with suitable verse on each, by Mrs. F. McCulloch. On behalf of the grandmothers Mrs. A. Carruthers made suitable reply.

The meeting closed with refreshments and the usual social half hour.

Obituary

MRS. JAMES H. ANGUS.

WARKWORTH, March 16—(ENS) —The death of Mrs. James H. Angus who passed away Wednesday came as a shock to her many friends, although she had been ill for the past two months.

Before her marriage she was Loretta Quackenbush, and was born in Brighton. At a very early age she came to Warkworth, where she has lived ever since. She is survived by an adopted son, Gladson of Rochester and two brothers, Fayette Quackenbush of Elmira, Ont., and Harry Quackenbush of Heppner, Oregon.

The funeral is being held Friday at 2 p.m. from her late residence.

Fraser Rally Held At Roseneath

ROSENEATH, Mar. 16—(ENS)—A meeting in the interests of W. A. Fraser, Liberal candidate in the present election campaign was held in the Town Hall, Roseneath, on Tuesday night. On the platform with Mr. Fraser was J. Burnett of Cobourg, an ex-service man, who gave a short address on "Troops and Equipment." Mr. Fraser reviewed the work of the King Government in war activities previous to and following the outbreak of the war.

Andrew Brown acted as chairman.

1929 Fire Blamed On Tweed Woman

TWEED, March 16—(ENS) — A woman resident of the Tweed district has been arrested by Chief Constable J. C. Hayes, and has been charged with arson. The alleged offence took place over ten years ago, in 1929. The defendant was remanded to the County Jail, and later released on bail to appear in County Police Court before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd. It is alleged that the woman was responsible for destroying a township dwelling-house by fire. She was arrested by Chief Hayes following an investigation.

Just a Slip

CONCORD, N.C., March 16 (AP). Deputy I. J. Helms, about to arrest a man, read to him a warrant charging he attempted to "kiss his wife." Both men blinked at the accusation. The deputy checked back and found a typist's finger had slipped. The word should have been kill."

Urge Staggering To Enable Holidays In War

LONDON, March 16—(CP). — Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the Trades Union Congress, suggested today that workers' vacations be staggered between May and September to permit continuation of holidays during the war.

In his quarterly report on "The T.U.C. in wartime," Sir Walter said the congress had asked the government and employers for two important safeguards against exploitation.

"We asked employers to agree that if the trade union movement organizes a drive for voluntary savings and if the workers thereby acquire war savings, those savings will not be used against them in future wage negotiations," he said. "The British Employers' Federation has given us such a pledge and their undertaking will no doubt influence the attitude of their constituents.

"From the government we have asked for an undertaking that the savings wilul be completely disregarded in future applications for unemployment or public assistance should the persons concerned become subsequently unemployed.

"On the question of workers' holidays under war conditions, the problem bristles with difficulties. We find, however, there is still sufficient holiday accommodations in this country if the holidays are staggered from the beginning of May to the end of September.

"The sensible thing to do therefore is to arrange to spread the holidays over the five months mentioned."

Tobacco planters of Cuba have asked the Government to establish a bank for planters.

Saving Children

Natick, Mass., March 16 (AP) THE TOWN of Natick has appropriated $50 to make one of its streets bumpy. Such roadwork, proponents claim, will force automobiles to proceed at slow speed, thus ensuring the safety of children in the neighborhood.

Millbrook Y.P.U. Studies Culture

MILLBROOK, March 16—(ENS). —"Embarrassing Moments" was the subject for study at the weekly meeting of the Young People's Union on Tuesday at 8 p.m., the cultural convener, Jean Fisher, being in charge of the program.

The proper way of meeting people, in contrast to the wrong way; introductions correctly carried through; and other items of modern etiquette according to established standards, were among the demonstrations, and this discussed. Assisting the leader were Margaret Foster, Mary Dawson, Mary Muspratt and Jack Kidd.

The leader took the devotional period, Bible readings, the talk on the worship theme, and a final prayer circle, bringing the gathering to a close.

A quiz contest featured the half hour usually devoted to recreation, and the business conducted by the president, B. B. Dawson, included arrangements for an open service before church on Easter Sunday morning, and the presentation of the one-act comedy "Rooting for Ruth," on April 12, to which the public generally will be welcomed, a "treasure trail" being also a feature of the evening. The comedy will later be entered in the Peterborough Presbytery competition.

Hastings, Keene Young People Meet Tonight

HASTINGS, March 16—(ENS).—Fraternization of two church societies took place on Wednesday evening, when the Young People's Society of Trinity church were entertained by the kindred organization of the United church, Keene, the visitors providing an excellent program.

More than twenty-five young people made the trip from Keene. Miss Helen Collins, Hastings' president, extended a hearty welcome, after music had been played by the Hastings' orchestra, and community singing had been led by the Rev. J. E. Glover.

Miss Betty Brown, the Keene president, occupied the chair for the worship period in keeping with Easter. After the hymn "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," the Easter Scripture was read. Rev. Mr. Murray of Keene lead in prayer.

Miss Ruth Brown gave a reading "He Borrowed It." The hymn "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross," was followed by an explanation of the scripture about the Garden of Gethsemane by Joseph Bonard. The singing of "Low in the Grave He Lay," concluded the worship period.

Don Murray then played and sang "Jeanie With the Light Brown Hair." Kitchener Smith, recreational convener, conducted a quiz contest. Lunch served by the Hastings members proved a delightful time for all to become acquainted. The following impromptu program was then given: A piano solo by Don Murray; solo by Marvyn Preston; piano solo by Earl Darling; community singing of popular songs led by Rev J. E. Glover.

Forward With Canada's Soldiers

Cutting across party lines and personal friendships in this election is the determination of thousands of loyal Canadians, that the carrying on of Canada's war effort must be placed in more vigorous and efficient hands than those of Premier King.

There is nothing clearer at this stage of the campaign than that the electors have decided that King must go.

From across the Atlantic, from Aldershot where the first division of Canada's soldiers are in training has come the first sure evidence that Canadians are determined that Canada's part in the war must be whole-heatred, vigorous and effective, and that they believe Premier King has failed.

The soldiers, the Globe and Mail tells us, are voting for National Government.

Their reason is that they feel that there are many grievances that can be charged against the King administration and they are voting for a change.

Back on the home front Canadians are resolved to follow the example of Canada's sons in England.

Their slogan is not "Forward With Mackenzie King," but "Forward With Canada's Soldiers," and they are voting for National Government and a new deal.

Even the Liberal apologists for the Ottawa government have had a difficult time trying to explain and condone the failure of Mr. King to prepare for war and his attitude toward national and Empire defence. Down in their hearts they realize that he lacks the qualities necessary for war leadership and they realize that he has chosen to go to the country with a cabinet that has weak sisters in posts that should be filled by capable and qualified administrators.

The Canadian people know those things too and they have made up their minds that the only way they can get action is to vote for National government led by a fighting Canadian, Bob Manion.

In this riding it is the feeling that fighting the war with the utmost vigor is the only thing that matters that is responsible for the rising tide of Fraser support. The voters, despite the fine qualities and the popularity of the King candidate, have arrived at the decision that Canada's war effort is the all-important issue and that it is bigger than any other factor in the campaign.

That is why the electors are rallying to the support of the National Government and why on March 26 their votes will be cast for GORDON K. FRASER, National Government candidate.

—The Conservative Victory Committee.

Men On Service Made "M.P." In 1917 Voting

OTTAWA, March 16.—(CP)—Majority of successful candidates in the 1917 "Khaki Election" learned about their good fortune in Canada but records show at least six were on active service abroad when the results became known.

One of them, Hon. H. S. Beland, Liberal candidate in Bruce, was in a German prison camp when he was elected to the House of Commons. In 1911 he had been postmaster-general.

Others abroad were in trenches in France or in training in England. However, at least 27 members of the House of Commons who gained seats in the wartime election were engaged in military pursuits at one time or another during the First Great War.

Maj.-Gen. W. A. Griesbach, later to become a senator, was a successful soldier candidate while abroad, being elected as Union government member for Edmonton. He was in France at the time as was Col. Cyrus W. Peck, Unionist elected in Skeena. They won their seats when the soldier vote was counted after falling behind their opponents in the civilian voting.

The other successful candidate serving in France was Lt.Col. H. F. McLeod, Unionist in York-Sunbury, N.B.

In England on active service was Lt.-Col. H. B. Tremain, Unionist in Hants, N.S., who also gained his seat as a result of the soldier vote. He is a National Government candidate in the coming election for the seat he won in 1917.

Three other war candidates successful in 1917 again will seek seats in the forthcoming Dominion election. They are National Government Leader Manion, Postmaster General C. G. Power of Quebec and Lt.-Col. Thomas A. Vien, Liberal member for Outremont in the last parliament who raised two units for overseas in the First Great War.

Dr. Manion, now National Government leader, returned home from overseas before the 1917 election and was elected as Unionist member in Fort William-Rainy River while Postmaster-General Power, who enlisted as a private in Toronto and attained the rank of major, gained a seat as a Liberal for Quebec South in the 1917 election after being invalided home with wounds.

Others Elected In 1917

Among the soldier candidates who had returned home at the time of the 1917 election were G. W. Andrews, elected as a Unionist in Winnipeg Centre after overseas service with the 90th Winnipeg Rifles, and Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, independent candidate in St. Laurent-St. George who raised a service battalion.

Captain Robert Blake was a surgeon in the 100th Winnipeg Light Infantry and won a parliamentary seat as Unionist in Winnipeg North. Major Gustave Boyer, successful as a Liberal in Vaudreuil-Soulanges, was second in command of the 17th Regiment, Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars.

Captain J. H. Burnham, Unionist in Peterborough, was a member of the 93rd Battalion and returned to Canada in 1917 as did Lt.-Col. Hugh Clark, Unionist in Bruce North, and officer commanding the 32nd Regiment.

Lt.-Col. W. F. Cockshutt, Unionist in Brantford, returned to Canada a month before the election after raising the 125th Battalian and Lt.-Col. R. C. Cooper, Unionist in Victoria, was overseas with the 7th Battalion in 1914.

Major E. E. Fraser, Unionist in Welland, served with the Army Dental Corps in Military District No. 12 after returning to Canada in December, 1917, while Hon. Sir E. A. Kemp, Unionist in Toronto, was minister of Canadian military forces in the United Kingdom, when elected.

Lt.-Col. Norman Lang, Humboldt Unionist, served in France and Belgium with the 65th Battalion and returned to Canada shortly before the election. Captain (Dr.) Peter McGibbon, Unionist in Muskoka, served in France with an Imperial regiment and Maj.-Gen. Hon. S. C. Newburn was director general of Canada defence forces at home when he was elected as Unionist in Hamilton East.

Major D. Lee Redman, Unionist in Calgary East, was wounded at St. Julien in 1915 and had returned to Canada. Major E. Savard, Liberal in Chicoutimi-Saguenay, was surgeon-major of the 18th Regiment while William Smith, Unionist in Ontario East, served as paymaster of the 34th Regiment.

Lt.-Col. J. A. Currie, Unionist elected in Simcoe North, took the 48th Highlanders to France in 1915, and was invalided home a few months later. Captain J. W. Brien, Unionist in Essex South also was invalided home before the election.

Lt.-Col. J. L. Chabot, officer commanding Ottawa General Military Base Hospital in 1917 ran as Unionist candidate and was elected to one of the two Ottawa seats, where Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Liberal leader was defeated. Sir Wilfrid had a seat, however, for Quebec East, where he had a 6,395 majority.

MYSTERY NIGHT AT Y.M.

Sunday night is mystery night at the Y.M.C.A. here. When the Friendly Hour Song Service opens at 8.30 p.m., those in attendance aren't going to be sure just what is to happen next. For the program is under direction of the Hi-Y Club and a record attendance is expected. Proceeds from the silver collection will be in aid of the Y's world service program.

REGISTRATION COMPLETED.

Members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade here have completed their registration service to Canada in war time, and all forms have now been forwarded to Ottawa. The form is of elaborate detail, tells even what fraternal or social organizations a member of the unit is associated with as well as what qualifications in first aid he has earned. The government now has complete details regarding a large number of men who are skilled in first aid work.

DOES NOT GET THE BREAKS.

Hard luck is dogging the steps of Charles Farnham, 264 Aylmer Street. Last fall he was struck by a car and lay in St. Joseph's Hospital until Christmas as the result of severe injuries sustained. Since that time he has been recovering at his home and lately has felt well enough to consider starting back to work at his old job with G. Whitaker and Sons, wool importers. Preparatory to taking on full-time work, he has been dropping into the office a couple of days a week, whenever he felt able. Yesterday he slipped outside his home and broke his left wrist.

For giving the correct answer to a biblical reference to birds Allan Gleeson received from the lecturer a bird book. James Doran expressed the apreciation of the pupils and teachers by moving a vote of thanks to Mr. Kay.

TRAVELLERS PICNIC.

July 10th has been chosen as the day for the annual Travellers' Good-Will Picnic at Cobourg Park. The purpose of the picnic is to provide a day of entertainment for the orphans from Peterborough, Cobourg, Oshawa and Port Hope. 200 underprivileged children from the counties of Durham and Northumberland will also be entertained. This event has gained in popularity with the passing of the years and elaborate plans have been outlined for this year's outing.

EXIT MR. SNOWMAN.

A delivery boy for a local drugstore who lived on Simcoe Street, is in a wrathy mood this morning. As was reported in Friday's Examiner, he had built a huge snowman in front of his home and hung a sign around its neck, which read "Vote for Fraser." Last night about ten o'clock two women noticed the snowman and the sign as they passed and promptly demolished it. "The first wallop knocked the snowman's head off," said the boy, and the sign was buried beneath the snow.

WEATHER DATA REFUSED

A. O. Phillips, official weather recorder for Peterborough, knows the extent of the secrecy, since the outbreak of war, that surrounds weather reports in England. He has been in the custom of trading his year's summary of Peterborough weather with the weather recorder of an English community. This year he sent his data as usual, but received in return, besides the thanks of his English friend, regrets that he was "not able to give you any details of Blackpool's weather owing to the fact that this station is now under the direct control of the Air Ministry, and all weather data is strictly secret."

Peterborough Symphony Orchestra Delights Audience With Program

With a program of sustained and ingratiating melody the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of A. E. Paterson, delighted a large audience Friday night in the Collegiate Institute auditorium. It was the annual appearance of a group of instrumentalists in whom local music lovers have hopes for the permanent establishment of symphonic art in this city. In this concert there was fresh evidence of progress and fulfilment of expectations, in spite of the distractions of the season which began last September.

The orchestra was splendidly assisted by Mrs. James Goldie, soprano, and George Coleman, baritone.

The program opened with an added number, "Land of Hope and Glory," and continued as follows: The overture to Norma; Tosselli's serenade, and a march "El Abanico"; Waltz of the Flowers by Tschaikowsky; "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," arranged by Mr. Paterson; a suite of four Indian love lyrics by Woodforde-Finden, Temple Bells, Less Than the Dust, Kahmiri Song "Pale Hands" and Till I Wake; "Perpetuum Mobile," a humorske by Strauu; Valse Triste by Silbelius, as a tribute to Finland; overture to The Marriage of Figaro by Mozart; Entr'acte gavotte from "Mignon"; a selection of English songs and a French march "Lorraine."

The personnel of the orchestra included in the violin section, Mrs. E. M. Foster, leader; R. C. Searles, George Gatfield, G. Dawson, H. McDonald, J. R. Hendeson, S. Pearson, B. Wardle, Miss R. Fisher J. Doran, G. Biggs, S. Clark C. Rusaw, Miss M. C. Corkery, J. McLaren, J. Murphy.

Violas, R. Gillespie and C. Gallagher; 'cello, Tom Smith.

Bass, Fred Skitch.

Clarinet, L. Wells; flute, C. Crowley; saxaphone, Miss M. Foster.

Bassoon, F. Hully; trumpets, H. Wilson, Will Forde and his young son, Don Forde.

Trombones, E. Dolman and J. McBride. Tuba, H. Hutchinson. Percussion, S. Smith; piano, Mrs. R. C. Searles. Miss F. Wells is alternate pianiste.

The overture of Bellini's opera "Norma" struck the dominant note of the concert. Its charming melody was played with pleasing grace and assurance and well knit instrumentation, marked by beauty of tone in the strings. Tosselli's Serenade was a delicate gossamer of sentiment that was sweetly sung by the orchestra. The most colorful number of the program was probably the Waltz of the Flowers from "The Nutcracker" suite, reflecting in some of its phrases the fine quality of the reeds, clarinet, flute, bassoon and saxaphone. Its principal waltz theme was played with a broad flowing movement.

Apparently Mr. Paterson has a flair for what might be classed as light and playful ideas. The clever bit of humor, a gifted composer's prankish making fun of the notion of perpetual motion in Johann Strauss' "Perpetuum Mobile," was tossed off with sparkling merriment, in contrast with the brooding pathos of the Valse Triste written by Finland's great musician, Jan Silbelius. The other number spun additional threads of melody into the orchestral performance. Incidentally the "Rule Britannia" of the medley of English songs obviously roused the patriotic spirit of the audience in its defiance to enemies of their freedom.

The orchestra gave a good account of itself last night. Mr. Paterson kept it modestly within its present limits, but it displays so much enthusiasm and ability that its admirers naturally wish its instruments were more numerous. One selection in which a greatly body of tone was missed was in the Waltz of the Flowers.

Mr. Paterson's arrangement of "God Save the King" was adequately expressive of its hymnal appeal. Perhaps that is what it should be, prayerful rather than assertive and challenging. Mr. Paterson, of course, raises his voice in his delivery of the national anthem, but not with the same dynamic reaction upon the spirit that Mrs. Park calls forth from her choir. There are members of the orchestra who should be singled out for special mention. Without them it would disintegrate, but with their continued interest and influence it has marked off definite accomplishment in this difficult year. If approval of their contribution to the symphonic form of music in Peterborough is a stimulus to them, they received a generous measure of it last night; but there should be even stronger encouragement to them in the association with them of those younger players who were noticed in their company.

Mrs. James Goldie sang three songs, "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from Samson and Delilah; "Arise, O Sun," and "Think Of Me." Her voice is fresh, clear and sweet soprano, possessed of adequate power as in her first number, with a beauty of texture reaching into her top notes, and with a moving tenderness and depth of feeling as in the old Scottish plea for the memory of affection in 'Think of Me." Mr. Coleman sang "The Lost Chord," "The Green Dragon" and "Hills of Home," with pleasing expression.

Advance Poll Opens March 22

An advance poll for travellers and other electors who by reason of their occupation do not expect to be here on Tuesday, March 26 will be held on Friday and Saturday, March 22 and 23 in the office of Vincent Eastwood, returning officer, room 15 of the Bank of Commerce building.

This advance poll will be open on both days from 2 p.m. until 10 p.m.

This accommodation applies to persons engaged as commercial travellers or employees of railways, vessels, airships and even transport trucks, only by reason of the necessities of their occupations, "and if he has reason to believe that he will be absent on polling day from, and that is likely to be unable to vote on that day, in the polling division on the list for which his name appears."

Some person called Mr. Eastwood Friday enquiring whether he could vote at the advance poll because he expected to be in a hospital for an operation on election day. The reply was that nothing in the Elections Act provided for that deviation, and that the elector would simply have to pass up voting. The advance poll, it was explained, is only a provision to meet the special requirements of certain occupations.

FIRE CHIEF RETIRES

MELBOURNE — (CP). — Fire Chief J. T. Wilkins has retired after seeing Melbourne's brigade grow from an organization of 36 men to a modern well-equipped unit. He joined the force in 1891, and is retiring for reasons of health.

Transient Given Month In Jail

The thirsty habits of two transients, more or less well known in Peterborough, has caused them to be withdrawn from circulation for a while.

This morning Thomas Gorman pleaded guilty to having been drunk here Friday. He also admitted that he had been convicted of the same offence before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., on February 26.

"I have to be more severe when it is the second offence," Magistrate Langley pointed out.

"I can't help it; I was drunk," replied Gorman.

Magistrate Langley fined him $50 and costs or a month in jail ,and he accepted the latter alternative.

J. J. O'Brien, another transient, also pleaded guilty to having been drunk.

"This man is a nuisance," said Chief Newhall. "He was drunk and begging."

"I wasn't begging; I was selling shoe laces," replied O'Brien, "and some of your Peterborough bums were begging off me."

The wanderer's plea to be allowed to go on condition that he got out of town fell on deaf ears, for the magistrate fined him $10 and $4.50 costs or ten days.

Godfrey Matthews Brass Band Prexy

Godfrey Matthews was re-elected president of the Peterborough Brass Band at its annual meeting last night. Other officers are Walter Dark, bandmaster; Thomas Craig, deputy bandmaster; Frank Smith, secretary-treasurer, and the members of the executive are: Bert Brindle, Joseph Murphy, Robert Raine, Murray Belch, and Librarians Ernest and Roland Halcrow.

Mr. Dark thanked the bandsmen and officers for their co-operation during the year. Mr. Matthews also expressed his appreciation of the support that had been given to him, and hoped that further progress would be made this summer. The band is looking forward to a more active season, and is in a much improved position for engagements and other local work.

CARS COLLIDE

Automobiles owned by Raymond Rowland, Fraserville, and Mrs. Jean Wolfe, Downie street, collided on Charlotte street Thursday night and $40 damage was done to the latter machine. Poor visibility on account of the snowstorm was blamed for the accident.

With Peterborough Boys

Official records reveal that at the present time there are only three Peterborough boys with the Cobourg Battery, C.A.S.F. The three are Gunners G. R. Farthing and W. J. H. McClennan and A-Bdr. George T. Carey.

Dave House, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick House, 478 Aylmer street. Dave's father is a war veteran, who was a member of the 1st Division in World War I, enlisting with the 48th Highlanders in Toronto. Dave is also a member of the Picton unit.

Jim Sloane, son of Mrs. Margaret Sloane, 316 Water street, is with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Tony Basciano, son of Michael Basciano, 549 Elm street, who enlisted last week with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Jim Beattie, A.C. 1 (Aircraftsman) of 25 Lisburn street Peterborough is another local boy now wearing the uniform of the air force whose name has not appeared in this column before.

Four Peterborough men and one from Millbrook are listed on the strength of the 45th Field Battery at Lindsay which is an active service unit. They are as follows: Gunner J. C. Callaghan, 411 London street, Gunner C. G. Martin, R.R. 3, Peterborough, Gunner J. A. Nicholson, 17 High street, Peterborough, and Gunner B. K. Reid, 508 Parnell street. Gunner J. L. Peel is from Millbrook.

Roy Hope 219 Stewart street, well known local boxer who is now with the Toronto Scottish, is at home on leave over the week-end and will rejoin his unit on Monday.

Roy Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson, Western avenue is with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. He sailed with the first division and is now stationed with the Canadian troops at Aldershot. His wife who was formerly Lilian Cooke, also lives in this city.

We have finally got this Dave McCullough tangle straightened out. Our first information was that he was in the 48th Highlanders, later a member of his family advised us that Dave had withdrawn his application, but now it is known definitely that Dave is with the Toronto Scottish.

Clifford Smith, 254 Euclid Ave. is another recruit with the 48th Highlanders and is now stationed at Toronto.

Leo (Red) Feeley, well-known fisherman from the south end of the city who caught more pickerel perhaps than even Jesse Airries, enlisted with the 48th Highlanders this week. Red was pretty angry when the Toronto Scottish turned him down, but he managed to get into the 48th.

Bob Hewett, son of Dr. C. D. Hewett, is now a full fledged corporal with the 48th Highlanders. He enlisted as a private.

Pte. Roy Hope of the Toronto Scottish was generous in his praise of the Salvation Army for the work they are doing at Toronto where more than 3,500 men are in uniform. He explained that the Salvation Army arranged free pictures shows every night for the soldiers, provided free socks and sweaters and plenty of writing materials. They serve doughnuts and coffee free of charge every night between 8:45 and ten o'clock. This week they brought Cab Calloway, popular orchestra leader and his band to the Exhibition Grounds and also had the Happy Gang in to entertain the soldiers. "The Sally Anns are doing a good job and they are only ones who are looking after the soldiers at Toronto," he said.

Archie McBride, son of Mrs. A. McBride, 183 Stewart street, is now with the Toronto Scottish and will be home on leave next week-end. He was employed at the De Laval Company and was presented with a pen and pencil set by his fellow workers when he left to join up.

Pte John Butterworth of Hastings village and now at Aldershot with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment wrote an interesting letter to his friend Berkeley Boyle recently. The letter says in part: "You will probably know that our pay has been cut in two, one half being kept until we return and the $18 a month has proven insufficient in this land of high taxes. How the Imperials get along on what they receive is more than I can tell you. The pawn shops do a roaring business about five days before payday taking in watches and all sorts of punk the boys bring into raise money for shows, tobacco and dates with the girl friends.

English tobacco is terrible and the mail does not come in fast enough to satisfy the boys. The new system of sending cigarettes overseas is splendid for the lucky fellows who have people sending them the smokes.

Our barracks are comfortable and there are no rations for us. We have a radio in every room and if it were not for the news we get on the radio we would never know there is a war on; in fact I think there is more excitement in Canada.

The Y.M.C.A. has a large canteen on the corner of the block and free shows and plays are produced every night for the special recreation of the Canadian troops. This is the spot where the overseas broadcasts are made, and we have plenty of fun playing indoor games with equipment supplied by the Y.M.C.A."

Recruiting is underway at the Peterborough Armouries for the H.P.E. Regiment and the quota is 150 men. Enlisting started on Thursday of this week and will continue until the number required have been accepted.

INCHINNAN, England—(CP). — Sixth holder of his title to die in 32 years, Rev. Lord Blythswood was succeeded by his son. Lord Blythswood was an Anglican clergyman prominent in social welfare work.

Salvation Army Campaign Goes Over Top

A lusty cheer went up Friday night at the Empress Hotel as the Salvation Army's drive soared far over the top of its $10,000-dollar objective on the fifth day of the Peterborough drive.

Canvessers attended a Victory dinner and leaders called out the amount each group had collected in the short period. As the total kept climbing higher a slight hope that the campaign would be concluded before the meeting was over began to be felt, and finally the figure of $10,000 was reached and topped. When it climbed to $11,533.87 there was unlimited rejoicing by the canvassers, who were lauded for their work in the campaign by Chairman C. A. Salmonsen and Adjutant Norman Buckley.

Its objective topped by $1,533.87, the Salvation Army has yet to receive all cards that are still out. Adjutant Buckley asked that these cards be turned in as soon as possible. All surplus will be used to make up the deficit in centres where the return falls short of the objective, he said.

Well Organized

The drive was one of the most successful to be staged in Peterborough in years. Its organization was the most workmanlike, its canvassers represented the widest possible field of endeavor in the city. The framework, under which the working population of the city was broken up into trades and professions, with a leader in each being responsible for his particular trade's suscriptions, appeared more smooth-running than elaborate and certainly was instrumental in bringing the drive to its successful end.

W.A. Arranges For Red Cross Sewing

A committee for Red Cross sewing at the Public Library on Wednesday, with Mrs. J. Londerville as convener, was appointed at a meeting of the Women's Association of Knox Church, held Thursday afternoon with a fine attendance of members.

Mrs. J. Gerard was in charge of the devotional period, which opened with the reading "What Christ Means to Me." Mrs. Foster read the scripture lesson, and Mrs. Gerard gave an interesting talk on "Contrasts of God's Love" by Paul, which was followed by prayer.

The visiting committee reported a large number of calls during the month, with flowers and fruit sent to the sick and shut-ins. A number of letetrs of thanks were read.

A rummage sale was planned for April 16, and several banquets to be catered for in the near future were arranged for. These included the banquet for the W.A. bowling club, to be held on April 2, also the Y.P.U. convention in Knox Church on March 29.

Diocesan President Visits Sub-Division

At the March meeting of the Sacred Heart sub-division of the Catholic Women's League, the Diocesan president, Miss Emma V. Kennedy of Lakefield, Mrs. Lynch, diocesan treasurer and convenor of Citizenship and War Service and Mrs. Geo. Charlton, Lakefield, president were present.

Reverend J. J. O'Brien the chaplain expressed his pleasure in being present and also welcomed the visitors. Mrs. Conlin the efficient president was in the chair. The business related to the distribution of good literature and to the Sisters of Service in their work. It was quite evident that a whole hearted interest is being taken in parochial work, missionary endeavour and education.

The meeting was briefly addressed by the diocesan president who pointed out that the Catholic Women's League is a national organization with an affiliated membership of 25 million.

Mrs. Lynch in speaking to the ladies made a very clear explanation of the procedure in conducting nominations and elections. She earnestly advised the ladies to not shirk the responsibility of holding office and to live up to the high ideals of the League which is service to God and country. Mrs. Geo. Charlton also spoke a few words of her appreciation of her visit to the Sacred Heart sub division.

The meeting was adjourned with the reciting of the memorare.

Guiding Further Ahead Locally Than Ever Before

The annual meeting of the Girl Guide Association was held in St. Andrew's Hall on Wednesday evening. The resignation of Mrs. P. Gray was regretfully received. Mrs. Grey, who has been a helpful president of the Mothers' Auxillary, is forced to resign through ill health. The resignation of Mrs B Ottewell as Badge secretary was read, and the suggestion made that Mrs S. Buckley be appointed for this office Mrs. R. Whalon was nominated as District Commissioner. The motion was seconded by Captain Mrs W Jones of 4th Company. The duties of a commissioner were outlined by the District Captain, who stated that she would have to be assured of entire co-operation before taking over the position of Commissioner

Announcement was made that instruction in all First Class Work would be given on Friday evenings to Guides interested in Needlewoman's badge examination is to be held in St. Andrew's Hall on March 27th

The report of 1st Company activities was given by their Captain. A busy and successful year was reported The Guides have been of great assistance to other organizations in the past year by helping with Tag Days, working at socials, donations to charitable organizations, etc. The mothers were requested to make a special effort to obtain better attendance at Church parades in future. A service will be held in the Salvation Army Temple some time in May. Special mention was made of the rally held in the Temple on February 12. Particularly interesting was the announcement that the tenth anniversary of Guiding in Peterborough would be observed on June 19th. It was suggested that Mrs. R. Whalon approach the Woman's Auxiliary to 2nd Company and find out definitely what its intentions were concerning a meeting place by this Company.

1st and 2nd Companies are now knitting for the Red Shield Auxiliary. Already 15 pairs of wristlets, 2 pairs of gloves and 1 scarf have been completed.

A report of 3rd Company was read by Mrs. Douglas, Captain. A report of 1st Pack Brownies was given by I. Houghton. 3rd Pack Brownies were represented by Mrs. White.

During Mrs. Jones' report a number of good suggestions were made in regard to helping Company work. 4th Company has had a successful year. Twenty-four service stars will be awarded within this Company on March 29th, which is a fine record Prizes are to be given to three Guides for attendance. Out of 48 meetings two Guides have attended 47 and one attended 46. A thank-you was extended to the mothers for the turnout to help them with their rally, and it was stated that requests have been made for a similar evening in the future.

Although the year has been a difficult one for the Association in various ways, it was agreed that Guiding is much further ahead locally than it has ever been before.

Reports Tell Of "Y" Work Among Troops

Extracts of reports from England, Halifax and Ottawa, telling of Y.M.C.A. work among soldiers, were read by Mr. G. H. Roper Friday afternoon at a business meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y.M.C.A. Of particular interest was the news from Ottawa, which came directly from Major C. Warrander, former Salvation Army Adjutant in Peterborough. Major Warrander tells of the excellent co-operation between the Salvation Army and Y.M.C.A. in their work among soldiers at the barracks and training camps.

Mrs. F. L. Robinson, president, was in the chair for the meeting. An Easter message was brought during the devotional period, conducted by Mrs. S. D. Carver.

A garden party in the early summer will be arranged by the executive, and a spring tea is to be held in the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday, April 2. Mrs. Carver was appointed representative to the Local Council of Women.

Worry Exhausts the Nerves

Only in recent years have the serious consequences of worry and nervous disorders been fully realized. And as they are realized, the value of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food becomes better and better appreciated.

Worry makes you nervous and irritable and sleepless. It destroys memory and the ability to concentrate the mind. It ruins digestion and makes you feel tired and downhearted and discouraged. Why not fight off worry by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore nerve force to the exhausted nervous system?

You will not be using it long before you find yourself resting and sleeping better, less irritable and nervous and looking on the bright side again. Your friends will soon tell you how much better you are looking and you will know again the joy of healthful living.

CANDLES for four and a new birthday frock . . . what more could any little girl ask? This style of permanently-finished organdy is one of a number chemically - printed, the motif being small daisies bright eyes will easily pick out and appreciate. The neck and hem are finished with tucked shirring and narrow Val lace, and sleeves are puffed. Mother doesn't have to have a French maid to be assured such frocks will come out of the suds smiling.

Branch Notes

On Thursday evening, the Peterborough District Council of the A.Y.P.A. held its annual Lenten rally in the picturesque little church of St. George's, Peterborough. The Rev. T. H. Floyd, rector of St. George's Church, conducted the service, with the district council president, Les. Cavalier, and the Rev. R. T. F. Brain, of St. John's Church, Peterborough, reading the lessons.

The guest preacher for the occasion was the Rev. J. J. E. Mason, newly-appointed rector of St. Paul's Church, Bethany. Mr. Mason gave a very instructive and inspirational address to the young people present at the service. He stressed the fact that the young people of today must realize their part in the scheme of things, especially in the work of the Church, since their motto was "For Christ and the Church". They must also have the consciousness of the presence of the Holy Spirit within themselves and that with this consciousness we would have peace and hope and strength to accomplish those things which Christ would have us do.

After the service, the gathering assembled in the basement of the church for a business meeting of the council, with the president in the chair. During the business session, a letter of resignation from the council chaplain was received. Later in the evening on the recommendation of the nominations chairman, the Rev. J. J. E. Mason, of Bethany, was duly elected to take over this office.

The chairman again stressed the importance of subscribing to the "Western Hope Fund" by the individual branches. Mr. Nelson Hewitt was asked to represent the district council at the forthcoming diocesan conference to be held in Toronto, April 5, 6 and 7. Invitations were available to those who had not received them for the District Council's first annual at home to be held in the Canadian Legion Hall shortly. A vote of thanks was expressed to the guest preacher for the service for his address and also to St. Georges Church for the kind co-operation in allowing the council the use of the church for the rally. Mr. Mason closed the business session with prayer.

St. George's A.Y.P.A. then served refreshments to the gathering which were very much appreciated. Mr. Nelson Hewitt thanked the Branch for their hospitality on behalf of the Council and members.

Bright Windows Interest The Easter Shopper

Hundreds of people the country over are crowding the fashion departments of their local stores, pausing eagerly before windows bright with color, hurrying into smart shops where special displays tempt with their beautifully matched accessories and costumes. Everywhere there is a festive spirit that only Spring and an early Easter can bring!

Gayest of the displays are the millinery windows and here Spring is most evident, for new hats are bright with masses of fruits and flowers, gay floating veils and ribbons. Accessories in lovely suede yellows, blues or coral tones are posed against smart trim costumes of navy and black.

Costume suits and new "little suits" have found such great popularity with local shoppers that merchants predict it will again be a "suit Easter." Shown in all the new misty blues, fog greys, a flattering new khaki shade, as well as in the ever-popular navy and black, Spring suits find favor with shoppers of every age and type.

Accessories chosen to go with suits are perfectly matched in new kid or suede leathers, and new fabric accessories or shining patents brighten up other costumes. Shoes conform to simple styles, and hosiery comes in a new range of "sunny" shades. Jewelry sparkles at every neckline, often with crisp frilly lingerie collars on dark frocks.

Many shoppers select their own Spring suit costumes or ensembles, thus getting more color into the wardrobe. Simple "little suits" are selected in colorful woollens to be worn under plain swaggers or fitted coats. Matching print or pastel frocks give a complete wardrobe and create more than one costume ensemble.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL.

A number of serums for the prevention of communicable diseases were explained, and directions given for the management of the sick room by Miss E. G. Young, director of nursing education at Nicholls Hospital, who was guest speaker Wednesday evening at the March meeting of Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association.

Current events, in which the situation in the Near East was particularly referred to, were outlined by the school principal, Mr. W. G. Rome, B.A.

During the musical part of the program Mrs. T. Davies sang in sweet voice two favorite numbers, "Beautiful Dreamer" and "Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair." Miss Jean O'Neil pleased her audience with two guitar solos, "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," and "My Wild Irish Rose."

A vote of thanks to the guest speaker and those taking part in the program was expressed by the president, Mrs. A. Brown, who presided for routine business, when reports of interest were given by Mrs. G. Simpson and Mrs. O. Deyell.

We Noticed

Military buttons are being shown on suits and coats—and look pretty smart! Some round gilt ones look like exact copies of those on naval officers' uniforms . . . with anchors and everything . . . and there are also some plain gold disks in various sizes.

Another smart button consists of a large stud with an accompanying gold hook that clasps around it.

Among the flower buttons there is a series of scarlet pimpernels, in sprays with two flowers and leaves, and links of single blossoms joined together with a chain. These would look cheerful on a soft grey dress, or a print with red somewhere in the design.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 17

Sunday's horoscope hold testimonies of rather peculiar experiences. These may have either occult, spiritual or revolutionary angles which are difficult to interpret. Personal research or group work of a humane or reformatory social nature is indicated. Higher and subtle forces and creative urges are involved, but in all be wise with superiors and wary of deception.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of experiences out of the routine, with activities in unfamiliar avenues. New, original or unique projects may thrive, especially if in co-operation with groups or associates of high social and reformatory ideals. But be tactful with superiors and alert to subtlety, intrigue and duplicity.

A child born on this day may be blessed with original talents and faculties of an intellectual and creative expression. It may progress in some novel line, despite opposition or lack of support.

For Monday, March 18

Monday's astrological forecast is for a successful, progressive and pleasant day, with much stirring to promote good fortune and personal well being. The young and adventurous, with flares of genius and orignality, are under excellent sway for achievement and gratification, with romance, possibly matrimony, in the forefront. Elders and feminine influence are propitious.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of promise and achievement, with personal gratifications and pleasures. There will be success through originality and ingenuity, with intellectual as well as creative inspiration, elders and superiors supporting. Romance and emotional adventures are likely, with the young having especial significance and expression. But shun extravagance and over-enthusiasm.

A child born on this day may have great versatility and creative ability of a scientific and intellectual nature. It may be kindly, humane, generous, popular and gay.

Bowling Prizes Presented At Banquet

The bowling club of Queen Alexandra School held its annual banquet Friday evening in the Kindergarten room. Covers were laid for sixty tables, which were decorated with pots of Primula, yellow candles, and streamers of green and yellow. A silver basket of tulips, narcissus and daffodils adorned the head table, at which were seated Mrs. R. Parnell, president of the Home and School Council; Mrs. V. R. Hendry, president of the Queen Alexandra Home and School; Mrs. J. C. Bateson, bowling club convener; Mrs. W. G. Morrow, Mrs. G. S. Kingdon and Mrs. A. Buck, members of the recreation committee in charge of banquet arrangements; Mrs. A. Nelson, secretary of the Home and School Association; Mrs. F. Barrett, treasurer, and Mrs. J. E. Anglin, press secretary.

Mrs. Hendry, association president, congratulated the bowling club convener, Mrs. Bateson on the club's success. Bowling prizes were presented by Mrs. Bateson as follows: Mrs. G. S. Kingdon's rink, first; Miss L. Telford's rink, second; Mrs. C. Foster's rink, third; consolation prize, Mrs. F. Barne's rink; regular attendance prize, Miss L. Telford. Rink leaders made suitable replies to presentation.

In appreciation of her work in connection with the club, Mrs. J. C. Bateson was presented with an umbrella by Mrs. D. P. Dickson.

The program following the banquet included community singing, a grand promenade; musical chairs; music quiz contest, and a string contest.

A Woman Can Be Happy Only When She Does Useful Work. Idleness Brings on Neurotic Conditions and Fills Divorce Court—Today's Letter Box.

Dear Dorothy Dix—What does a woman do when her husband is too good to her? Ten years ago I married a man who has not only given me love and kindness but has swamped me in luxuries — fine houses, cars, clothes, jewels, trips to Europe, everything. Well, after ten years of this harem-like existence, with nothing on earth to do but to amuse myself, I am about ready for a padded cell. I used to have a quick fine mind. Now I am so dull and stupefied with idleness and easy living that I even bore myself. I can't do things that I know are utterly useless. I have tried to knit, crochet, play golf, anything to while away the time, and I am so tired of it all that I envy every $15-a-week shop-girl who has something to do and the necessity for doing it. My husband doesn't want me to do anything but adorn his home and smile and be amusing when he comes home. He doesn't approve of social work or anything of that sort, and he doesn't understand why I am not singing peans of gratitude because he makes it possible for me to live a life of complete idleness. What must I do? Shall I get a divorce, or stay on and turn into a neurotic fool? I have no desire to look around for romance because I love my husband, but his pampering of me, his insistence on making me live his idea of the perfectly happy woman's existence is driving me mad. CAESAR'S WIFE

ANSWER:

I guess the Caesars of the world have always insisted on their wives leading the kind of life they thought a woman should lead instead of the kind of life a woman wanted to lead herself. There isn't much that the wife can do about it unless she gets so desperate that she jumps the bars and smashes up the household. But she doesn't want to do that because she realizes that poor, old, blundering Caesar is patting himself on the back for being such a good, kind husband who does all of his wife's thinking for her and leaves her nothing to do but to suck her thumbs.

Since the beginning of time men's conception of being kind to women has been to keep them in idleness. Virtually every husband is working himself to death to keep his wife from having any good, honest, worthwhile work to do. He thinks he shows his affection by slaving to provide her with servants so that all she will have to do is to be like the lady in the fairy tale who sat on a silk cushion and sewed up a seam and fed upon strawberries, sugar and cream. Only now she doesn't even sew up a seam. She buys 'em readymade.

Every man knows that he would go crazy if he had nothing to do that was interesting and constructive, and that made him feel that he was doing a useful job that justified his living. He knows he would scream if when he got up in the morning, he had nothing to do but to think about how he would kill the day. But he does not understand that an intelligent, healthy, energetic woman feels just the same way and that she also has to bite her tongue to keep from screaming when she has nothing useful to do.

This idea men have that women should be kept in idleness is at the bottom of half the trouble with women and the messes they get themselves into. They are peevish and fretful because they have nothing interesting to do or think about. They become neurotic invalids who enrich doctors and fill sanatoriums because all they have to do is to sit up and think about their symptoms. All of us have seen invalids who were miraculously cured by having to get up out of bed and go to work when some financal calamity befell them.

And it is the idle women who fill the divorce courts. Women who have to do their own cooking and washing and baby-tending don't have time to worry about whether their husbands are their real soul-mates or not.

The best way to keep a wife happy and contented is to give her plenty of work to do. And that is the thought I commend to all married men.

Dear Miss Dix—My wife and I have been married six years and have loved each other dearly and been very happy. Recently, however, she has gone to work and has fallen in love with her boss. She is asking me for a divorce and wants it as quickly as possible. I have a good job and am able to take care of her, and I have pleaded with her to come back to me, but she says she doesn't love me any more. She has consulted a lawyer and is asking him to fix up some sort of an agreement so that the divorce can be obtained immediately. She has no grounds for a divorce and I don't want one. What shall I do?

BROKEN-HEARTED HUSBAND

ANSWER:

Stand firm. Don't give her a divorce. Make her wait and she will almost surely come back to you. She is carried away now with the excitement of having some man flatter her and make love to her. It makes her feel like a girl again, but that will all pass and she will realize that you are only one whom she really loves.

There wouldn't be so many divorces if people would only give themselves time to think it over and let their temperatures get down to normal again.

Dear Miss Dix—Due to an insane craving I have for gambling I have lost the one I love the most. She knows my passion for gambling and I have promised her time and again that I would quit. When I broke my promises she has always forgiven me and given me another chance, but this time she refused even to listen to my pleas. Life won't be worth living if I can't share it with her. Can you advise me how to rewin her love? EDWARD.

ANSWER:

The only way you can do it is by giving up gambling. Evidently you realize yourself that you haven't the strength of character to do that, so if you really love the girl the best way you can prove it is by not trying to persuade her to marry you. For no fate can befall a woman that is worse than being a gambler's wife.

The girl shows her good sense in refusing to believe your promises of reforming. You will not keep them.

DOROTHY DIX.

FASHIONS

Your new two-piece dress features a slim basque blouse in the new longer length, and a gently flared skirt. Inverted pleats at the bottom of the jacket give you the new curved through the hips silhouette, so important this season. You may have a tiny band of white and a dainty bow at the neck-line, or a V-neck with a small shawl collar. The pattern includes long, short and three-quarter length sleeves. You may make it up in a sheer wool as a suit, or use a printed rayon for a smart afternoon frock.

Style No. 3182 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 5 yards of 39-inch material, 1 yard binding to trim neckline.

Bags Hold Everything

Big bags tell a smart story this Spring. Huge pouches draped in soft leather, and large envelopes snapped over belts will displace bags of last season. Hidden frames and zippers in unexpected places give these utility pockets roomy interiors.

Red, white and blue give patriotic expression in bags designed for navy costumes, the white often added in the white lining of a dressy bag. Tiny pipings of red add dash to more tailored navy or black handbags. Red poppies, primroses and other flowers ornaments are used on the flap of some of the new handbags to add their own bright touch of color. A matching flower worn on the suit lapel gives a perfect finishing touch to the ensemble.

Bright colors are seen in blue, green and red patent bags, a leather soft as fabric and sometimes draped as well. Gabardines and leather combinations will also be smart. Alligator and reptile leathers, to match tailored street shoes, are noted in trim handbags large and flat for underarm carrying.

Handbags Now Larger

New handbags continue to get larger. Lelong has a stunning large tailored bag of the envelope type in russet box-calf. It is fastened under a large round stitched leather frame in which is a transparent cellulose pane. This cover also serves as a pocket for a pair of grey antelope gloves. Original handbags complete many of Balenciaga's new creations. Though huge, they are excessively feminine. Other bags featured are of leather hand-embroidered in silk. Still others include a sewing-bag type of supple fried-onion-tinted box. The top edges, which are knotted like a kerchief when closed, are hand-scalloped in vivid blue. A giant pochette of snowy white seat is embroidered in a splashy all-over design of navy silk flowers. Large envelopes for Summer evening wear are made of the dress fabric and trimmed with tiny ruffles.

Feminine, and very natural is a new rose lipstick designed for pastels. For greys and misty blues, there's one called pink heather, a dainty, subtle note. Cream and dry rouge are available in the same shades.

Anny Blatt is showing interesting hand-knit beach evening gowns; they have plain-colored shirtwaist tops attached to billowy skirts in bold stripes. One favorite has a navy top and a tricolor skirt; another is in black and white.

Omemee Y.P.S. Discusses Church Work

OMEMEE, March 16—(ENS)—The regular meeting of the Young People's Society of Trinity United Church was held on Monday evening in the basement of the church. The meeting was in charge of Miss Mary Faulkner, the missionary convenor. The business was conducted by Richard Vaughan, the president.

Miss Faulkner read a letter which had been sent from Radcliffe, Sask., in thanks for clothing sent in a bale last Fall. It was decided to hold the regular meeting next week and not on Easter Monday. Lily Race played, "My Jesus I Love Thee" as introduction to the worship period. Miss Faulkner led in prayer. The theme of the worship period was "The Gift Unspeakable." The hymn, "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross," was followed by the scripture lesson read by Olive Bannon. Hazel Wilson read a commentary on the scripture reading, dealing with the doubts of John the Baptist in prison concerning the Messiahship of Jesus Christ.

Lily Race played "The Evening Star" by Wagner.

The Ministry of Healing in India was the chapter studied from the book "Moving Millions." As tribute to the life of Dr. Mrs. Schuter the hymn, "For All the Saints" was sung.

The topic dealt with the work of the medical missionaries who are doing so much to alleviate pain and distress among the teeming millions of India.

Rev. R. M. Patterson closed the meeting with a benediction.

W. A. Meets

The W.A. of Christ Church met at the home of Mrs. E. Jamieson on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Miss E. M. Currie.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in sewing, after which the hostess served dainty refreshments.

Personals

The United Church choir was entertained at the home of Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Patterson on Wednesday evening, March 13.

Play Features W.M.S. Meeting

ROSENEATH, March 16—(ENS)—A special feature of the regular meeting of the W.M.S. on Tuesday afternoon was a short play dramatizing the need of India for medical missionaries. The parts were played by Mrs. D. Brisbin as the doctor, Mrs. J. A. Nichol as the graduate nurse, and Mrs. R. Crego as "The woman from India." Mrs. Nichol was in costume and Mrs. Crego made her character part more dramatic by wearing a sari. The play concluded with a talk conveying an appeal to the home church to commit themselves more fully to the task of Christian missions in India. The talk was given by Mrs. A. Nill impersonating an evangelistic missionary.

Mrs. A. J. Campbell gave a resume of daily scripture readings, tracing the spread of the gospel, starting with Jesus and ending with St. Paul. Short impressions of the medical work in India were presented by Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, Mrs. A. Halstead and Mrs. M. Davey.

During the business period, Mrs. R. Crego, supply secretary, announced the bale packed and ready for shipment is valued at $95. This includes a donation from the Mission Circle valued at $15.

Mrs. R. Crego, Mrs. E. Beech and Mrs. D. Brisbin form a committee to work out a system for raising extra funds.

It was decided on motion to sponsore a crokinole party, with the addition of a short program to be held on April 5. Committee in charge, Mrs. C. W. Varcoe, Mrs. A. J. Campbell and Mrs. D. Brisbin. A letter was read from Miss Helen McMurchy acknowledging receipt of Day of Prayer service collection. Mrs. E. Beech, president, was in the chair.

The meeting was held in Mrs. Alfred Sherwin's home, who served refreshments at the close.

"NERVES" SHE CALLED IT

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves," she thought—but it was her kidneys, the filters of her blood, that needed attention. Delay meant danger. She took Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away blood impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, headache, backache, lack of energy, disappeared. 117

Allies Find One Cruiser Necessary To Keep Bombers Off Convoys

PARIS, March 16—(CP-Havas)—The necessity for assigning at least one battleship or cruiser to each merchant marine convoy has been one of the most important naval lessons learned by the Allies during 6½ months of war, French Admiralty sources disclosed Thursday.

Only such heavy craft, it was explained, can carry the high-calibre anti-aircraft guns required for defence against high-flying bombers. This protection, added to safeguards against submarine attack, was credited with having kept convoy losses to a record low.

Battleships and cruisers attached to convoy service need not be modern since speed is not essential. Reduced to their practical role, they are merely "floating anti-aircraft forts." Wartime experience proved that smaller ships pitched too much in the open sea to maintain accurate fire against planes. The merchant vessels themselves could not mount heavy enough guns.

Careful study of German tactics since the war began convinced the Allied Admiralties, it was said, that Nazi bombers prefer to attack isolated shipping, realizing that merchant vessels rarely carry powerful anti-aircraft guns.

Both the U-boat and bomber threat has been reduced by the Allied practice of routing convoys through inland waterways and close to shore wherever possible, it was stated. Submarines cannot venture into shallow waters made tricky by tides and currents. Bombers attempting forays close to shore run the risk of being attacked by fast pursuit planes based along the convoy routes.

Admiralty quarters said France has built, and is building more of, the fastest torpedo boats in the world. The design of those now under construction is secret, but official sources hinted that their speed and fighting power will surpass that of the V.T.B.-10, which in 1934 hung up a still unbeaten record of 55 knots. The V.T.B.-10 is one of a series of 19-ton "mosquito boats" carrying two torpedo tubes and equipped with 2,000-horsepower motors.

Britain runs France a close second in the "mosquito boat" field and is fast adding to her fleet of 20-ton, two-tube craft capable of 45 knots.

Bethel United W.A. Renews Reports

EAST EMILY, March 16—(ENS).—The members of the W.A. of Bethel United Church held their regular meeting in the basement of the church on Tuesday evening with a very good attendance despite the bad condition of the roads. The president, Mrs. Ira Switzer presided and the scripture reading was given by Mrs. John Carew. Mrs. Harry Jackson read the 123rd Psalm and Mrs. Elwood Faulkner read the chapter from the study book.

Reports were read by the treasurer, Mrs. Harry Jackson. Mrs. Marwood McCarrell read the secretary's report in the absence of Mrs. W. Howden. The roll call was answered by repeating a verse of scripture containing the word meek.

A very delightful program followed: Reading, Miss Margaret Wright; solo, Mrs. Harry McCarrell with auto harp accompaniment; two readings, Miss Margaret Graham; reading, Mrs. Evans Storey.

A short business discussion followed, and Rev. Mr. Patterson closed the meeting with prayer. Refreshments were served by the members of Mrs. Charles Spencer's group of the W.O.

Mr. Jacob Lowes was a visitor to Lindsay on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben McCarrell quietly celebrated their 51st wedding anniversary at their home on the Third Line of Emily Township on Wednesday, March 13.
